Men and women who are growing hard of hearing and who experience a stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, accompanied by buzzing, rumbling sounds in their head like water falling or steam escaping should take prompt and effective measures to stop this trouble. Headnoises are almost invariably the forerunners of complete or partial deafness and most deaf people suffer from them constantly. Sometimes these head noises become so distracting and nerve racking, with their never ceasing "hum" they drive the sufferer almost frantic and complete nervous breakdown and even violent insanity have been known to result.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific discovery made recently in England it is now possible to almost instantly lessen the severity of these headnoises and in a very short time to completely and permanently overcome them. With the disappearing of the head noises, the hearing also greatly improves and very frequently can be restored to normal. This English treatment is known as Parmint and can be easily and safely self administered at home. Leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity now have it in stock. Get from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength) and mix it at home with ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved and then take one tablespoonful four times a day until the noises disappear and hearing improves. Parmint is used double strength in this way not only to reduce, by tonic action, the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tube and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear and the results it gives are both remarkably quick and effective.

FAITH IN DOMINION

Quiet Years Mere Breathing Spells Says Big Railroad Man

Speaking at Cochrane, Mr. A. W. Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk Railway Board, declared his belief in Canada's future greatness and prosperity in the following words: "The spirit that animates you all to go forward and conquer will lead to a continuance of prosperity in Canada and if we have a little quieter year or two I do not think we should look upon it with any fear, but rather as a good omen that it will give us time to take breath to make the next big stride forward. I believe in the main Canada is sound, because as long as her immigrants come in, and as long as new land is broken up every year, that is the real source, the real standard of the wealth of Canada; and as long as that goes on I think the prosperity of Canada—although it may ebb and flow slightly—I do not think there is any considerable setback to be apprehended, but that she will go on and show continued progress as she has done in the past."

FORTY THOUSAND AUSTRIANS ARE IN CANADA

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—It is figured there are at least forty thousand Austrians in Canada who will have to report themselves to the Registrar who will be appointed immediately and who will probably open his registration office next week for the recording of information concerning the alien enemy population.

The problem of finding work for the aliens devolves upon the militia, but the Cabinet generally has given a good death of thought to the subject The militia will direct the attention of municipal authorities to the danger of harboring unemployed aliens in any number within their borders and make a strong effort to induce municipal authorities to provide work for them, but it is not expected that municipalities will be able to take care of them all, for it is estimated that at the very least there are 40,000 aliens in the country.

Work Will Be Provided.

It is certain therefore that the Government will provide work. These aliens will not be fed, and allowed to go about in idleness. One of the plans which seems to find favor with the Government is to place these men in Dominion Parks throughout the country and set them to work clearing the fallen trees, cutting them into logs and firewood, and doing general work of this kind. This firewood could either be sold or given to the families of soldiers who have gone to the front. Perhaps also it might be used to alleviate the distress of impoverished families during the coming winter.

Incidentally it is stated that the Order-in-Council passed two days ago requiring citizens of hostile nationalities to report to the registration office will apply to Turks, Greeks, or those of any other nation which may declare war against the allies.

General Gallieni Says Germans Will Have Been Driven Out of France By November 20---Russia And Great Britain Sends Ultimatum To Turkey

LONDON BELIEVES THAT THE ALLIES HAVE ORDERED A GENERAL ADVANCE

Germany's "Last Hope" in the Kaiser's Boasted Bavarians Destroyed by the British, Who Bare the Brunt of Foe's Desperate Attack With Victorious Results

London, Oct. 31.—The impression created here by the latest news is that a general advance of the allied forces in France and Belgium has been ordered, as main interest is centred in the cockpit covering thirty or forty miles from the seaboard.
of both the allied and German armies

The general trend of the movements is, for the moment, according to both British and French official statements, in a northerly and northeasterly direction, which is in accordance with the desires of the allied commanders, but that Germany has resumed her hammer blows with greater energy than ever is attested by the British official information bureau.

In spite of these stubborn counter-attacks, it is claimed that all the movements of the triune forces are in a forward direction towards the line still held by Germans in force, and stretching from Bruges to Thourout, Roulers, Isegham and Courtrai. Whether from Bruges this line extends to Ostend or Zeebrugge is a moot point, there being up to the present no official confirmation of the reported reoccupation of Ostend by the allies. Definite confirmation of the evacuation of Lille by the Germans is also lacking.

British Overwhelmed Bavarians

London, Oct. 31.—That the allies have retaken Lille and Tourcing and that Ostend is being evacuated by the Germans, is the report received from several correspondents. The Telegraff, Amsterdam is in receipt of the same information. There is no indication of this turn of events in the 3 o'clock communique of the French war office, which deals almost exclusively with the fighting of Friday. However this communique serves to support the despatches of correspondents, who say that the supreme German effort was made yesterday afternoon on the line between Nieuport and La Bassee. British troops are declared to have withstood the brunt of the fighting and to have completely overwhelmed a picked corps of Bavarians which was thrown into the battle at its crisis. Following the defeat the Germans began to fall back all along the line, and were today driven out of Lille and Tourcoing, if all reports may be credited. That the Germans have taken up new positions far to the east of Lille is the net result of this fighting, it is claimed

Make Bitter Fight for Zeebrugge

Simultaneously with these events the invaders have abandoned Ostend and retired to a line resting on Zeebrugge, fifteen miles east of Ostend. A further concentration is reported to be under way in the vicinity of Bruges. Zeebrugge, however, is regarded as the most vital coast point held by the Germans, from a tactical standpoint, and it is believed that they will make a bitter fight for its possession

Ever since the German drive between Nieuport and Dixmude failed it has been apparent that a major operation would be attempted at another point. The allied commanders believed this drive would have Boulogne as its objective, rather than Dunkirk and Calais. There have been many reports of huge reinforcements to the German lines on the extreme left, and a good deal of anxiety has been felt as to the forces the allies would be called on to face. But these reports were distinctly German and it would appear that only the one Bavarian corps could be thrown into the battle.

British Distinguished Themselves

The British forces in particular distinguished themselves in the engagement which raged fiercely for many hours, and was characterized by the utmost dash and bravery on the part of the Germans. Finally, however, "Tommy Atkins" emerged from his trenches and came on with the cold steel. Then it was that the Teuton wavered and finally fled in panic. The pursuers kept close behind him, and as a result Tourcoing and Lille are once more held by the allies. The latter fact cannot be positively stated in the absence of official confirmation, but the report is on sufficiently good authority to be accepted in the absence of denial.

The correspondent of the Daily News says that the main Prussian army in Belgium "is massed north of the railway which follows an irregular route from Dixmude to Thielt and Dynze. The Bavarian troops, holding the centre of the line in Flanders, have been badly cut up by the British, who came down on them so hard that they were forced to retreat so far that the German right wing had to fall back across the Yser."

New York, Oct. 31.—In an editorial on the German announcement of the annexation of Belgium, the Herald says:

"To Americans the Kaiser's ruthless efforts fraught upon the little nation whose neutrality he was pledged to respect is the crime of the ages. If anything was needed to emphasize the enormity of this crime it is furnished by the threat of absorption based on conquest. If American sentiment could determine the result there would be no peace until the Belgians are once more in possession of their own country, with every safeguard thrown around it to insure to them the full enjoyment of the liberty for which they have so gallantly fought.

"Americans have contributed, are contributing, and will contribute liberally for the relief of suffering Belgians. They are giving to the people of King Albert—not to the subjects of any 'Wilhelm Von Belgium.'"

All Fear of Successful Coast Raid Has Been Dispelled

Paris, Oct. 31.—It was stated at the headquarters of General Gallieni that all fear of a successful coast raid by the Germans has been dispelled as the result of the last few days fighting and that all Germans in France will have been driven out by November 20.

Central Flanders an Enormous Hospital.

The battle in the vicinity of Ypres is of a most stubborn character, especially at Passchendaele and the neighboring villages, and the slaughter is so great that central Flanders has become an enormous hospital. The allied advance in this quarter is pushing near Roulers, which is occupied by the Germans after undergoing great damage each time it changed hands.

ATTORNEY SHOOTS BANKER AND SELF IN OHIO BANK

Steubenville, Ohio, Oct. 31.— D. J. Sinclair, a prominent banker of this city, was shot twice and seriously wounded today in his private banking room by Charles Gilmore, an attorney, who then fired a bullet into his own brain, dying instantly. It is believed Gilmore's mind was unbalanced.

Gilmore has for years imagined that Sinclair owed him money for the care of an uncle, N.G. Garrett, in his declining years.

Turkish Government Throws Blame German Officers and Ship Crews

Report That Turkish Fleet is Now Bombarding Sebastopool, This However Comes From Rome, Whose Despatches Has Been Singularly Unreliable--Britain and Russia Demands Dismissal of German Officer Turks Ships and Dismantling of the Cruisers Goeben and Breslau

LONDON, OCT. 31.—THE ROME CORRESPONDENT OF THE STAR SAYS THE BLACK SEA FLEET HAS ATTACKED THE TURKISH SQUADRON, SINKING A MINE-LAYER AND A DESTROYER, AND CAPTURING A COLLIER.

HE ALSO STATES THAT TURKISH WARSHIPS ARE NOW BOMBARDING SEBASTOPOL.

ULTIMATUM FROM POWERS

LONDON. OCT. 31.—BOTH GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA HAVE PRESENTED THE FOLLOWING DEMANDS TO THE SUBLIME PORTE:

AN EXPLANATION OF TURKEY'S NAVAL ACTION IN THE BLACK SEA; THE DISMISSAL OF GERMAN OFFICERS FROM TURKISH SHIPS, AND THE DISMANTLING OF THE CRUISERS GOEBEN AND BRESLAU, SAID TO HAVE BEEN PURCHASED BY TURKEY FROM GERMANY. FAILURE TO RECEIVE SATISFACTION OF THESE DEMANDS, DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH TURKEY WILL BE SEVERED BY GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA.

THE REPLY OF THE PORTE HAS NOT YET BEEN RECEIVED, BUT HOPE ID STILL EXPRESSED OFFICIALLY THAT IT MAY BE OF A CHARACTER TO PREVENT THE FURTHER EXTENSION OF HOSTILITIES.

STATES TO ACT FOR ALLIES

WASHINGTON, OCT. 31.-THE STATE DEPARTMENT TODAY ANNOUNCED THAT THE UNITED STATES WILL ACT FOR RUSSIA, FRANCE AND ENGLAND IN CONSTANTINOPLE, THIS COUNTRY HAVING RECEIVED AN INDIRECT REQUEST TO ASSUME THE SAME RESPONSIBILITIES IN THE TURKISH CAPITAL. A DIRECT REQUEST IS EXPECTED. IT IS REGARDED AS LIKELY THAT THE AMERICAN AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA WILL ACT FOR TURKEY IN PETROGRAD.

THE EXPECTED EXCUSE

Washington, Oct. 31.—The Turkish minister of finance informed the French ambassador at Constantinople yesterday that the raid of Turkish warships on Russian seaports took place without the knowledge of the Ottoman Government, and presumably under the influence of German officers and crew. This information was conveyed in a despatch from Ambassador Morgenthau to the American Government.

Mr. Morgenthau added that the Russian ambassador received instructions at 3 a.m., yesterday to demand his passports, and made an effort to see the Grand Vizier, who pleaded illness, and did not receive him.

The Russian, French and British ambassadors, according to the same despatch are preparing to leave Constantinople together.

...Ambassador Morgenthau's despatch made no mention of any declaration of war nor o, internal conditions. He will take over the British and French embassies.

BRITISH AND JAPS BOMBARDING TSING-TAU FORTS

The Attack is Ever Increasing in Furry, Troops are in High Spirits and Confident of Success--Japanese Fleet Augmented With British Warships

New York, Oct. 31.—The East and West News Bureau made public this afternoon the following despatch received by them from Tokio:

"The official announcement of the navy department, made today, Oct. 31, is to the effect that the Japanese blockading fleet that has daily, since Oct. 25, been bombarding the Tsing-tau forts, has, with the addition of British warships, redoubled its efforts on Oct. 29 and 30, in fierce cannonading on the various forts of the enemy.

"The Japanese army at dawn, Oct. 21, commenced a general attack on Tsing-tau and is now engaged in a vigorous artillery battle. The martial spirit of the attacking army runs high."

GOVT. REGULATIONS AS TO BUTTER

Under date October 24th, the Department of Agriculture has issued the following:

During the past few weeks, produce firms in Toronto, doubtless with the best intentions but without authority from this Department, have been sending the following notice to their correspondents in the country:—

IMPORTANT BUTTER NOTICE

All butter in packages or wrapped in parchment paper must in future be labelled "Dairy" or "Creamery."

This means no butter can be bought or sold in plain wrappers or in unbranded packages. No butter can be sold or bought under brand of "Separator."

The word "Dairy" or "Creamery" must appear on wrapper or package.

Failing to comply with the above Government Act you are liable to a fine of $10.00 to $30.00 for each offence.

For further information write the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and ask for copy of the Dairy Industry Act, 1914, Bulletin No. 42.

The information in the above notice is not quite correct. The Regulations made under the authority of the Dairy Industry Act, 1914, came into force on September 1st, and provide that when dairy butter is put up in blocks, squares or prints and wrapped in parchment paper the paper shall be printed or branded with the words "Dairy Butter," in letters at least one quarter inch square, in addition to any other wording that the buttermaker may desire to use. There is nothing in the law or Regulations to prevent the use of the word "Separator" in addition to the words "Dairy" Butter but no such grade of butter as "Separator" is recognized by the law. The Butter Act of 1903 defined only 2 grades namely "Dairy" and "Creamery." The Dairy Industry Act of 1914 defines a third grade as "Whey" butter, Buttermakers may use any form of printing or branding including the words "Dairy Butter" which is not inconsistent with the definition of dairy butter. Butter in rolls, crocks or tubs is not required to be branded. Dairy butter in 56 pound boxes must also be branded "Dairy Butter."

The underlying principle of this legislation is protection to the consumer, the honest buttermaker and the honest trader. The whole object of the law is to prevent misrepresentation no reasonable practice is interfered with.

I would suggest the following forms as suitable for the printing of dairy butter wrappers:

Choice Dairy Butter
Made by
Mrs. John Doe,
Rose Bank Farm, Doeville,
Ontario.

or the following:

Choice Dairy Butter
Made From Separator Cream,
By
Mrs. John Doe,
Rose Bank Farm, Doeville,
Ontario.

The full text of "The Dairy Industry Act, 1914" and the Regulations made thereunder are published as Bulletin No. 42, Dairy and Cold Storage Series, which may be obtained upon application to the undersigned or to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

J. A. RUDDICK,
Dairy Commissioner.

AUSTRALIANS GUARD THE SUEZ CANAL

The Safety of Egypt is Being Well Soaked After Britain Has Taken Every Precaution to Meet Any Emergency-- New Zealanders In Egypt, Too

London, Oct. 31. — England is in readiness to prevent any invasion of Egypt by the Turks, if she is drawn into still another field of hostilities. There has been much mystery over the whereabouts of the Australian and New Zealand units who have been at various times reported in the firing line. It is now understood that they are in Egypt and have been guarding the entire length of the Suez Canal for several weeks. In addition certain first line troops have been quietly sent to Egypt to reinforce the garrison already there, and stated that every precaution has been so far as England is concerned it is taken to meet any emergency that might result from any action of Turkey.

WOMENS WAR FUND

The sixty young ladies who assisted the staff of Mr. T. C. Elliott's dry goods store on Saturday worked hard and faithfully. Towards the end of their day's work more than one complained of having sore feet from the unaccustomed standing, however to use a slang expression they did not get "cold feet," as they stuck manfully to the job.

Mr. Elliott had patriotically given the use of his store to the local Women's War Fund, letting the day's net profit go to the Fund. The profits for this Fund will be approximately $75.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE A FAILURE IN ASSULT ON THE VISTULA RIVER

He Set Out With the Flower of the German Army to Crush Russians, and Suffered Disastrous Defeat--Desperate Attempts to Rally His Broken Corps Fail--Army Fled Panick-Stricken, Abandoning Guns and Ammunition,

London, Oct. 31.—The Daily Mail publishes the following despatch on the Russian campaign, saying that the German crown prince especially requested that he be allowed to command the assault on the Vistula River lines.

"For this plan," says the despatch "very large forces were assembled. The best Prussian troops were allotted to the crown prince in the centre with heavy siege guns and Austrian cavalry.

"On the left wing General Hindenberg commanded the Bavarians, while the Austrians were on the right wing. The general idea was for the centre to attack Ivangorod, while the wings should envelop and crush the Russians.

"The unexpected vigor of the Russian counter-attack carried all before it. The crown prince's army gave way, abandoning much material and 36 heavy guns which were bogged in the mud.

"All attempts to rally the Austro-German forces were in vain, and on Tuesday the crown prince arrived back at Radom, whence he had set out a fortnight before with such high hopes, beaten and a fugitive.

"He then tried to establish his army along the line from Jedlinsko to Ilza, with Radom as the centre, but the vigor of the Russian cavalry pursuit prevented this. The Russians entered Radom next day, and the pursuit continues."

A despatch from Petrograd says that a Polish corps is being raised in Russian Poland, which will be commanded by Poles exclusively. The force will be equipped with guns and cannon taken from the Austro-Germans.

Another report says that the German general staff has ordered a retreat of all forces in Poland to the Silesian frontier.

German Guns Again Bombard The Cathedral in Rheims

Rheims again has become the target of Teutonic guns, and activities on the heights of the Meuse, in the Woevre district, indicate further efforts on the part of the Germans to strengthen their hold on the St. Mihiel district. Up to the present apparently no declaration of war upon the other has been made by either Russia or Turkey, and the hope is still entertained in some quarters that the Porte may be able to advance a plausible explanation which will keep Turkey from being dragged into the cauldron of the European war.

An interesting announcement comes from Melbourne. At the request of the secretary of state for war, Lord Kitchener, sixty cadets from the Duntroon Military College at Duntroon, New Zealand, are being sent to join the British expeditionary force, it is stated. This is the institution founded some years ago upon the recommendation of Lord Kitchener himself.

Glorious Victory Won by Big Unmounted French Cavalry

Paris, Oct. 31.—A semi-official announcement was made in Paris this afternoon as follows:

"In one of our attacks delivered the day before yesterday a village strongly held by the enemy's infantry, supported by artillery, was taken by a detachment of French unmounted cavalry belonging to two dragoon regiments. The men charged with their lances in their hands. The enemy left in the village more than 200 dead and abandoned 200 of their wounded.

THE QUAKER AND THE WAR

Toronto, Oct. 31.—The resignation of Prof. Zavitz of the Ontario Agricultural College because a military organization was formed contrary to his wishes, is now obtaining the serious consideration of Hon. James Duff. Although no definite statement could be gained from the department on Saturday, it is understood that an attempt will be made to heal the threatened chism between professor and students. Mr. Zavitz may be persuaded to continue his work without sharing at all in the military arrangements.

The trouble arose out of the desire of a large majority of the students to form a military organization. Hon. James Duff during his visit had approved the scheme if it would not interfere with regular class work. Acting President Zavitz, however, was opposed and wished the work to continue as usual. His attitude culminated in an order refusing to allow the provisional field company to parade on the college grounds.

A student military committee was then formed and the idea of proceeding without his sanction was resolved upon. Prof. Zavitz then resigned. A student petition was then forwarded to the minister, and he signifies his intention of having a statement ready this evening.

Mr. Zavitz belongs to a patriotic Canadian family, but his Quaker denomination forbids his sharing in military preparations.

ATHLETICS IN FRANCE

In the matter of training her young men for athletics France is going ahead very rapidly. At Rheims the Marquis Polignac has established a wonderful athletic college. It is the most complete school of its kind in the world—in fact there is nothing like it the world over. Every appointment for the teaching of physical training is absolutely perfect, and nothing else is taught. There are now hundreds of young Frenchmen being taught physical training, athletics especially, in the college at Rheims. A large number of these coaches—that's what they are—will be graduated from the Rheims college each year and sent out to take up their work throughout France. It's not hard then to picture the result of this—a nation of wonderful athletes. The French are taking up football, golf, tennis and other outdoor sports to an amazing extent.

STAGE STRUCK IN FIRST GAME

Even the Great Muggsy Knows What Nerves Mean to a Young Player

Muggsy McGraw made his initial appearance in professional baseball under conditions that were far from encouraging. He was given the first tryout by the Olean club of the old New York state league, and was assigned to the third bag. McGraw was then a youngster in his teens. He made his debut April 1, 1890, an ominous date for John, as on that auspicious occasion he proved to be the biggest kind of an April fool package.

McGraw was so small it was impossible to find a suit to come anywhere near his measure. It seemed to McGraw, as he has told it, as if all the world was in attendance on the day he appeared at Olean. To his eyes it seemed as if he had never before seen so many people. This, of course, was due to the fact that the little third baseman was nervous and that his mind multiplied the actual number of spectators. The noises made by the crowd also worried him. It sounded like the prolonged roaring of a mighty sea.

When the first ball was knocked down to him he says the noise of the crowd ceased as if by magic, and the ball, which happened to be a slow grounder, appeared to McGraw as if it would never reach him. Finally, after what seemed to be an age, he found himself with the ball in his grasp, and he turned to throw it over to first base, where there was a player who was the tallest in the league.

The distance to first now appeared to McGraw to be fully a mile away, and his heart sank within him as he suddenly thought to himself that he could never throw the ball that far. Yet he nerved himself, and not only did he get the ball over, but he put it several feet over the first baseman's head. Every succeeding time the ball was knocked down to McGraw during the rest of the game he managed to throw higher and higher over the head of the man on first.

After the game the manager came up to McGraw and patting him on the head, told him that he was a nice boy, and so on, but as a ball player he was a joke. McGraw left Olean that night and went over to Wellsville, where he finished the season. He did so well that at the end of that year he was the recipient of eighteen different offers from managers who were willing to pay well for his services.

BOXER'S BIG SALARY

The Thrifty Frenchman Finds the Ring Stepping Stone to Fortune

Georges Carpentier, the French pugilistic champion, is very fond of stage life which his success enabled him to take up; also he is proud of his ability to make a huge income by his ring and theatrical engagements.

"It is very strange to be making so much money in such a pleasant way," said Carpentier. "When my manager discovered me I was 15½ years old, and I was earning only a franc a day in a coal mine. When he wished me to go in for training my parents were unwilling to lose even that amount of money, but he said he himself would pay the franc a day.

"In my first year I made $100, in the next $750, in the third $5,000, in the fourth $25,000, and now I am making about $50,000 a year. My parents, to whom I gave my first $5,000, rejoice very much in my success, and, indeed, I think there are few who at my age make as much money as I have been able to."

CREDIT FOR FARMERS

What a Western Man Learned by Trip to Europe

The Canadian farmer suffers the greatest handicap in the world in the matter of facilities for borrowing money, said Mr. J. H. Haslam, of Regina, Sask., who went to Europe as chairman of a commission to investigate agricultural credits. While the Canadian farmer (presumably, the Western farmer) pays anywhere from eight per cent. up to 50 per cent. for advances, the European farmer with less land and a smaller investment can secure "almost any amount he may ask for" at from two to six per cent.

In France money is at the ready disposal of the farmer at a rate of interest ranging from two and a half to three per cent. In Germany he pays from three and a half to five per cent., in Italy from four to six per cent., in Belgium and Holland from three to four per cent., in Austria-Hungary four and a half per cent., and in Russia from four and a half to six per cent. In nearly every country the farmer obtains money as cheaply as or more cheaply than the banks.

Cross a Real Mystery

Leach Cross is one of the mysteries of the ring, says Jim Corbett. There is no denying he can fight when he cares to. Nearly all his battles have been over the ten-round course right in New York. At times his showing has been of a high order, and at others he has looked like a preliminary scrapper. Cross likes to meet the rushing, slam-bang fellows. He has a wallop, second to none, and knows how to use it on the fellows who tear in. Long experience has taught him that. But every time that Leach has boxed a clever man, his showing has been very ordinary, and that is the reason why he so frequently enters the ring at a good price in the betting.

Are We Going Crazy?

Fifty years ago there was one lunatic in 575 of the world's population now there is one in 236. At this rate in 300 years there will be more insane than sane people in the world.

Butterfly's Long Trip

Brilliantly colored butterflies or moths, three inches in length and brightly hued, are not common in Canada, and consequently some workmen in a Toronto lumber yard were surprised to see one of this kind fluttering around in a car. It was in with some ash lumber, which arrived from the Southern States, so that evidently it had traveled the distance from its native clime in a box car. It was three inches long and measured three and a half inches from tip to tip of the wings. The body was two and a half inches long and the wings were striped with grey, yellow, black and white.

WHITENED HAIR

Divergent Opinions as to Change of Color Over Night

One reads occasionally in novels and other literature of cases in which a person's hair was turned white within one single night, under some severe mental stress. An alleged historical case of this kind is that of Marie Antoinette. The true cause of the bleaching of the hair is a matter of some dispute, says a scientist who, investigating a case of sudden greying of a man's hair reported that the inner canal of the hair had become filled with small air bubbles, which imparted to it its white appearance. According to another physician on the other hand the phenomenon is due to the destruction of the hair pigment by the phagocyte cells. Others deny altogether the truth of reports of sudden blanching, or assert that where it has occurred this may have been due simply to the fact that the person in question was suddenly placed under circumstances compelling the discontinuance of the practice of hair dyeing.

The Shape of the Head

Scientists declare that during the last quarter of a century the shape of the human head has altered owing to the development of mental power, caused by the ever-increasing educational facilities.

Size is of no consequence. It is the shape that tells. Twenty-two to twenty-three and a half inches is a standard for the literary type of head of the first order, but powerful intellects are indicated by heads measuring up to twenty-four and three-quarter inches.

Heads indicative of skill in mechanism, detail, and manufacturing work are usually large, rather wide about the ears, and with a broad, although not necessarily high, forehead. The broad, protruding Beethoven forehead indicates musical skill.

INDUSTRIOUS SETTLERS

Doukhobors, Though Sometimes Troublesome, Have Done Well

The Doukhobors, in their comparatively few years of residence in Canada, have prospered amazingly. In the Kootenay valley, near Nelson, and in the Kittle valley, near Grand Forks, the society owns 14,000 acres of the richest fruit land in the world. One of the largest brick-making plants in Canada is that founded by the Doukhobors at Yorkton. Since their immigration from Manitoba to British Columbia they have increased their landholdings, and, notwithstanding their primitive way of living, they make very successful farmers.

The Doukhobors—the name means "led by the spirit"—originated in Russia about 200 years ago. Because they denied man's right to rule man, they were exiled to the Arctic regions. That was the first of many painful pilgrimages. The English Quakers befriended the exiles and in 1899 had the entire sect, 7,500 souls, transported to Canada, where they were offered freedom to practice their religion in their own way. They made rapid progress both as farmers and artisans.

There are no idlers in a Doukhobor family, nor a Doukhobor community. Their clothing is characteristic of the sect. The women wear gorgeous colors and fantastic, broad-skirted gowns. The men wear patriarchial blue coats, with flaring pleated skirts. Their are 11,000 Doukhobors in Canada, their leader being Peter Verigin, a former Siberian exile.

THE ESKIMO'S CRUISER

Whole Family and All Possessions Carried in Big Oomiak

The oomiak may be described as the "family boat" of the Eskimo. It is used by the men in whale and walrus hunting and by the whole family during their annual summer trips, which they make to gather the winter store of fish and berries. Then it presents a spectacle not soon forgotten. Crowded to the gunwales with a mixed assortment of men, women, children and dogs together with piles of provisions and hides and all the impediments of camping, it moves slowly along. A sail of white and colored drilling, sewn in alternate stripe, or even of patched skins, assists the laboring vessels through the water. Some of the occupants paddle when they feel like it, others scan the shore or watch the water rippling from the stern. If progress is too slow even for the Eskimo the dogs are put ashore, a stout line of walrus hide is attached to the bow, and they tow the boat along. Such parties are away all summer, or, rather, during the three months' interval which is not winter—a brief, beautiful season of unending delight.

Fish Worth Catching

What was said to be the largest sturgeon ever caught in the district was taken in a pound net at Old Woman Harbor, six miles from Little Current, Ont., by John Lapointe. From tip of tail to end of nose it measured 7 feet 8 inches. Its circumference behind the fins or flappers was 3 feet 8 inches; its weight 274 pounds. The value of the fish, which was shipped to the New York market was slightly over $200, it containing 61 pounds of caviare, worth $2.25 a pound.

Refreshing Sleep

A glass or two of the "Beer That Builds" at bed time, will bring restful, refreshing sleep. The tired business man—the women who is nervous and run-down —will find this tonic and food most beneficial. Rich in food value—easily digested—and extra mild.

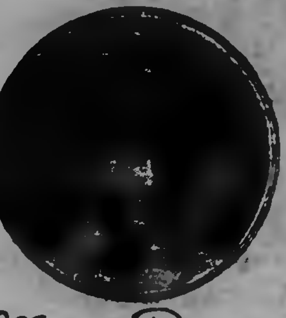
DAILY MAGAZINE PAGE FOR EVERYBODY

Which Life View Is Best, My Friend's or "Boy's"

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

MY friend is dreadfully discouraged about things. The world is all wrong, and the people in it are all wicked. There are a few who think they are happy—but they're mistaken. Nobody is honest, nobody is true, nobody is prosperous, and nobody counts.

He told me all about it yesterday.

"The world grows worse and worse," said my friend. "I can't bear to read the papers at all. Bloody war in Mexico; labor troubles in Colorado; oppression, thievery, tyranny—everywhere. The rich grind the faces of the poor—and the poor whine, and dare not resent it.

"There's no more chance for a poor man in this country today than there was in darkest Russia 500 years ago. You might as well be dead as to be poor—and I'd rather be dead than to be rich—and have all my tainted money on my conscience. Every dollar I take into my hand makes me tremble, for I know it is stained with the blood of some driven slave of a man, or with the tears of some heart-broken woman.

"Bombs? Yes, I believe in them—they're the only things that are ever going to destroy our present system of society and make the world worth living in again.

What Two "Grown-ups" Said.

"We're all sick—heart-sick and body-sick and brain-sick and soul-sick. We'll never be well again until the whole system of things is changed."

"And how are you going to change it?" said I to my discouraged friend.

"I don't know," said my discouraged friend to me, "but I'm going to try." And then he went away to take somebody else out into the perfectly good sunshine, and try to make it look as if the sky was thick with black and threatening clouds.

On the very next corner from the one on which my discouraged friend left me I met Another. Another is a woman—a nice, plain, motherly, uninteresting, rather stupid, very good little woman.

The world is glorious. The sun shines all day—and the moon or the stars all night—in the world where my friend, Another, lives. There is no sickness there and no pain and no sorrow.

Everybody's rich—if they want to be, and nobody is poor unless they prefer poverty. There are no ugly women and no weak men. The cowards are all dead and buried long ago—and so are the liars. Money is a good thing, and everybody can have all of it they want.

Nothing that you eat ever disagrees with you in the world where my friend, Another, lives. Nothing ever wears you out. Work is a delight, anxiety is a stimulant, discouragement is a sin and sorrow is a wicked folly.

I stood on the next corner and had Another tell me all about it.

"Who told you I was ill?" said my friend Another; "I am not ill, I am perfectly well. Oh, yes, I did think I was suffering—once, but that was before I knew. Now that I realize that it was all just an illusion—there isn't any more suffering. There isn't any suffering anywhere. There wasn't be—it's all a mistake.

"Old? Why, nonsense, I couldn't be old if I tried.

"Sad? Take the word out of the dictionary; it doesn't mean anything.

"We're all rich; we're all well; we're all strong; we're all good; we're all happy; everything is for the best."

What the Little Boy Thought.

When I went home I met the children skipping hand in hand from school. And they were laughing and the Little Boy sang as he skipped.

"What do you think of the world?" said I to the children. "Is it a good place to live in—are you very happy?"

The Little Boy laughed aloud for very joy.

"Oh," he said, "I'm so glad I live in this world!"

The Little Girl smiled wistfully and looked very grave, and very kind.

"But this morning, when you could not spell the word the teacher gave you, you cried," said the Little Girl very gently.

The Little Boy laughed again. "B-o-y, boy," he chanted triumphantly. "I can spell it now—and that's what makes me laugh."

And the Little Girl and I both laughed, too, and the Little Boy walked ahead of us and sang a martial tune. Bravely did he sing it and lustily—and we all marched home in martial step to luncheon.

First the tears—then the laughter—then love. What a strange world it would be if most of us were not just a little bit like the children!

I don't want to live in the hideous world my friend who is so worried about things seems to know.

I'm afraid I should not quite like it in the strange world that is all light and no shadows at all in which my sweet friend, Another, appears to live.

"B-o-y, boy." When Johnny comes marching home again—hurrah, hurrah—how blithely the brave old tune led us up the hill—to home.

Come, children, I'll live with you—if you will let me.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am not like the 14 and 16-year-old lovesick girls who write to you. I have lived 25 years. I am writing you for a few words of consolation, because I don't think much advice can be given.

I dearly love a young man, but I don't know that he cares for me in the way that I do for him. I have been associating with him for almost two years, every day, but just in a business way. He has treated me splendidly, and shown every courtesy that a young man could.

I want to say and do just what will help me win him.

I have learned to love him, so that I must tell some one, although I have not confided even in any of my girl friends.

He doesn't keep company with any girls, although he corresponds with a couple of girls that I know, yet he never goes to see them. There is nothing in that way which could hinder us becoming very much to each other, and our position in life is not a hindrance.

I realize the restriction upon girls in choosing young men for their companions, therefore I cannot show my feeling toward him.

DISCOURAGED.

SO it's the old story—brand new to you? Dear girl, my heart aches for you. There is nothing funny in your little story. To me it is very pathetic.

If you like the man and he likes you, and there are no other people in the way, you ought to be able to get him to take really a deep interest in you—if you are his type. Many of the happiest marriages are those in which the women do the real courting. But you must not let the man suspect that you are trying to interest him in you. That would be fatal.

What sort of a chap is he? Does he live at home? Or is he, like so many young men, alone in a big city and starving for real friendship and companionship? If he is, that is your chance; invite him to your home, make him welcome there, have a nice little dinner for him and a good comfy chair for him to sit in; don't show him off to your friends or your family, let him alone. Then if he is for you, and you are for him, it won't be long before you both find it out.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

DANGERS OF THE DEEP :: By Michelson

HONEST, there are a great many dangers in boats. You will guess some of them right away. The danger of feeling safely ALONE, for example, and of being carried away by the wonderful blue and green and gold romance of the sea.

What may happen to the boat is another matter. Rocks and shallows need to be VERY plainly marked to attract any attention under some circumstances.

Fortunately there is a dinky in case of accident, and LOVE, silent and watchful, his wireless always working, is on the job. Love knows the value of a life preserver. He knows that the sea of life is full of hazards. He knows the joy of the open, but he knows the need to reach at last the snug harbor of HOME.

Mary on Income Tax.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"PETER, tell me about the income tax," said my wife one night with the air of one bent upon solving all the riddles of the universe.

"Well," said I, cautiously, "the income tax is a bee that stings. There's a diversity of opinion about its excellence. People who make less than $3000 a year think it's a heaven-born inspiration calculated to pay off the national debt—in time. People who make more than $3000 are not so enthusiastic."

"What do you think of it?"

"I think it's a bully idea," I said with a grin. "I'm not in the bee's path."

Mary was silent for some time—then:

"I wish you did have to pay an income tax," she said.

"In heaven's name, why?"

"Oh, I don't know," said Mary airily.

"I wish I were making sufficient to necessitate it," I agreed, "but I'm not."

"That's what I mean," said Mary eagerly. But I guessed from her air of guilt that there was something else in her mind.

"Peter," she said again, after a while, "will they publish a list of everybody in town who has to pay an income tax?"

"I don't know."

"How much do you have to make to be taxed?"

"Caesar's Ghost, dear," I exclaimed. "It isn't a privilege, you know. I'm not struggling to get into the taxable class by a long shot."

"But honestly," persisted Mary, "just how much do you have to have to be taxed?"

"Over three thousand a year if you're single—four thousand if you're married."

"Well," exclaimed Mary, "I simply do not believe Freddy Jones makes four thousand a year and that's all there is about it. I do not believe it."

"Nor I."

"At the club today," went on Mary indignantly, "Mrs. Jones was rustling about and talking in bored accents about how Freddy had to make out some income tax blank, and how annoying it was."

"I doubt if Freddy wasted more than a bottle of ink," I ventured.

"Peter!"

"Yes?"

"Couldn't you—couldn't you——"

"Yes?"

"Couldn't you say your income was over four thousand?"

"What for?"

"Well, I've thought it all out—and—you'd only have to pay a small sum of money—and—and it looks awfully well, Peter, it really does. It would be worth that much money just to——"

"Just to what?"

"Well, just to be among those who—who have to pay. It does make a difference, Peter. Today everybody was awfully nice to the women whose husbands have to pay an income tax, and the women whose husbands didn't have to pay one were—were sort of slighted."

"Good Lord!" I exclaimed. "Mary, would you honestly want me to pay a tax on a fictitious excess of income merely to gain a little tinsel glory out of it?"

And to Mary there was no moral question involved. Only a woman would think of the income tax as a means of measuring social distinction.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why You Should Not Eat All Your Appetite Craves

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

SPRUNG up of late, like the armed men from Cadmus's dragon's teeth, is the absurd instruction "when a child craves candies give him all he wants," and, "whenever you have the appetite, eat."

The exponent of this melancholy propaganda sacrifices physiology and health to a magician-like twist of the wrist. Accuracy is degraded to pay homage to punch and clap-trap, truth is subverted to fine phrases.

"Put a knife to thy throat if thou be a man given to appetite," said Solomon with keen insight. Digestion, true enough, requires a fair appetite, but even an appetite in time proves an abomination.

The little balloon-like arrangement recently discovered by physiologists, which is swallowed and returned for examination, quickly proves the difference between real hunger—the need of the tissues for food—and appetite sharpened with cloyless sauces.

An increase of appetite is the vain boast of many very sick persons who foolishly convince themselves of good health. An augmented appetite grows on what it feeds.

Actually any one without an appetite—even the sickest of mortals—can summon it quickly enough by chewing, munching and swallowing food. Appetite comes with eating, and Rabelais was by no means the first to discover this.

It is best to preserve your natural appetite in that tone and degree of strength which nature gives. Beware of acquiring a fuller appetite than that with which you have been endowed. The instant you omit the physiological habits of life by eating fondly and too well, your appetite grows apace, and becomes voracious and Gargantuan.

There is nothing more shameless and pathological than the civilized appetite. It does not suffice to slake its thirst at some sweet, neighboring brook, but seeks for sauce and caters to the cook. The fair fruits and tempting viands of wonderful tables are more fatal Loreleis to modern man than veritable Sargasso seas of poisonous liquors.

What the eye sees and wants, and what the tissues need and crave are separate and distinct. Those who are happy enough to lead the simple, primitive life have a mild, moderate, sane sort of hunger. There is no false, artificial appetite engrafted upon it.

Homer said there is nothing more shameless than appetite, which still, whatever anguish loads the breast, makes you remember your own despite both food and drink. Homer did not nod then, for he expressed poetically the fact that the more you eat the greater grows the appetite.

This, too, explains the life insurance statistics, to wit, that the tissue degenerations which cause most middle life deaths are the upshot of overeating as much as overdrinking.

Instinct enables a spider to save its own life by entrapping its prey, but appetite almost neutralizes this effect by nearly gorging the spider to death when it attempts to swallow it.

Answers to Health Questions

GEO. H.—1. How can I reduce my flesh?

2. Can catarrh of the nose be cured?

1. Avoid eating after 6 P. M. Do not eat any fats or greasy foods. Walk, dance, ride a bicycle and run.

2. Most nasal troubles, no matter what they are, can be cured by the nasal surgeon.

* * *

INQUISITIVE—1. My right ear is practically useless, although I hear very good from the other. What causes this? Could ear wax or picking the ear with a pin cause this? Can it be remedied?

2. How can I get rid of too much posterior abdominal flesh?

1. Never dig a sharp instrument into such a delicate structure as the ear. It may injure the ear drum or some other part of the delicate mechanism. Go to a good ear surgeon at once.

2. By rolling, bicycle riding, trapeze exercises, gymnastics and avoidance of all salt in your food. Eschew fats, oils, sweets and all eating and drinking after six.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

IN summer there is nothing more cooling and delicious than ice cream that is well made. Every one has some favorite recipe with which she has good luck, but, when you grow tired of your own favorite, try one of these four that have proved very satisfactory to me.

FRENCH ICE CREAM.

Two cups of milk, five egg yolks, one cup of sugar, two cups of cream, one tablespoonful vanilla, pinch of salt.

Make a custard of eggs, milk and sugar. When thoroughly cool add the whipped cream, flavoring and freeze.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM.

Four cups of cream, six egg yolks, one and one-half cups sugar, four ounces of chocolate, vanilla and pinch of salt.

Scald one cup of cream and add to melted chocolate and cook until it is smooth. Add sugar, salt and vanilla and the other three cups of cream beaten stiff. Lastly the eggs well beaten. Freeze.

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE.

One pint whipped cream, two cups of mashed berries, half a cup of powdered sugar.

Pack in a mould in ice and salt and let stand five or six hours. To make coffee mousse use a cup of black coffee instead of berries.

PHILADELPHIA ICE CREAM.

Four cups of light cream, three cups heavy cream, one cup milk, one cup sugar, one tablespoonful flavoring, quarter teaspoonful salt. Mix and freeze without cooking.

To make banana ice cream, which is delicious, add the pulp of four bananas over which the juice of a lemon has been squeezed, to Philadelphia cream.

Ginger ice cream may be made by adding one cup of preserved ginger, chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls lemon juice and three tablespoonfuls of ginger syrup to French ice cream.

The Good Night Story

The Foolish Wife—By VERNON MERRY

NOT so very long ago a poor man left home telling his wife that a man would call to take away seven pretty little pictures, and that she should not give them to him until he had paid her $70. The wife took the pretty pictures and was looking at them when the purchaser called. She asked him for the $70.

"I'm very sorry," said the man, "but I left my purse at home. If you will let me have them I will leave you good security. I shall take only five, and leave the other two until I bring you the money."

The good wife was foolish enough to do this, so the man took the pictures and went away. When her husband came back he asked her for the money. Then she told him how clever she had been. He was so angry that he could scarcely speak a word. He just went out and sat on the doorstep. He wondered if in all the world there was any one half as foolish as his wife.

As he sat there on the steps a young man came down the street, stopped in front of the house, and asked him if he could tell him where a man by the name of John Smith lived. The husband thought he would try and see if this young fellow was as foolish as his wife, so he said:

"Certainly, I know John Smith. What do you want to see John about?"

The young man explained that his mother had given him some money to take to Mr. Smith, but he had been unable to find his house.

"I'm sorry," said the husband, "but John is out of town. I do all his business for him while he's away. If you want to give me the money I'll take care of it."

"Here it is," said the young man. "I am so tired walking around looking for Mr. Smith that I'm glad to get rid of it."

Thereupon the young man bowed and went away, and the husband of the foolish wife just sat there on the steps and sighed. He looked at the money and counted it—exactly $70.

"Goodness gracious!" gasped the husband, "precisely the amount of money that I lost through my foolish wife. I know I should not keep it, but how can I find the young man again? I never thought he would be silly enough to give it to me. I am very much ashamed of myself. Yes, after all, there are two foolish people in the world besides my wife."

HOSPITAL SHIP WRECKED IN FIERCE GALE

London, Oct. 30.—Signals of distress have been sent up since last night off Whitby, on the Yorkshire coast, from a steamship believed to be the Rohilla, a British vessel of 7,000 tons, being used as a hospital ship.

Early this morning four seamen were found among some wreckage thrown upon the coast, they having evidently tried to swim to shore. Among the wreckage was the name Rohilla, of Glasgow. One of the seamen still is living. Tremendous seas are breaking over the vessel and the members of the crew can be seen in the rigging. The Rohilla was bound from Queens Ferry, to Brighton, to bring back wounded from France. She ran on the rocks half a mile south of Whitby, 17 miles northwest of Scarborough at four o'clock this morning during a southeast gale and rainstorm.

The vessel carried four nurses and several doctors and full hospital equipment. All the women on board have been saved. Every one of her boats, except the last one launched was smashed by the seas and washed ashore. The remaining boat was swamped near shore and the people in it waded to safety.

Life boats with extreme difficulty brought ashore two loads of the vessel's [illegible], after which further attempts at rescue with the boats were abandoned. With 80 persons still clinging to the vessel, which had her [illegible] broken off, hopes are entertained [illegible] rescuing them. [illegible] made to get assistance from other ports.

PORTUGUESE TOO QUICK FOR THE GERMANS

London, Oct. 29.—A despatch from Lourenco Marques, East Africa, to Reuter's Telegram Company confirms the report of a German invasion of Portuguese West Africa, and gives the following official details regarding the affair:

"A party of German cavalry composed of twelve Europeans and twenty natives crossed the southern border of Angola and arrived at the military post at Naulila, saying they desired an interview with the commander.

Portuguese Too Quick.

"Shortly afterwards they were about to retire without further explaining the reason for the visit, [illegible]. A Portuguese officer placed his hand on [illegible] the German officer's bridle. The German troopers thereupon raised their weapons, but the Portuguese soldiers were beforehand and fired on the party, killing three Germans."

A Blot On Civilization

Germany to-day stands convicted as a blot on civilization. With all her boasted culture she is little removed, if at all, from the level of the brute beast. Germany, and Germany alone, has plunged the world into the bloodiest war in the world's history, in order to advance her ambitious ends for world-wide dominion. Her military autocrats wilfully and premeditatively disregard neutral rights and all rules agreed upon between the powers to govern modern warfare. Her policy is extermination of the enemy, root and branch, combatant or non-combatant, man, woman and child, and to adopt any means for this end, no matter how inhuman. She stands today convicted in the eyes of the world as a monster of depravity, and as such will go down to defeat before those nations who in waging war do so in the name of liberty, justice and recognition of Christian principles. Germany, and all with her, are doomed to be stripped of their brute force and to be relegated to a position in which their brutish fangs have been extracted for all time.

The Right and Wrong Method of Marketing Eggs

An extremely interesting and attractive feature of the Demonstration Car, containing the Egg and Wool Exhibits of the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which has been touring through the Province during the past month, was the educational display illustrating the right and the wrong methods of marketing eggs.

This display formed the larger part of the Egg Exhibit, and was an object lesson that will not soon be forgotten by those who visited the car. It was arranged in two large, electrically lighted show cases. Each case contained a series of models, together with appropriate back grounds and descriptions illustrating in the one instance the careless methods too frequently followed in the handling of eggs on many Canadian farms, and in the other the results that may be obtained through the adoption of improved methods on the farm, in the country store, and in fact by all those engaged in the Egg Trade.

In each instance the course followed by the egg from the time it was laid until it reached the consumer, was mapped out. The cause of many bad and stale eggs was evident when one noted the unsanitary conditions that prevailed on many farms, and in many country stores. It was pointed out that even the mongrel, nondescript poultry found on many farms, refused to use for the greater part of the year, the dirty, undesirable poultry houses provided for them. The eggs were gathered infrequently and from questionable places. They were held until it was convenient to carry them to market, and were usually traded on a flat-rate basis, for merchandise, or at the country store, where little or no attention was paid to quality. Here they were frequently held indefinitely, in anticipation of a rising market, and often were shipped in damp and musty cases to the wholesale dealer, who candled and graded them. The result of the candling was indicated, and it was evident that but a relatively small proportion of the eggs graded "select." The manner in which the retail grocer permitted the eggs to deteriorate was also pointed out, and if by chance a portion of the uncandled eggs went direct to the consumer the result was very evident.

The second series showed a flock of pure bred poultry kept in a clean, well ventilated poultry house, provided with clean, dry nests, from which the eggs were gathered frequently and regularly. The eggs were kept covered in a clean utensil in the coolest, driest place in the farm house, and marketed at least once, better twice a week. In the country store they were bought on the basis of quality and packed in clean, dry cases and forwarded with the minimum of delay. The result of this careful management was apparent in the candling room, of the wholesale warehouse, where a decidedly large proportion of the eggs graded "select" and if by chance a portion of these eggs went direct to the consumer, the result was in marked contrast to that apparent in the previous issue.

The plans for this display were prepared by the officers of the Poultry Division of the Live Stock Branch, and the Exhibit was in charge of Mr. W. A. Brown, Chief of the Division, Mr. W. H. Ault and Mr. J. R. Fee.

Another important feature of the Exhibit was the candling Demonstration given in the large booth erected in the end of the car. This phase of work was of particular interest to consumers, for the reason that but few persons appreciate the fact that the quality of an egg can be accurately determined without breaking a shell.

The candling of eggs is not a difficult process and the small amount of labor entailed in candling presents no valid reason why the consuming public should not candle their own eggs more frequently than they do, and thus safeguard themselves from many unpleasant occurrences at the breakfast table.

Do Long Breaths Hurt?

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY.

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs!

Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt much that I thought I had pneumon- always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

WHEAT AND BREAD AS SEEN BY SCIENCE

Temperature and Rainfall Affect Quality of the Loaf—Western Canadian Wheat Strong

To the majority of people the only differences in the quality of wheat are those apparent to the eye. Concerning the relationship of the physical appearances of the wheat to the baking quality of the resultant flour very little is known. Yet the most important qualities are those revealed by analysis and actual test, according to Mr. L. D. Jackson in an article in the The Farmers' Advocate.

The most important constituents of the wheat kernel are gluten and starch. No doubt the housewife has seen the elastic substance that remains when a lump of dough has been washed by running water for a few minutes. If the dough is squeezed in the hand under the tap for a short period of time an elastic rubber-like substance remains. This is gluten and the constituent of flour that gives shape and texture to the loaf of bread. Chemically it belongs to the same class of compounds as the white of egg and fiber of meat, the muscle-building constituent of food. Starch belongs to the group of compounds known as carbo-hydrates, which in the digestive process are the heat producers of the body.

Flour from Western Canadian wheat is famous the world over for its strength. Various interpretations are placed upon this word strength but generally speaking, strength means ability to stand strong fermentation, to stand the abuse of the machines in the modern bakeshop and to give spring and volume to the loaves. The source of this strength is the large amount of good quality gluten in the wheat.

Difference in Wheats

But all Western wheats are not alike. Some have high gluten content and some low. In some the gluten is of poor quality, regardless of the quantity. Occasionally the color is dark and yellow. Besides the variations in the quality and quantity of gluten there are other features entering into the problem. The physical condition of the wheat, too early cutting, damage by rain, tough wheat, and other conditions which make the wheat unsuitable for milling purposes.

The reader may ask what are the causes of these variations in the wheat. A few explanations will suffice

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

> "There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

If you possess an ordinary camera you may remove the lens and replace it with the pinhole. A prolonged exposure is required, about twenty or thirty times the ordinary one for any given subject. No focussing is required, as the image is always fairly sharp, no matter what distance the plate is from the hole. The larger the plate the wider the angle, and the greater the distance between pinhole and plate the larger the image. Pleasingly soft effects of landscape subjects in particular may be obtained by means of the pinhole.

TALKING TO BABY

Words Should be Properly Pronounced When Child is Four

I[illegible] "baby talk" bad for babies, and [illegible] fond parents who indulge in it [illegible] dandling their latest born in [illegible] some committing themselves to [illegible] as well as foolish habit?

Secondly, the baby mind re[illegible] impression of the character [illegible] by what it does, and so [illegible] a train, for example, as a [illegible] or "[illegible]"

It naturally follows that a baby when very young more easily comprehends "baby" talk than it would plain English terms.

[illegible] kindergarten babies are taught [illegible] English properly by ex[illegible] them to imitate the teacher, [illegible] parents would certainly help in [illegible] education of their little ones if they dropped "baby talk" after a certain period—at about four years of age.

An authority on the education of very young children stoutly defends talking "baby talk" to babies up to a certain period, which she places at four years of age. "After that," she says, "I think it would be distinctly harmful to the baby and foolish in the parent.

"Banish 'baby talk'!" she exclaimed. "Never! We should have dumb babies if that could be accomplished. It is very, very often the baby's aid to speech when the mother talks 'baby talk' to it, and it is all very charming and sweet."

A TITLED SHERIFF

Lt.-Col. the Hon. H. Aylmer, of Sherbrooke of Distinguished Family

Lieut.-Col. the Hon. Henry Aylmer, sheriff of the district of St. Francis, Que., into whose custody Harry Thaw came when that troublesome young man slipped across the border, was well known in Canadian politics nearly 40 years ago. He sat in the Dominion House of Commons as Liberal M.P. for Richmond and Wolfe, from 1874 to 1878, when he lost his seat. He was defeated in 1880 when he contested Richmond for the Quebec legislature, and in 1896 he was an unsuccessful candidate for Sherbrooke in the Dominion House. Earlier in his career he served 12 years in the Royal Marine Artillery. On returning to Canada he was called to the bar and practised his profession for many years at Melbourne, Que. In 1877 he commanded the Canadian Wimbledon rifle team. The year before he had organized the Richmond Field Battery of Artillery, and commanded it until 1887, when he retired from the service with the rank of lieut.-colonel. In 1900 he was appointed sheriff.

The first Lord Aylmer, a distinguished naval officer in the reign of James II., was elevated to the peerage of Ireland as a reward for his professional services. The 5th baron was a general in the army, and commanded a brigade under Wellington in the Peninsular War. In 1828 he was appointed Governor-General of Canada, and held the appointment nearly five years. He died in 1850, and was succeeded by his brother Frederick, 6th baron, who died unmarried in 1858. The title then went to Mr. Adolphus Aylmer, a third cousin of the 6th baron, who resided at Melbourne, Que. Adolphus, who was born in 1814, accompanied his father, Capt. John Aylmer, R.N., to Canada during the governorship of the 5th Lord Aylmer, who was a second cousin of Captain John (the latter being son of Rear Admiral John, and grandson of Rev John, who was a son of the second baron). The young man remained in Canada, and when he was 23 years old, served in the Canadian militia during the rebellion of 1837. He retired as lieut.-colonel in August, 1894. He survived until 1901, when he was succeeded by his eldest son, Colonel the Hon. Matthew Aylmer.

The present Lord Aylmer was inspector-general of Canadian militia, and retired in 1907 with the rank of major-general.

FAITH IN DOMINION

Quiet Years Mere Breathing Spells Says Big Railroad Man

Speaking at Cochrane, Mr. A. W. Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk Railway Board, declared his belief in Canada's future greatness and prosperity in the following words: "The spirit that animates you all to go forward and conquer will lead to a continuance of prosperity in Canada and if we have a little quieter year or two I do not think we should look upon it with any fear, but rather as a good omen that it will give us time to take breath to make the next big stride forward. I believe in the main Canada is sound, because as long as her immigrants come in, and as long as new land is broken up every year, that is the real source, the real standard of the wealth of Canada, and as long as that goes on I think the prosperity of Canada—although it may ebb and flow slightly—I do not think there is any considerable setback to be apprehended, but that she will go on and show continued progress as she has done in the past."

A Coin With a History

One of the largest coins ever struck, being 23½ inches by 12 inches, has come into the possession of the American Numismatic Society. The piece is copper. It was coined in Sweden in 1659 and had an intrinsic value of about five dollars. As a numismatic rarity it is said to be worth at present at least $500.

It is a rectangular ingot with five large round stamps punched in it. Each corner stamp carries the Swedish crown, with the date. Around the edge is the inscription of Carolus Gustavus X., the reigning king.

This coin was struck at Avesta, Sweden. When fresh from the mint it fell overboard in the harbor of Riga, Russia, from which a dredge brought it up ten years ago. Coins of the kind were called "plate money." Sweden turned them out almost continuously for 110 years. Once 116 bronze cannon were melted down and turned into 36,700 coins; but the main purpose in minting the pieces was to find an outlet for the Swedish copper mines without depreciating the value of the metal.

Potatoes Are Good

Eat potatoes all the year round. In the winter they prevent scurvy. They supply energy in the summer when so much meat is not eaten. Be sure to cook them right. When boiling them, leave them in their jacket. Punch holes in them and put them directly into boiling water. Never eat half-cooked potatoes.

DOGS OF THE WILD

Australian Dingoes or Wild Dogs Easily Domesticated

Although the highest authorities agree in stating that the dingo was at some remote period introduced into Australia, and that it subsequently reverted to a wild state—like the "wild" horses of the Andes—there are still those who regard this dog as one of the original wild dogs from which our domestic dogs are descended. In any case, the breed is one of very great antiquity, and therefore of the highest interest to all dog lovers.

The dingo is about the size of a collie and much resembles a wolf in appearance and habits, but he is much more easily tamed. Those who know him best are warm in his praise, declaring that the dog may not merely be tamed, but is capable of readily acquiring useful habits, and of becoming a good companion. Even his voice alters as he comes under the influence of domestication. In course of time he learns to bark, an accomplishment unknown to the dingo of the wild.

AVERAGE MILK YIELDS

Could be Greatly Increased by Proper Testing of Cows

A common question in the country is "How are the cows doing?" What a volume of thought that suggests! If they are doing well is it because of good feed and careful attention, or may it be despite the feed and care they deserve, but do not get? Leaving aside the questions of weather, breed, heredity and persistency of flow of milk, is it possible to account for the remarkable differences in yield that are to be found? For instance, the dairy division at Ottawa found in one locality 100 cows that gave 3,000 pounds of fat in one month, but 100 cows close by in the same county gave only 2,500 pounds of fat. Another lot of 100 cows in a nearby county gave only 2,300 pounds.

Is the ordinary herd keyed up to the pitch of creditable performance, or is it just jogging along in the old rut of "average yields?" Suppose the owner ascertains his herd is doing "about as well" as his neighbor's, does it not seem a great pity that his ambition should end there?

Cow testing has helped many communities to far larger banking business, because it shows that scores of cows and average herds can be made to produce far more than they do at present. Make each cow pay a good profit.

TO PRESERVE EGGS

If you are in doubt as to the freshness of the eggs, candle them, or see whether they sink when placed in a dish of fresh water. If an egg sinks it is reasonably fresh.

Do not preserve dirty eggs or eggs that have been washed. Washed eggs will not keep, because the shell has been moistened; and dirty eggs will become tainted in flavor.

Eggs that are in good condition when removed from water glass solution will usually remain good for two weeks.

Water glass eggs are practically as good as fresh eggs for all cooking purposes. If it is desired to boil them, prick a small hole through the large end of the shell before placing them in the water. The pores of the shell have been sealed by the water glass solution, and without the pinhole the expanding air within the shell would burst it.

SCALED NEW MOUNTAIN

Two Ladies Climbed Peak in Canadian Rockies Never Before Visited

During a mountain climbing trip in the Southern Selkirks Mrs. E. T. Parsons, of Berkeley, and Miss Lelie Nettleton, of Seattle, traversed much unmapped country and ascended one of the highest peaks of that region.

Leaving Invermere, B.C., the party consisting of five persons, went to the head of Horse Thief Creek, forty miles in. The first ascent of the unmapped peak took nine hours from the base camp. The route lay over the Starbird glacier and embraced steep, icy slopes and interesting rock-work. The party was roped in alpine fashion, as the snow slope below the summit required the greatest care.

On the summit ice axes were planted and the mountain was christened Mount Bruce, in honor of Robert Randolph Bruce, of Wilmer, B.C.

The view from the summit is described as wonderful. Glaciers of stupendous sizes and hundreds of peaks, varying from 9,000 feet altitude to 11,000 or 12,000 feet. Most of them are unnamed and unclimbed. Allowing for corrections, the aneroid reading gave the altitude of Mount Bruce as 11,500 feet.

An attempt was made upon Mount Jumbo from a base camp below the terminal moraine, of the Jumbo glacier. The party came within 500 feet of the summit, the final section of the route lying plainly before them when a storm broke loose and they were obliged to retreat to camp.

Mr. Howard Palmer, the well known mountaineer, has estimated that there are no fewer than 40 peaks in the Selkirk Mountains, whose altitude exceeds 10,000 feet.

WINE MAKES HENS LAY

An Ancient Bit of Knowledge Rediscovered by French Professor

M. Joubert, professor of the Agricultural College at Fontainebleau, announced to the agricultural world some time ago that, after exhaustive experiments, he had at last discovered something that would make hens lay. This something proved to be wine, which was given to the fowls daily, whereupon they laid many more eggs than hens not so treated. Peculiarly enough, it is not a new idea, for the earliest poultry chronicler, "Columella," about the first century, recommended wine for fattening fowls.

Doubtless many aged country folks can remember how common it was in the younger days to give beer to hens to encourage them to lay. Many old-time fanciers made it a practice to give their prize fowls wine-soaked pills just before they were judged to brighten up the birds, so that they would show off their good points. One fancier, not so many years ago, at a show, inadvertently gave his bantams too many of these pills, and the poultry judge had comfortably finished his task of judging the winners ere this fancier's exhibit "came-to."

MARVELLOUS FEATS OF TRAINED PIGEONS

High-flyers Which Stay up in the Air For Eighteen Hours And Even Longer

To tell the uninitiated that pigeons will fly for over eighteen hours at a stretch, without food, water, or a rest, is probably to find oneself accused of pandering to one's imagination. Yet such is the astounding truth. Amongst the birds of those who make a hobby of breeding and training pigeons to fly for long periods among the clouds, specimens which regularly fly the clock around are to be numbered by the thousand. Week in, week out, in the districts where high-flying—the name by which the pastime is known—is followed, pigeons leave their aviaries at the break of day, go right up into the blue almost beyond the vision of the human eye, and remain flying there until the light fails in the evening. It is, in fact, by no means uncommon for them to keep up their aerial evolutions until darkness comes on, and the owner cannot see the birds of which he is so justly proud.

Somersaults in the Air

The variety of pigeon which flies the longest time is the Flying Tippler, and consequently it is the most popular. Other flying breeds are the Cumulet, the West of England Tumbler, the Performing Tumbler, and the Roller. The two last-named perform in the air as they fly, the Tumbler tumbling and the Roller rolling. The actions of the latter are most [illegible]. A Roller will stop in its flight and turn somersaults downwards in an almost perpendicular line, sometimes actually striking the ground and injuring itself.

Thousands of English working men find recreation in the sport of high-flying. The great centre of the sport is Sheffield, which is as much the headquarters of the hobby as Newmarket is of the racing world.

Many clubs exist throughout England and these bodies organize the sport and promote the flying competitions.

How Contests Are Conducted

The manner of conducting these contests, briefly described, is as follows. A time is fixed by the club for the birds to start. This is as early as possible, say 3.30 a.m. or 4 a.m. An official referee is sent to each competitor's home to take the time, and see that the conditions of the fly are properly carried out. The referee remains until the birds drop. At the liberation hour the owner allows his "kit" of birds, usually three in number, to leave their loft. The pigeons, revelling in their liberty, immediately soar aloft, and commence flying with an easy, graceful action. Although they do not usually go very far out of sight of their home, they cover quite a wide area, flying backwards and forwards and round and round.

The conditions usually are that the "kit" has to be seen by the referee once in the first two hours of the fly, and once in each subsequent hour.

Calling the Pigeons Home

When the birds show signs of coming down, the owner puts out what is known as the "droppers." This is usually a white pigeon of some other variety—a white Fantail, for instance. When this bird appears on the loft top the high-fliers see it, and if they have been properly trained they fly down to their aviary, though it sometimes takes hours to get flying pigeons to "drop." The referee records the time up to the moment at which the owner puts out the "droppers." The pigeons have all to "drop" within a prescribed area, and within a fixed length of time, or they are disqualified.

The world's record fly is eighteen hours thirty-two minutes and there are many proud owners whose birds have stayed aloft for eighteen hours.

THE BLONDE ESKIMOS

Northern Trapper Claims to Have Seen Them Before Stefansson

A far northern trapper, G. L. Deschanbeault, returning from Fort Simpson to Edmonton, challenged the claim of Explorer Stefansson that he was the first discoverer of the blonde Eskimos.

Some two and a half years ago Deschanbeault on a hunting expedition accompanied by Joseph and William Hudson encamped on the Copper Mine River, seven hundred miles north of Fort Simpson. While in camp the Eskimo interpreter informed Deschanbeault that strange stories were being told among his companions about another tribe of "Huskies" who, although they resembled the ordinary Eskimos in their habits, had the pale faces of the white man.

Fired by curiosity, Deschanbeault decided to follow the Copper Mine River to its juncture with the Great Bear Lake. On arriving at the shores of the Great Lake, the little party came upon the encampment of the strange tribe. The Eskimos were dressed after the customary fashion of natives of the north, but instead of being squat of stature and dark were fair haired and of light complexion.

HOW GERMANS REGARD IMPORTED GOODS

These ten commandments, an instructive circular which has been distributed throughout Germany by the Chambers of Commerce, were read in London at a meeting of British manufacturers:

1. In all expenses, keep in mind the interests of your own compatriots.

2. Never forget that when you buy foreign articles your own country is poorer.

3. Your money should profit no one but the Germans.

4. Never profane German factories by using foreign machinery.

5. Never allow foreign eatables to be served at your table.

6. Write on German paper, with a German pen, and use German blotting paper.

7. Use German flour, eat German fruit, and drink German beer. You alone give your body the true German energy.

8. If you do not like German malt coffee, drink coffee from the German [illegible]

9. Use only German clothes for your dress and German hats for your head.

10. Let no foreign flattery distract you from these precepts, and be firmly convinced that whatever others may say, German products are the only ones worthy of the citizens of the German Fatherland.

Copper Jumps
"In The Land of Poco Tiempo"

Production of Copper in New Mexico Jumped from 1430 Tons in 1911 to 28,000 Tons in 1913

THE SIGNIFICANCE of this is that people are coming to realize that "The Land of Afterwhile" is full of opportunity and that now—having been asleep for 300 years—it is awakening to the fact that somebody is going to make enormous sums of money down there, right away!

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

RAISING GEESE

The breeding and raising of geese calls for altogether different treatment from the breeding and raising of ducks, the necessary conditions being very dissimilar. While the ducks will do very well when closely confined in yards and fed such green food as we have, geese will not thrive if kept in this manner. The breeding birds need a large, practically free, green range, and if well watered, either by pools or streams, the breeding results will be much more satisfactory than if the runs are unwatered.

Breeding geese require very little grain food. Through the winter they should be fed largely on vegetable foods. Cabbage, turnips, beets, cut clover, and other vegetable matter may be fed freely, together with a good quality of bran and oats. Corn and meal will prove rather too fattening, and should be fed sparingly even in the coldest of weather.

Very little shelter is required. A rough shed, free from extreme draughts, is all that is absolutely necessary. It should be littered with some dry material, and cleanliness will add much to the health and worth of the birds.

Old geese do not lay as many eggs as young ones, but they hatch good vigorous birds. To the amateur it would be well to say, if your young geese (females) are but one year old do not expect too many goslings, you will do well to raise any from one-year-old females. Many a would-be geese raiser has given up the business because he did not know this.

RACETRACK ROGUES IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Swindling Operatives Who Happily Have Few Counterparts in the Dominion

The racecourse is notoriously a happy hunting-ground for thousands of scheming rogues, who visit the principal race meetings with the sole intention of relieving the unsophisticated sportsman of his money by fair means or unfair—mostly unfair, says a writer in the Glasgow Herald. Some of the schemes are undoubtedly clever, but others again are as old as the hills, and it is really surprising to find a public gullible enough to swallow them.

A common piece of thick tape, about two feet long and half an inch wide, is doubled up and folded round like a catherine-wheel. The operator then places it upon a table, and bets the eager onlookers odds of three to one that they cannot insert a pointed skewer in one of the loops so as to retain the garter when he pulls it. As there are about thirty similar loops visible, it is small wonder that the proprietor very rarely has to pay up. This swindle is usually well watched by pick-pockets, as they have a splendid chance of plying their trade amongst the players.

The Race-table Swindle

The numerous race-tables scattered all over most racing grounds have an irresistible attraction for many would-be sports. Painted upon these tables are presumed likenesses of the various horses engaged in the big race for the day, and in the centre of the table is a revolving spindle.

The gentleman in charge of the gaming apparatus bets odds against the spindle stopping at any particular one of the various colored racers. His confederates stand around, and, by their remarkable luck in backing long-priced winners time after time, induce outsiders to bet heavily.

The backers never win, as the cunning race-game swindler has more than one artifice by which he can slow down the pointer to any horse he chooses.

"Welshers," or bogus-bookmakers, swarm at probably every racetrack course in the United Kingdom and they always work with half-a-dozen or more confederates who pretend to place bets with them.

Innocent Victims

When the welsher realises that it is about time for him to disappear, a common practice is to offer his high stool to a spectator, "the better to see the race run," as he suavely puts it. Many a simpleton has had to run for dear life after availing himself of such an offer.

During the Derby won by Diamond Jubilee a welsher, about to depart for pastures new, offered his stool to a countryman standing near, who instantly jumped at the offer. He also obligingly held the bookmaker's satchel, which it is needless to say, was innocent of money. Then the welsher bolted, and the backers of Diamond Jubilee nearly killed the guileless yokel ere he was rescued by a body of police, his clothes being torn to shreds.

The Racecourse Sharper

For real cleverness, mug-lumberers, or "tale-tellers" as they are termed in the picturesque vernacular of the turf, are undoubtedly entitled to the blue ribbon of racing swindles.

A sharper of this type is an unerring judge of character, and it does not take him long to pick out a "mug," as the youth with more money than brains is known.

When thoroughly in his victim's confidence, the sharper, as a huge favor, tells him there is a great system of backing horses in existence, of which he—the sharper—is the sole inventor, and if Mr. Simple has any spare cash to invest he has a chance of making a small fortune. At first the poor victim is allowed to win a little; but gradually all the money of which he is possessed finds its way into his affable friend's pocket.

KING OF UMPIRES

Gaffney Brought Arbitrator's Work up to Modern Pitch

While John H. Gaffney, who died at his home in Worcester recently, was known as the king of umpires, he was not the first arbitrator to be honored by that title, writes Old Sport Hough in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Honest John Kelly was the original king of umpires, although it always was a question whether he was really the best of the umpires of his time. But there was one honor no one could take from him. When he was operating, he was the boss of the field, and that was long before the umpires were clothed with the almost autocratic power they are to-day. And then, think of the mobs he had to face in those days. Compared with them the most turbulent of present-day crowds are mild and orderly. But, no matter how tough the going was, nothing seemed to bother Kelly, who, on one occasion, hopped the fence in order to get at his tormentors in the right field bleachers. Gaffney, though, was the originator of modern umpiring. He was the first man to go behind the pitcher when there was a runner on, he was always over the play, and was the first umpire the Old Sport can recall who made it a point to be both blind and deaf at times.

Keeping Racing Straight

When an English racing man—owner or trainer—is "warned off the Newmarket Heath," it means that he is not allowed to attend a recognised race meeting in the British Isles; that any horse trained by him cannot compete in any recognised race, and that he cannot be even part owner of any horse eligible to compete. Apart from taking the trainer's life from him it is difficult to imagine any more drastic punishment.

JOHNSON'S SPEED

Walter Perry Johnson, one of the best twirlers who ever threw a baseball, pitched his first game of ball in 1906 for the Fullerton high school nine in California. The contest went fifteen innings and neither side scored a run. Thus early in his career he showed his ability to pitch shut-out ball.

He was born in Humboldt, Kan., on November 6, 1887, and was still a youngster when his parents moved to California, near Los Angeles. He stands just one inch over six feet and weighs close to 190 pounds. He is of Scottish-Irish descent.

This speed marvel depends almost entirely on his fast ball for his success. He uses a curve, but only occasionally. One of the leading hitters of the American League describes his delivery and speed by saying that the ball comes up so fast that there is no opportunity to judge either the height of it or whether it is a curve. "You see his arm move and the only thing to do is just to take a swing at that time and your bat will cross the plate about the same time the ball reaches you. If you are lucky you may hit it."

MATTY A WONDER

Christopher Mathewson is the champion whitewasher of the National League. The one hurler who has blanked more teams than any other twirler in the history of the old league. No pitcher has Big Six approached in this respect in the 37 years the National has existed.

Mathewson leads all or any hurler in the old organization by seventeen games, then along come some real old-timers now almost forgotten—Jeems Galvin and Tim Keefe, these two old heroes of the diamond are tied for second place with 56 shut-out games apiece.

Mordecai Brown of present-day fame is third. John G. Clarkson and Kid Nichols are in the lists and were very handy in applying the brush in their time. But these grand old warriors of bygone days have their records dimmed and shattered by the brilliant performances of the great Mathewson and the three-fingered hurler of the Cincinnati Reds.

Here is the list, giving the shut-out games made by the expert brush wielders in the National League since its organization, all games nine innings or better:—

Mathewson	18	73
Galvin	12	56
Keefe	17	56
Brown	17	51
Clarkson	11	46
Nichols	14	46

If other major leagues are included Mathewson goes down to second place, Cy Young leading him by one game, but Young worked in 200 more games than Matty in his nine years longer of service. Eddie Plank stands third in the list, but Walter Johnson has a better record equal to Mathewson if the figures are based on the number of seasons he has been pitching. In seven years Johnson placed 40 shut-out games to his credit.

JOE JACKSON

the hard-hitting Cleveland player who, his admirers say, will so far eclipse Ty Cobb that the latter's name will be forgotten. Jackson hails from Greenville, S. C., and is one of the very few brilliant players that Connie Mack ever permitted to escape from his fold.

Gaol for Boxers

Ruthless M. Carton de Wiart, Belgium's Minister of Justice, cast a bomb into the sporting circles of that country by declaring that all boxers must be sent to gaol.

His Excellency circularized the provincial State prosecutors instructing them to put in the dock every man who boxed, charging "criminal wounding," or "criminal attempt to wound." M. de Wiart proclaimed that even the starting of a boxing match was a criminal offence, because "it is designed against the health and bodily security of the persons engaged."

Sheepskins in Gas Meters

It will undoubtedly surprise many to learn that sheepskin plays an important part in the construction and operation of the gas meter. This leather is used to form the "diaphragms" or two bellows from which gas is drawn when a jet is lighted. They are thoroughly saturated with oil and fastened between two circular pieces of metal, acting precisely as the diaphragm in the human body. When gas is drawn from one, the other is refilled, so the consumer is given an even and constant supply.

A Horse For War Fund.

Senator McHugh, Captain of the South Ward, informed a Warder man this morning that Mr. Wm. A. Weese, the well-known horse dealer, had donated a horse to the Lindsay and Victoria County Patriotic Fund. This animal will be auctioneered at Mr. W. A. Fanning's big sale on Saturday next, and the amount realized for the equine turned over to the Patriotic Fund.—Lindsay Warder.

St. Andrew's Church.

The music at St. Andrew's church yesterday evening was of special nature. Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw sang, "O Eyes that are Weary" (Brackett). The Choir rendered "Son of My Soul" (Turner), and a quintette consisting of Miss Mae Laing, Miss A. Telford, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lock and Mr. C. Thorpe sang "O Come Let Us Worship" (Himmel). Mr. Tremeer's offertory was "Traumerei" (Schumann.)

A question of Breath.

An esteemed evening contemporary of Saturday night has a scare heading about a local volunteer increasing his chest half an inch by deep breathing. Pshaw, that's nothing. On Saturday we saw a man from Douro, who chased eleven men when he came out of a hotel, and gave one big exhaltation. One ounce of this man's breath would make twenty German beer guzzlers drunk.

A farmer drove into town in a lumber wagon, with his family seated in the rear. Counting the new member in the arms of the buxom mother, the total numbered an even dozen. While explaining the cause of the increased price of some commodity called for, the salesman mentioned the war.

"War," said the farmer, "why what war?"

Insurance For Soldiers.

At a meeting of Victoria County Council, Reeve Morrison made a motion, that Mr. Eadie, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, be granted a hearing. Mr. Eadie's proposition for life insurance given by his company was to place a risk on each man who will join the oversea contingent at special rates. It would be an individual policy and not a blanket one. The cost will be $40 per thousand. The City of London has $500,000, Quebec $250,000, Berlin $24,000, Guelph $150,000, Hespeler $14,000, Oshawa $40,000. A total disability clause will be put in, which in case of injury would entitle the insured to full amount of premium. $1,000 would be given on single men and $1,200 on married men, the limit being $3,000.

When the Smoke Was Thick.

Mr. Tom Rutherford, former Chief of Peterboro Fire Brigade was yesterday in a reminiscent mood. Speaking of the arrest of B. Laster and Louis Mindel, formerly of this city, being arrested as German spies, Mr. Rutherford told a Times reporter concerning one of the fires at Mr. Lestar's dry goods store here. One of the stores conducted by Mr. Lestar here had a fire in the cellar. Dense smoke drove all the residents in the block out. By a coincidence, Mr. Lestar's family had left shortly before the fire broke out. When the brigade arrived they found that the cellar windows and approaches had been nailed tightly. The fire in the cellar, being thus deprived of air only made a dense smoke. Mr. Lestar climbed out of a first story window and got on the awning. The late P. C. Adams remarked to Chief Rutherford. "Look at Lestar. Can't you run up a ladder and get him down?" The Chief replied, "No, he only has a ten foot drop. I guess he knows something about this fire. Let him crawl back through the window. We have pried open the cellar windows and let the smoke escape." He then told the late Mr. Alf. Jones to turn a gentle stream of water on Lestar. This was done and Lestar quickly climbed back through the window and escaped via the stairs.

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE--"CASCARETS"

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

BERLIN HYPOCRITICA ABOUT TURKS' ACTION

Berlin, via London, Oct. 31.—"It must be emphasized that it was not Turkey, but Russia, which started the war," says the Lokal Anzieger, in commenting on the Russo-Turkish situation. "Turkey's attack on Theodosia was a natural sequel to the outrageous Russian attack on Turkey's integrity. The breach of peace was Russia's work."

The Tage-lalch Rundschau says: "Turkey's action has been expected for a long time by the whole world after the Anglo-French affronteries against the Porte."

"Turkey is to be congratulated on its honorable decision," continues the paper. "We sought no allies, but we welcome the heartier one who takes our part from recognition of his own best advantage."

The Tageblatt says that the first blow struck "in defence by the Turkish fleet in the Black Sea hits hard at Russia, which at the end of the last century had outraged and tried to seize Armenia and also asked Germany's aid." The paper adds: "The second blow of the Turkish fleet, it is hoped, will be aimed at England, which for a long time has pursued an ambition for weakening Turkey."

BARON FISHER BACK AT THE ADMIRALNY

London, Oct. 31.—The appointment of Baron Fisher, Admiral of the Fleet, to succeed Prince Louis of Battenberg, as First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, was announced officially by the Press Bureau.

Lord Fisher of Kilverstone has been Admiral of the British Fleet since 1905. He was born in 1841, and entered the British naval service when thirteen years old, working his way up through all the grades.

When the British Channel Fleet was reorganized in 1907, Admiral Fisher had a serious difference with Lord Charles Beresford over its composition. Both the public and members of Parliament took sides in the controversy, and ultimately Lord Charles Beresford was forced out of the fleet.

Germans Cannot Check Allies' Forward Movement Foe's Centre Attacks Result in Defeat With Heavy Losses--Outlook is Exceedingly Bright For Allies

SECOND CANADIAN CONTINGENT MAY CONSIST OF 22000 MEN

Dominion Government Receives Wishes of British War Office in the Matter--Ottawa Army Council Met Yesterday. Hon. J. D. Hazen and Governor-General in Conference. Cabel Negotiations With British Government Now Going on.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Instructions from the British War Office as to the composition of the second contingent were received by the Government today. An emergency meeting of the Militia Council presided over by Hon. J. D. Hazen, and attended by Major General Gwatkin, chief of staff; Col. Fiset, deputy Minister; Col. Septimus Denison, acting Adjutant-General, and other staff officers, was at once called.

Later Mr. Hazen drove to Government House, where he had a long consultation with the Duke of Connaught. A special meeting of the Cabinet was held at one o'clock, but no official announcement as to the character of the instructions was given out by the Government.

It is understood that there are some points which will have to be cleared up and there will be cabled negotiations between the British and Canadian Governments which may take several days.

It is believed that the instructions are given largely on the supposition sists of 21,000 men. The 16,000 men prise a full army division, which con- that the second contingent will com- now being enlisted, will form part of this contingent.

An army division has only 200 cavalry and if this is all that is asked for by the War Office, it will be a distinct disappointment to the rough riders of the West, who are yearning to get into the contest, but insist in fighting mounted. Whether the full amount of the artillery for an army division has been asked for is not known.

Are American Germans Going to Invade Canada?

Montreal, Nov. 2. The stories that the Germans of the United States are contemplating a raid on Canada have been given emphasis by a letter received by Mr. William Galbraith, former Mayor of Westmount, on Saturday. The letter which came from the vice-president of one of the biggest railways in the Western States said:

"I overheard a conversation last night on a steamboat going from Germans, and to the effect that all Norfolk to Richmond. It was between the German singing societies, which are 500,000 strong, are carrying on a propaganda of secret arming and other arrangements for the purpose of attacking Canada from this side. It will put Canada to be on her guard against anything like this. The Germans here are bitter partisans and will attempt anything to beat the British and involve this country in the conflict."

Turkish Cruiser Goeben Damaged at Sebastopol

Petrograd, Nov. 2—A despatch from Sebastopol says that the former German cruiser Goeben's bombardment of that Black Sea fort was put an end to by the Constantinowska batteries which forces the warship to withdraw.

The shore station subsequently intercepted a wireless telegram message from the Goeben which said:

"Damaged. Will return to Constantinople for repairs."

Five Russian Ports Were Bombarded by Turk Navy

London, Nov. 2.—A despatch to the Times from Petrograd, dated Sunday, says:

"A British vessel, the Frederick, was ignited and scuttled during the bombardment of Novorssyk. The Turks also wantonly bombarded Anapa, a Russian seaport of the Black Sea, at the western extremity of the Caucasus range."

The correspondent of the Amsterdam Handelsblad telegraphs that the Turkish cruiser Sultan Selim, which bombarded Sebastopol, is the cruiser known as the Goeben when the vessel was under the German flag.

Petrograd newspapers report that the cruisers Goeben and Breslau and four Turkish torpedo boats bombarded the shore near Sebastopol yesterday morning, shelling the railroad and docks. The Russian shore batteries replied. The warships disappeared along the Crimean shore to the eastward after inflicting trivial damage.

Theodosia, on the Crimean coast, 100 miles north-east of Sebastopol also suffered a bombardment on Saturday, when a Turkish cruiser sailed close enough to throw thirty shells into the city.

Censorship is Rigid.

A rigid censorship is in effect on news from the east. This is believed to be due to plans on the part of the Franco-British fleet to attack the forts of the Dardanelles. Reports reaching here from Italian sources indicate that the heavy battleships, battle cruisers, and armored cruisers of the fleets which have been bombarding Catarro, at the mouth of the Adriatic, steamed away from there on Saturday in an easterly direction. It is believed they have proceeded to the naval base tendered at the outbreak of the war by Greece, from which point they will be within striking distance of the Dardanelles.

It is reported here that a new Turkish Cabinet is being formed, which will be made up entirely of Young Turks and which will eliminate the new Ministers who have opposed war. Enver Bey will remain at his post as War Minister, but the new Cabinet will be picked by Ge. Leman Von Sanders, the German dictator who is now running everything Turkish. It was due entirely to Von Sanders' influence that Turkey was lined up on the side of the Germans.

PATRIOTIC MEETING

In response to requests made, a Public Meeting will be held in the Armouries on Tuesday Evening, November 3, at 8 o'clock, at which addresses will be delivered on the present position and needs of the War.

A large attendance is requested, and citizens, especially the young men, are strongly urged to attend.

German Legions Fail to Stop Enveloping Movement of Allies

Resistance of the Enemy is of a Desparate and Determined Character, But Meets With No Success--Germans Again Attack Arras But are Defeated--Bombardment by Big Guns Generally Ineffective

PARIS, NOV. 2.—DESPITE ALL THE EFFORTS ON THE PART OF THE GERMANS, WHO ARE MAKING MOST DETERMINED RESISTANCE, ESPECIALLY BETWEEN DIXMUDE AND LYS, THE ALLIES ARE CONTINUING THEIR ENVELOPING MOVEMENT AED ARE DRIVING THE GERMANS BEFORE THEM. THE OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE THIS AFTERNOON EMPHASIZED THIS FACT. IT STATED THE GERMANS IN THE NORTH WERE CONTINUING ATTACKS OF A MOST VIOLENT CHARACTER, BUT THAT THEY HAD FAILED TO CHECK THE ALLIED COLUMNS.

THE GERMAN ATTACK ON ARRAS IS REPORTED TO HAVE ALSO FAILED, AND THE FRENCH ARE MAKING PROGRESS AT SEVERAL POINTS IN THAT VICINITY.

THE GERMAN ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENT CONTINUES IN THE REGION OF RHEIMS, ARGONNE AND THE HEIGHTS OF THE MEUSE, BUT IT IS CHARACTERIZED AS BEING GENERALLY INEFFECTIVE

LONDON, NOV. 2.—BECAUSE OF THE BELIEF THAT ANDREW CARNEGIE, THE AMERICAN IRON MASTER, IS FRIENDLY TO GERMANY, HE IS BEING BITTERLY CRITICIZED IN SCOTLAND. A DESPATCH FROM DUNFERMLINE, SCOTLAND, SAYS THAT A CROWD HAS PELTED HIS STATUE WITH MUD.

LONDON, NOV. 2.—A DESPATCH TO THE TIMES FROM PETROGRAD, DATED SUNDAY, SAYS "A BRITISH VESSEL, THE FREDERICK, WAS IGNITED AND SCUTTLED DURING THE BOMBARDMENT OF NOVORSSTK. THE TURKS ALSO WANTONLY BOMBARDED ANAPA, A SEAPORT OF THE BLACK SEA, AT THE WESTERN EXTREMITY OF THE CAUCASUS RANGE."

THE CORRESPONDENT OF THE AMSTERDAM HANDELLHBLAD TELEGRAPHS THAT THE TURKISH CRUISER SULTAN SELIM WHICH BOMBARDED SEBASTOPOL IS THE CRUISER GOEBEN, WHEN THE VESSEL WAS UNDER THE GERMAN FLAG. SHE HAS NOW BOMBARDED FIVE RUSSIAN PORTS.

ENEMY USING SMALL UNDERSEA BOATS IN CANALS

Submarines Sent Out by Germans --False Ones to Decieve the British Aeronauts

Sluis, Sunday, via London, Nov. 2. —That a small submarine coming from Zeebrugge Canal was responsible for the sinking of the Hermes is the opinion of Belgians who are generally reliable. An informant declares that the German marines at Heyst and Blankenberg celebrated some event Saturday night.

During my necessarily swift and short excursions over the border I saw several peculiar looking craft tied alongside the banks of canals from Bruges to the sea. They seemed to be a new kind of dredge, but were always so closely guarded by German marines that it was dangerous, even with a borrowed passport, to search them closely. Now there is a report that they are submarines fitted together in Bruges, with false superstructure designed to mislead British airmen who are daily cruising over these districts.

Notices have been posted at Heyst and Blankenberg ordering all inhabitants to leave within twenty-four hours and Germans, who desperately fear the allies are arranging an attack on the fragile lines of communications, seem to have transferred their attentions back to the strategic Zeebrugge Canal. Part of the jetty has been destroyed by their own lines, but under cover of the remainder and at a dock where British marines landed for the rescue of Antwerp, according to Belgian refugees, there are over 100 artificers working night and day on two large, queer craft, which appear to answer the description of a boasted submarine destroyer. They are said to be large, caisson shaped things, partly armored and seem to be armed with one large gun and two torpedo tubes. It is said they can sink beneath the sea and only draw about six feet of water. Sections are still being brought in barges from Bruges

PUBLIC MEETING RE RESCUITING

In view of the serious conditions created in Europe by Turkey entering the world-war arena, encouraged no doubt by German machinations with a view to strike at British interests in Egypt and elsewhere, it behoves Canadians to respond generously to the call to arms in protection of the Empire. With this end in view Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has addressed the following letter to Mayor Buller, which speaks for itself:

Peterborough, Nov. 2nd, 1914

To His Worship, The Mayor:

In view of the more serious turn of events due to the declaration of a war of pan-Islam against the Allies it is our duty in Canada to do immediately all that we can to answer the Empire's call for troops. I would suggest with your permission that a public meeting be called at the Armouries to be addressed by those you may select, for the encouragement of enlistment of our young men. We have I understand not filled out the second quota allotted to us and this clearly should not be the case. We can all do something for the cause, and we should do that something whatever it be as if our hearts were in it. We have all the material needed for doing our share in the Empire's defence to the full but possibly it would not be unwise to rouse it to a more stirring sense of what this world-wide conflict is calling upon us to do. Can Canada, can Peterborough lag behind?

Yours truly,

J. H. BURNHAM.

In response to the foregoing Mayor Buller has called a meeting for tonight, to take place in the Armouries at eight o'clock. Addresses will be given, and a large gathering is hoped for.

BUSY KARLSRUHE TAKES ANOTHER

New York, Nov. 2.—The German cruiser Karlsruhe has added another British prize to her list, having captured the British Van Dyke, of the Lamport and Holt Line.

Word was received from Capt. Cadogan at the offices of the line here today stating that the passengers and crew of the Nan Duke were now at Para, Brazil. Captain Cadogan reported that his ship had been captured by the Karlsruhe, but that his passengers and members of the crew were well and unharmed.

The commander of the Van Dyck gave no details, but it is assumed after capturing the steamer, the Karlsruhe escorted her of Para and after getting passengers ashore, steamed away with the prize. The Van Dyck carried a big supply of provisions.

TURK GUNBOAT NEARS SUEZ GULF, EGYPT INVADED

Two Thousand Armed Bedouins are Said to Have Entered Egypt

London, Nov. 2.—A Rome despatch to the Central News asserts that Turkish gunboats are reported at the entrance to the Gulf of Suez. Numerous detachments of Turkish cavalry, according to the same despatch have reached Akabah, a fortified village of Arabia on the Gulf of the same name.

Reuter's Constantinople correspondent says. It is reported that a body of 2,000 armed Bedouins have penetrated Egyptian territory.

Holy War Will Prove Vain.

The reports persist that eight army corps of Turkish troops have already crossed the Egyptian frontier. The official press bureau, however, while permitting publication of the report, has no confirmation.

It is further insisted there, that, even though the Sultan carries out his threat as recorded via Berlin and declares a holy war, the Egyptian troops will remain loyal. The separation between the church and the state so far as the Mohammedans are concerned, has been greatly emphasized in the last few years, and the Sultan's edicts are no longer accepted without question.

Holy War Threatened

Berlin, via The Hague, Nov. 2.—The Turkish ambassador here, in a statement issued today, declared that Turkey will declare a holy war at once. He says that the Sultan already has sent a circular to the powers in which he takes the position that the British army in Egypt has prevented his exercising his sovereignty, therefore the annexation of Egypt was a step of absolute necessity.

TO ENCOURAGE ENLISTMENT

Gen. McDonald, of the Militia Department, Ottawa, has wired Mr. Burnham, M. P., granting permission to the city to hold a meeting in the Armouries tonight (Tuesday), to encourage enlistment. Everybody should turn out. Representatives from every denomination in the city will address the audience.

Citizens of Kingston have raised funds for the purchase of four machine-guns to be used by the veterans of that city for home defence.

STEADY ADVANCE OF THE ALLIES SEEMS TO BE IRRESISTIBLE

Long Drawn Battle at Arras, Lihons and Lequesnot-en-Santerre Results in Defeat for Germans, Who Leave Thousands of Dead Behind Them in Their Retreat--Foe's Night Attacks Also Fail

Paris, Nov. 2.—At only one point along the entire northern front has the German right wing been able to check the slow but steady advance of the allies. This is at the village of Messines, which has been taken by the Germans in a series of desperate bayonet charges heavily supported by the artillery. The Germans, heavily reinforced, made a supreme effort against the suburbs of Arras, and against Lihons and Lequesnoten-Santerre. The fighting was bloody and long drawn out, but the Germans were finally driven back, leaving thousands of dead behind them.

The allies are making headway in the region of the Aisne, having moved forward towards Tracy, Laval, and to the north of the forest of L'Aigle. Between this forest and Soissons before Vailly, an attack was directed against the troops holding the south bank of the river, but the war office declares that it was repulsed. In this connection direct issue is taken with the Germans who claim material advances at this point. The Germans have indulged in a series of night attacks here but at no point have they been able to pierce the allied lines.

In general, according to the latest official information from Bordeaux, the outlook is constantly improving from the standpoint of the allies.

It is declared that although the enemy is bringing up his heaviest artillery to the right centre and right wing, he has been unable to extend his battle front, while the French right wing is moving forward and gaining ground in the Vosges.

CITY COUNCIL MET IN REGULAR MONTHLY SESSION LAST NIGHT

Indigent Patients Sent to the Hospitals Becoming a Heavy Burden Upon the City--R. F. Parsons, James Brown and Joseph Metheral Appointed Fence Viewers--Miss Swinton Appointed Deputy Treasurer

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night, Mayor Buller presiding. The Aldermen present were Messrs. McIntyre, Langford, Weir, Johnston, G. Walter Green, F. H. Dobbin, Duffus, A. H. Stratton, Geo. Duncan and Saunders.

A number of communications went to their respective committees.

Two single young men asked that they be granted a six months' license for peddling fish. The regular license fee is $30 for a year's license and the bylaw in its present shape does not permit the issuing of a six months' license. The petitioners claimed that being out of work, they could not afford to take out a year's license. Hence the request. Council could not see its way clear to make any exception in these particular cases, but pointed out that were a regular yearly license taken out, at the end of six months it would be legal to refund half the license fee should the holders of such license then cease business.

Fence Viewers Named.

Ald. Stratton submitted the following report, which was adopted:

Gentlemen:— Your Legal Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:—

1. That no action be taken on the application of Dumble & Johnston that the sum paid by the George Street Methodist Church for garbage collection be refunded.

2. That the bylaw to appoint fence viewers be passed and that the following persons be named as fence viewers under the bylaw:—R.H. Parsons, James Brown and Joseph Metheral.

Indigent Patients Heavy Burden

Ald. Johnston submitted the following report, which was adopted:

Gentlemen:—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:—

1. That the Clerk write to the Secretary of the Medical Association and point out that the number of patients sent to the hospitals as indigent patients is becoming a heavy burden and request that the physicians do not send to a hospital at the public expense anyone whose parents can care for them or who can be cared for otherwise, especially in illegitimate maternity cases.

2. That the account for the care of Unice Mein in the Nicholls Hospital be sent to the City Solicitor with instructions that if the City is liable to the hospital for the account, to collect the amount from Geo. Mein, her father.

3. That the City Treasurer be authorized to pay the interpreter in the case of the King against McGravey in accordance with the certificate from the County Judge.

4. Recommending payment of a number of accounts.

Bylaws.

A bylaw appointing fence viewers passed its several readings.

Miss Jessie C. Swinton was by bylaw appointed Deputy Treasurer, to act in City Treasurer Adam's absence to undergo an operation on his eye, and subsequent recovery. Mr. Adams may be absent from his duties six months altogether.

Committee Men.

Ald. Stratton was named a member of the Finance Committee.

Ald. Weir was appointed a member of the same Committee's his predecessor (Ald. Anderson) served on, excepting that of Finance.

No Buildings Available.

Ald. Duffus reported that there is no suitable building available in town in which the city could make its own sewer pipe this winter.

Temporary Walk.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Green a temporary walk will be laid on Murray street, from Bethune to Stewart street.

Ald. Weir asked for a temporary sidewalk on Euclid Avenue and a light at the corner of Childs street, East City. These requests will be complied with.

Complaints.

Ald. Johnston submitted a complaint that a citizen has been for ten years paying too much for his sewer frontage, and asked what redress he can secure. While no rebate may be possible, the matter will be ratified, if wrong, for future assessment.

Ald. Green suggested that the city take care of the creek south of McDonnel street to the railway to avoid liability for possible accidents. The City Solicitor replied as the locality in question is private property the city would not be liable for maintenance of the stream and its banks. However, the matter went to the Board of Works for enquiry as to the city being warranted in taking protective action in this matter.

Improved Work

The question of better feeling in where sewer and other excavations are made was strongly advocated by Aldermen Langford and Weir, and improvement in this connection may be looked for.

WHY PAINT BRUSHES CURL

Perhaps the most frequent trouble with brushes, for which the manufacturer is often blamed, is the bristles curling. In many instances this is no doubt the maker's fault, the bristles not having been cured properly. In good brushes the most common cause for curling is the manner in which the brush is wiped and the way it is put away for the night. If the brush is wiped across the points of the hair, the outside hairs are bound to straggle. A brush should be wiped just to the ends of the bristles and not so that the edge of the bucket will catch the outside bristles constantly bending them outward until they assume a contrary position from that intended. If ends of brushes curl up while painting blinds, grills or fretwork, dip the ends in hot water. This will straighten them.

NEW PAPER MATERIAL

Elephant Grass May Prove a Substitute For Wood Pulp

Almost every month of every year brings a report of the discovery in some distant part of the world of a new paper making material, which is expected to take the place of wood pulp. One of these discoveries was made in Uganda, Africa, and the Imperial Institute of London described in a report on the subject a series of experiments made with this new material, which is known as elephant grass. The marshlands of tropical Africa are thickly covered with this grass, which grows to a height of from six to ten feet and has proved a source of trouble and expense to agriculturists, as it grows rapidly after the shoots above ground have been burned or cut down. A sample of dried mature elephant grass was sent recently from Uganda to the Imperial Institute with the object of ascertaining its suitability for the manufacture of paper. The consignment, which weighed 177 pounds after being air dried, yielded a pulp of good color, composed of ultimate fibre rather longer than those of esparto grass and about the same length as those of bamboo pulp. It furnished a fairly good paper, which the British experts expect to be able to improve so as to make this material a suitable and profitable substitute for wood pulp.

GUARDING THE FORESTS

Dominion Government Tells Campers How to Build Fires

The regulations relating to the preservation of Dominion forest reserves are very stringent but probably necessary to prevent a big annual fire loss. In regard to the lighting of fires, it is provided that every person who makes or starts a fire in the open air for cooking or camping purposes shall: (a) Select a bare rock whereon to kindle such a fire wherever possible, and if there be no bare rock in the neighborhood, then a site on which there is the smallest quantity of vegetable matter, dead trees, branches, brushwood, dry leaves or resinous trees. (b) Clear the place in which he is about to light the fire by removing all vegetable matter, etc., from the soil within a radius of ten feet from the fire. (c) Exercise and observe every possible precaution to prevent such fire from spreading, and carefully extinguish the same before quitting the place. Severe penalties are provided for neglect of proper observation of these regulations.

OVER NINETY YEARS

But Canada's First Missionary Still Hale and Hearty

At a meeting of the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Society, at Charlottetown, P.E.I., Rev. Dr. Scott Whittier of Melbourne, Australia, brought greetings from that distant city from Mrs. John Geddie, wife of Canada's first missionary, who was sent from Prince Edward Island to the New Hebrides. Mr. Whittier was surprised to learn that several Presbyterians in Eastern Canada had died through monotony. Considering Mrs Geddie's experience and the fact that she is now over ninety years of age, her mental faculties are still wonderfully alert.

The Elephant's Bath

The elephant enjoys a bath in the streams and pools of his native habitat, but his lordly brother in captivity finds no such comfort in the bath that from time to time is given him. A trainer thus describes the expensive operation:

It takes a week to carry out the process in every detail. It requires the services of three men and costs $300. This treatment is necessary for a show elephant and, if the animal is a valuable one, the proprietor of the show does not consider the money wasted.

The first step consists of going over the immense body with the best soap procurable; 150 pounds of soap is used, and the elephant's ears are especially attended to. When the soaping and drying are completed, the elephant is well sandpapered, and after that rubbed all over with the purest Indian oil until the mouse-gray skin is supple and glistening.

This last finishing touch is the most expensive part of the whole bath, as it means the application of about $150 worth of olive oil.

With the Movies

As things befell.
The lad got well.
It made a lovely reel.

Young people go
To such a show.
Such nearly always pays.

The boy stood on the burning deck;
defied a hostile realm.
He knew his trade
And really made
A most exciting film.

The village blacksmith plied his sledge;
a scene of peaceful bliss.
And now and then

This Woman Saw Life

Mrs. Henry Vaughan, wife of a farmer living near Fort Coulonge, had never ridden on a train, had not seen a city for 40 years, and had never seen an electric car till she made a visit to Ottawa recently. On her way to the Capital she rode for the first time on a railway train, and upon arriving at her destination had her first trolley ride. Later in the day a friend took her for a spin in an automobile, and —wonder of wonders—before her return home she saw an airship flight.

CANDLING OF EGGS A SIMPLE PROCESS

W. A. Brown, B.S.A., Gives Some Timely and Valuable Suggestions

As regards quality, an egg is one of the most difficult of food products to grade. Fortunately an egg is semi-transparent when held before the light and permits, if carefully rotated, of even minor defects being seen. Many appliances for commercial and private use have been in[illegible] and it is now possible for anyone with a little practice to tell at a glance the main points between good and bad eggs.

In order to teach the proper methods of examination, there has been prepared, under the direction of the live stock commissioner, a pamphlet by Mr. W. A. Brown, B.S.A., chief of the poultry division.

It is not necessary, says Mr. Brown, to use an extremely powerful light. An ordinary kerosene lamp, a gas jet or a 16 candle power incandescent bulb are the sources of light most generally used in commercial work.

From time to time various appliances have been invented to facilitate the candling of eggs in quantities. These have proven serviceable for the simple detection of bad eggs, but have not been found satisfactory for the purpose of fine grading.

It is necessary therefore in commercial work as well as in private practice for each and every egg to be passed separately and with a quick turning movement before the light. In the large wholesale produce houses where large quantities of eggs are handled it is remarkable how expert some candlers become. They pick up regularly from two to three eggs in each hand and depending upon the season candle from 25 to 35 thirty dozen cases per day.

The size of the air cell, the consistency of the albumen, the color and mobility of the yolk and the general transparency of the whole egg are the factors most generally recognized as determining the quality.

The contents of an egg, just laid, completely fill the shell, but as cooling takes place contraction occurs and an air space about the size of a five cent piece is formed. The yolk is only slightly perceptible and should swing readily in the albumen when the egg is turned around.

A stale or shrunken egg may be detected by the size of the air cell. The shell is porous and evaporation takes place whenever the egg is surrounded by a temperature above freezing point. Even in the low temperature of a cold storage house a certain amount of evaporation occurs. The higher the temperature and the more rapid the air circulation the greater is the evaporation. Accompanying the evaporation a staleness of flavor soon develops, and if the egg is held in the presence of moisture or packed in dirty fillers it is apt to become musty. As the egg grows staler the albumen tends to lose its consistency and often becomes quite watery. The yolk may also break down and in extreme cases mix with the albumen.

A bad egg or an egg which has been incubated may be readily detected from the fact that the clear transparent part has become dark and opaque. Many other forms and degrees of decomposition occur, but the above are those most commonly seen.

Many simple devices and appliances have been devised for the candling of eggs. Probably the simplest method is to place the egg between the thumb and first finger and hold it between the eye and the light, using the free hand to shut off as much of the surrounding light as possible. A better method is to hold the egg at the end of a long paper or metal tube. Another simple means is to take a piece of cardboard or folded sheet of newspaper, cut a hole in it about an inch in diameter before which the egg should be passed with a gentle turning motion, between the eye and the light.

Perhaps the most serviceable of home-made appliances may be constructed from an ordinary tin biscuit box which can be used in conjunction with a kerosene lamp or an electric bulb. The polished tin surface reflects the light and increases greatly the efficiency of the apparatus. A hole one and one-eighth inches in diameter should be cut in one side of the box, three and a half inches from the bottom. To obtain the best results this hole should be faced with thick paper or felt. When a lamp is used it is necessary to cut an additional hole in the bottom large enough to admit the burner and another in the lid through which the chimney may project.

It is possible for anyone with a little practice to tell at a glance the main points of difference between good and bad eggs.

India Wants Canadian Ties

A Vancouver firm received from the Bengal and Northwestern Railway Co. of India an order for 160,000 creosoted railway ties. The specifications called for the best quality of seasoned Douglas fir, to be treated with 12 pounds of creosote per cubic foot, under specified temperature and pressure conditions. If the Douglas fir ties prove satisfactory for railway construction in India it is probable that other large orders for similar supplies from British Columbia will follow, and the creosoting industry of the province will be given a decided impetus from India.

TALKING TO BABY

Words Should be Properly Pronounced When Child is Four

Is "baby talk" bad for babies, and are fond parents who indulge in it when dandling their latest born in their arms committing themselves to a harmful as well as foolish habit?

"Baby talk" has existed ever since there were babies and is the result of two distinct things. First, articulation never reaches full development until the age of five or six, and that causes distortion of words, such as "lakle" for "little," and "sing" for "thing." Secondly, the baby mind receives an impression of the character of a thing by what it does, and so describes a train, for example, as a "puff-puff" or "toot-toot."

It naturally follows that a baby when very young more easily comprehends "baby" talk than it would plain English terms.

At a kindergarten babies are taught to speak English properly by encouraging them to imitate the teacher, and parents would certainly help in the education of their little ones if they dropped "baby talk" after a certain period—at about four years of age.

An authority on the education of very young children stoutly defends talking "baby talk" to babies up to a certain period, which she places at four years of age. "After that," she says, "I think it would be distinctly harmful to the baby and foolish in the parent.

"Banish 'baby talk'!" she exclaimed. "Never! We should have dumb babies if that could be accomplished. It is very, very often the baby's aid to speech when the mother talks 'baby talk' to it, and it is all very charming and sweet."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

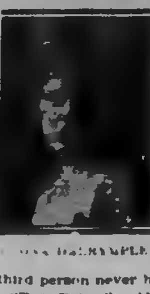
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 109.

Mother Love vs. Idolatry.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

"MARY," I said gently, after we had at last smoothed away our misunderstanding, "there is just one thing I wish you would do for me. When things are going wrong with us, and you're not sure of yourself, don't run to your mother! A third person never helps things along."

"But, Peter," said Mary, "I—I was so used to going to mother with everything that I—I can't stop it all at once."

"Everything," I insisted, "is a matter of viewpoint. And when you add to a tense situation the viewpoint of some one who—er—is apt to be swayed by emotion and sentiment alone—some one who merely gets the facts second-hand—why—er. Well, to tell you the truth, Mary, I simply don't want you to run to your mother with all our domestic mishaps, and there's an end to it!"

"Peter," she said very slowly, "every single thing that you're not sure about you talk over with your mother, don't you?"

I do. But how am I to explain the difference to Mary? Mother and I talk things over on a basis of absolute equality. Mrs. Penfield doesn't. She simply dominates Mary. There are some women who never can believe that a child has at last grown up. Mrs. Penfield is one of them. She thinks ahead for Mary just as she did when Mary was a youngster, with the result that her daughter grows more and more dependent upon her and runs to her for everything. Mary was never taught to think for herself.

My experience with mother was very different. Even now I can hear her saying 'Little [illegible] just go over there in the [illegible] chair and think [illegible] out for yourself. Then come tell mother and we'll talk it over."

So there is a difference. Mother and I balance [illegible] and [illegible]. Mary's mother merely says "Mary, it's this way. I'm your mother and I ought to know," and Mary, mother-bound as she always was, [illegible] hears and believes.

Mrs. Penfield, I know, selected most of the furniture for our apartment. There are times when she selects the food. She still goes with Mary on shopping expeditions and selects her clothes.

What chance has Mary to develop independence of thought?

"Why can't you pick out your own table linen?" I asked one night.

"Well," said Mary, "I—I'm never sure about patterns. I think I like one and then I don't, and if mother's there with me she just says 'Why, that's the prettier of the two, Mary,' and I take it. It saves me a great deal of trouble. Everybody likes somebody else's opinion, don't you think so?"

"Maybe," I conceded. "But it makes you have a lazy mind. Surely your mother ought to realize that it isn't justice to you to make you so—so dependent on her for everything—advice, clothes, how to run your house. It's merely pandering to her sense of—of indispensability. She was necessary to your existence so long that she can't bear the thought of your getting along without her. And you ought to."

"Peter!" said Mary indignantly, "you don't seem to realize that it's because mother cares so much for me that she takes all the trouble she does. And when she scolds about you or—or takes my side of things, it's natural, isn't it?"

"Natural," I owned, "but trying."

Maternal love is a beautiful thing, but after all there is a maternal idolatry that is ludicrous in the extreme. A big, strong, fine maternal love must have as its basis clear vision, a sense of values and common sense. A maternal affection induced merely by sentimentality and emotion isn't big—it's sickly. It's the sort that makes spoiled youngsters and fool men and women. After all, it takes a woman of big calibre to be a big mother. Mrs. Penfield wasn't up to the job.

BEAUTY FOUND IN FRUIT

By LUCREZIA BORI

LUCREZIA BORI

THE flowers of the field and the fruits of the earth shall make you beautiful. Lemons, oranges, strawberries, pineapples, apricots, figs, watermelons, spinach, cucumbers, lettuce, roses, pond lilies—all hold potent beauty charms.

A diet of oranges will clear muddy complexions and reduce superabundant curves. Eat half a dozen a day, or more if you like them. Lemons taken internally quench thirst and prevent the bad habit of over-indulgence of ice water, clear the skin, assist digestion and have a tendency to rid one of obesity. Applied externally they are a bleach which removes stains from fingers or neck, freckles from arms or cheeks, and other sallow blemishes.

Strawberries are as good for a complexion restorer as for a shortcake. For a few nights rub two or three over the face and neck when retiring and see how annoying spots flee before the treatment.

Our French sisters make a strawberry rouge which they esteem highly. First they place three quarts of strawberries in a glass jar with a pint of distilled water and boil it over a slow fire for three hours, placing it in a porcelain pan of water, much as one would if the contents were to be preserved. Then, when the fruit is reduced to a pulp and all the juice is extracted, they strain it through very fine cheese cloth. It should be left to stand, and, if it is not clear, may be again strained. Then 25 grains of Russian isinglass is dissolved in 16 ounces of the finest grade alcohol, and with 18 grains of carmine is added to the strawberries. This is best kept in the ice box, and should be applied with absorbent cotton. However, if you live right you won't need the rouge.

Pineapples will sweeten the voice, restore its quality if it has grown husky, and aid digestion, which means they will beautify the complexion. Apricots are used for the same purpose, and are favored by the Orientals.

Watermelon water has a whitening effect if used on the hands and face, and will fade freckles if applied persistently.

Figs act on the liver.

Spinach is the most valuable of all the green vegetables. It has a large proportion of iron, and is a cleanser and blood purifier.

I have given so many rules for cucumber and lettuce lotions that you must all know them, but if you don't wish to make cosmetics, take a slice of cucumber and wash the face and neck with it, renewing the slice frequently, and see what a delightfully cooling, softening and whitening effect it has. As for lettuce, eat it as often as you can. It is good for the blood and excellent for the nerves.

Flowers form the basis for some of the most fascinating and time-honored beauty lotions known to "beautifiers."

One can imagine Cleopatra sending her slaves to the Nile for lily bulbs from which pond lily paste is made. It is too complicated a process to make it after the old recipes, but we have modern substitutes for it.

Iris cream is made by extracting the juice from the fragrant blossoms and the white portion of the stems, by pouring boiling water over them, pounding the flowers to a pulp, straining through a cloth and adding two ounces of the juice to four ounces of almond oil, one ounce of spermaceti, and an ounce of white wax.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going with a young man for a year and a half and we have been engaged to be married for eight months. Sometimes I think I truly love him, and other times I feel as if I do not care what happens, and the only thing that I can account for is this: No matter what subject we talk about he always imagines he knows it all, and he generally talks and talks until I get weary. Do you think that he can be cured of it, or is it a habit he will always have? He is 24 years of age. BETTY.

I DON'T believe you're in love with him, Betty. I don't believe you're in love with him at all.

If you were, you'd think he did "know it all," and you'd love to have him tell you about it. Of course, you'd wake up some time and find out the truth, and that wouldn't be pleasant, would it? So you might as well be thankful that your eyes are open.

You seem to be rather an intelligent sort of girl, and don't you know, dear little sister, that a man who "knows it all" will never stay in love with a girl like you very long? He doesn't want a companion, he wants an audience.

Now, if you were a nice, comfy, cuddly, little girl, with a love of embroidery and a fad for making fudge, you'd be just the sort of person to make just that sort of man perfectly happy, and you would be perfectly happy with him. You wouldn't have to read or think at all. You could find out all about the news of the day—from him. He'd tell you what was happening in Mexico, and why it happened, and who ought to be ashamed of themselves about it.

Cured? Why, you poor child, you can't cure a man of any habit by marrying him. Either take him as he is and love him so, or let him go and find some one who doesn't have to have so much making over to fit him to your idea of comfort.

DRESS TO SHOW INDIVIDUALITY

Olga Petrova

Dancer Tells Secret of Her "Mystery Clothes"

By ELEANOR AMES

MYSTERY clothes—gowns that set beholders thinking—gowns that repress instead of express moods and emotions and characteristics and ideas—these are the successful dress creations, according to the fascinating Russian, the theatrical sensation of the year, Olga Petrova.

Of course, the flippant-minded will say there is always a mystery about woman's clothes to every other woman, the mystery of why she gets what she does, or how she gets all she wears. But it is no such petty, sordid mystery to which the graceful and exotic Petrova refers.

She means the clothes which give every evidence of being simple, surcharged with meaning, and let the world wonder what the meaning is.

Such a gown was the blue and rose and green and gold shimmering one-piece robe which draped the sinuous curves of the lovely lady from the Czar's domain when I called on her.

It was a veritable chameleon of a gown. Once I thought I had its secret. It trailed like flame over the black velvet carpet and curled itself about her feet, but just as I started to define it Petrova moved. It was not a flame at all. It was a wave of the sea, the blue-green sea after a storm, with the setting sun slanting across its crest. Another move and the sea had vanished, and in its place was a bit of dawn sky with the sun just peeping up into the rosy east. Then I gave it up, for it suddenly changed to a plain blue dress.

Mlle. Petrova made it herself. She makes all her clothes. "And—they 'cost such a little bit,'" she confided to me. "I can save much money making my own clothes. Besides, who knows so well what I want to wear as I, myself?"

"All clothes should have a meaning," she continued in a voice like honey, soft and mellow and liquid. "They should have a meaning, but it should not be noisy. No, no, rather it should be mysterious. Mystery fascinates. It is woman's duty to be fascinating. The obvious woman may have a useful place in the world, but she does not make men think and wonder and worry. Moods are woman's right, moods that change, that chase one another all the time, that never let themselves be quite understood. The moment we thoroughly understand anything it becomes less alluring, is it not so? It is the mystery that holds. Repression may count more than expression. Silence is often more eloquent than words. Repose more effective at times than gesture. We rise to a height of fury, or passion, or joy. But isn't the calm which follows just as full of meaning?

"That is what I mean by 'mystery clothes.' Clothes which arouse admiration, envy if you wish, that fit the wearer, her body, her style, her nature, clothes that make you sure they have a story to tell, a message to give—and make you find the message out for yourself.

"Always make your gowns with long, graceful lines and of the finest materials. If you get materials fine enough, wonderful enough, you will not need trimming. They will be sufficient in their own richness.

"Lace, jewels, they are all the trimmings I wear. My gowns are always in fashion—for defiance of fashion is not mysterious—but they do not follow the lines of fashion when you try to analyze them.

"The lines of fashion are not my lines. If they are yours, it is for you to follow them. The woman who is wise will suit her clothes to herself. Then they will always be in the fashion.

"Women are first of all individuals. Then they must be distinctive. When we copy we must have the cleverness to adapt so the copy is not apparent. Originality is more often than not skilful adaptation."

Near-Bohemia and the False Gods

By Winifred Black

SEE no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil. There they are up over the great, clear window—the three, fetid, foolish, vacuous monkeys from the fetid, foolish, vacuous civilization that invented them.

I'm tired of them—the three, silly, inane, insincere, stupid, boresome things. You can't move without seeing them. Every cheap little shop in town has a group of them in the showcase. Every near-Bohemian that you know puts them up on the mantelpiece, with the cigarette paper and the tobacco; and all the shady women, who are one thing and try to pretend to be another, set these three idiotic symbols of an idiotic creed upon their dressing tables—and are, in their own hearts, justified.

And now there they sit above my own broad, clear window, leering at me like the raven in the heart-shaking poem we used to speak on Friday afternoon, when Lochiel gave his warning and we heard of Bingen on the Rhine. Who put them there, I wonder? Some friend wanted to give me a pleasant surprise I suppose. It's a surprise sure enough. But pleasant—ugh!

Come down from the shelf, Mr. Monkey, you and your brethren. I don't believe in you for a minute.

See no evil—why not, pray? My eyes were given me for sight—not for blindfolding. If there is evil around me I see it, I hope—and I want to see it.

More than that, I want to know it for what it is when I do see it.

I don't want to call it by some other name and deceive myself and every one else about it. A snake is a snake, and you can call him a turtle dove as long as you like—he will still be a snake. And if he's there I want to see him, thank you, in time to get out of his way.

Hear no evil—why not, in the name of common sense? If evil speaks, how can I help but hear? And if I do not hear when evil speaks, how shall I know the voice of evil, and when to flee from it?

Speak no evil—why not? If a man's a thief, why shouldn't I know it, and if I know it, why shouldn't I say so? I always distrust the man who is so willing to throw the mantle of his charity over every scoundrel. It always seems to me as if he were looking for a little corner of that mantle for himself.

Blind—deaf—and dumb—what three lovely companions for a trip through the world. I'm glad you came from across the sea, and not from this country, oh, symbols of a strange and dying cult.

"Faith, Hope and Charity"—where is the old-fashioned copy of that old-fashioned picture? Up in the garret, I suppose, with "Pharaoh's Horses" and "Wide Awake and Fast Asleep" and "Washington Crossing the Delaware." Well, I'm going right straight up to the attic and find the old picture and bring it down, and hang it where I can see it every time I turn in that direction.

Out you go—deaf, dumb and blind! Into the fire with you now, once and for all. I hate you and all the evasions and the trickery and the subtle self-deceit that you stand for.

Here comes my friend, the near-Bohemian—she'll be horrified.

There, take them, child, if you want them, and set them up on your queer little mantel in your queer little, smelly studio. You have a copy of the Mona Lisa there; of course, no studio of your kind is complete without that these days. Is that where you got that strange imitation of the smile you wear since you turned near-Bohemian? Put them in your studio with the Russian samovar and the vestments from somewhere, alongside somebody's prayer beads from India, and the nudes—why, you couldn't live without the nudes, could you, dear child? You don't understand them in the least, but you have got so now you don't blush when you look at them—and that's something, isn't it?

And the steins and the cigarette ashes and the little red satin mask and the old gloves—and the letter from your mother at home half read and thrust back into its discouraged little envelope; and the picture of the real man, back there in the real town, whose heart aches whenever he thinks of you smoking cigarettes with one of the imitations, who is trying to take you away from him because he's so primitive and impossible.

Why, he wants to degrade you by shutting you up in a nice, clean, fresh little home with a nice, green garden at the back of it and a vine over the porch, with Love singing in the kitchen and Trust stirring the fire and Peace at work in the sunny window as if she lived there. Oh, yes, that's where they belong—all those queer things—right up in your "studio," dear, foolish, wild-hearted, light-brained, little near-Bohemian. Take them and be happy—near-happy, I mean—in your near-Bohemia.

Some day you'll wake up out of your confused dream. I hope he'll be down at the foot of the stairs, waiting for you, when you run out of your near-studio—the real man with the real home in his heart for you.

"Faith, Hope and Charity"—and you'll never think of the three miserable blind, deaf and dumb monkeys again as long as you live.

Is it a bargain?

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Is "Mind Over Matter" a Truth or a Fallacy?

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

VIRGIL in the Aeneid, some thousands of years ago, was even then very late when he averred "Mens agitat molem," or "Thought moves material things." Perhaps when the first ape-like man thought to use the spark which flashed from flint he was led to say what Virgil said hundreds of thousands of years later.

So be it! Peace to his ashes! But because thoughts direct, guide, move and manipulate matter is no proof of the exaggerated dictum, "mind over matter." The unvarnished truth is that thoughts are the upshot of outside matter.

Nevertheless, the stern fact stares us in the face that effects, once produced, are prone to react and influence in a powerful way, the very causes which brought them forth.

It comes, therefore, to pass that thoughts—wrongly dubbed "mind"—do, in a manner, affect the sterner stuff.

Love, Hope and Joy, fair Pleasure's smiling train,
Hate, Fear and Grief, the family of pain,
These mixed with art, and to due bounds confined,
Make and maintain the balance of the mind.

Even in the most quackish cults and in the most defective jumble of philosophical pot-pourris, there is usually a mote of truth. In transcendental propagandas and humbugs of current prevalence there is, forsooth, a speck of possible fact.

Proofs in Error?

This is not a sop to the gullible, but an honest testimonial in undogmatic freedom. Yet the difficulty with these medical Baals and physiological gold calves is that the devotees and adherents maintain that their particular "mind" or "matter" cure is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

The futility of thoughts, or religion, as exclusive "cures" of pneumonia, hydrophobia, tuberculosis, ringworm, correctly diagnosed cancers, and dandruff would seem to be too self-evident for dispute. Yet the votaries of each separate and distinct pathy, mind cure and thought treatment will fight like trapped rats under the belief that "absent treatment" or laying on of thoughts rids the body of such maladies.

Citation of such facts as this, to wit, that blood will flow faster or the nerves will tingle more if you, like a hen on an egg, "set your mind" upon such parts of the flesh, are conjured up to prove the "mind over matter" fallacy.

The experience is correct, but the superficial and rash explanation is in error. It is only in part, just as death from joy or fright are but, indirectly, the consequence of thoughts and feelings.

Even when your appetite and your physiological functions of indigestion, heart action and mental initiative are influenced favorably by cheerfulness, though your social position, your commercial success and your conquests are aided and abetted by good humor and good cheer, all in the final analysis, can be traced to some chemical bounding like a gazelle over the rocks and crags of your blood stream.

What Sensations Are.

The physical basis of the emotions, like Huxley's physical basis of life, is the juice of the tissues, of the bone marrow, of the near-kidneys, thyroid gland, para-thyroids, and the other human glands that bear even more forbidding names. These are easily proved guilty of many so-called thoughts, feelings and the much maligned "mind."

All you need do is to purchase some of the dried extracts at a pharmacy and swallow them for a few days to grow angry, joyous, depressed, excited, apathetic, sympathetic or otherwise. They prove beyond a doubt the sure effects of matter over mind.

The Good Night Story

The Magic Rape Seed—By VERNON MERRY.

LONG ago, when magic still was common on the earth, a poor farmer who was ploughing went to sleep under a tree, and when he woke up the horns upon his oxen's head had grown to great size. He did not know what to do about it because he could not get the oxen through the stable door, so when a butcher came along and offered to buy them he was glad to make a bargain.

The butcher agreed to pay for the oxen $1 for every rape seed that the farmer brought to his town shop the next day. The farmer knew this to be a good bargain, so he gave the oxen to the butcher, and, early the next morning, filled a quart measure with rape seed and started out to town. You may be sure that he took good care not to spill one seed out of that measure.

And yet, with all his care, he did lose a seed. He did not know this until after the butcher had paid him $1 for every seed he had brought, and he was on his way home. Then he knew he had lost a seed, for there was a great tree growing right in the middle of the road where he had passed.

Now the tree was so tall that its branches reached way up into the skies and the farmer seeing this was curious to know what was to be seen away up there. So he climbed up that tree right to the top and peeped into heaven.

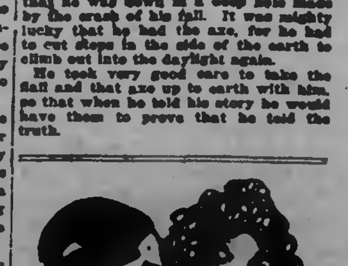
All his life he had thought his lot a hard one because he had to work in the field, but what he saw made him feel better satisfied with his life. Strange folk were reaping grain in peculiar looking cloud fields.

Suddenly he felt the tree tremble. He clutched the top branch and peered down to the earth. There he saw that hundreds of men were chopping at the tree to clear the roadway.

The poor farmer did not know what to do. He feared that if he fell that long way to earth he would die. Once more he looked into the fields of clouds, and close at his hand he found a flail and an axe. Beside them was a long ball of binding twine. Grasping them in his trembling hand he let himself down by the cord, but it was not long enough and he fell.

When he came to himself he found that he was down in a deep hole made by the crash of his fall. It was mighty lucky that he had the axe, for he had to cut steps in the side of the earth to climb out into the daylight again.

He took very good care to take the flail and that axe up to earth with him, so that when he told his story he would have them to prove that he told the truth.



An Open Confession.

He—I made a fool of myself over you.

She—That is one thing I admire about you. You never try to appear different than you are.

GOVT. REGULATIONS AS TO BUTTER

Under date October 24th, the Department of Agriculture has issued the following:

During the past few weeks, produce firms in Toronto, doubtless with the best intentions but without authority from this Department, have been sending the following notice to their correspondents in the country:—

IMPORTANT BUTTER NOTICE

All butter in packages or wrapped in parchment paper must in future be labelled "Dairy" or "Creamery."

This means no butter can be bought or sold in plain wrappers or in unbranded packages. No butter can be sold or bought under brand of "Separator."

The word "Dairy" or "Creamery" must appear on wrapper or package.

Failing to comply with the above Government Act you are liable to a fine of $10.00 to $30.00 for each offence.

For further information write the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and ask for copy of the Dairy Industry Act, 1914, Bulletin No. 42.

The information in the above notice is not quite correct. The Regulations made under the authority of the Dairy Industry Act, 1914, came into force on September 1st, and provide that when dairy butter is put up in blocks, squares or prints and wrapped in parchment paper, the paper shall be printed or branded with the words "Dairy Butter," in letters at least one quarter inch square, in addition to any other wording that the buttermaker may desire to use. There is nothing in the law or Regulations to prevent the use of the word "Separator" in addition to the words "Dairy" Butter but no such grade of butter as "Separator" is recognized by the law. The Butter Act of 1903 defined only 2 grades, namely "Dairy" and "Creamery." The Dairy Industry Act of 1914 defines a third grade as "Whey" butter; Buttermakers may use any form of printing or branding including the words "Dairy Butter" which is not inconsistent with the definition of dairy butter. Butter in rolls, crocks or tubs is not required to be branded. Dairy butter in 56 pound boxes must also be branded "Dairy Butter."

The underlying principle of this legislation is protection to the consumer, the honest buttermaker and the honest trader. The whole object of the law is to prevent misrepresentation; no reasonable practice is interfered with.

I would suggest the following forms as suitable for the printing of dairy butter wrappers:

Choice Dairy Butter
Made by
Mrs. John Doe,
Rose Bank Farm, Doeville,
Ontario.

or the following:

Choice Dairy Butter
Made From Separator Cream,
By
Mrs. John Doe,
Rose Bank Farm, Doeville,
Ontario.

The full text of "The Dairy Industry Act, 1914" and the Regulations made thereunder are published as Bulletin No. 42, Dairy and Cold Storage Series, which may be obtained upon application to the undersigned or to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Give Canadian Soldiers Their Proper Title

The Montreal Mail is to be commended for its timely suggestions as to the exact functions of Canadian volunteers in the following :—

"The habit of forming 'Home Guards,' which has developed in several cities in this country, to which Montreal is happily an exception, will help to keep down the price of white feathers, at any rate. But whom the 'Home Guards' are going to guard against must remain a mystery, since that reported attack on us by the unemployed Turks of Boston has fizzled out.

"The practice of forming Home Guards is all right in so far as it popularizes military service by enlisting the co-operation of many worthy and influential residents of the cities. But why call these units 'Home Guards'? What enemy is marching or is liable to march on our homes? Isn't the British navy efficient enough to turn the transports back into Kiel canal? And isn't it a long, long way from Berlin to Halifax by the air route?

"We really ought to get a better name than Home Guards. We need a name that will fit into the condition of things. We do not want a name which suggests that Canadians are more concerned over the remote possibility that their homes will be attacked than over the reality of the war in Europe. As a matter of fact, every Canadian soldier who goes to the front is a 'Home Guard' and who would rob him of the title?

"Canadians who view this war with the proper concern it demands should not lay themselves open to the charge of drawing the 'Home Guard' herring across the trail of duty. Either we go to this war or we don't. The cities of Canada today do not require 'Home Guards'; the immediate necessity is for 'Empire Guards.' These brave men who are going to the front in Europe are deserving of all the applause and interest the public can give them. There is neither time nor interest to waste on gaily decorated and enthusiastic 'Home Guards' whose very name will brand them as ridiculous. Only be adopting a name which will faithfully represent the ideas which animate them can these stay-at-home soldiers vindicate their title to the public endorsation and approval. Their action in banding together meets no demand of the present crisis and, if anything, contributes a touch of hysteria to the public attitude which is unworthy of this country.

"Far be it from us to object to any citizen's taking an interest in military duties and learning to defend his right, if need be, to the title of 'citizen.' But these 'Home Guards,' who have but the slightest chance of vindicating their right to their adopted title ought to get a new one or else admit that the whole propoganda is a burlesque on enlistment for active service at the front."

Turkey Acts Hastily and Imprudently

It would seem that Turkey intends entering the European war zone, although her official declaration to that effect is not yet to hand. Her young war party has evidently been stimulated by German overtures, and the die has been evidently cast by the action of German naval officers in the Black Sea, whose unwarranted attacks on Russian interests forces Turkey to declare herself for or against the Allies. On the other hand, Turkey is unwittingly playing into the hands of Russia, who welcomes the opportunity, now she is at war, of blotting the Turk from off the map of Europe, with the co-operation of her Allies, Britain and France..

Having taken warlike proceedings, says The Montreal Mail, Turkey probably finds the complications of Balkan politics at the present time such as will protect her from the wrath of the various nations which, not long ago, were all flying at her throat. An uncomfortable diplomatic question has arisen between Italy and Greece, also which will make the latter think twice before she makes war on Turkey.

When Turkey goes to war the condition of her politics at home always bears an important relation to her action in the field. At this time Turkey is better prepared for war than she was in her last unfortunate ventures. Her politics are controlled by a young war party, and her national leaders are enthusiasts with war records like the noted Enver Bey. If, in this case, their enthusiasm has not proved too much for their diplomatic caution, Turkey will be an enemy worthy of the steel of the Allies. Her army of half a million men is in fighting trim and has long waited the command to march on the Allies.

Because Balkan diplomacy is to us a closed book, events must be awaited before Turkeys action in provoking Russia at this time can be judged on its merits. In all probability it means war; but has Turkey chosen the psychological moment? Having regard to the warning Great Britain has given Turkey, and with due respect for the skill of Russia's diplomatic agencies in Balkan politics, it appears most likely that Turkey has acted hastily and imprudently, at the instigation of her own war party and Germany.

If Turvey is to be his fighting ally, the Kaiser will have no reason to reproach England for calling upon the services of Japan. Rather will he be entitled to the thanks of civilzation for giving the peace-loving nations of the world to rid Europe of two curses instead of one — German militarism and Turkish barbarism, each of which for many years has been a disgrace and a loathing. Time alone can tell how much this latest development, the first with the appearance of a German diplomatic success, is to be appreciated as such.

Joints Quit Aching Soreness Beats it Away

NO MORE STIFFNESS, PAIN OR MISERY IN YOUR BACK OR SIDE OR LIMBS!

Wonderful "Nerviline" Is the Remedy.

A marvelous pain reliever.

Not an ordinary liniment—just about five times more powerful, more penetrating more pain-subduing than thick, oily or ammonia liniment. Nerviline fairly eats up the pain and stiffness in chronic rheumatic joints, gives quick relief to those throbbing pains, and never burns or even stains the skin.

"Rheumatism kept my joints swollen and sore for ten years. My right knee joint was often too painful to allow me to walk. In this crippled tortured condition I found Nerviline a blessing. Its warm, soothing action brought relief I had given up hoping for. I rubbed on quantities of Nerviline and improved steadily. I also took Ferrozone at mealtime in order to purify and enrich my blood. I am to-day well and can recommend my treatment most conscientiously.

(Signed) C. PARKS,
Prince Albert.

Not an ache or pain in the muscles or joints that Nerviline won't cure. It's wonderful for lumbago and sciatica; for neuralgia, stiff neck, earache and toothache. Nerviline is simply a wonder. Best family liniment known and largely used for the past forty years. Sold by dealers everywhere, large family size bottle 50c., small trial size 25c. Refuse a substitute, take only "Nerviline"

The Horse to His Master

I am a Horse; you are a man; I've been your slave since I began, and though I'm strong enough to shake my shackles off and make a break for freedom that would lift the lid, you've noticed that I never did. By day and night I've worked for you, and done the best that I could do; and though I may not always like your methods, yet I never strike; in heat and cold, in wet and dry I'm always ready—glad to do the very most to satisfy my master, man. Therefore, my master, if you please, considering such facts as these, say, don't you think it ought to be your pleasure to look out for me, if for no other reason than for my greater usefulness to man? Of course, you might be worse, I know you sometimes treat your own kind so, but I'm a horse, and truer than the man-slave to his master, man. And, furthermore, my nature is much more dependent than is his. And, as I trust you, sir, you should do all you can to make it good. Nor do I ask a lot. I guess, to be a fairly fair success—good food, good shelter, and good care, I think, is just about my share. No other pay I ask—no touch I make, but this! Is that too much?—W. J. Lampton, in New York Times.

Canada's Oil Production

That the petroleum industry in Canada is decreasing yearly is shown by a report made to the Government by John McLeish, B.A. The output is almost entirely from the Ontario oil fields, although New Brunswick contributes a considerable amount, and it might be noted that in the latter province the yearly flow is on the increase.

TORONTO'S SITE ONCE UNDER WATER

This Was Eight Thousand Years Ago —Winters Growing Colder and Summers Warmer

The greater part of what is now the city of Toronto was once covered with water, if we may believe the statement of an eminent scientist Dr. A. P. Coleman who deals with the subject in a volume issued by the Canadian Institute. The high ground in the northern part of the city formed the shore of the old glacial Lake Iroquois which is known only by name, having been taken off the map some eight thousand years ago. In Rosedale, now a district of aristocratic homes, mammoth and caribou once wandered, and at a more distant period fresh water molluscs abounded in the water that spread over even this area, now several hundred feet above the level of Lake Ontario.

With the gradual wearing away of the vast forests, says the chapter containing Mr. R. F. Stupart's report of the weather of the Toronto district, climatic conditions have slightly changed, winters being colder than in the early days of settlement, autumns and summers warmer, but with the springs practically the same. Spring now lasts from March 10 to May 20; summer from May 21 to September 10; autumn from September 11 to November 25; and winter from November 26 to March 9.

During the 72 years of observations taken at the Meteorological Institute there, the mean annual temperature has been found to be 44.4 degrees, being, according to the seasons 23.4 in winter, 41 in spring, 65.8 in summer, and 47.5 in autumn. The heat record was broken in July, 1911, with a temperature on six consecutive days of 98, 101, 103, 97, 95 and 92. February, 1875, was the coldest month on record with an absolute minimum of 16 degrees below zero. The downward curve of the temperature curve is stated to be gradual during the autumn, not reaching 50 degrees until October 7, and dropping to the freezing point on or about November 26. The coldest part of winter centres about February 4, but from this approximate date the curve ascends first slowly and then more rapidly, crossing the freezing-point in the direction of warmth on March 26

CORN ON THE FARM

Becoming More Popular Everywhere—Easy to Grow and Harvest

Corn farming is becoming very popular among the farmers of both eastern and western Ontario.

I was talking to an experienced farmer, and he told me that there was less labor in caring for ten acres of corn than in caring for three acres of roots, says T. S. Milady in Canadian Countryman.

As soon as the ground is well cultivated, drills in which to sow the roots have to be made. It is much easier and much quicker to take an ordinary corn planter and sow ten acres of corn than to make the drills and sow three acres of roots.

Later when the time for weeding comes, the roots have to be thinned very carefully and the weeds cut out, while the weeds alone have to be taken from the corn field. This, indeed, is a decided advantage by way of saving time, for ten acres of corn can be scuffled and hoed thoroughly in four days, while three acres of roots could not be attended to in that time.

In the fall, ten acres of corn can be cut into the silo in less than one day. This, of course, is done by the farmer with the aid of his neighbors. If that same farmer had roots instead of corn, he would not think of asking his neighbors to help him take them off. Instead, he would spend two days at least in getting the root crop into the root house.

Finally, let a man go through the country and make notes on the condition of the different herds of cattle as they are put out on grass in the spring. Those cattle which were fed on corn during the winter are always in better condition than root-fed cattle, other things being equal.

NEW YORK HERALD
Sunday, November 8th.

The Magazine Section of the Sunday New York Herald for November 8 will be replete with features of pertinent and timely war interest. Field Marshall Lord Kitchener, "a man who has never known defeat, a man who will pull things through, a man who is thorough," is the subject of a full page article by Alexander Baird. He points out that the career of Great Britain's Minister of War has proved him to be relentless and remorseless in warfare, but in other circumstances the possessor of the tenderest of hearts. That he is popular is attested by the fashion of calling him "K. of K." This feature will be illustrated with a magnificent portrait by Nadherny.

The present revolt in the Union of South Africa brings to mind the siege of Ladysmith, which was almost brought to a success by the farmers of the veldt. This siege and the investment, and the fall of Port Arthur, will be described by Henry M. Snevily. They are now of peculiar interest as it was in the Boer war that the British army was trained in open order fighting and the conflict with the Japanese put the Russian army in fighting trim.

Richard G. Conover will contribute an article on "Diplomacy and Famous Diplomatists." He points out that a crisis and a diplomatist usually make their appearance at the same time, but this is a significant fact that the diplomatist usually precedes the crisis. As in the present great conflict diplomatists are silent partners who may have a share in the task of arranging the terms of peace. Mr. Conover's article is certain to be the subject of wide interest.

The front coverof the Magazine section will be a splendid picture by the noted Nadherny, redrawn from Beauquesne's famous painting, "At Close Quarters," and three pictures, all by De Neuville, each depicting a tense, dramatic incident in warfare, grouped on the War in Art page.

WATERING THE STOCK

Four Rules That It Will Pay to Know and Observe

An unlimited supply of good pure water is essential to the health of all animals used for farm purposes. Pools formed from surface drainage where large quantities of organic matter are carried into them, and wells or pools contiguous to farmyards or manure heaps are especially to be avoided. Water from good tanks or wells, running streams, and properly-constructed pools is usually good, but too much care cannot be taken in reference to this matter. The quantity of water is also of importance. No animal will drink too much if watered sufficiently often, hence there is no necessity for limiting the supply except when the animal has been deprived of water for too long a time. Animals at rest should be given water at least three times a day in summer, and twice a day in winter, if they cannot have free access to it at all times. There is a common error that horses should not be watered when warm. An animal is never too warm to be watered if not more than two gallons be given. A large quantity of water will injure an animal at any time, but especially is this so when he is very warm or much fatigued.

The watering of animals immediately after feeding, so frequently practised, is not in harmony with the physiology of digestion. The stomach of a horse is very small in proportion to his size and the quantity of food he consumes, hence only a small amount of water can remain in the stomach, and if given immediately after feeding undigested food must of necessity be carried with it in its passage through the stomach into the intestines. Another reason why animals should not be watered immediately after feeding is that the digestion begins only when the food has been warmed to a temperature of about 90 degrees; therefore if a large quantity of cold water be mixed with the food the temperature of the contents of the stomach must be lowered, and consequently digestion must be retarded.

Accommodating Lights

Many apartment houses in Europe are equipped with electric lights which may be switched on when a person enters and which automatically extinguish themselves a few minutes later, when he has had time to reach his room.

CANADIANS MAY GO TO EGYPT

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 2.—Full instructions concerning the composition of the second Canadian contingent have been received from the war office. There may be some further negotiations. It is understood that the instructions are given on the supposition that the second force will comprise a full division of at least 22,000 men, of which the 16,000 men now being enlisted will form the infantry branch, but it is not considered that the same amount of artillery will be provided.

Troops will be equipped with clothing and rifles at divisional and district headquarters.

It is considered probable, in view of the situation which has developed in the far east, that some Canadians may see service in Egypt. The recent massing of Turkish troops in the vicinity of that country may be the cause of drawing certain units thither.

DOGS OF THE WILD

Australian Dingoes or Wild Dogs Easily Domesticated

Although the highest authorities agree in stating that the dingo was at some remote period introduced into Australia, and that it subsequently reverted to a wild state—like the "wild" horses of the Andes—there are still those who regard this dog as one of the original wild dogs from which our domestic dogs are descended. In any case, the breed is one of very great antiquity, and therefore of the highest interest to all dog lovers.

The dingo is about the size of a collie and much resembles a wolf in appearance and habits, but he is much more easily tamed. Those who know him best are warm in his praise, declaring that the dog may not merely be tamed, but is capable of readily acquiring useful habits, and of becoming a good companion. Even his voice alters as he comes under the influence of domestication. In course of time he learns to bark, an accomplishment unknown to the dingo of the wild.

To commemorate his twenty-two years' representation of the Merthyr Burghs in Parliament, Mr. D. A. Thomas is to present the town with a statue of Richard Trevithick, who ran his first steam engine from Penydaren Ironworks a hundred years ago.

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

CURIOUS FISH

Remarkable fish have been captured in depths of from one thousand to two thousand fathoms in the Atlantic, and brought to the surface. The majority of those living at great depths were jet black. Their luminous portions which light up the dark regions which they inhabit are marvellous.

These fish plough through the dark waters like flaming torches. Some have elongated snouts, with luminous tips emitting great volumes of light. Others have rows of luminous cells on top of and below their bodies, with reflectors and lenses which serve the function of projecting light in definite directions. This light serves the purpose of illuminating the surrounding water to avoid foes, to recognize their own kind or to capture prey.

The greatest depth found by sounding was until lately 5,269 fathoms, or 31,614 feet—nearly six miles. This is a point in the Pacific ocean off the coast of Guam, about 100 miles or so. But a surveying ship of the German navy has recently discovered a deeper spot in the ocean, near the Philippines, about forty sea miles off the north coast of Mindanao.

Some Statistical Facts About British Columbia

British Columbia has an area of about 253,000,000 acres, of which about 1,600,000 acres is composed of lakes in the interior. There are over 100,000 acres of timber land of no value for farming other than for stock purposes, and while it is estimated that 3,000,000 acres are either under cultivation or partly so, statistics show that the actual yielding acreage, other than for grazing purposes, is not more than 350,000 acres.

It is stated that with the exception of Siberia, Brazil and the Northwestern United States, British Columbia's timber wealth is unparalleled in any other country. The investigations of the forestry branch show that there are not less than 100,000,000 acres of forest land in British Columbia and that the total stand of commercial timber amounts to about 300,000,000,000. Taking the present lumber output of the province as a basis of figuring, which is about 1,250,000,000 feet per annum, and making no allowance for annual growth, it would take nearly 250 years to use up merely the mature timber now standing.

In the production of copper British Columbia stands first among the provinces, the output amounting to more than a third of that of all Canada. Fishing is one of the province's chief industries, and the vessels of all kinds which enter Vancouver total up to over ten thousand per year.

THE WESTERN SPIRIT

This Philosopher Ready to Prove There is no Blood in a Stone

The following letter to an eastern loan company from a Saskatchewan client, was published in a leading financial publication. It speaks for itself:

"Dear Sirs:—In reply to your letter, I must say that I can not pay you the interest on your mortgage this year.

"You seem to think you can make me pay this as you state in your letter that you will not allow it to remain. How shall I pay when I have not got it? You can make extension till next year or not just as you please, there are millions of acres of unoccupied land out here. And what good is it to us farmers anyway, we only get a poor living from it, and if you are not satisfied with the way I am running your property out here come and run it yourself. You threatened before to foreclose, why did not you? I am getting tired of waiting for it.

"I would advise you to wait till next year as you will get at least one more year's interest.

"Why is it that you fellows that produce nothing and do nothing useful own everthing, and we that produce everything own nothing?

"You seemed to think that my last letter was too short, perhaps this will suit you better.

Yours, etc.,

"P.S. You can answer this letter or not as you please."

ONTARIO'S PREMIER APOSTLE OF THE NORTH

Hon. W. H. Hearst an Energetic Man Who Knows the Wilderness by First Hand Experience

From private life to the Premier's chair in six years, taking all the hurdles of office as he went, is the record of the Hon. William Howard Hearst, K.C., Premier of Ontario. His career has been a remarkable one, and it is all the more astonishing when one remembers that outside of New Ontario the name of Hon. Mr. Hearts was more or less unknown when he was called upon to form a government.

Since the North is a country which lives on work, Mr. Hearst was able to thrive and learn that lesson of economy which is taught by stern living. They say that he numbers his personal friends by thousands, and that they are among the class which breeds strong men—lumbermen, miners, settlers, loggers, and the hundred-and-one other castes which grub a living out of the North. In fact, the Hon. Mr. Hearst's liking for the North amounts to a passion. It is his dream, it is his rising star before which he is always willing to extinguish all other torches. Doubtless

Hon. W.H. Hearst

Mr. Hearst understands the heart of the country, for assuredly he has lived close to it. While others idled away summer vacations at fashion resorts, the Hon. Mr. Hearst time and again headed exploration parties into the unknown and undeveloped wilderness, and each time he came back with first-hand information, which in the end enabled him to fill the chair of Lands, Forests, and Mines in the Ontario Government.

When a railway company approached the Government with a proposition to tap the timber and clay belts, the Hon. Mr. Hearst did not take their statements as say-so, but he climbed into wilderness togs, spent some weeks scouting through the district in question, and came back prepared to talk business. Some people say that Mr. Hearst is urbane, at the least he is very approachable. Approachableness does not always mean that the visitor gets what he wants, but he does go away with the impression that the Hon. Mr. Hearst is personally interested.

Combativeness is one of the Premier's strong cards, but Irish ancestry brings that to him quite by nature. Upon the floor of the House he has always proven himself willing to take up the gage of battle. When it comes to fighting verbal battles he doesn't stoop to hitting under the belt, and he seldom wastes time on the witticisms which might be expected from one of his nationality. Straight, outspoken, and as vigorous as a battering-ram are his political speeches, stripped entirely of fancy oratory. In speaking the style is pretty much his own, and has sometimes been likened to the fire of a machine gun, both in its directness and its vigor. At the same time it is to be noted that it is a very peculiar speech of the Hon. Mr. Hearst which does not find place for some reference to New Ontario and its development.

Personally, when circumstances permit him to drop the garb of office, the Hon. Mr. Hearst is a very pleasant man. He can forget that there is such a thing as work in the world, but he quite fails to harken to the call of society, or sport, or any of the dozen and one other cries of private interest or private amusement.

Steel Railroad Ties

Steel railroad ties are being extensively used in Switzerland. At present 65 per cent. of the Federal Railways employ them. They have the form or profile of a trough into which shape they are rolled at the mills. The ends are bent down, the profile of the trough being thus closed. Holes are provided for the attachment of the rails by means of clamp plates and no tieplates are used under the rails. The weight of the trough profile is 55.47 pounds per meter and the ties complete, with holes bored, weigh 159.84 pounds each. According to the requirements of the Federal Railways an entire trough piece shall admit of being bent together on its back without showing any breaking fissures.

Canada's Great Fisheries

Canada has the most extensive and best stocked commercial fishing waters in the world, including 5,000 miles of Atlantic and 7,000 miles of Pacific coast, and 230,000 square miles of fresh water. The value of the yearly catch is about $30,000,000. Canada's fishery equipment is worth $24,000,000; and something like 85,000 persons are employed by the industry.

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel

When They Have

Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

and the inventor has also made provision that when once charged with water the supply will last a considerable time and not dry out by evaporation.

It consists of a moisture-proof box with a hinged lid, the latter having a spring, the action of which is to hold the lid open. Under the lid is one moistening pad, which comes in contact with the envelope flap and this is maintained at the proper degree of moisture by automatically coming in contact with an auxiliary moistener. The envelope is placed on the lid with the flap overhanging, and as the lid is pressed down the water is applied. As the envelope is removed the parts are pressed together and the sealing effected. The moisture-proof qualities of the box prevent the evaporation of the water, which, when not in use is simply closed.

CONQUERS AIR POCKETS

French Aviator Brought Model of New Machine to Canada

Romin Garros, brother of Paul Garros, the famous French airman, exhibited an interesting object to some Montreal newspapermen. It was the model of his brother's new aeroplane, said to be able to defy air pockets, one of the most fatal dangers to airmen. Garros explained the technical points of the machine.

"I am on my way to visit at the Bleriot farm in the west," said he, "and I take with me this little model. It does not look much, but it may prove the means of saving thousands of airmen's lives. It does what we call increasing the inherent stability of the plane, and this little apparatus which you see on the sides acts as a defence against sudden air currents, that is, they enable the airman to regain his balance after being tipped over. We are experimenting with this new plane in France, and are working it to a high stage of perfection. We are not saying much about it until we perfect it, but since you saw the model under my arm I have told you something about it."

THE SPAN OF LIFE SHOWN BY FIGURES

For Those Under Thirty the Expectation of Longevity Has Increased—Married People Fortunate

How long do you expect to live?

Perhaps you have never given the matter a thought. The majority of people simply want to live as long as they can—and let it go at that. Therefore maybe it would be better to ask: How long can you expect to live?

Suppose you are between 40 and 45 years of age. If that is the case you may expect to live 23.4 years more—if you happen to live in a city. The matter of where you live changes the figure slightly but not much.

It occurred to the health department of one city to prepare a table of the expectation of life among the inhabitants of its city, in the hope that the people would help fight disease and so prolong their calculated allotted span.

The preparation of a table of this sort is a very complicated proceeding that requires an expert. But the results obtained are highly valuable. The figures are practically the same for all sections of the country. These show that there has been an increase in the expectation of life, as it is called, from the age of 1 year to the age of 30 and a decrease from 30 years on. For instance, a child 5 years old might expect to live 52 years more. That is an increase of 11 years over the expectation of life calculated third of a century ago. An adult between 25 and 30 years of age has 3 years more to live, according to the table, while a person 35 years old may reasonably expect to live only 3 years and 3 months longer.

The expectation of life for men and women is different, for people in different trades it is different. The differences bring to light some curious facts. For instance comparison of sexes instead of ages shows that women in general have about 6 years longer to live than men. The figures also show that married men live longer than single men and that married women live longer than single women. The Jew lives longer than the Gentile by a round dozen years. The negro appears to have less chance of life than the white man.

But throughout it is found that the span of life for people up to the age of 30 has increased during the last 30 years while that for people beyond the age of 30 has decreased.

FORTUNE SPENT FOR DOZEN PLAYERS

Some of It Was Real Money, But at Any Rate the Prices Were Record Breakers

A baseball statistician has completed figures to show that $144,000 was spent by major league clubs for a dozen players in the past few years. It doesn't seem so very long ago when the sporting world was agog over the announcement that $15,000 was paid for Jouett Meekin and "Duke" Farrell by the New York club. And the $10,000 paid for the famous Mike Kelly was thought to be a figure that would never in all the world be approached.

But big figures seem to talk these days. The rising market for "big-priced" ball players, or the lottery, as it might be called, started when John McGraw paid $11,000 for "Rube" Marquard. For two years "Rube" was hardly worth his travelling expenses. But he came around, and he lived up to his price.

Then along came Barney Dreyfus with his $22,500 beauty, Marty O'Toole, and his $7,000 catcher, Bill Kelly. That's "high," and it's probably going to stay right there. The nearest approach to it was when Charles Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox was reported to have paid $18,000 for Outfielder Chappelle. Other "big prices" were marked, including $15,000 the Giants were supposed to have paid for "Rube" Schauer, $6,000 the Yankees gave for Marty McHale, and the $12,000 the same club handed over for Thirdbaseman Fritz Maisel.

In these transactions, or in the majority of them, there has been more or less work of the imaginary kind. No such amount of cash as $10,000, $15,000 or the like was ever turned over for any player. The club getting the young star very probably handed over players who were figured as so much cash, and then some real, sure enough money in the bargain.

However, here is a list of the players whose combined abilities are reputed to be worth $144,500 in the aggregate:

Name and team	Price paid
Marty O'Toole, Pittsburg	$22,500
Larry Chappelle, White Sox	18,000
Rube Shauer, Giants	15,000
Ray Schalk, White Sox	15,000
Lefty Russell, Athletics	12,500
Rus Blackburne, White Sox	12,000
Fred Maisel, Yankees	12,000
Rube Marquard, Giants	11,000
Elmer Brown, Superbas	7,000
Bill Kelly, Pittsburg	7,000
Rube Benton, Reds	6,500
McHale, Yankees	6,000
Total	$144,500

GOOD PINCH HITTING

On a Few Occasions It Has Saved No-hit Games

It is seldom that an emergency hitter shatters a pitcher's bid for a no-hit game as Larry McLean, of the Giants did when batting against George Tyler, of the Braves. The last time anything like this happened to the Major League was on July 28, 1909. Lefty Pastorius, of the Superbas, then was pitching against the Phillies, and he held them hitless until the ninth. Then Billy Murray, manager of the Quakers, lifted John Titus out of the controversy and delegated Dr. Leon Martel to bat for him. Martel responded with a triple, and Pastorius did not get his portrait into the pitchers' Hall of Fame.

Heinie Berger, of the Naps, was headed toward a no-hit game on Sept. 26, 1907, while twirling against the Yankees, until Clarke Griffith requested Norman Elberfield to bat for Jack Chesbro in the ninth. Elberfield made a single and Berger's chance was gone. That same season, on May 20, Tom Hughes of the Nationals had a similar experience when Harry Bemis of the Naps did a pinch hitting trick for Glen Liebhardt in the third inning.

On Sept. 10, 1907, Joe Doyle of the Yankees confined the Nationals to one safety, made by Mike Kahoe, who got into the game because Jack Warner had been injured.

The only National League contest in which both teams were held to one hit took place between Pittsburg and Chicago on the morning of July 4, 1906. Lefty Leifield and Mordecai Brown were the pitchers and the safeties were made by Jim Slagle and by Leifield himself.

Charley Buffinton of the Phillies, is, so far as is known, the only National League pitcher to hurl two one-hit games in succession.

Keep to the Course

During a discussion over long driving, Harry Vardon, the crack English golfer, gave views on the subject which differed materially from those generally entertained. He said:

"There are any quantities of golfers who hit at times very long balls, but where do they land? Nine times out of ten, you will find them in the rough. That is not the long ball to my way of thinking. When I drive I do not try to hit the ball as hard as I can, rather keep on the course. The long ball is one that has length and direction. Give me the man who gets eighteen tee shots on the course of more than average length, and I will take him against the longest swiper in the world who brings up in the rough."

Lajoie's Tip on Eyesight

Napoleon Lajoie says that young baseball players pay too much attention to developing speed without giving a thought to what he considers the most important asset in an aspiring recruit. Lajoie says a perfect pair of eyes can do more to make a player successful than any adjunct. Plenty of nerve, intelligence and strength enter into it, but the largest item is good eyesight.

Dreams Come True

People derided Jules Verne when he wrote his book telling how he girdled the earth in 80 days and another describing a voyage under the sea. Frank Wright also told of traveling in electric machines over the earth and through the air and people sneered. And yet all these things have been accomplished. Mr. Verne's trip around the world has been beaten by nearly half the time he consumed.

WAR WITH INSECTS

Campaign is Carried on in a Number of Countries

The greatest war that is going on at the present time is not a war in which both sides are men. It is not a war in which rifles or cannon play a part. The biggest battles of to-day are with a much smaller foe than man. They are battles with insects.

Although unknown to many people, these battles in which men and insects are the combatants are adding a new chapter to the history of the world.

South Africa is one of the greatest of these battlegrounds. There hostilities are being carried on relentlessly. Locusts are one of the enemies in South Africa. As soon as there is a swarm of locusts, news is flashed to the Department of Agriculture at Pretoria. As a result a battle ensues with sprays of arsenic instead of rifles. The locusts, due to these battles, are being rapidly exterminated.

On the west coast of Africa a great campaign is taking place against a close relative of one of our own foes, the mosquito. In Africa it has been definitely established that the mosquito is the transmitter of three most terrible diseases—malaria, elephantiasis and yellow fever. If a man is bitten only once by a mosquito there may develop any one of these horrible diseases. The same methods are being used against the African mosquito as they are using in the United States in a civil war against the mosquito. Hundred of ponds are being drained and other bodies of water are being covered by a thick oil.

A little fish known as the "million" is the weapon used in the great battle against the mosquito in West India and the Hawaiian Islands. This little fish is a natural enemy of the mosquito. The beneficial work of the "million" was first noticed at Barbados, whose lakes and streams were full of this small fish. Barbados did not suffer from the scourges brought by mosquitoes, but the adjacent islands, where the "million" did not live, suffered greatly. This suffering is diminishing since the introduction of the "million" into all ponds and streams that cannot be drained or covered with oil.

In the Panama Canal Zone the conflict between man and insect has been remarkable. Man has won all of the battle. Yellow fever in all of its horror, a direct result of germs carried by the mosquito, has been driven away from Panama by a successful war on the pest.

Another pest on which a great onslaught is being made is the tsetse fly. The record of this insect is but little less terrible than that of the mosquito, for among the diseases it carries is the sleeping sickness, for which there is no cure and which has swept away whole communities. The tsetse has killed more than 200,000 in the Uganda protectorate alone. The tsetse fly is being fought by burning bushes around the margins of rivers and ponds and around cities and encampments. The men of Africa are wearing a sort of a sticky flypaper on their backs in the lands where the tsetse fly swarms, and millions are being attracted and killed by this method.

The United States and Canada have already made great progress against the fly and the mosquito, whose dangers have just been recently realized.

The war against these terrible tiny foes will not only make civilized countries more healthful, but will vastly improve life and conditions and open up to civilization part of the tropical and semi-tropical countries.

THE OWL TO FLOURISH

Bounty on Big Horned Species Removed in West

No more bounties will be paid by the British Columbia Government for the destruction of the big horned owl. This owl is supposed to be very destructive of game birds, and this may have been the case in the past, but the rabbits have now come back and the big horned owl finds himself once more in a land of plenty. As he is said to even prefer rabbit to grouse, there is no longer any particular object in having him destroyed.

The bounty, which was two dollars per owl, proved unexpectedly expensive, $18,000 being paid out in a few months. Some enterprising hunters are said to have made as much as a hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars a month from this source. Moreover, the government is convinced that a certain amount of fraud was practised and that the harmless little horned owl has frequently been made to do duty for his big horned cousin at two dollars per head.

Rare Collection of Miniatures

G. R. Hosmer has one of the most valuable collections of antiques in Canada. His miniatures especially are a remarkable and almost priceless collection.

Historic Structure Gone

The old east-end "ducat" in the G.T.R. yards at Stratford, where the famous inventor, Thomas A. Edison, is said to have begun his apprenticeship as an operator, was torn down recently to make way for a modern signal tower.

Plenty of Highways

The public roads of the United States total about 2,225,000 miles in length, or more than the highways of all of Europe.

Canada has 3,121 registered steam vessels. Gross tonnage, 544,399.

Old Saying Proved

The old saying "Follow like sheep" was used by a Victoria County farmer who had 400 sheep to deliver in Lindsay for shipment. He headed the procession with a cow that was very friendly with one of the sheep herd. The sheep followed the cow and the 399 other sheep followed without any trouble to the drivers. What a pity one of the local bakers does not advertise Peterborough bread to be sold as cheap here as the same bread is sold in Campbellford.

Johnston Not at the War

Yesterday a local man received a London, Eng., paper. This, speaking of the close watch kept in that city during war times says the nigger pugilist Jack Johnston, formerly of the States, while in his auto, broke the traffic regulations whilst driving down the Strand. A "bobby" put him under arrest. Johnston, attempting to place a bribe, remarked, "Don't arrest me but serve me with a summons." In the meantime a crowd numbering several hundred surrounded the car. Several other bobbies gathered and took Johnston to the station. Here he was fined forty shillings and Johnston remarked, "There's more cheap advertising."

YOU CAN'T BRUSH OR WASH OUT DANDRUFF

—You can't Brush or Wash out—
The Simplest and Quickest Way is To Dissolve It

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve itm and then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair, and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle, and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

NOVEMBER ROD AND GUN

Bonnycastle Dale is the leading contributor to the November issue of Rod and Gun, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., writing on the subject of "Trapping in Ontario 1913-14." In "Wanderings in the Winter Woods" W. Dustin White describes vividly the joys of the winter camping trip. "Bear Tracking and Pack Carrying in B. C." tells of a hunter who trapped a husky bear weighing some one hundred and sixty pounds, and then carried him on his back for a distance of ten miles over a very uneven woods trail. "Bill an' Hec and Me" is a well written account of a canoe trip in the northern wilderness. The remainder of the magazine is replete with interesting articles and the various departments are well maintained.

LOCAL BAKERS DO NOT EXPLAIN HOLD UP

Possibly (?) the best security for money invested, if you don't look further than the end of your nose is to buy stock in a Peterborough bakery soaking the poor and soldiers' wives of this city 13 cents for bread, they, the bakers, or their agents, sell in Campbellford for 10 cents. The local bakers may make excuses galore, and squirm and try to explain the exorbitant prices charged here for bread to customers among English settlers, the poor and the soldiers' wives.

This fight against a local hold up was inaugurated by the Times and will be fought until bread is brought here from outside to be sold as cheaply as Peterboro bread is sold in other towns. The Times does not care whether local bakers wear diamonds or buy buildings. What we are after is the protection of the poor or even, the working man of this city. We don't care the value of a— whether the evening papers take up this fight or not.

The Times has offered, and by actual test has shown its willingness to throw its columns open to the bakers. We have inserted a letter from Mr. Stock and quoted an interview held with Mr. Hooper, two of Peterborough's leading bakers.

We have yet to learn, outside "hot air" and present profits, why the poor of Peterborough are paying for real estate and luxuries for our local bakers.

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs" to cleanse the bowels Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep, or act naturally, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ails; give a teaspoonful and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative" and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child tomorrow; but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of California Syrup of Figs, then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

MR. BURNHAM GETS CONGRATULATORY LETTER

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., is in receipt of the following letter:

October 30, 1914.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P.,
Peterborough:

Dear Mr. Burnham:

I have received your favor of Oct. 29th. In reply, let me say that words fail me to express my appreciation of the kind offer enclosed.

I am sure it is largely through your influence that this beautiful cup is to be in my possession for the ensuing year, and let me assure you it will have a longer stay in the township of Asphodel if my ability as a plowman will keep it here.

Thanking you very much for your kind interest in my [illegible]lf, I remain.

Yours sin[illegible]

C[illegible] WOULD.

LOCAL R[illegible] GIV[illegible] P[illegible] MONEY

Is this City pat[illegible]? Ask this question of many of our rich men, men who are worth from $100,000 to $800,000. Ask the man on the street who sees troops, fraternal orders, etc. passing down George street without a cheer or a hand clap. Ask our people if a city of 22,000, who contributed half to the Patriotic Fund of what did the town of Lindsay, which is less than half our population: We do not advocate emotionalism but we would like to see a spirit of marked and clearly displayed patriotism, both in matters of the Empire and the city. It is time that Peterborough threw off its seemingly "Rube" methods and adopt those followed in other towns. When our local recruits go to the war don't let us see these men, many of whom may never come back, go down George street between lines of sightseers, who act like corpses. Some of our local rich men have contributed towards the maintenance of our local soldiers and their families nearly as much as they would spend in 2 weeks on cigars. Faugh!

"CATARRHOZONE" PREVENTS BAD COLDS STRENGTHENS WEAK IRRITABLE THROATS

Employs Nature's own Methods and is Invariably Successful.

Few will escape a cold this winter, but alas! many colds run into Catarrh.

You feel better in an hour.

"Nothing could kill a cold so fast as Catarrhozone," writes Amey E. Snelling, from St. Johns. "Last month I had a frightful cold in my head, suffered from itching nose, running eyes and torturing headache. Ten minutes with "Catarrhozone" inhaler gave relief and in one hour I was well of my cold. Catarrhozone I consider a marvel."

Carry "Catarrhozone" inhaler in your pocket or purse—take it to church—to the theatre—to work—use it in bed. It prevents and cures all manner of nose and throat troubles. Complete outfit, guaranteed $1.00; small size 50c.; sample size 25c.; at dealers everywhere.

War May be Over in Six Months Say London Military Experts--Germans Abandon Positions On Yser River--British Bombard Turkish Town

GERMANS ARE HARD PRESSED BY ALLIES AT SCORE OF POINTS

Have Definitely Abandoned Positions Along Left Bank of the Yser--These Positions Now Held by French and British--German Assults at Arras Renewed, But Repulsed With Loss--Allies Push Forward Everywhere

Paris, Nov. 3.—That the Germans have definitely abandoned their positions along the left bank of the Yser was the most noteworthy information contained in this afternoon's official communique. It was stated that they have retired from all the entrenched positions that they held as a result of the territory being inundated through the cutting of the dykes and that these positions, especially below Dixmude, are now held by the allies.

The German assaults on Arras which were renewed yesterday, have all been repulsed, it is stated.

Paris, Nov. 3.—The Germans are being hard pressed at a score of points in the long battle line, and the military experts at the headquarters here declare that their offensive has materially lost force

At every point the allies are pushing their advance. Slow progress is being made because of the determined resistance of the enemy, now made up more than in half of second line troops, but it is insisted here that there is no longer any doubt of the final result.

The German attempt to advance to the sea is characterized as the most costly defeat of the war. The German losses have been enormous and today's official report emphasizes the fact that the flooding of the territory near the Yser, was the last straw. The Germans had crossed the river and moved three miles beyond before, the Belgians, who are experts at this sort of work, cut the dykes.

The allies are pushing forward toward Menin, and if they can that important railway centre they will again be in a position to seriously threaten the German lines of communication.

DEPARTING SOLDIERS GIVEN A MOST HEARTY SEND OFF

Yesterday at noon although an incessant rain made everything unpleasant, both sides of George Street were lined with citizens who gathered to give the seventy-nine local recruits a good send off on their way to the Front. Strange to say, for this city cheers and handclapping occurred all along the route from the Armouries to the C.P.R. Depot, as suggested in yesterday's issue of the Times. The local boys left for Kingston for a concentration camp and the best wish the Times can extend is that they may all come back. The C.P.R. station was surrounded by several thousand people who cheered at both bands of the 57th Regiment led the Over-Seas Contingent on their way.

Before the final march for the front began, Major Walker presided at the hastily made platform at the Armouries, and the following martial addresses were delivered:

Mr. Burnham's God-speed

"No greater honor could be done me than to ask me to say a few words of God-speed to those about to offer their lives in defence of their country. It is hard for us in remote and peaceful Canada to realize that we are at war—at war in all its terribleness, and in all its heart-breaking horror. But the crash of conflict, the death of tens of thousands, the groans of hundreds of thousands, and the anguish of the desolate need no mere words in addition to proclaim the fact. You are going to do your share in defence of the Empire, and in the defence of those remaining at home. The East is preparing to enter the conflict. The millions of religious fanatics in Asia from the East to the West of that mightiest of continents, are, we are told, preparing to side with Prussian militarism in an effort to overturn all that we know and love as our civilization, happiness and prosperity—in a word, in an attempt to overthrow the world. The world has seen great conflicts, but nothing like this one. Our share is small, and yet it is great. We are small in numbers, but the loyalty and fervor of Canada in this great cause means far more than mere numbers. Canada is proud of you; the City and County of Peterboro' are proud of you. We are sure that you will be brave and of good courage. You will uphold the good name of Canada, which after all is all that a man or nation can have that is worth having. We will read of your constancy in good and evil fortune with emotion; we will watch your course from day to day with all the pride of those who love you and who wish you well. Though like some others I have volunteered, I am not young enough to be taken to the front in the first call, but we can all serve in some capacity as do those we are told who merely stand and wait, but with a good heart. Stand fast for the Empire. Stand fast for Canada! And time will never efface the record of your constancy, your valour, and the gratitude of your countrymen."

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.

Mr. G.A. Gillespie, M.P.P., in wishing the boys God-speed, stated that that the people of Peterborough had no fear but that they would do their duty, and render signal service to the Empire, on behalf of Canada. Realizing the seriousness of this war, and the fact that the civilization of the world was being assailed, Canada had readily responded to the call of the Empire. The men of Peterborough had evidenced their loyalty at each call, and it was needless to say that all would do their duty. The manoeuvres of the City's volunteers, both in training and at the front, would be followed with keen interest.

Mayor Buller, on behalf of the citizens, extended the best wishes to the departing soldiers.

RUSSIA WILL AGAIN TRIUMPH OVER INSOLENT TURKISH HORDES

Petrograd, November 3.—An Imperial manifesto, dealing with the agressions of the Turks, and welcoming war with the Porte was issued today after having been signed by the Czar.

"Russia will receive this fresh aggression on the part of the ancient persecutor of Christain people with tranquility, says the Manifesto. 'The Slav people will meet the issue with every confidence, realizing with the help of God their valiant armies will again triumph over the Turkish hordes and punish the insolent foes of the fatherland."

London, Nov. 3.—The White Star liner Olympic, which the Admiralty declares escaped destruction by a floating mine simply through "sheer luck' today landed her passengers and her mails at Belfast. She was held at Lough Swilly, County Donegal. Only one passenger, Charles M. Schaw, was allowed to land there. Reports have been freely circulated that the Olympic did actually foul a mine but it failed to explode.

Petrograd, Nov. 3.—In an official statement issued today, dealing with the operations in Galicia, it is stated that the reduction of the strong fortress of Przemysl is proceeding. During recent attempted sorties more than 4,000 prisoners were taken.

Believed Certain Kaiser Has Played Last Trick in the West

Flower of His Army and Highest Class of Reserves Have Failed to Take Dunkirk and Calais--Lord Kitchener in Dunkirk Sunday--Belgium Should be Clear of the Enemy by Spring

LONDON, NOV. 3.—BRITISH OPTIMISM CONTINUES TO GROW AS THE GERMANS ARE FORCED BACK FROM THE YSER RIVER. IT IS BELIEVED NOW CERTAIN THAT THE KAISER HAS PLAYED HIS LAST TRICK SO FAR AS REINFORCEMENTS ARE CONCERNED, AND THAT THE FLOWER OF HIS ARMY AS WELL AS THE HIGHEST CLASS OF RESERVES HAVE ESSAYED TO TAKE DUNKIRK AND CALAIS, AND HAVE FAILED BEYOND REPARATION.

IT IS ANNOUNCED THIS MORNING THAT LORD KITCHENER, THE BRITISH MINISTER OF WAR HELD A CONFERENCE IN DUNKIRK, FRANCE, ON SUNDAY, WITH KIBERT OF BELGIUM. PREMIER POINCARE OF FRANCE, AND OTHER STATESMEN AND MILITARY AUTHORITIES. IT IS PRESUMED THAT PLANS WERE LAID FOR MAINTAINING THE ALLIES' OFFENSIVE, AND THE PRESSING OF THE GERMANS BACK TRENCH BY TRENCH TO THEIR OWN FRONTIER AND BEYOND.

SEVERAL OF THE MILITARY EXPERTS HERE, WHO HAVE BEEN PREDICTING A THREE YEARS' WAR, NOW ADMIT THERE IS A POSIBILITY OF IT BEING OVER, SO FAR AS THE FIGHTING IN EUROPE IS CONCERNED, IN SIX MONTHS OR SO. BELGIUM, THEY SAY, SHOULD BE CLEAR OF THE GERMANS BY THE EARLY SPRING, AND ONCE THE FIGHTING IS ON GERMAN SOIL THEY EXPECT AN INTERNAL REVOLUTION IN GERMANY TO HASTEN THE END OF THE WAR.

London, Nov. 3.—The British cruiser Minerva has destroyed the fortifications and the government buildings of the Turkish town of Akabia, according to an official announcement made at the Admiralty today. The Minerva found the town to be guarded by a party of Turkish troops commanded by German officers. She shelled the port and the troops were compelled to evacuate.

WHERE IS PETERBORO'S PATRIOTISM?

Adverting to an article in Monday's issue of the Times, in which we asked the pertinent question: "Is Peterborough patriotic?" the reply seemed to have been shown at the Armouries last night. We do not want. God forbid, to throw a slur against our city. Still facts are facts. There is patriotism in this city most undoubtedly. Everyone knows that. The whole trouble our citizens have got into a "Rube" habit that induces them to not show their love of Country or City. Now last night a general meeting of the citizens was called at the Armouries to discuss war questions. Although such speakers as Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., Judge Huycke, Mayor Buller, Rev. Mr. Rollins, Rev. Mr. Pogue, and others of equal note were present, only about 300 people were in attendance to listen to the discussion of matters of vital interest to Peterborough and the Empire. In all probability Port Hope or Cobourg, under similar circumstances, would have turned out in thousands.

TURKEY IS DOOMED SAYS ALL INDIA

No Danger of Mohammedan Uprising in far East—Big Indian Newspapers Says Turkey Will Meet Her Doom—Her Action Means Suicide

London, Nov. 3.—A despatch from Delhi, India to Reuter's Telegram Co. says that in view of the outbreak of Turkey it was authoratively announced throughout India, that no religious question was involved and that the Mohammedan Holy Palaces in Arabia are immune from attack by the British naval and military forces provided the pilgrims from India to these places are not interfered with.

The Bombay Chronicle, in an editorial headed "Suicide," says of Turkey's entrance into the European war:

"The folly and rashness of those in whose hands the destiny of Turkey is placed have plunged her in a vortex from which she cannot emerge with any shred of a status as a nation."

The Advocate of India says that Turkey has been betrayed by a coter-

NO DANGER OF DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC IN OUR SCHOOLS

The Board of Education met in regular monthly session last night, Chairman Dr. Morrison presiding. There were also present Trustees Jno Crane, T. McGrath, Dr. Burnham, Col Miller, B. F. Ackerman, V. Eastwood, W.H. Hill, J.S. Turner, Jr.

The department's report of the annual inspection of the P.C.I. cadets, reported this body of youths as a first class corps, well drilled and disciplined

The Misses . Hallet and Fessenden sent in their resignations from the Public School teaching staff, to take effect at the end of the year. The resignations were accepted.

Diphtheria in Schools

Regarding the reports as to diphtheria cases in the schools, Inspector Mowat said that owing to the care exercised by the schools nurse, Miss Kennedy, no real serious case of diphtheria has developed in the schools. White diphtheria germs had been discovered in the throat and nose of some little ones, the cases had been handled in time, and the threatened disease promptly stamped out. The teachers are co-operating with Miss Kennedy in allaying the fears of parents as to a diphtheria epidemic in the schools; in fact children are safer from diphtheria in the schools than running the streets or at home.

Action Approved.

The Supervision Committee's action in loaning a number of rifles to the military authorities was confirmed.

The report was adopted.

SPIRITUAL HEAD OF THE MOSLEMS CABLES HIS LOYALTY TO BRITAIN

London, Nov. 3.—His Highness Aga Khan who is known as the spiritual head of the Mohammedans in India, East Africa and Central Asia, has sent a cablegram from London addressed to the Moslems in India and other British Dominions in which he expresses his deep sorrow that Turkey has joined hands with Germany in the war.

In this message Aga Khan says:

"This is not the free will of the Sultan, but the will of the German officers and other non-Moslems who have forced him to do their bidding."

He declares further that Turkey has now lost her position as the trustee of Islam. She has drawn her "sword in an unholy cause, and the duty of Moslems today is to remain loyal and faithful to their temporal and secular allegiance.

HOW TO RID THE SKIN OF OBJECTIONABLE HAIRS

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off. wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

TURKEY MUST FIGHT RUSSIA NOW UNDER ANY AND ALL CIRCUMSTANCES

Petrograd's Reply to Apology From Constantinople is That it is Now Too Late for "Pour Parlers"--Russian Army Ordered to Attack the Turks--Czar's Announcement is That Treacherous Foe Must be Wiped Out for all Time

Petrograd, Nov. 3.—The Turkish Ambassador, Fahreddin Bey, has left the Russian capital. He is leaving for home via Finland.

Ordered to Attack Turks.

London, Nov. 3.—A despatch from Tiflis, capital of the Russian Government of the same name in Trans Caucasia, to Reuter's Telegram Company says:

"It is announced that the Emperor has ordered the Caucasian army to cross the frontier and attack the Turks."

To Late To Talk Peace.

London, Nov 3. A Reuter despatch from Petrograd says:

"In reply to a telegram from the Turkish Grand Vizier expressing regret at the ruptute of the good relations existing between Turkey and Russia, 'owing to an attack by the Russian fleet.' Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, denied that the Russian fleet was the first to fire and said he feared it was too late to enter into pour parlers of any kind with Turkey."

The telegram from the Grand Vizier was read to Foreign Minister Sazonoff by the Turkish Charge d'Affaires. It said:

"Convey Our Deep Regret"

"Convey to Sazonoff our deep regret at the rupture of the good relations between the two powers which has been caused by the hostile acts of the Russian fleet. You can assure the Imperial Russian Government that the Sublime Porte will not fail to seek an opportune solution to this question and will take all measures to prevent a repitition of such incidents.

"You can declare to Sazonoff that the Ottoman Government has decided to forbid the Turkish fleet entering the Black Sea. We hope in turn that the Russian fleet will not cruise near our littoral.

"In the interest of both countries, I firmly hope that the Imperial Russian Government will show in this affair the same spirit of conciliation."

Failed to Expel Germans.

Foreign Minister Sazonoff, in his reply added that only if Turkey had immediately expelled all German military and naval officers in Turkey would it have been possible to enter into negotiations with a view of providing satisfaction for those who had suffered by the treacherous acts of aggression on the Russian coast.

As the declaration of the Turkish charge altered nothing in the existing situation, the Russian Foreign Minister informed him that he would receive his passports on Monday.

Treacherous Attack by Fleet.

An Imperial manifesto on the outbreak of the war with Turkey, has been issued in Petrograd, according to the correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company in the Russian capital. It reads as follows:

"In the sterile struggle against Russia, Germany and Austria have incited Turkey into taking arms against this Empire. Immediately after the treacherous attack of the Turkish fleet the Russian Ambassador received orders to leave Turkey.

"Russia will receive this fresh aggression on the part of the ancient persecutor of the Christian religion and the Slav peoples with tranquility and confidence in God. The valiant armies of Russia will triumph once again—not for the first time over the Turkish hordes. Once again we will know how to punish the insolent foe of our fatherland.

"Our confidence in unshakable that the ill-advised intervention of Turkey will only hasten the fatal issue to that Empire and will open the way for the Russian settlement of problem on the Black Sea coast which have been handed down by our ancestors."

TORONTO GERMANS MEET IN SECRET SO DO THE GERMANS IN BUFFALO

Toronto, Nov. 3.—"What's the use of talking about municipal research and city improvement when, in a few months, we may have no city to improve?" was the rather startling question dropped by Mr. Frank Wise at the meeting this afternoon of the committee of the Bureau of Municipal Research.

"The male German population of Buffalo is eight thousand above normal," stated Mr. Wise to the News in explanation of his remark. "I have good authority for that statement. If that is so, these Germans have not gathered there to no purpose; and if they have gathered there you may bet they have gathered at Rochester and Detroit and Port Huron and at other points along the line.

People Should be Alarmed.

"What's the use of ignoring it? Are we going to keep on talking about unemployment and matters of local interest while the Germans across the line are preparing to invade Canada? Don't be afraid of alarming people—they need to be alarmed. We should have ten thousand armed troops on the border right now. We should send every available man there.

"It's no good looking to the United States to defend us. Their militia cannot be ordered out of the state in which it is formed. To call for volunteers would take time, and by the time anything could be done it would be too late. It would also take time to call out the permanent forces.

Could Be of No Help.

"And anyway, once they were across the line, the United States would be able to do nothing against a German occupation of Canada. And would they want to? They would take the attitude that it was not up to them to fight our battles for us. They would not want to have trouble with a people who might be their future neighbors.

"I tell you, these Germans in the border cities are meeting regularly, and not for meeting. They have a purpose.

"What is even more serious, they are holding meetings right here in Toronto, and the police know it. The building is being watched but no arrests have been made.

"The situation is critical, and we can't afford to ignore it."

TO GET RID OF WRINKLES AND BAD COMPLEXIONS

It is more important now than during the period of profuse perspiration to keep the pores clean. All cosmetics clog the pores. In cool weather this interferes greatly with elimination of waste material injuring instead of aiding the complexion. Ordinary mercolized wax serves all the purposes of creams, powders and rouges, giving far better results. It actually peels off an offensive skin, at the same time unclogging the pores. Minute particles of scarf skin come off day by day and cause not the least pain or discomfort. Gradually the healthy, younger skin beneath peeps out, and in less than a fortnight you have a lovelier complexion than you ever dreamed of acquiring. Mercolized wax, obtainable at any drugstore, is spread on nightly like cold cream and washed off in the mornings. One ounce usually suffices.

For removing wrinkles, without stopping the pores with pasty stuff, here's a never failing formula: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in this daily for a while; every line will vanish completely. Even the first application gives surprising results.

ADDRESS ON "CANADA" TO SCOTCH AUDIENCE

Near and Dear to the Scots—Most Akin to Scotland, of all Colonies

At a lecture on Canada given in Penicuik by the Rev. W. Baird, of Edinburgh, the chairman, Mr. W. Lindsay, introducing the lecturer, said that Canada was near and very dear to all Scots, for out of the many colonies of the Empire it stood foremost and most akin to us. Why? Because though first discovered by a Genoese trader from Bristol, and afterwards successfully settled by the Norman-French, it was not until the outstanding Scotsman—rather France Scot—John Law, an Edinburgh goldsmith—who found it convenient to transfer his interests to Paris, where he founded a famous bank—turned his attention to colonising Canada with Scots, that thus began the westward trend of our race. Then followed the rush of Scots exiles after the Jacobite Rebellion in 7715, and anew began the interest of the Scots in the St. Lawrence. This exodus was followed later, and especially after 1745, by many Scots to seek fresh fortune in the West. Previous to this, however, and in the reign of James VI. and I. of England, Sir William Alexander secured a charter to found Nova Scotia, or New Scotland—the territory to be an appanage of the Kingdom of Scotland, and to be erected into two chief districts, viz., (1) Caledonia (now Nova Scotia) and (2) Alexandria (now New Brunswick.) To further make it homelike for the Scot some of the rivers were renamed, Tweed, Clyde, Forth, etc., but to still further popularise the movement a new order of baronets of Nova Scotia was instituted.

A Great Movement

Then commenced the great movement of Scots to the new Acadia and from time to time they were followed by other bands of determined Scots, until about the years 1783-4-5, when the clearance of the Highland glens took place, and the Scots surged across the Atlantic to form that well known settlement, Glengarry, Ontario. Thereafter ship after ship brought its contingent of clansmen from old Scotland's shores. The names of the clans were: M'Donald, M'Donell, M'Millan, M'Dougall, M'Rae, M'Leod, Grant, Cameron, M'Gillis, Kennedy, M'Lennan, Campbell, M'Intosh, M'Gillivray, M'Kinnon, M'Pherson, Fraser, M'Phee, M'Intyre, Ross, Chisholm, M'Gregor, Ferguson, M'Laren, M'Kenzie, Morrison, M'Cormick, M'Martin, M'Kay, M'Arthur, M'Lachlan, Cattanach. In 1852 they numbered 9,965 souls in Glengarry, Ontario. Thus did the Scots win the East, but no less had they since won the West, and at the present time over a million Scots were located in and over the Dominion of Canada, and it may be taken as a surety that very few homes in Scotland at the present time but had some relationship with Scots o'er the water.

Who Should Emigrate

The chairman, in moving a vote of thanks, said that no one should emigrate unless he felt his present position did not give him cope for his abilities, nor afford sufficient remuneration for his toil. Nor should anyone emigrate if his circumstances were such that he is well off in this country. However, if after careful consideration of the matter and good prospects were held out by friends already settled across the seas, then it might be well to go forth with the hope of some success. It was important, however, to emphasise what the lecturer had said, that it must not be expected when they reached the other side they would find "a land flowing with milk and honey. They would find a land of opportunity for those who were willing to tackle hard work, and who had plenty of grit and courage to face difficulties.

DR. OSLER ON DRUGS

Eminent Canadian Doctor Not a Great Medicine Giver

Dr. (Sir) William Osler is probably the greatest living authority on the use of drugs in the treatment of disease. At one time a professor in John Hopkins University, Dr. Osler was appointed Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford University, England, and he is regarded by the doctors of every English-speaking country as a great authority.

Dr. Osler says of diphtheria:

"We are still without drugs which can directly counteract the tox-albumens of the disease, and we must rely upon general measures of feeding and stimulants to support the strength. Medicines given internally are of little avail in diphtheria."

Concerning pneumonia, Dr. Osler says:

"Pneumonia is a self-limited disease which can neither be cut short nor aborted by any known means at our command. Even under the most unfavorable circumstances it may terminate abruptly and naturally without a dose of medicine having been administered. There is no specific treatment of pneumonia. The young practitioner may bear in mind that patients are more often damaged than helped by the too promiscuous system of drugging, which is still only too prevalent."

Of scarlet fever, Dr. Osler says:

"Ordinary cases do not require any medicine. Medical antipyretics are not of much service in comparison with cold water."

Of measles, Dr. Osler says:

Of whooping cough, Dr. Osler says:

"The medical treatment is most unsatisfactory."

Of yellow fever:

Of dysentery:

An Ancient Bank Note

St. Petersburg's Asiatic Museum claims to have a Chinese bank note issued at Pekin in 2800 B.C. It is similar to those now in use. It is of thick white paper, inscribed in blue ink. Round the border is engraved the counsel: "However much you may possess, strive to be thrifty." If its date is authentic it disposes at one blow of a number of seemingly well-substantiated facts. It throws back the use of written characters at least 1,000, and the invention of printing more than 3,000 years and proves that a highly developed state of civilization and an utterly unsuspected economic system must have existed under the Emperor Fu Hsi, who has hitherto been treated as a purely legendary monarch.

EDUCATION IN CANADA

There are 2,141,909 children, between 6 and 20, in attendance at school in Canada according to the latest available figures. Of this total, 1,801,779 (or 84 per cent.) are Canadian-born, 142,560 British-born, and 197,570 foreign-born.

Persons in Canada who can read and write, of population of five years of age and over, 88.98 per cent.

Persons who can read only: One-half of one per cent.

Illiterates: 10.50 per cent.

Ontario still leads in percentage of those able to read and write, namely, 93.17 per cent.

Of 2,197,663 males of voting age, 90.57 per cent., or 1,990,341, can read in some language.

REAL BOYS LOVE DOGS

But Many a Lad's Heart is Saddened Because He Cannot Keep One

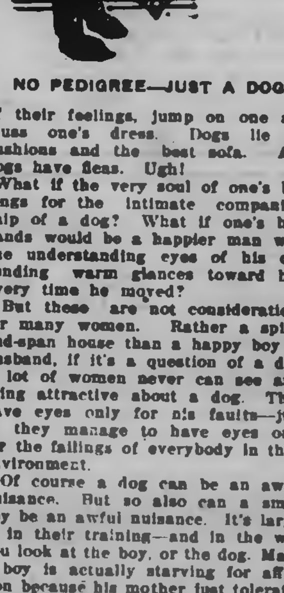
"Aw, Ma, lemme keep him. Aw—Ma!"

"I won't have the dirty beast around. See the mud he's brought in already."

And so the boy led the dog out of the house and the two sat on the back steps and communed together, both faces wearing very much the same expression.

There were three unhappy beings because of the mother's ultimatum—for the mother herself, though she triumphed, felt something wrong in the atmosphere.

Good housewives, however, have always forbidden dogs in the house. Dogs don't stop to wipe their feet before coming in. Dogs shed hair on carpets. Dogs, in the exuberance of their feelings, jump on one and muss one's dress. Dogs lie on cushions and the best sofa. And dogs have fleas. Ugh!



NO PEDIGREE—JUST A DOG

What if the very soul of one's boy longs for the intimate companionship of a dog? What if one's husbands would be a happier man with the understanding eyes of his dog sending warm glances toward him every time he moved?

But these are not considerations for many women. Rather a spick-and-span house than a happy boy or husband, if it's a question of a dog. A lot of women never can see anything attractive about a dog. They have eyes only for his faults—just as they manage to have eyes only for the failings of everybody in their environment.

Of course a dog can be an awful nuisance. But so also can a small boy be an awful nuisance. It's largely in their training—and in the way you look at the boy, or the dog. Many a boy is actually starving for affection because his mother just tolerates him and makes no effort to understand him.

BACKYARD GARDENS

Any Kind of Soil Can be Utilized For Vegetable Growing

Many a backyard could annually produce vegetables that would cost $150 if they were purchased at the grocer's. Any patch of ground will grow some kind of vegetable if given half a chance. No matter what kind of soil one has to deal with, it can be made to grow things. If the soil is sandy it will grow early crops to great advantage, but will not stand the hot, dry weather of summer as well as clay or loam. For this reason most sandy soils would be improved by the addition of several inches of barnyard manure and heavier soil plowed in in the spring and thoroughly mixed. Heavy clay soil is the toughest proposition for a gardener to handle. A loamy soil is the best for general cropping. If there is sod in the new garden, it should not be stripped off as is often done, but should be turned under, where it will decay and improve the texture of the soil.

Another feature is fertility. Barnyard manure or commercial fertilizers must be used in abundance. It is difficult to give advice on the kind and amount of fertilizer to use. This depends upon the character of the land and the nature of the crops to be raised. All seedsmen have for sale combination fertilizers that will answer the purpose of most amateur gardeners. Good drainage and lots of sunlight are other necessary factors in getting best results.

Butterfly's Long Trip

Brilliantly colored butterflies or moths, three inches in length and brightly hued, are not common in Canada, and consequently some workmen in a Toronto lumber yard were surprised to see one of this kind fluttering around in a car. It was in with some ash lumber, which arrived from the Southern States, so that evidently it had traveled the distance from its native clime in a box car. It was three inches long and measured three and a half inches from tip to tip of the wings. The body was two and a half inches long and the wings were striped with grey, yellow, black and white.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

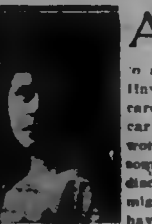
What a Card Brought.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

AN ironic sense of malice has gotten me into a peculiar mess. Having dropped my card in a trolley car so that two women who were somewhat cattishly discussing my wife might find it and have an attack of conscience, I now learn to my sorrow that it was an exceedingly unwise thing to do. It has precipitated a domestic squall.

My first inkling of the situation came one evening when I found Mary in tears.

"What is the trouble?" I asked. When a woman cries it really is a great conundrum to know what to do. If you ask her what the trouble is she merely cries harder—if you don't ask her she'll cry anyway, and there you are.

Accused of Flirting.

Mary's tears came considerably faster when I inquired the cause of them.

"Peter," she said, "I—I never supposed I'd married a horrid flirt. I—I never supposed you'd go around flirting with women in trolley cars—I——"

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed, aghast. "I haven't flirted with a trolley car woman or any other kind of a woman. What are you driving at?"

Mary flung back her head defiantly.

"Didn't you drop your card as you were passing some women in a trolley car Tuesday?"

The situation dawned upon me in an instant. I looked blank.

"There!" triumphed Mary, with a sob. "I—I knew you did. Oh, Peter!"

A married man once told me that these things inevitably come to every married couple. I'm sorry for that, for they're mighty unpleasant. Why is every woman prepared to believe the worst of her husband on the frailest of evidence? Why will she never give him the benefit of the doubt until she's put him on the rack and spoiled a few hours of his life. I told my little story over 12 times at least before Mary really began to believe me. Even then she had spasms of back-sliding.

"It's true," I insisted. "They were club friends of yours, and they were talking rather cattishly. I was pretty sure they didn't know who I was, and I wanted them to. Who saw me drop the card, Mary?"

I Protest Innocence.

"I—I don't know," said Mary, wiping her eyes and looking for the first time as if she really did believe me. "The telephone rang just a little while ago, and—and some strange woman told me that you—you'd been flirting and dropped your card in a trolley car so that two women behind you could pick it up and—and, at first I didn't believe it, Peter, honestly! It was so silly—but I kept thinking about it and—called mother up and she said to leave it all to her—that she'd talk to you——"

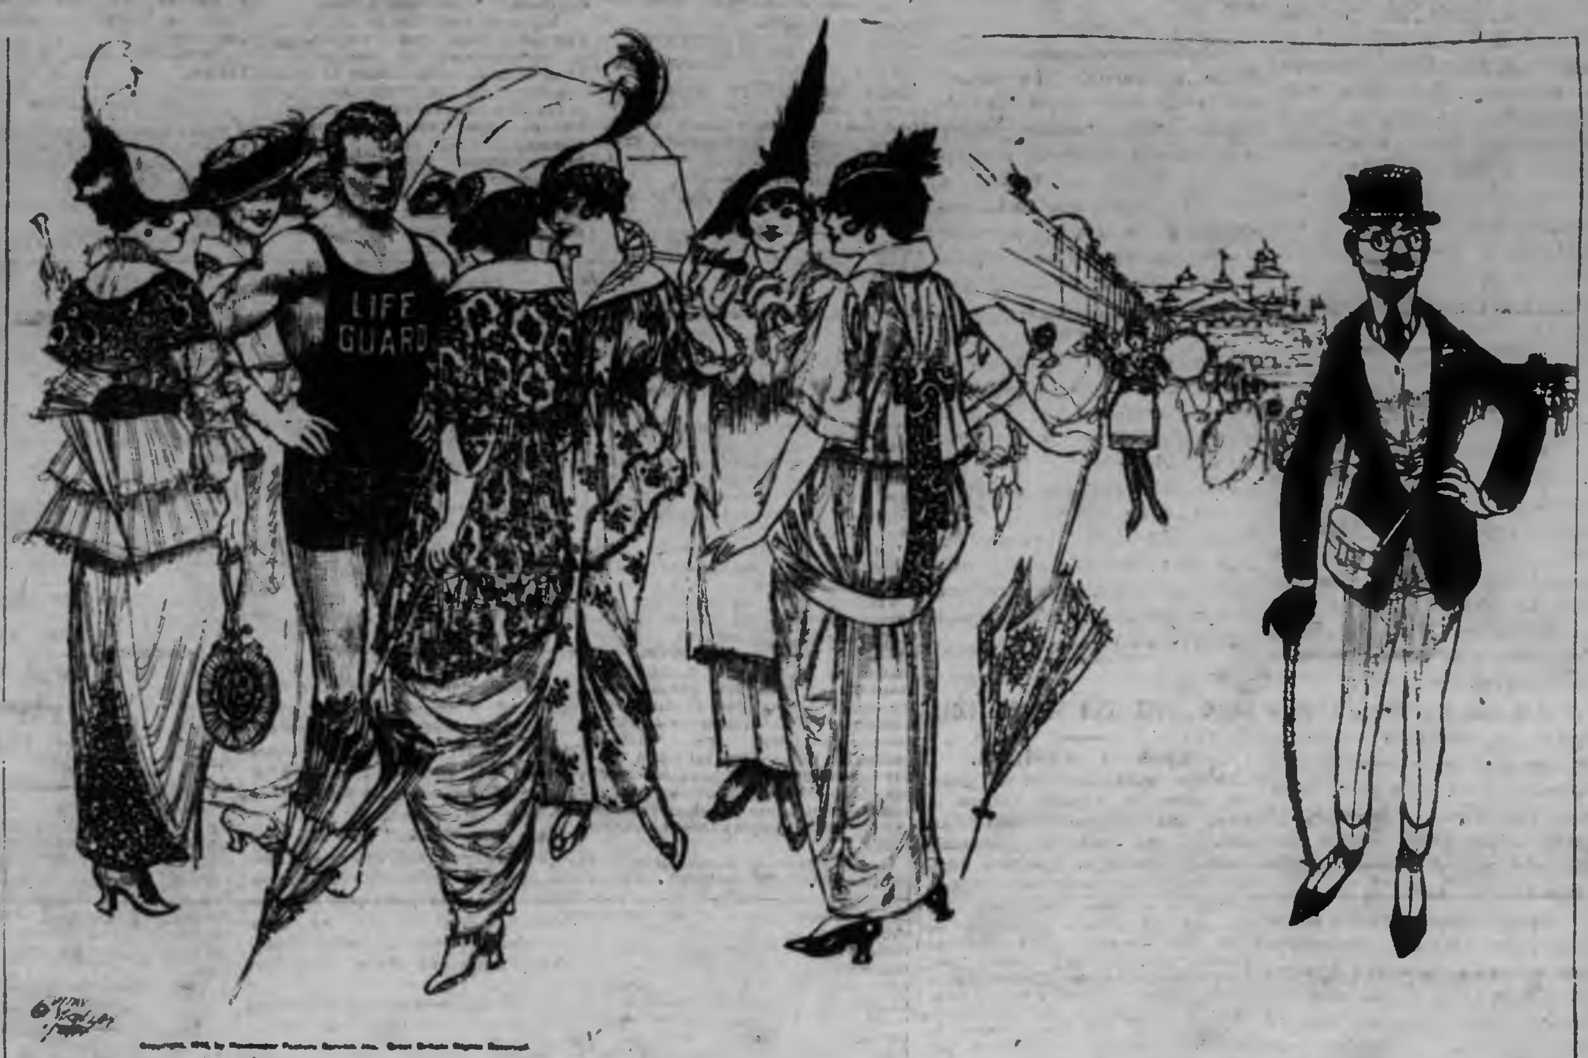
"Great Guns!" I breathed fervently—but I resisted a strong temptation to say something acrid, and changed the subject. "Mary," I added, "I believe your two club acquaintances picked up the card and were so appalled at the fact that I had overheard them that one of them has deliberately 'phoned just to get back at me. It was a very neat revenge—but——"

"And you're quite sure it wasn't true, Peter, the—the flirting? Mother said no one would take the trouble to 'phone unless there was some truth in it."

Blessing on my zealous mother-in-law! Somehow I feel pretty positive that without her maternal purr over the telephone Mary would have had more faith in me. It isn't the first time Mrs. Penfield has permitted a bristling maternal instinct to run away with her common sense, nor likely will it be the last. But I wish Mary would learn to stand firmly on her own two feet and not fly readily to the parental nest in times of doubt. It merely complicates an otherwise placid situation.

THE SUMMER HERO

By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

BROWNED by the sun, shining like a bronze god, he takes it all very complacently. Admiration does not bother him at all. He doesn't have to be introduced. He is the guardian and friend of all femininity.

Conqueror of the undertow, master of the slippery sea, he is a kind of austere Neptune to all mermaids—mermaids of the sand as well as mermaids of the sea.

Do you wonder that a perfectly dry fashion plate girl sometimes wonders whether a slight gurgle in the deeper place beyond the breakers might not be rewarded by a real thrill, one of those experiences you remember all your life?

To be SAVED! It must be superb!

Yet after the sun goes down a chap with a heroic car and a heroic bank roll is known to seem quite like a hero. You see, there are so many kinds.

Secrets of Health

Why All Milk For Your Baby Must Be Boiled

By Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

"AND what is so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, come perfect days; Then heaven tries the earth if it be in tune, And over it softly her warm ear lays."

This glorious healthful, happy, bridal month is full of beauties that lull the unwary, buoyant one into a sense of security, which may conceal a danger. 'Tis the month when joys, like beauty, may prove to be only skin deep; when the temptation of dazzling pastures and azure skies may lure you to some physical undoing.

To Avoid Sunstroke.

"Insulation," or sunstroke and heat stroke, may be a sword of Damocles suspended for hotter days of the summer, but the spit-curl which dangles on the bald head of Father Time must be grasped now, because the old fellow has a well greased skull. You cannot seize him from behind, because a billiard ball compared with him is like a regiment of bayonets or a picket fence. Take him, then, by the forelock, and see that you perspire freely at all times. Sunstroke cannot live with perspiration.

It is, however, to infantile pabulum that you must look most carefully in these early days of cholera infantum, "summer complaint," acute dysentery and the other bad milk and water accessories of baby life.

There is no such imaginary danger as the "second summer" superstition for little ones. There is an eternal summer danger for all babies for at least five summers. Every summer has the same danger of its own. The "second summer," like certain marital troubles, seems worse.

Boil Baby's Milk.

It seems to be a lesson slowly learned by fond parents that because a bottle looks "clean," a milk is rich and tastes "sweet," that it still can cause a Caesar's legion of infantile deaths. Yet it is true; proved beyond denial.

The deadly germs of summer diarrhoea are more insidious than a stiletto in an alley. Their first signs are loose bowels, their second follows quickly—it is death!

Mother's milk, which passes from the breast directly and without delay into the baby's mouth, is dependable at all times. No certified, "Pasteurized-at-the-dairy" or "fresh cow's milk" contains any immunity to the terrible bacterial demons of infant ailments in summer.

Boiling milk for babies has its defects, but death to the child has never been among them. This cannot be said of any other plan to protect the child's milk.

For the nonce, then, let me command all young mothers, uncontrolled by ancient errors and neighbor's tales, to nurse their babies with their own heart's milk throughout the summer.

If this is not feasible, by all means boil for 10 minutes the milk that is left on your doorstep. The trivial disorders, such as a sluggish alimentary canal, which comes from boiled milk, can be corrected by orange juice, grape juice, yolks of eggs and oatmeal gruel.

Once the diarrhoea appears, even in what some grandmothers will tell you is "a natural form," stop all food for a few days. Give nothing but boiled water.

Is it required in this day to emphasize the need of absolute sterilization of bottles, nipples and anything that approaches a child's mouth? Hardly. Even in the remote backwoods they now know this must be done.

Word Origins

Presently formerly meant instantly, immediately, and is used in this sense in scores of places by Shakespeare and other writers of his time. It is a curious illustration of the dilatoriness of human nature that a word which once meant instantly should come to be universally considered as meaning after a time.

The shrew was originally the shrew mouse, which, when her young were helpless, would fight desperately in their defence, and so well known was the courage of this little animal, which would even go out of its way to seek an enemy at times when the nest needed protection, that the word became applied to a woman who was ever ready to seek a quarrel.

The expression blackguard originally indicated the scullions, kitchen boys and pot washers who brought up the rear when a great man's household was moving from place to place. As these persons were by no means choice in their language or elegant in their deportment, the word was soon applied to those who in speech or action resembled them.

The word treacle has undergone an odd modification. At first it was applied to such decoctions of roots or other substances as were deemed beneficial in medical practice; then, as these were frequently sweetened, it came to mean any sweet concoction or confection; and lastly, as molasses was the sweetest of all, this name was exclusively applied to syrup.

The word prevaricator is from the Latin, and originally meant a straddler with distorted or misshapen legs. In the Roman courts of law the expression was applied to one who in a suit was discovered to be in collusion with his opponent to compass some dishonesty. As falsehood was the necessary part of such a performance, the word by and by came to have the significance at present attached to it.

Suspendered Gowns Now the Craze

By MADGE MARVEL

WITH the generous adaptation of the waistcoat by womankind it is comparatively easy to take a step further in purloining masculine garments, and add suspenders to feminine costuming.

There is considerable logic in the occasional use of suspenders, for, made of the same material as the skirt, they join the contrasting blouse into a harmonious whole, and become a relative and efficient part of the gown. Worn with a tailored frock of serge or linen they give a desirable note of smartness. I have seen them developed in tulle and worn with evening gowns, but in such instances they were designated as bretelles, and their use was entirely ornamental instead of practical.

Suggests Jumper Dress.

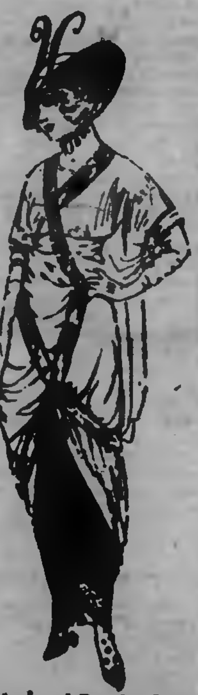
The gown shown is a recent Paris importation, and is applicable to all the linen and cotton weaves so much used this season, as well as to the serges, taffetas and poplins.

There is the suggestion of the once favored jumper dress in the suspendered frock, but in this costume the straps are carried down to the skirt, where they do the work of the sash, so they become more important than mere suspenders.

They very cleverly confine the paniers which are as bouffant as is consistent with grace of outline.

The material is a fine silk and linen weave in one of the new bronze shades. From this model, one of the noted modistes tells me, she has made several very smart costumes for the Newport season.

One in particular was developed in canary yellow French linen with the blouse of fine organdie. Another was in deep rose, so deep that it suggested the old-time cardinal, the material, one of the new cottons and the blouse of voile, white with a stripe of the color of the gown.



Suspenders and Pannier Straps.

Another way in which the thin, white blouse is made one with the linen frocks is by having the underarm pieces of the material of the skirt, cut in square effect, which makes the sheer blouse seem like a deep guimpe. In many of these gowns there is also a little square across the back which comes about to the shoulder blades. This is a style which only the flat-backed woman should attempt, for it will accentuate any rounding tendency. In the same way judgment should be used in adopting the crossed suspenders and sash. It will break long lines, and unless one has the height and the litheness to brave it, the effect will not please.

Long Tunics and Lace.

Two or three black taffeta gowns which I have particularly noticed made for the summer vacation trips, to be worn for the informal dance or the semi-dress occasion where full evening dress is not permissible, have the long tunic of the taffeta, and the upper portion of the blouse and the lower edge of the skirt of sheer white lace. The portion of the taffeta which extends above the waistline is applied with a slight puffing. The tunic reaches within six inches of the edge of the lace petticoat. The sleeves and guimpe are also of the lace.

There are some stunning turbans, made in the close fitting, high crown style which was so much worn earlier in the season, offered by exclusive milliners for midsummer wear. One of them accords beautifully with the black taffeta and lace frock or the suspendered gown. It is completely formed of white violets sewn thick upon a tulle or net foundation, and at the side are two lacquered white wings.

Three Minute Journeys

WHERE TWO PRIESTS BRING LUCK

By TEMPLE MANNING

OF all the people of the earth I would give to the Maori the palm for hospitality. Never shall I forget the delightful marriage feast it was my good luck to attend one warm New Zealand day.

A runner came to my camp from up country with the invitation smiling on his lips. He bade me hasten to the "hui," or feast, for there were many invited guests, and the festivities would soon begin. Nothing loath, I mounted my unshod native pony, and followed him up through the hills to where the smoke of many cook fires hospitably beckoned.

Loud cries greeted us. "Tena-koe" (How d'you do?) and "Kia-ora" (Welcome) sounded on all sides. Everybody stopped to smile and make me feel at home, although they were all busy at one thing, or another, around the hi "kupas" (ovens), from which rose the most appetizing odors. At the chief's house I drew rein, and was surprised to find a Catholic priest of my acquaintance.

With mock annoyance he told me how he happened to be there. The couple about to be married were not Catholic. Some time before they had embraced the Baptist faith, but their own pastor was away. Differences of creed mean nothing to a Maori; all they wished was to be married by a white "tohunga" (priest). My friend happened to be travelling near, and some of the bridegroom's friends went over to his camp and kidnapped him. He protested, laughingly, but the good smells from the ovens made him glad he was there.

At 12 o'clock a bell rang out from the little "whare-karakia" (church), and we took our places near the altar. Great masses of greenery, white clematis and the crimson "pohutukawa" flowers, made the interior a lovely bower.

The good Catholic father was amazed when a native Maori priest stepped to his side to help him perform the ceremony. But his share in the marriage soon was finished. He handed the bride a woven flax leaf cup filled with water. She took a sip and then handed it to the bridegroom, who emptied the cup at one draught. Whereupon the native "tohunga" in a loud voice pronounced the pair man and wife. Then they turned to the good father and he made them one in the sonorous language of the ancient church.

As we emerged from the chapel a softened horn rang out through the grove, and a sweet-voiced "kotiro" (girl) chanted a song of happy invitation to the feast that was ready spread. We sat down to dinner, 60 strong, and over the clatter of the tables soared the songs of the birds in the branches overhead, the musical tinkle of a nearby waterfall, and the happy laughter of the bridal party.

To them it was the height of good fortune that an old "tohunga" of their fathers' faith had wed them, and that a white man's priest had made them one.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

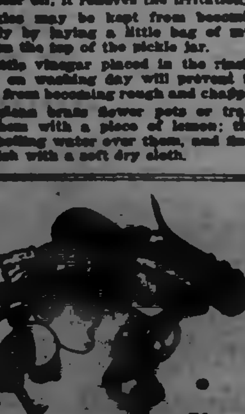
By Ann Marie Lloyd

For grit in the eye apply a drop or two of castor oil; it relieves the irritation.

Pickles may be kept from becoming mouldy by laying a little bag of mustard on the top of the pickle jar.

A little vinegar placed in the rinsing water on washing day will prevent the hands from becoming rough and chapped.

To clean brass flower pots or trays, rub them with a piece of lemon; then pour boiling water over them, and finally polish with a soft dry cloth.



Like Their Surroundings.

"Yes. They did their courting on the beach."

When ironing it is a very good plan to get a clean brick, a white one if possible, as a stand. The iron will retain heat much longer than if an open ironstand be used.

When boiled and unboiled eggs get mixed, spin them, and the boiled ones will spin around quite fast; while those which have not been cooked will hardly spin round once.

Permanganate of potash will cleanse dirty filters of all impurities. A solution should be passed through the filter until it comes out as pink as when it was poured in.

Sal-ammoniac will clean a furred kettle. Fill the kettle with cold water, add a little sal-ammoniac to it and boil. All the fur will dissolve. Well rinse the kettle afterwards.

Tar may be removed from the hands by rubbing with the outside of fresh orange or lemon peel and drying immediately. The volatile oils dissolve tar so that it can be rubbed off.

Cayenne pepper is a repellent to rid cupboards of mice. The floor should be gone over carefully and each hole stopped up with a piece of rag dipped in water and then in cayenne pepper.

When making a pie, the juice from the fruit very often soaks through the undercrust, and spoils the appearance of it. This can be prevented by brushing the undercrust over with the white of an egg.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

Perhaps you could advise me what to do. I have been going with a young man for nearly six years. We are not engaged yet; but he says there is a good time coming for me. Last month he came back from the West and stayed for a night and a day at my house, then he went off some place else. He seldom writes me, yet he does not want to break off altogether. He wants to keep on, but he will not say when he intends to marry me. He thinks I'm going to marry some one else. Now he has gone back West.

I am very lonely. I know hardly any one in the city. Please tell me how to meet some nice young men and women. I would like to have some nice young man to go out with, or some nice girl friend with whom to go to church. I go to church morning and evening, but I seldom meet any young people and I am a little lonesome. Please help me.

DARK HAIRED LASSIE.

SO he's going back West. And he says he hopes you'll write—once in a while—and he didn't ask you to marry him, after all. And he didn't say he loved you, and now you are heart-broken and don't know what to do.

Why, you say yourself that the man thinks you're going to marry some one else. Who told him so—did you? Why? Did you think it would make him come to time?

Well, it didn't, you see, and now you wish you had never seen him at all—poor you. Well, so do I, little girl, but you can't help that now.

What you can help is writing to him any longer or paying any more serious attention to him whatsoever. He isn't the only man in the world. Just forget him and, before you know it, you will find some one who really loves you—some one who will appreciate your faithful heart.

You say you are lonely and know no one in your church. Why don't you go and see the minister about it? Tell him you are a stranger in town and want to meet some nice young people. He'll arrange it somehow—that's one of the things he's there for.

Life is a long road, you know, and you just happen to be in a shady place right now. The sun is shining farther on—never fear.

Just go singing along through the dark places—and first you know you will have someone singing with you.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Second Canadian Contingent May Consist of 22,000 Men

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Instructions from the British War Office as to the composition of the second contingent were received by the Government today. An emergency meeting of the Militia Council presided over by Hon. J. D. Hazen, and attended by Major General Gwatkin, chief of staff; Col. Fiset, deputy Minister; Col. Septimus Denison, acting Adjutant-General, and other staff officers, was at once called.

Later Mr. Hazen drove to Government House, where he had a long consultation with the Duke of Connaught. A special meeting of the Cabinet was held at one o'clock, but no official announcement as to the character of the instructions was given out by the Government.

It is understood that there are some points which will have to be cleared up, and there will be cabled negotiations between the British and Canadian Governments which may take several days.

It is believed that the instructions are given largely on the supposition [illegible] sists of, 22,000 men. The 16,000 comprise a full army division, which con- [illegible] that the second contingent will com- [illegible] now being enlisted, will form part of this contingent.

An army division has only 200 cavalry and if this is all that is asked for by the War Office, it will be a distinct disappointment to the rough riders of the West, who are yearning to get into the contest, but insist on fighting mounted. Whether the full amount of the artillery for an army division has been asked for is not known.

Are American Germans Going to Invade Canada?

Montreal, Nov. 2.—The stories that the Germans of the United States are contemplating a raid on Canada have been given emphasis by a letter received by Mr. William Galbraith, former Mayor of Westmount, on Saturday. The letter which came from the vice-president of one of the biggest railways in the Western States said:

"I overheard a conversation last night on a steamboat going from Germans, and to the effect that all Norfolk to Richmond. It was between the German singing societies, which are 800,000 strong, are carrying on a propaganda of secret arming and other arrangements for the purpose of attacking Canada from this side. Steps have been taken to bring this information to the attention of the Dominion Government.

Staggers Humanity

The Kaiser said he was going to stagger humanity. HE HAS STAGGERED IT! The slaughtered hecatombs of soldiers and of an indefinite number of murdered women and children; the dynamiting of helpless cities at night and the burning of thouands of homes show the Kaiser has made good. Seven thousand dead Germans in one battle, lying ONE BODY TO EACH SQUARE YARD! Magnificent! And it is war—up-to-date barbarity.

The Kaiser said that he would sacrifice 100,000 men if necessary, to win the French border. How easy is the sacrifice of other men's lives! He has more than fulfilled his promise; he has sacrificed over 500,000 German lives in an attempt to reach Paris, from which he is being driven back, day by day, week by week, to his own borders. And were it not blasphemy we might say the Kaiser is staggering God as well as humanity. The staggering process will go on until cultured Germany awakens to a true knowledge of conditions when the Kaiser's whole staggering ambitions will be shattered, and he with them.

Great Britain Protects Her Ally

The stricken Belgians are in dire straits, and famine conditions prevail in Belgium. To relieve this situation is difficult indeed. Germany controls a great part of Belgium, and Germany would most surely appropriate food supplies sent into the country for the use of her troops. That would be the only course to harmonize with Germany's policy of oppression of the smaller nations.

It is noted that the British Government has given orders in America for a large number of portable houses for shipment to England, and the plan is, no doubt, to transport as many of the Belgian refugees as possible to the Old Country and to care for them there.

Whatever suffering from hunger exists amongst the Belgian people must be blamed upon Germany; but that, of course, does not lessen the responsibility of Great Britain to her ally.

The question of supplying the Belgians with food however is a complicated one in view of Germany's present economic difficulties, and must be handled with patience. Great Britain is paying due attention to it.

To Keep Nickel From Enemy

The Government is to be congratulated, says The Montreal Mail, upon passing a drastic contraband of war Order-in-Council to prevent the exportation from Canada of materials which might reach a beligerent country and be used against the Empire's military and naval forces. The material in which The Mail is most interested is nickel, and we are pleased to note that nickel is one of the articles specially mentioned.

Action of this kind by the Government is entirely in harmony with the public sentiment at this time. More than ever this country has gone on record in approval and enthusiastic support of the British cause.

The present action in regard to the nickel question is a step in the right direction, and, in due time ought to be followed up with some permanent adjustment of the anomaly.

Homicide in America

It is not apparent that any moral can be drawn from the report that 6250 persons met death at the hands of their fellow men in the United States during the year 1913. Memphis had the highest homicide rate, while Reading, Pa., can claim the lowest, but one killing having occurred there.

This record of violence seems more reprehensible when it is seen that six homicides are recorded in New York to every one in London. The rate in Berlin and Paris exceeds that of London, but does not approach New York.

Some persons profess to believe that there is a psychological solution for the mystery of America's high homicide percentage, but it has not been as yet discovered. Americans are not more wicked than other peoples, and statistics fail to support the easy charge that foreign born residents of the states are the chief offenders. As a matter of fact there seems to be something in social environment that makes man-killing a conspicuous national vice.

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years

CURED BY NERVILINE.

Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man well known about Chatham. I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family, and in my early days suffered frightfully. About three years ago the pain and stiffness settled in my left knee joint. I was lame and walked with a very distinct limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it into the stiff joint four or five times a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, reduced the swelling, took out the stiffness and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-relieving remedy, not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains, with sore back, with lameness, with lumbago, with neuralgia—I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them."

If Nerviline wasn't a wonderful painless remedy, if Nerviline didn't quickly relieve, if Nerviline wasn't known to be a grand cure for all rheumatic conditions, it wouldn't have been so largely used as a family remedy for the past forty years. No better, stronger, or more soothing liniment made. Get the large 50c. family size bottle · small trial size 25c.; sold by any dealer, anywhere.

TRAFFIC IN DRUGS

Far Too Much Cocaine Sold in Ontario—Government Inspection

The Canadian Pharmaceutical Association is on record as against the traffic in cocaine. The Registrar-General, said that over two thousand ounces of cocaine were sold in Ontario alone during one year, and that was far more than is necessary for surgical use and prescriptions. He declared that too much of the habit begetting drug is being imported into this country by degraded agents, who distribute it like any other commercial commodity. "They barter them on the highway and in secret places for the sake of gain, which is a disgrace to humanity," said the speaker, who told his fellow-pharmacists that the only source of detection and imprisonment of such unscrupulous persons was by the appointment of a Dominion inspector. The cocaine laws of the Province and the Dominion were not put on the statute books any too soon. Speaking from actual experience, as inspector for the Ontario College of Pharmacy, of sales of cocaine by wholesale houses, he was of the opinion that there was far more cocaine being sold than was necessary for legitimate prescription purposes, and had the same opinion in regard to the sale of morphine and opium. Something should be done to further curtail the illegitimate sale of these three bad habit-forming drugs, and money should be expended by the Government toward furthering this end. He had not found it necessary to bring all cases and druggists into the public courts, but privately faced them with the charge that they were personally violating the law. In some cases, he was sorry to say, such accusations had been denied, but when they discovered that he had had access to wholesalers' records of sales, they acknowledged their faults, professed sorrow and begged of him to overlook their action, and humbly promised never to do it again. Judging from what he knew he would advise all pharmaceutical associations to recommend the Government to appoint a Dominion inspector.

We are most of us willing to acknowledge that we have been fools—seldom that we are fools.

a bit, work was continued, and the new man found that to escape from wasps or hornets the thing to do was to drop instanter. The insects seem to be so mad that they fly in straight lines along a level, and do not have time to hunt around for you.

It is said that hornets are not so prone to follow this rule as wasps; but the wasps never vary. Men have been stung to death by hornets, and horses and mules likewise.

THE CHINESE VIEW OF CHRISTIANITY

People Eager to Avail Themselves of Educational Advantages—Change of Faith Said to be Doubtful

To counteract to some extent the attitude of bigotry and prejudice exhibited in the West against everything Chinese, a new Review has been founded in London. It is the "Chinese Review," which is edited by two Chinamen.

Writing of the Chinaman and Christianity, J. Wong Quincey, one of the publishers, says:

There probably has never been any antagonism in China against Christianity itself. Missionaries have occasionally suffered, not for their religion, but rather from a misunderstanding of their real purpose and mission, and from acts of indiscretion committed by the missionaries themselves. Although there is no indigenous faith in China that could offer any opposition to the Christian appeal, the Chinese temperament and outlook upon life constitute a serious obstacle to the vital and rapid spread of Christianity.

It can serve no honest purpose to minimize the excellent work achieved by missionary endeavor. The result so far obtained can call forth nothing but admiration. Statistics of church membership, however, are obviously misleading in that they do not offer any guide as to the inward intensity of belief in the case of professed converts. There is no question of sincerity; but it is open to doubt whether the Chinese nature lends itself easily to that mystical abandon and absolute resignation to the supernatural which is the "sine qua non" of a living faith in Christ.

The average Chinese is too wide awake, too tantalisingly calm and self-controlled, too easily satisfied with small mercies, and with the pursuit of the concrete good to be emotionally led away from the steady paths of "terra firma" to soar with uncertain wings.

Of Chinese admiration for the moral tenets and practice of Christianity there is no lack; but it is only a tribute to "what is excellent and lovely, to what is good." To the Chinese mind the supernatural appeal is not so much unconvincing as unnecessary; and the restless attitude of spirit involved in the Christian injunction to "watch and pray" is somewhat irksome and foreign to the easy-going Chinese temperament. All this being granted, the Chinese are exceptionally alert to anything which is calculated to help in the building up of sound character.

Parents and guardians who cannot be suspected of personal leaning towards Christianity are most anxious to send their young charges to educational institutions which are avowedly and aggressively Christian. This openness of the Chinese mind has profoundly influenced the policy of Christian missions during the last few decades. Incalculable good has been, and is being done, by these institutions in the matter of spreading among the educated ranks of China Western ideals which have have been inspired directly or otherwise by the Christian religion. It is questionable, however, whether these efforts have been successful in making many real and permanent converts to Christianity.

HEARING IS RESTORED TO DEAF

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence," thinking nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness, and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread attention throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to produce a stimulous necessary to reduce all inflammation swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing, and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by all the leading druggists and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or headnoises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix it with ½ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

A Coin With a History

One of the largest coins ever struck, being 23½ inches by 12 inches, has come into the possession of the American Numismatic Society. The piece is copper. It was coined in Sweden in 1659 and had an intrinsic value of about five dollars. As a numismatic rarity it is said to be worth at present at least $500.

It is a rectangular ingot with five large round stamps punched in it. Each corner stamp carries the Swedish crown, with the date. Around the edge is the inscription of Carolus Gustavus X., the reigning king.

This coin was struck at Avesta, Sweden. When fresh from the mint it fell overboard in the harbor of Riga, Russia, from which a dredge brought it up ten years ago. Coins of the kind were called "plate money." Sweden turned them out almost continuously for 110 years. Once 116 bronze cannon were melted down and turned into 86,760 coins; but the main purpose in minting the pieces was to find an outlet for the Swedish copper mines without depreciating the value of the metal.

Potatoes Are Good

Eat potatoes all the year round. In the winter they prevent scurvy. They supply energy in the summer when so much meat is not eaten. Be sure to cook them right. When boiling them, leave them in their jacket. Punch holes in them and put them directly into boiling water. Never eat half-cooked potatoes.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IS YOUR LAXATIVE

Get a 10 cent box.

Put aside—just once—the salts, pills castor oil or purgative waters which merely force a passageway through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever on the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. 6

A Cascaret to-night will make you feel great by morning. They work as you sleep—never gripe, sicken, and cost only 10-cents a box from your druggists. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have headache, biliousness, severe colds, indigestion, sour stomach, or constipated bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

GREAT SWIMMERS

Long-distance swimming is a sport that has been almost monopolized by the English. Practically all the great distance swimmers have been born on the British isles, with the exception of the three noted women experts, Miss Kellerman, of Australia; Rose Pitinot, of Massachusetts, and Madame Isacescu, of Vienna. And the goal of every long distance swimmer's ambition is, of course, to swim the English Channel.

The water in the English Channel is ten degrees warmer than that of the North Atlantic, and while a swimmer is apt to become numbed from his long immersion, as a rule he has not to desist from this cause. To swim the English Channel demands the utmost powers of endurance, a thorough knowledge of the course to be followed, and a slice of luck. When Webb crossed, the channel happened to be as calm as a lake, and when he was beginning to feel the effects of the heat a cool breeze sprang up and refreshed him. Burgess, too, was favored by a calm sea, and water at a temperature of 66 degrees. Both Webb and Burgess were accompanied by friends and advisers in boats, and without a pilot it would be madness for anyone to attempt the swim. Photographs taken of Burgess at the time show him floating on the water while he studied a chart held by one of his friends over the side of the boat.

Webb's feat was accomplished on August 25, 1875, and followed an unsuccessful attempt by 12 days. Webb was in the water nearly 22 hours, and was at the point of exhaustion when his feet touched bottom on the French shore. A party of friends rushed out and carried him to land. He was the hero of the hour in both England and France, and gifts were showered on him. Captain Webb lost his life later on in an attempt to swim the Whirlpool Rapids at Niagara. Burgess who crossed the channel a couple of years ago, is a Yorkshire man, now a resident of France. He covered the course in 22½ hours. It was Burgess' thirteenth attempt in eight years. On two or three occasions he was close to the French shore, but was swept away by the tide. In 1908 he was only half a mile away from the coast. All told, there have been 32 attempts by 24 different swimmers to cross the English Channel.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN IT THUNDERS

Simple Explanation of Cannonading in in the Sky—Little Electric Particles Make Lightning

What is thunder?

Blow air into a perfectly tight paper bag until it is full. Hold the bag so that none of the air can escape and strike it sharply and suddenly. There will be an explosion like the crack of a pistol. That is what thunder is!

The scientific explanation for it is the expansion, compression and sudden escape of air. It is the same thing that happens in a cartridge shell when you press the trigger of a gun or pistol. In fact that is really a better explanation of thunder than the paper bag experiment because it has all the elements that cause thunder. The spark caused by the cap causes the ignition of the powder, forming a gas which pushes the bullet out of the barrel of the gun and when the gas comes in contact with the air, it makes a roaring, crackling sound trying to get through, because the pressure of the gas is greater than the air. The thunder therefore, is the result of the lightning.

Now, what is lightning?

We don't know. We know that it is electricity—which is another way of saying we don't know because we don't know what electricity is. But we do have a general idea of what lightning does to make the thunder. There is electricity in the air all the time. Sometimes we feel it more than we do at others—or at least we are more conscious of it being there at one time than at another. This is due to the condition of the atmosphere. If a good breeze is blowing and the mixture of water and gas and dust that we call air is kept stirring we don't feel the electricity much.

But if there is not much of a breeze the air feels heavy and oppressive and seems to be filled with moisture. It is filled with tiny particles of water we call droplets which, when in large groups are rain clouds and when these clouds run into a cool strata of air they condense and form rain drops.

These droplets are curious things—curious because they are so small. It takes 300 trillion of them to make one drop of rain. And it is in the making of the drops of rain that the lightning comes. The surface of every droplet is covered with electricity. This brings out another curious fact. When you take two balls of the same size and make one ball of them you find that the surface of the one big ball is really smaller than the sum of the surface of the two original balls. So that when the 300 trillion droplets form the single drop of rain there is an enormous amount of electricity left over after the surface of the rain drop is covered as full as it will hold.

This great excess has got to go somewhere else. Whenever there seems to be a good place for it to go—to another rain cloud or to the earth a lot of these electrical particles get together and make a sudden break for it, making a lightning flash. They go through the air so fast they heat it considerably.

The heat causes the air to expand, to become greater in volume than it was originally and this volume of air—just like the gas in the gun barrel or the air in the bag when you hit it—has got to distribute itself over the atmosphere and it starts doing so with a roar and a bang just as there is a roar and a bang when the gas is shot out of the gun barrel and when the compressed air is released from the paper bag.

The Onion

What is the reason that so few people eat onions nowadays. The onion used to be a stand-by in this country, but it is getting to be about as popular as a divorced husband at the wedding feast. There is nothing that will bring tears of repentance to a hardened sinner's eyes quicker than a stout, wide-hipped Bermuda onion with teeth like a rip-saw and a grip like an entered apprentice. One of these onions, sprinkled with tasco sauce and inhaled slowly before each meal, will cause a man to perspire at high speed when the thermometer is 40 degrees below zero. Physicians tell us that if people would eat more onions they would have fewer microbes roosting about in their systems, as onions are death to germs of all kinds. The onion is also death to the course of true love—after marriage, but not before.

WHEAT CONSUMPTION

The Average Canadian Leads the World in This Regard

The consumption of wheat has been estimated for various countries, with results as given in the accompanying tabulation. The estimates are based upon the average production for ten years, exports or imports of wheat, including wheat flour reduced to wheat equivalent and exclusive of that used for seed. Canada is easily in the lead, an average Canadian using nine times as much wheat as a Jap in his native country. The figures in bushels are:

GOOD ROADS

Always an Inducement to Clean up the Neighborhood

Given a good highway, the farmer sets to work to rebuild tumble-down fences, to clean out ditches, to get a new coat and hat, to shave a little oftener, to carry himself straighter, and to take more pride in his house and wife and horse. Presently he is worrying about the appearance of his farm. For the first time he notices that the old home looks run down and painfully like a shack. Nothing will suit him but to change to better quarters before the year is out. Meantime a grand-new coat of paint won't be amiss, for he is now somewhat ashamed of the home which he had built with his own hands. Everybody in the neighborhood catches the improvement fever. Neighbors set to work making their collective surroundings better. The schoolhouse is the first thing that comes in for general attention. The church no longer looks so aloof in its spotlessness. In short, the good road has reformed the man, reformed the housewife, transformed the children. It has made better husbands and wives and citizens; it has cleaned out the stables and the ballot, and changed the ways of living and thinking and dealing; it has put more money into the farmer's pocket, and more pride of the genuine sort into his heart. It has been a preacher and a lecturer. It has fitted the neighborhood for citizenship, and paved the way for the world to follow. In a word, it has regenerated the community.—Thomas W. Wilby, in "A Motor Tour Through Canada."

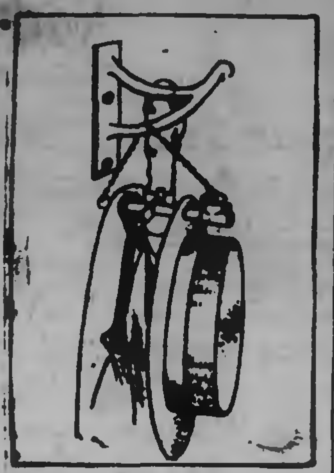
CANNOT LOSE CLOTHES

Locking Device Designed to Frustrate Hotel Thieves

Necessity is the mother of invention and the inventor of the lock for wearing apparel shown in the accompanying illustration, was probably prompted by an unfortunate experience in a restaurant of some busy city. He probably discovered that some persons keep themselves supplied with hats, umbrellas and coats by picking out the best at hand when they are ready to leave such a public place as a restaurant. If they make their getaway, all right, but if detected, it is a very simple matter to ask pardon and say mistake.



LOCKS HIS CLOTHING ON THE HOOK.

This device, which has been recently patented in this country by a Canadian, consists of a bar with a removable head and a small chain and a key for locking the two parts together. If it is desired to relieve oneself of hat and coat, the garments are secured on the bar and the chain passed through an opening in the wall hook and they can then be left with perfect safety so far as stealing the garments is concerned. This bar is adapted to hold hat, coat and umbrella or cane.

BATH FOR EYEGLASSES

Good Results Follow a Good Soap and Water Wash

Do you ever give your eyeglasses a bath? If not, give them a surprise and see how you like the result.

Dampness and dust form a gummy combination on the eyelashes, and the wearer of glasses or spectacles will find his vision, apparently, much improved by giving them a thorough washing daily with soap and warm water, followed by drying and polishing with tissue paper. The gummy substance which collects on the lenses cannot be removed by a mere rubbing with chamois or tissue paper.

An oculist, who knows the importance of well-washed lenses, carries in his pocket a vial of alcohol. It takes but a moment to moisten the corner of a handkerchief and remove the combination of dust and moisture from his glasses. Another has the case of his glasses interlined with a folded bit of soft tissue, such as is used for copying letters in offices. This is so soft that it is easily folded into the small space of the receptacle case. No dust collects on this as it does on the velvet lining, and the tissue interlining is renewed every day or two.

Coffee From Figs

Ever since coffee has been a popular beverage, apparently, efforts have been made to find substitutes for it, either as mere adulterants, like chicory, or for the sake of greater wholesomeness or cheapness. Rye and other grains, lupins, acorns, beets and carrots have all been thus used, but the fig coffee of Austria is a decided novelty. An excellent coffee it is claimed to be made from dried and roasted figs, which need not be of the first quality.

They are dried in the sun or in evaporating pans, according to climate, and then roasted in ovens till brown or almost black and quite brittle. They are then ground up and the resultant powder is pressed into tablets. When made use of they are merely dissolved in hot water. The beverage is said to be agreeable in color and flavor with a somewhat sweeter taste than that made from chicory.

Thought It Was a Wild Cat

A real live porcupine visited the town of Truro, N.S., and promenaded along Victoria Square. He met one of the natives of the town who not being on familiar terms with the porcupine species mistook the animal for a wild cat and when the "fretful" Porcy began to cause his bristles to stand up, took it as a challenge to battle and began to rain stones on his antagonist with the result that he knocked it out for a time and during that time slipped a cord about its hind leg and waited developments. When the porcupine revived its captor led it out onto the square and proudly exhibited it declaring that he had captured a wild cat.

Canada's Insurance Departments

There are five provincial insurance departments in Canada, one each in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. These departments are administered by a superintendent, inspector or commissioner, who has under his care all insurance matters arising in the province, while every insurance company doing business there must report to him regarding their movements and business in the province. Alberta, which passed an insurance act very similar to that of Manitoba, was the latest to inaugurate such a department.

Speedy Start for Canada

Thirty seconds was the time occupied by the Birmingham magistrates in hearing a case. A man was charged with being drunk, but it was explained that he had taken his passage to Canada, and had only ten minutes in which to catch his train for Liverpool. In a shade less than half a minute the prisoner had been fined, had paid the money, and had left the court room at a run.

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One case nearly always affects a cure. SWIMMING RECORDS AND NEW STROKES

Trudgeon Displaced by the Crawl For Speed Swimming—Old Records Seem Slow

There is no doubt that the several new swimming strokes, which have been devised in the last few years, are accountable for the number of swimming records that have been broken. The crawl and its variations have made big inroads into the time for various swims. Record holders have learned to use these strokes while still little more than youngsters in most instances, and they have improved upon them until the time made by the use of the old breast stroke and the overhand stroke had to give way, just as the improvement in automobile engines and motorcycle engines has accounted for the record-making in these branches of sport.

A glance over the record holders and the title holders of the past two decades disclosed to view two swimmers who stand out head and shoulders above the rest, one in England, and the other in the United States. From 1894 to 1897 J. B. Tyers, the great English swimmer, held every British record and championship from 100 yards to the mile, while in the States C. M. Daniels maintained the same high standard as peer of all swimmers on this side of the Atlantic, being unbeatable from 1904 until his retirement. Although there were swimmers who might have been slightly faster at some one distance than these two men, it can safely be said that for all round speed swimming they were in a class by themselves, all distances looking alike to them, each holding the sprint records and the distance marks.

Tyers' records compared with the times made by the best swimmers of to-day seem slow, but when it is considered that they were made with the trudgeon stroke, which has been generally abandoned for speed swimming the world over by latter-day swimmers, they appear all the more remarkable.

Old Strokes Abandoned

C. M. Daniels in the early part of his racing career used the trudgeon stroke exclusively, and even after he had acquired the then new crawl used the trudgeon for all swimming over the two hundred and twenty yards. It was not, however, until he took to the crawl seriously that he broke down the existing American records and a number of world's records.

The minute mark for the one hundred yards was for many years the zenith of every speed swimmer's ambition. It was not until 1902 that the one hundred yards was swam in less than a minute by V. C. Lane, an Australian. Swimming the Australian crawl he reduced the time to 59 3-5 seconds.

From 1902 up to the present every championship meeting, with few exceptions, has brought forth a new record for this distance. In 1906 Zolton de Holmay, the great Austrian swimmer, further reduced the time to 59 seconds flat. The time for the century was again brought down by Daniels in 1907 to 58 3-5 seconds. In 1908 occurred the most remarkable reduction of this oft-broken record, when C. M. Daniels, swimming against the world's best speed swimmers at Manchester, England, established the unthought-of time of 55 2-5 seconds.

Hawaiian and Canadian

This record stood until the Olympic games at Stockholm brought to the public's attention one who is considered the peer of all speed swimmers, past or present, Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian. He set the wonderful time of 1.01 3-5 for the distance of 109.361 yards, and later established a new world's record of 54 3-5 seconds for the 100 yards.

Kieran established a record of 23 minutes 16 4-5 seconds for a mile in a bath, which has never been approached.

The record for the half-mile of 11 minutes 25 seconds, established by Taylor, a great English swimmer, still stands, and the only swimmer who is at all likely to break it is George Hodgson, the wonderful Canadian mile record holder.

It is in the mile event, the classic distance, that the greatest changes have taken place. Starting with Tyers' record of 27 minutes 27 2-5 seconds in 1895, it is found that it was broken eight times, concluding with the marvelous swimming of the youngster Hodgson who established the new accepted figures of 23 minutes 34 1-4 seconds, a total reduction of three minutes and forty-seven seconds in sixteen years.

FAMILIAR PHRASES AND THEIR ORIGIN

"Eating humble pie" is a phrase which really arose from the corruption of the word "umbles" or "numbles," the coarser parts of a deer killed in hunting, which when made into a pie were formerly reserved for the lower hunt servants, while "cooking his goose" is a phrase which originated when the King of Sweden, on approaching a hostile town, excited the contempt of the inhabitants by the smallness of his army. To express this they hung out a goose for him to shoot at, whereupon the King set fire to the town to "cook their goose."

Long ago unscrupulous people used to take a cat in a bag to market where they tried to sell it for a pig. If, however, a purchaser opened the bag before buying, the cat, of course jumped out, displaying the fraud. Hence the term "Letting the cat out of the bag."

"Going to the dogs" comes from the East, where dogs are scavengers of the streets, and become so unclean as to be unfit to touch; while the expression, "Tell it to the marines," used to show disbelief in the truth of a story, arose from the fact that when the marines first went afloat they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs, and someone who related a very tall yarn was told to "tell it to the marines," the idea being that they could be more easily gulled.

It is a curious fact that the phrase "Bald as a badger," owes its origin to authors of the past who had no exact knowledge of natural history, and who, because the forehead of a badger is covered with smooth, white hairs, came to the conclusion that it was bald.

Years ago a theatrical manager of the bogus type had in his company an actor whose strong point was the ghost in "Hamlet." If his salary was not forthcoming on Saturday, this actor would exclaim, "Then the ghost won't walk to-night," a phrase which is still used by actors on payday, and which provides a striking illustration of how a casual remark becomes a common saying.

RISING COST OF LIVING

Canada Leads the World According to British Figures

A report of the inquiry instituted by the British Government into the cost of living of the working classes, in addition to dealing with conditions at home, contained some comparisons of prices in foreign countries and the Overseas Dominions.

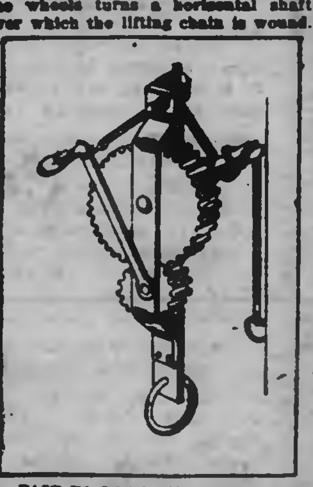
The compilers of the report admitted that they had difficulty in bringing together diverse figures and values from all parts of the Empire into a general comparison. Their conclusions, however, if not absolutely reliable, are none the less interesting.

The chief feature of the report was the evidence that the rise in prices is world wide. The rise has been greater in foreign countries, with the exception of France, than in Great Britain. The greatest rise has been in Canada, Austria-Hungary, the United States and Japan. Since 1900 the rise in Austria-Hungary has been 36 per cent.; Belgium, 32 per cent.; Germany, 30 per cent.; Italy, 26 per cent. In the same period the British and French rise has been only 15 per cent. Canada easily topped the list with a rise of 51 per cent. Australia and New Zealand showed comparatively modest rises of 16 per cent.

HOISTING APPARATUS

Multiple Gear Revolves the Shaft Which Wraps up Chain

For the hoisting of heavy weights by hand, so to speak, the mechanism pictured here seems to be effective. An iron frame has a multiple gearing set inside it, the gear operated by means of a lever. The revolution of the wheels turns a horizontal shaft over which the lifting chain is wound.



EASY TO LOCK THE WHEELS.

As the shaft revolves and more and more of the chain is wound up the weight on the free end is naturally lifted. A feature of this mechanism is the locking device, which consists of a short chain that can be hooked onto the lever at any time to prevent backward revolution. This is particularly convenient in case the man or men turning the lever should want to stop a moment to rest or for any other purpose.

Canada's Postal Bill

In the past ten years the monthly sales of postage stamps in Canada have increased from about $400,000 to over one million dollars.

The Mysterious Egg

The hen's egg, although weighing but 2 to 2½ ounces, is a very mysterious little thing. Whilst the sex of an egg before the latter has been incubated, cannot be ascertained, it is quite simple, on the other hand, to discover the quality of the contents before breaking the egg.

If the egg rattles when gently shaken it may be considered a stale one, more or less, in which the contents have become decomposed. The best method for a wife to adopt to ascertain the freshness of purchased eggs is the salt test. Dissolve six ounces of ordinary salt in a tumbler of water and place the egg therein. If a genuine new laid article, the egg will sink just below the surface. After seven days it will float, and the more it protrudes from the surface of the water the older the egg.

An egg that is even good only in parts will, singularly enough, lose much of its staleness during its swim.

"HAP" MYERS

When Hap Myers of the Boston Braves, is in full stride, stealing bases, he covers nine feet, something unusual in running.

The average stride of a sprinter is about six feet, and even the "lathy" sprinter takes a comparatively short stride. Myers is a six-footer and is said to have the longest legs in the league.

Someone with a taste for statistics figured that the average base runner takes 13 steps of seven feet in going from base to base, while Myers takes but 10. He also uses a bat of unusual length.

PROMOTER'S TRIALS

McIntosh Tells How Johnson Was Lured to Australia

Hugh D. McIntosh, the Australian, tells some funny stories about his dealings with world-famous colored heavyweights. When McIntosh, who was in London at the time, first conceived the idea of taking Jack Johnson to Australia to box Tommy Burns for the world's championship, it did not take the promoter long to discern that he had a hard task on his hands. Johnson, who was spending his time flitting between London and Paris, was eager enough in a way to have a try at the championship, but he hated to leave the fleshpots of England and the wine cups of gay Paree. He was brought to the point of signing contracts and articles several times but he always contrived to delay matters and finally McIntosh had serious thoughts of abandoning his project.

One particular day matters looked far from favorable. McIntosh had placed things in such a light that Johnson seemed ready to sign up and the pair jumped into a cab and started for the office of McIntosh's lawyer where the papers were waiting and everything was to be settled.

Here is how McIntosh tells the balance of the story:

"Johnson, you know, is very superstitious. On our way to the lawyer's we rode through a back street to make a cut and Jack spied a fortune teller's sign.

"Hold on, Mac," he yelled. "I'm going to have my fortune told."

"I was annoyed because I scented another delay, but I made up my mind quickly that the best thing to do was to humor him and not let him out of my sight. I therefore said that the fortune telling idea was a good one and to show him I believe in such things I insisted on having mine told first.

"I went into the curtained recess with the lady with the red turban, and said quickly to her, 'Here, I don't want you to peer into my future, but there's a colored fellow outside who needs a sea voyage. You understand. Here's five pounds for you. See that he takes the voyage.'

"When Jack came out, I asked him what she told him.

"'Oh,' Jack said, 'a lot of stuff about fame and fortune waiting for me across the sea. I don't suppose it was on the level, but I'm going to take the trip anyhow.'

"He signed articles that afternoon."

McIntosh had one to tell on Sam McVey. The negro fighter went to Australia from France a few years ago and fought Sam Langford so many times that the sporting public lost count of the score. When McVey landed in Australia he had trouble figuring out money values. He had become used to French money and could not learn the pounds, shillings and pence system.

For a fight at the Rushcutter's Bay Stadium, McVey's percentage was 1,500 pounds. When told the amount, he remarked, "Fifteen hundred francs isn't so much. I'd get more for a match in Paris."

When it was explained to him that each English pound was worth over a score of francs, he could not grasp the immensity of the amount. He bubbled over with delight and started out on a high old time. For a full week McVey and his trainers drank nothing but champagne. "They even had it at breakfast," said McIntosh.

Salmon in Thousands

Over in the Old Country they fish all day and go home tickled to toddle with one solitary, isolated, expatriated salmon as a prize. Here you can't give away a scowload of 'em; but you don't see any tumble in the high cost of living, moving, and having your being.—New Westminster News.

A Youthful Fairy Tale

At yesterday's police court a young man named Finn, aged 16, pleaded guilty to having been drunk and disorderly. In the witness box he said he lives at his home in the city and is not working. He got his liquor in the yard of a local hotel. He said he found it in a stall. The boy's evident fairy tale did not impress the Magistrate or Chief of Police, so he was remanded in jail for a week to take the memory cure.

Local Gamblers (?) Remanded

At yesterday's police court a number of local men were charged with "gambling" in a public place, to wit in a George street restaurant. Mr. Gordon was present and asked that the Magistrate's decision be given on the present by-law. The gambling was done with dice. Mr. Gordon wanted this decision, as above, noted, to see whether the local by-law covers hallways, etc., so that the Council can have the by-law amended if necessary. The several cases were adjourned for one week.

Prominent Horseman Dead

The many friends in this city of Mr. P. J. Stone, of Collingwood, will sincerely regret to learn that this well known horseman died on Nov. 1st in the Collingwood General Hospital as the result of an accident from a fall at Oshawa at the races in September. He was widely known throughout the province for his interest in horses. He was born in the township of Flos, near Barrie. The funeral was held yesterday. It will be remembered that last summer the deceased raced his horses, Tom Hal, Tory Brino and Fred L. in this city.

Our Soldier Boys.

Yesterday a prominent local citizen met a Times reporter and asked "Why does not the City of Peterboro show a little more patriotism?" Why does not it, like the Councils of Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, etc., protect the families of men who have gone to the front by insuring those who have gone. It instanced one family of a man who has gone to war, where the wife has to go out and work, at 50 cents a day, to sustain four growing children and a baby in arms!" He said that an average insurance rate on Peterboro's soldiers would be less than $25 a year. This would mean (as a sample) to the poor soldier's little family if the soldier sheds his blood for the support of the Empire's that there would be $1000 coming in integrity.

A Grateful Man!

A few days ago a man entered a local bar. He then showed evident signs of having visited other thirst parlors. The bartender refused to supply him and his, the inebriate one's friend with anything but "soft" drink. As the two stood in front of the bar the disciple of Baccus dropped two $5 bills. These were picked up by a local soda water manufacturer, and, by him handed to the wine clerk. On the bar lay $1.90 change out of a $2 bill used to pay for two bottles of mineral water. The inebriate seemed to have forgotten his change. The bartender wrote out an "I.O.U." for $11.90 and slipped it into the upper vest pocket of the drunken man. Next day, the man returned sober and asked the wine clerk whether he had lost or left any money in that hotel? The dispenser of liquids replied "Yes, if you look in your vest pocket you will find an 'I.O.U. signed by me for your money." The man in an abusive tone replied, "What right had you to put your fingers in my pocket? I've a good mind to have you pinched!"

Fourteen recruits left Port Hope yesterday for Kingston.

Toronto police have rounded up several "hop" joints or places where opium is smoked.

Victoria County Council has turned down a motion to grant $100 towards the officers of the 57th Regt.

Two local ladies who read that over 500 weddings were solemnized in Toronto last month, are thinking of moving to the Queen City.

At yesterday's police court three young men pleaded guilty to having been drunk. They were each assessed $2.00.

Seventy nine young men of Peterborough, have gone to risk their lives for support of the Empire. In the meantime a few of our local rich men say "Give me a 15 cent cigar and, say waiter, open anozzer bottle."

At 11.50 yesterday as Street car No. 33 was passing down George St. an auto containing two women and two men tried to cut across the street car's right of way near the corner of Dalhousie Street. No fatalities occurred but the car was given a set back that should teach its driver to be more careful.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make it Thick, Glossy, Wavy Luxuriant and Remove Dandruff—Real Surprise for You

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, and abundant and appears as soft lustrous and beautiful as a young girls' after a "Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few minutes you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair — fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lot of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter and just try it.

FIRST REAL STORY BY LOCAL SOLDIER HERE

Yesterday Dr. Blanchard, V.S., an old soldier, received a letter from gunner Robert (Bob.) Hay, of this city, written aboard the S.S. Ivernia, Oct. 18th. Capt. Hay says in part, We arrived in this harbor (Plymouth) at 6 p.m. on Wednesday after a very nice voyage. We were nineteen days at sea, being detained at Gaspe Bay. We sighted Eddystone lighthouse at 3.30 this morning. Two days previous to our arrival at Plymouth we had very rough weather. It was only today that we learned where we were going for training for the war 'manoeuvres. We were 23 days aboard ship. The horses are in bad shape, legs swollen badly and cooped up like pigs. The attendants can only squeeze into look after them. It was a beautiful sight to see our three lines of transports, escorted by British Cruisers. The cruisers left us two days before we arrived here. The four cruisers and two dreadnaughts left us, as noted, for some place unknown to us. The writer goes on to explain what he considers "some of the silliest orders imaginable," whilst aboard ship. "When we sailed into the harbor (Plymouth) the sight was new to us. First came torpedo boats, destroyers, submarines, pinnaces, despatch boats etc., excursion boats crowded with people who cheered us. There are a number of forts here and the harbor is surrounded by naval work shops. Quite a number of the boys were seasick coming over and their illness was aggravated by sore arms from the vaccination. The vaccination was given us at Gaspe Bay. We drill there three times a day and it is not so bad, but the early morning drill plays the devil with us. There is no grog for us but the officers get theirs. Give my brother my address.

From Doolan to Delan to Dooin

Since Jennings, McGraw and the Baltimore crew
Invented the great inside game,
And Covaleski, Schultz and the Cubans
Made the box scorer's fingers feel lame,
Never a thing that has happened
Gets the cheers where the fans are a-stewin'
Like the combine that doubles 'em up at the plate,
"From Doolan-to-Delan-to-Dooin."

What could the Cubs do, with the Phils one ahead,
To try and shove over the tally
That'd tie up the game in the last of the ninth
And prepare for a tenth-inning rally?
(Say, there's one out and two on the bases.)
From the plate, where his big average grew in,
Kim slams one toward short—and it's all over quick—
"From Doolan-to-Delan-to-Dooin."

Sure, 'tis the Harps that hallow the diamond
As they never did old Tara's halls;
They have tightened up things 'till you never get on
Except through a base on balls.
That "Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance" thing
Sounded good when trouble was brewin',
But it wasn't a shweet sounding mouthful,
"Doolan-to-Delan-to-Dooin."

ADMITS BANKER PRISONER ACTED AS CHAUFFEUR

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Only two witnesses were examined to-day by Commissioner Stephen C. Baldwin, appointed by Governor Glynn to investigate affairs at Sing Sing prison. They were Thomas S. McCormick, the suspended Warden, and William J. Watson, his secretary.

Both men admitted that David A. Sullivan, now serving a sentence in Sing Sing for the part he played in wrecking the Union Bank of Brooklyn had been employed as chauffeur of the warden's personal automobile. McCormick did not deny that on one occasion he had left Sullivan unguarded in a New York garage for four hours while the automobile was being repaired, nor that the prisoner was left alone in the car at Yonkers, McCormick's home.

Watson also admitted that he had advised John J. Malloy, one of the prison officials, not to testify before the King's county grand jury, which is investigating phases of Sullivan's connection with the Union Bank. Dis.-Atty. Cropsey of King's county and with Mr. Baldwin and frequently suggested questions to ask Watson whose examination will be finished when the investigation is resumed to-morrow morning.

McCormick admitted that Miss Burkhardt, Sullivan's confidential secretary, lived less than a mile from the warden's residence in Yonkers. He said, however, he did not know that Sullivan ever saw Miss Burkhardt at Yonkers or ever communicated with her there, although he had driven to the McCormick home in the automobile. He denied Sullivan ever had been permitted to use a private telephone at the prison.

Asked how many times Miss Burkhardt had visited Sullivan at the prison, McCormick said he could not recall, but that the visitors' book would show. Watson said he had seen Miss Burkhardt talking with Sullivan in the visitors' room at Sing Sing.

So far as he knew, McCormick declared, Sullivan never had been out in the automobile with any woman other than Mrs. McCormick and her two daughters. He said that on primary day he visited four or five polling places in Yonkers with Sullivan and Commissioner Walsh in the automobile.

In reply to a question as to whether Sullivan was attired in a regular chauffeur outfit, McCormick replied:

"He was attired just as I found him when I came to Sing Sing, except for an old gray coat and hat." He admitted, however, that the Sing Sing uniform could not be distinguished under the overcoat Sullivan wore.

McCormick testified that he had bought the automobile that Sullivan drove out of his own private funds, expecting to be reimbursed, perhaps, later. As soon as he had bought the car he had begun to use Sullivan as a chauffeur.

McCormick said that although there were 1600 prisoners at Sing Sing, among them a number of chauffeurs, Sullivan had been his first and only selection.

"The reason I selected Sullivan," McCormick said, "was because he had the appearance of a gentleman, and I considered it necessary to have such a person driving a passenger car."

Watson testified that he had purchased the automobile in which Sullivan took his rides, paying $1800, which he obtained from a Yonkers friend of McCormick. There was no bidding, he said. The receipt for the car was made out to the warden.

Germans Retreat, Leaving Behind Wounded And Large Quantity of War Material—Sir John French Proud of Territorials—Naval Bombardment

GEN. JOFFRE EXPRESSES SATISFACTION AT RUSSIAN GENERALS' VICTORIES

Paris, Nov. 4.—General Joffre, the commander in chief of the French forces, has sent a telegram to his Imperial Highness, Grand Duke Nicholas commander in chief of the Russian forces in the field, the text of which follows:

"We have received with keen pleasure all the despatches concerning the triumphant march of the Russian armies during the past 15 days, including those relating the new advance which has just brought them into proximity to the German frontier.

"I desire to convey to your Imperial Highness my best congratulations. On our part we have checked the furious German attacks, and by incessant energetic action we are endeavoring to destroy the enemy's forces opposed to us.

"Our situation is good, and I hope that our combined efforts soon will lead to final success."

The foregoing despatch was given out semi-officially in Paris this afternoon.

KING GEORGE AND QUEEN MARY INSPECT CANADIANS AT SALISBURY

London, Nov. 4.—King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by a small suite, left London today for Salisbury Plain where they will inspect the Canadian troops who have been encamped in this locality since their arrival in England.

Turk Official Quits Paris.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Rifaat Pasha, the Turkish Ambassador to France, according to the Havas News Agency, asked for his passports which were handed to him at Bordeaux this morning.

London, Nov. 4.—Despatches in The Daily Mail gives elaborate details of Amperor William's visit to the German headquarters at Thielt, near Courtrai, Belgium, on Sunday. With a brilliant staff of officers he dined with the officials of the headquarters and then drove away for an unknown destination.

Soon after the Emperor's departure British airmen dropped bombs in the town, doing great damage to the town hall, the Palace of Justice and other buildings and killing two German soldiers.

It has since been reported that the German headquarters have been transferred from Thielt to Ghent, and there are indications of a German retreat in the direction of Brussels

GEN. SIR JOHN FRENCH PRAISES THE LONDON SCOTTISH REGIMENT

The First British Volunteers to Fight on the Firing Line Have Acquitted Themselves With Honors—The Foe's Batteries Quickly Silenced--Enemy Seems Discouraged by Allies Unbroken Lines--Cavalry Admired by Whole Army

London, Nov. 4.—An official account of the operation of the British force in Belgium, issued by the press bureau today, brings events up to Monday, November 2, when the allies were still maintaining their unbroken line and had been reinforced to meet the attacks which this day threatened them. The report follows:

Violent attacks were made by the enemy October 30 on the position occupied by the first army corps and the cavalry. Large reinforcements evidently had joined the enemy's line at this point. A very heavy loss was inflicted on the enemy, and the commander of the First Army Corps was confident of maintaining his ground, which he since has been able to do. The cavalry has fought, whether in trenches or mounted, to the admiration of the whole army. Indian troops have been brought into the fighting line, which had been proportionately strengthened.

Helped by "Troops From Home."

On the night of October 30, a strong attack on Messines was beaten off. At one point, the enemy, by dint of their masses, penetrated for a time into the line, but an excellent counter-attack drove them back with the bayonet. The attack on the left wing was so pronounced that the British line was substantially reinforced by troops from home, which were moved up. The French also brought into the line some of their reserves to support the threatened wing.

The London Scottish, the first territorial regiment to take its place in the firing line, made a brilliant charge and the officer in command received a telegram from Sir John French.

"I wish you and your splendid regiment would accept my warmest congratulations and thanks for the fine work you did Saturday. You have given a glorious lead and example to all the territorial corps fighting in France."

Loss of Entire Columns.

On November 1 our troops were attacked all along the line, but the enemy everywhere was repulsed and suffered very heavy loss. Our howitzers demolished two of the enemy's eight-inch guns and every account shows that the prodigious slaughter has been occasioned by our artillery.

The maintenance of an unbroken line and the repulse of repeated assaults, which has caused in some cases the loss of entire columns and has greatly discouraged the German troops, has naturally entailed losses on the defending force.

The position of the allies has been strengthened and reinforcements of every description have been sent to meet the attacks now threatened.

DEEDS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

Mr. Burnham said that as he was a representative of the people for the time being he supposed it was his duty to inform the public from time to time how things are going. It was a locally recognized fact that Peterborough had not contributed to the Patriotic Relief Fund as much as is necessary to carry it over the winter, and in comparison with other places the local fund is low. It is only necessary to state this fact to have it corrected he was quite sure, and they were taking this opportunity of stating it. We must have at least five thousand dollars more. Lindsay with a population one-third ours had given more than double as much as we in Peterborough had to the fund for local relief. According to population Norwood had given five times as much as Peterborough. The County Council of Victoria had given no less than $10000.00 to the fund. Peterborough County had not spoken but will no doubt do well. It remained for the City to double its contribution. There will be further contingents he had been informed on good authority and few would deny that it would require some fire using up here if we were to do our share in that respect. We were charged with being poor both in pocket and in spirit. He did not believe that for one moment. An Englishman had asked him this morning why it was the native-born were so slow in enlisting. The large majority going from Peterborough he was informed were British-born. This could not be put down to Canada's credit. In other places it was different, and we were suffering by comparison. Let us realize our duty and do it. We must do more than sing "God Save The King" and revel in the glories of Canada. Deeds spoke much more loudly than words.

French War Office Reports The Withdrawal of the Enemy

Allies Making Substantial Headway Between Dixmude and Lys--Lost Positions Regained by Counter Attacks. Germans Repulsed on the Heights of the Highway Des Dames. Nothing Doing on Allies' Right Wing

PARIS, NOV. 4.—THE FRENCH WAR OFFICE GAVE OUT AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT AS FOLLOWS:

"ON OUR LEFT WING, TO THE NORTH, THE SITUATION SHOWS NO CHANGE AS COMPARED TO YESTERDAY. THE ENEMY HAS DRAWN BACK ON THE RIGHT BANK OF THE YSER. WE HAVE RECAPTURED LOMBAERTZYDE. THE GERMANS OCCUPY ON THE LEFT BANK OF THE YSER NOTHING MORE THAN THE HEAD OF THE BRIDGE HALF WAY BETWEEN DIXMUDE AND NIEUPORT. THEY HAVE ABANDONED, IN ADDITION TO PRISONERS AND WOUNDED MEN, A CONSIDERABLE QUANTITY OF WAR MATERIAL, INCLUDING PIECES OF ARTILLERY WHICH WERE HELD IMMOVABLE IN THE MUD.

"BETWEEN DIXMUDE AND LYS, THE FIGHTING HAS CONTINUED WITH ALTERNATE ADVANCES AND WITHDRAWALS, BUT WITH THE GENERAL RESULT THAT THE ALLIED FORCES HAVE MADE PERCEPTIBLE PROGRESS

"BETWEEN THE LYS AND THE REGION OF ARRAS, THERE HAS BEEN CANNONADING AND MINOR ENGAGEMENTS.

"BETWEEN THE REGION OF ARRAS AND THE OISE WE HAVE MADE AN ADVANCE TO THE EAST OF LE QUESNOY-EN-SANTERRE AS FAR AS THE HEIGHTS OF PARVILLERS.

"On the centre, the German attack which developed on the right bank of the Aisne in the region of Nailly, and which resulted in our losing the first slopes to the north of Vailly, and which resulted in our lo was not continued yesterday. A counter-attack by our forces brought again into our possession a portion of the lost ground.

"A violent cannonading and spirited German attacks were repulsed on the Heights of the Highway Des Dames and in the vicinity of Rheims. There has been no happening of importance between Rheims and the Meuse not in the Woevre district.

"On our right wing, in Lorraine, there is nothing new to report.

Russia—In East Prussia the Germans are taking up the defensive and the Russians at certain points on the front are making successful progress. In Poland the Russian troops have occupied Sandek, Lask and Rotpresa without serious resistance. To the west of Kielce the Germans are retiring on Wloszcowa and Andryeff. The Austrians, driven back to the southeast of Kielce are holding only to the north of Sandomir. On the lower San River there have been engagements at Rozwados and Nisko, the results of which were favorable to the Russians and the Russians continue to cross this river. The German General Staff has been moved to Czenstochowa, near the frontier of Silesia."

SERVIA AND BULGARIA BREAK

London, Nov. 4.—An Amsterdam despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company, says:

"A Berlin telegram states that railway communications between Servia and Bulgaria has been broken."

OCCUPIED ONLY BY DEAD

London, Nov. 4.—Telegraphing from the North of France, the correspondent of The Chronicle says:

"Nieuport, which suffered severely from bombardment by the allies and Germans and was lost and taken three times in one day, is now in ruins. It is occupied only by the dead, lying in unburied heaps."

BIG BATTLE BEGINS IN EAST PRUSSIA

Germans Have Organized Again After Their Defeat and Resumed the Offensive—Russians Advancing in Galicia—Oustrians Defeated

Petrograd, Gov. 4.—The Germans, who have been re-organized behind their East Prussian entrenchments, have resumed the offensive, according to reports from the front. As a result another general battle seems beginning and skirmishing is already in progress all along the front. The Germans have been heavily reinforced and have brought up additional cannon from their barrier forts.

The Russian left, which has been operating against the combined Austro German army in Galicia, continues to advance along the reaches of the San River. It is stated that the Austrians have been defeated at a number of points and that a strong force of Russians has already crossed the San south of Przemysl and is moving westward.

The latest official information regarding the land operations as contained in a report by the general staff says:

"On the East Prussian front the Germans everywhere have assumed the offensive. Our troops have advanced at some points and have captured 2 guns and prisoners. Northwest of Politan we have occupied Schadek and Rospriza. The enemy is retreating towards Vloszow. Along the Opatowka River we have captured five cannon and three thousand prisoners. We continue to cross the San in force."

BRITISH NAVY RENEW BOMBARDMENT OF TURKISH FORTS IN DARDANELLS

Part of German Fleet Said to Have Left Their Home Base --Many Reports to This Effect, But None Are Confirm-Russian Battleship Sunk by Turkish Navy in Black Sea --Turks Seize Foreign Boats Lying Off Constantinople

Washington, Nov. 4.—American Minister Fletcher at Santiago, Chili, today reported the naval engagement off Coronel Chile, and the arrival of three German warships at Valparaiso. The damaged Good Hope is reported as having escaped with the Glasgow and Otranto.

Renew Shelling of Dardanelles.

Paris, Nov. 4.—A despatch to the Havas Gews Agency from Athens says that the bombardment of the forts of the Dardanelles, which was participated in chiefly by the British fleet, was suspended momentarily but later was resumed and continued until 10 o'clock this morning. Seventy shells in all were fired at the Turkish forts.

Sink Russian Battleship.

Amsterdam, (via London,) Nov. 4.—The Vossische Zeitung publishes a despatch from Sofia saying that Turkish warships have sunk the Russian battleship Sinope.

The "Sinope" was a battleship of 10,180 tons displacement, and carried a complement of 335 men. She was a comparatively old vessel, having been launched in 1887 and comuleted in 1890 in the Russian shipyards at Sebastopol. She was 331 feet long with a beam of 69 feet and was fitted with 13,000 horse-power engines. Her armament consisted of six 12-inch, seven 6-inch, guns and eight quick-firers. She was also fitted with seven torpedo tubes.

German Fleet Comes Out.

Copenhagen, Nov. 4.—(via London.)—A fleet of German warships has gathered off the Aland Islands, in the Baltic Sea, northeast of Stockholm and opposite the entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

They evidently were proceeding north, and have stopped to await orders.

The reported presence of German battleships off the Aland Islands tends to confirm a report received last night in London, from Dunkirk that four German fleet was supposed to have had put to sea from Kiel, the terminus of the Kiel Canal on the Baltic side. When these vessels were supposed to have left Kiel was not stated.

Dover reported last night that the German fleet was supposed to have come out from its base. This statement probably referred to the German fleet in the North Sea.

Turks Seize Foreign Ships.

London, Nov. 4.—The Turkish authorities, according to a Reuter Telegram despatch from Constantinople, via Sofia, have begun to seize the shipping lying off Constantinople. The Porte also has ordered the extinction of the lighthouses in the Mediterranean littoral.

CANADA'S DUTY

By Rev. Charles W. Gordon, D.D., (Ralph Connor), Past President Canadian Club, Winnipeg

CANADA'S WORD

O Canada! A voice calls through the mist and spume
Across the wide, wet, salty leagues of foam
For aid. Whose voice thus penetrates thy peace?
Whose? Thy Mother's, Canada, Thy Mother's voice.

O Canada! A drum beats through the night and day,
Unresting, eager, strident, summoning
To arms. Whose drum thus throbs persistent?
Whose? Old England's, Canada, Old England's drum.

O Canada! A sword gleams leaping swift to strike
At foes that press and leap to kill brave men
On guard. Whose sword thus gleams fierce death?
Whose? 'Tis Britain's, Canada, Great Britain's sword.

Tearing the heart wide open to God's eye,
For righteousness. Whose prayer thus pierces Heaven?
Whose? 'Tis God's prayer, Canada, Thy Kingdom come?

O Canada! What answer make to calling voice and beating drum,
To sword-gleam and to pleading prayer of God
For right? What answer makes my soul?
"Mother, to thee! God, to Thy Help! Quick! My sword!"

"I desire to express to my people of the Overseas Dominions with what appreciation and pride I have received the messages from their respective governments . . . . I shall be strengthened in the discharge of the great responsibility which rests upon me by the confident belief that in this time of trial the Empire will stand united, calm, resolute, trusting in God."—King George's Message to Canada.

"The Motherland is confronting a necessity of national existence. We come to her aid in determination to ensure the safety of this Empire and defend our flag, our honor and our heritage."—Sir Robert L. Borden, Premier Dominion of Canada.

"I have often declared that if the Mother Country were ever in danger, or if danger ever threatened, Canada would render assistance to the full extent of her power."—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Leader of the Opposition.

CANADA'S DUTY

There is no place for pessimism on the part of any Britisher in this war. The outcome is assured—we shall win, and win completely. The gage of the German Kaiser and of his Prussian Junkertum, hurled in the teeth of Christian civilization, has been taken up, and the fight will go on until Democracy, Liberty and Law among the nations will triumph. But those cheery optimists who foresee a speedy end to this strife, and who picture a joyous jaunt unter den Linden for the Allies, can hardly be regarded as harmless lunatics, for harmless they are not. The sooner Canada realizes that this war is a stern, serious business and that it will grow in desperation as the long, weary months drag their terrible length through winter and perhaps through summer and through winter again, the better it will be.

Let us make no mistake. No sudden rage, no fluke of diplomacy, not Austria's greedy ambition leaping at the chance of war afforded by the wicked act of a mad Servian student--not these things nor things like these have caused Germany to plunge into this war. Never did a nation more deliberately take a purposed and long planned step. For forty years Germany has cherished ambitions, has fed upon philosophies, has extended her commerce, has built up her industries, has established her fortresses, has perfected her seige guns, has built her navy, has constructed her aerial fleet, has hoarded her gold, has drilled her eight million soldiers, has fired her young men with lust for the Satanic glory of war with one purpose, and one purpose only--that she might war in a supreme effort after world power, incidental to which is the crushing of France to the position of Portugal among the European nations, the absorption of small countries like Belgium, Holland and Denmark, and the extermination of hated Britain.

Upon this issue Germany stakes her existence, that Europe may be Germanized and a World Empire established greater than the world has ever seen, with colonies on every sea, built upon highly scienced brute force that knows no law but that of might and derides the Christian virtues as contemptible and utterly unworthy of the superman.

For this enterprise the Kaiser believes himself God anointed and God appointed. With him to-day stand the haughty aristocracy of Prussia and all the war caste of Germany, and behind them, united in a mad and deluded enthusiasm, stand as yet the German people to a man.

Victory for the Allies, therefore, means the dethronement of the Kaiser and his military brood, the annihilation of the war caste and the smashing of the war machine. Nothing short of this will be accepted as victory by any of the allied nations. Nothing less than this would be worth fighting for.

But what does this mean? It means that the Kaiser will hurl into the last deadly fight every German soldier, every German ship and gun and every German dollar; for, while it is true that Germany will survive this war, the Kaiser and his caste of war worshippers will not. They will be wiped out of existence, and they know it. Hence the desperate character of this conflict. There is no truce, nor can be. No peace is possible. Two sets of principles are locked in death grips. Force as an empire builder against the Will of a free people, Justice as an international arbiter as against the Sword of the mighty, international Honor as an eternal obligation rather than as a mere temporary convenience. These things make peace impossible, and these things make the war worth while.

What, then, is Canada's immediate duty? It stands clear as the morning sun above the prairie rim. The Empire stands to-day for Liberty, Justice, Honor among nations as among men; and Canada stands with the Empire for these. It is no longer a question of a colony giving support to the motherland. We have gone far past that. It is a question of whether Canada shall stand with the free nations who believe in government by free choice, justice among nations, honor as an eternal obligation, and with her last man and her last dollar fight for these things that determine a nation's character and its place in history. I repeat that it is no longer a question of aiding the motherland in a fight for national or Empire existence. Canada is herself a nation with a proud sense of nationhood. Canada's future is involved in this conflict, and with every instinct of her national soul and with every throb of her national life she hates and opposes the spirit, the ideals, the methods for which the German Kaiser and his Prussian Junkertum is now so desperately contending.

And how is Canada to fulfill her obligation as a nation in this world crisis? Our government has done well, has given a splendid exhibition of efficient dispatch in mobilizing, equipping and transporting to England's shores between 30,000 and 40,000 men in the short space of two months. But it is not, I repeat, a matter of contingents, one, two, or three. Re-

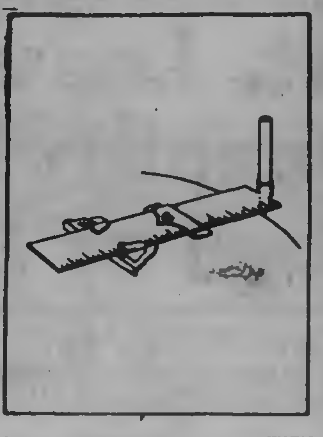
SQUARE MAKES CIRCLE

Seemingly Impossible Performance Accomplished by a New Tool

The seemingly impossible achievement of making a circle by means of a square is accomplished by a new device which has been lately patented. A view of this implement is given herewith and anyone who may be the least bit familiar with the construction and use of a T-square will see at once how it is done and also the advantages of the improvement.



HOW A CIRCLE MAY BE MADE WITH A SQUARE.

A flat, graduated rule has a socket at one end, designed to hold a point such as a piece of lead or lead pencil, and the length of the rule is traversed by a metal slide, designed to be secured at any point and adapted to perform the ordinary functions of a square. The slide is supplied with a projecting point which is used in making the circle in conjunction with the lead or pencil point, as shown in the illustration.

ORIGIN OF AMBER

Scientists have said that the high value placed on gold is purely a hereditary instinct, coming down to our present enlightened generation from our sun-worshipping ancestors, who saw, in its color, some kinship with the life-giving "orb of gold" above their heads. The same explanation has been given for the esteem in which amber has always been held—"clots of sunshine," the glowing globules have been called. Whether because it was "sun-stuff" or simply because it was pretty, the fact remains that in all ages amber has been coveted by the ladies for their adornment, and has ranked as a gem from the stone age to the present day.

Great mystery the ancients made of its origin, appearing as it did mysteriously and by chance on the shores of many seas, but amber is now known to be the resinous gum of prehistoric trees fossilized in certain strata of the earth's crust, and here and there laid bare by the gnawing of the ocean currents, to be rolled up in rounded pebbles or nuggets on the nearest strand.

Amber has been found on all the coasts of Europe, and sometimes in inland lakes and springs, or in the shafts of coal mines. The so-called amber of Burma and other parts of the East seems to be rather a non-fossil gum similar to the copal which is used in making varnish. It seems probable that all the genuine amber is directly or indirectly of European origin. The chief deposits of amber are on the shores of the Baltic near Konigsberg, the only place in the world where the collecting and mining of the precious fossil is an organized industry. From these shores the Greeks and Romans obtained their chief supply, and here it is today worked into pipe mouthpieces, or ground up to serve as a basis for varnish. Another use of the powdered amber is in Oriental temples, where it is burned by Mohammedans and by Buddhists as an incense.

It is as a gem, however, that amber is most attractive; and here the pale yellow product of the north is surpassed by the many-hued nuggets which the streams and shores of Sicily yield. Not only does yellow deepen into orange and orange into a dark rust-red—it even occurs in greens and mellow blues, and is rendered more lovely by the fluorescence of its surface, causing a shifting play of colors with every change of light. Such treasures, however, are rare, and when found compete not unequally with diamonds in value. The surface of cut amber dries and darkens with age, adding variety to the hues obtainable. A wide variety of objects has been found embedded in amber, and much interesting knowledge of early insect life has been obtained by zoologists from the specimens thus immortalized—a form of immortality which has also provided a favorite figure for the poets.

The Horse to His Master

I am a Horse; you are a man; I've been your slave since I began, and though I'm strong enough to shake my shackles off and make a break for freedom that would lift the lid, you've noticed that I never did. By day and night I've worked for you, and done the best that I could do; and though I may not always like your methods, yet I never strike; in heat and cold, in wet and dry I'm always ready—glad to do the very most to satisfy my master, man. Therefore, my master, if you please, considering such facts as these, say, don't you think it ought to be your pleasure to look out for me, if for no other reason than for my greater usefulness to man? Of course, you might be worse, I know you sometimes treat your own kind so, but I'm a horse, and truer than the man-slave to his master, man. And, furthermore, my nature is much more dependent than is his. And as I trust you, sir, you should do all you can to make it good. Nor do I ask a lot, I guess, to be a fairly fair success—good food, good shelter, and good care, I think, is just about my share. No other ay I ask—no touch I make, but this! Is that too much?—W. J. Lampton, in New York Times.

Canada's Oil Production

That the petroleum industry in Canada is decreasing yearly is shown by a report made to the Government by John McLeish, B.A. The output is almost entirely from the Ontario oil fields, although New Brunswick contributes a considerable amount, and it might be noted that in the latter province the yearly flow is on the increase.

WHEAT AND BREAD AS SEEN BY SCIENCE

Temperature and Rainfall Affect Quality of the Loaf—Western Canadian Wheat Strong

To the majority of people the only differences in the quality of wheat are those apparent to the eye. Concerning the relationship of the physical appearances of the wheat to the baking quality of the resultant flour very little is known. Yet the most important qualities are those revealed by analysis and actual test, according to Mr. L. D. Jackson in an article in the The Farmers' Advocate.

The most important constituents of the wheat kernel are gluten and starch. No doubt the housewife has seen the elastic substance that remains when a lump of dough has been washed by running water for a few minutes. If the dough is squeezed in the hand under the tap for a short period of time an elastic rubber-like substance remains. This is gluten and the constituent of flour that gives shape and texture to the loaf of bread. Chemically it belongs to the same class of compounds as the white of egg and fiber of meat, the muscle-building constituent of food. Starch belongs to the group of compounds known as carbo-hydrates, which in the digestive process are the heat producers of the body.

Flour from Western Canadian wheat is famous the world over for its strength. Various interpretations are placed upon this word strength but generally speaking, strength means ability to stand strong fermentation, to stand the abuse of the machines in the modern bakeshop and to give spring and volume to the loaves. The source of this strength is the large amount of good quality gluten in the wheat.

Difference in Wheats

But all Western wheats are not alike. Some have high gluten content and some low. In some the gluten is of poor quality, regardless of the quantity. Occasionally the color is dark and yellow. Besides the variations in the quality and quantity of gluten there are other features entering into the problem. The physical condition of the wheat, too early cutting, damage by rain, tough wheat, and other conditions which make the wheat unsuitable for milling purposes.

The reader may ask what are the causes of these variations in the wheat. A few explanations will suffice

WATERING THE STOCK

Four Rules That It Will Pay to Know and Observe

An unlimited supply of good pure water is essential to the health of all animals used for farm purposes. Pools formed from surface drainage where large quantities of organic matter are carried into them, and wells or pools contiguous to farmyards or manure heaps are especially to be avoided. Water from good tanks or wells, running streams, and properly-constructed pools is usually good, but too much care cannot be taken in reference to this matter. The quantity of water is also of importance. No animal will drink too much if watered sufficiently often, hence there is no necessity for limiting the supply except when the animal has been deprived of water for too long a time. Animals at rest should be given water at least three times a day in summer, and twice a day in winter, if they cannot have free access to it at all times. There is a common error that horses should not be watered when warm. An animal is never too warm to be watered if not more than two gallons be given. A large quantity of water will injure an animal at any time, but especially is this so when he is very warm or much fatigued.

The watering of animals immediately after feeding, so frequently practised, is not in harmony with the physiology of digestion. The stomach of a horse is very small in proportion to his size and the quantity of food he consumes, hence only a small amount of water can remain in the stomach, and if given immediately after feeding undigested food must of necessity be carried with it in its passage through the stomach into the intestines. Another reason why animals should not be watered immediately after feeding is that the digestion begins only when the food has been warmed to a temperature of about 90 degrees; therefore if a large quantity of cold water be mixed with the food the temperature of the contents of the stomach must be lowered, and consequently digestion must be retarded.

CORN ON THE FARM

Becoming More Popular Everywhere—Easy to Grow and Harvest

Corn farming is becoming very popular among the farmers of both eastern and western Ontario.

I was talking to an experienced farmer, and he told me that there was less labor in caring for ten acres of corn than in caring for three acres of roots, says T. S. Milady in Canadian Countryman.

As soon as the ground is well cultivated, drills in which to sow the roots have to be made. It is much easier and much quicker to take an ordinary corn planter and sow ten acres of corn than to make the drills and sow three acres of roots.

Later when the time for weeding comes, the roots have to be thinned very carefully and the weeds cut out, while the weeds alone have to be taken from the corn field. This, indeed, is a decided advantage by way of saving time, for ten acres of corn can be scuffled and hoed thoroughly in four days, while three acres of roots could not be attended to in that time.

In the fall, ten acres of corn can be cut into the silo in less than one day. This, of course, is done by the farmer with the aid of his neighbors If that same farmer had roots instead of corn, he would not think of asking his neighbors to help him take them off. Instead, he would spend two days at least in getting the root crop into the root house.

Finally, let a man go through the country and make notes on the condition of the different herds of cattle as they are put out on grass in the spring. Those cattle which were fed on corn during the winter are always in better condition than root-fed cattle, other things being equal.

Put on the Door of Vice the House-Owner's Name

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

DR. JENKIN LLOYD JONES wants to have all property labelled with the owner's name—and then see what will happen.

"Put a brass doorplate with the owner's full name on it, on every house he owns, and things will begin to occur," says Dr. Lloyd Jones.

"Seventy-five per cent of the houses rented for saloons and other kindred purposes in Chicago are owned by respectable widows. Also," says Dr. Jones, "many of the other 25 per cent. are owned by people who would turn tail at the idea of going to the theatre on Sunday, or playing an innocent game of golf on the afternoon of the Sabbath.

"If a man is ashamed of his house and the use to which that house is put—let him sell it—or—let him keep his name on the door.

"No, I am not joking; I was never more serious in my life. I am tired of hypocrisy—tired of pretence—tired of the shifting of responsibility. I want to see some of the people who are to blame for some of the worst conditions in our city take some of that blame and do the best they can with it."

I wonder what would happen if they should carry out the door plate idea in Chicago—or anywhere else? I'd like to be there the first 24 hours that these doorplates went up. What a rushing business the steamship companies would do in tickets. And I'm afraid you couldn't get a drawing room in a Pullman car running out of that town for love nor money nor flattery nor anything there is that's human.

The Vice Above.

Wouldn't it be fun to see all the hurrying and scurrying, and to listen to all the excusings and apologisings and denyings?

"I hadn't the faintest idea—if I had ever suspected! Why, the very idea—I don't see how they ever made such a mistake! Me make my income in any such way as that! Why I'm president of the White Ribbon Club in my church!"

"And I have a dear little daughter—she's at one of the finest schools in the country; I've got to get her abroad, some way, before she gets a hint of this—she'd die of mortification. How could they bring such a blot upon her name—those other girls—the ones who were dragged down there—where my name is on the door! What are they to me—they are just creatures of the streets. Why should I be held responsible because they can't behave themselves?

"Why do I rent my property for such a purpose if I do not approve it? Well, I have to live—everything costs so much, too, and there's my son to be sent to college and my daughter to bring out in society. What do people expect me to do, live in a flat somewhere just to please these doorplate cranks? Why, they haven't any respect for any one any more; isn't it dreadful? Isn't it appalling what a hideous and ungrateful world we live in!"

Can't you hear them—all the little cowardly souls that never do anything right—if it takes courage and self-denial and honesty to do it? Can't you see them—all the smug hypocrites, all the self-satisfied Pharisees hurrying and scurrying to get away from the plain, simple truth?

Isn't it Holmes who tells about the time that he sat in a green meadow and watched the flowers blossoming in the grass? A meadow lark sat on a bush by the path and whistled, and there was a nest in the grass, and in the nest were speckled eggs, and the earth was all strewn with stars, in the shape of flowers, and all the air was perfumed and all the world was spring.

And he who sat in the grass lifted a flat stone that had fallen there, and lo, the earth was gray with thousands of little slugs and worms and insects which lived under the flat stone in the dark and the dankness.

The Grubs Below.

"So it is when we lift the stones of a great error—what a scurrying there is of all the little insects which bred to life under the stone," says Holmes—or something like it.

I keep thinking of the stone in the meadow and of the little fat, white slugs that fattened under the weight of its secrecy.

"No one sees us here under the stone—no one can find us—how lucky we are to live in such security"—and all at once some meddler lifts the stone, and the sun pours in and the dank ground begins to dry. So—how they scurry and hurry and wriggle and twist—the fat white worms who thought the great stone would hide them forever!

What a meddlesome person you are, Jenkin Lloyd Jones, never content to let well enough alone—what is it to you that some few favored ones batten and grow fat on the vices of the unfortunate?

Is it any of your business, pray, who it is that is getting rich on the proceeds of misery and despair?

What business is it of yours who owned the house where that young girl who killed herself was brought to degradation? Don't you know that the people who lived there pay an enormous rent—three times what the house would be worth in any other part of town—you couldn't expect the owners to give up such an income as that, could you?

No—you don't expect that—you just ask that they take their share of the blame, just as they took their share, and more than their share, of the profits.

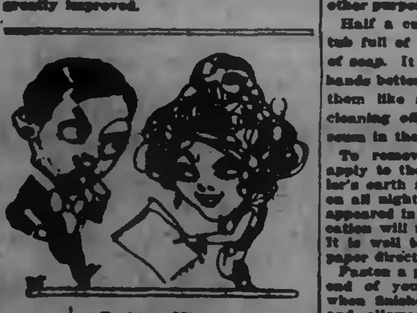
Make them put their name on the doorplate of that house? There, there, don't say another word. You're mad, Dr. Jones, stark, staring, raving mad—what else can you be and cherish such a notion as that?

How dare you try to lift the stone—Jenkin Lloyd Jones—and let in the light on the starvèd earth beneath! Don't you care at all what is going to become of the fat white grubs who live under it?

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

WHEN buying tea, before using it spread it on a sheet of paper and place it in a warm, but not too hot oven from 10 to 15 minutes. By doing this the tea will be made to go much further, and the flavor will be greatly improved.



Fashion Hint.

He—I'm afraid I'll be mistaken for a waiter.

Jars and pickle bottles that smell of onions may be made sweet if filled with garden mold and left standing out of doors for two or three days. When thoroughly washed they will be found quite fresh, and may be used for jam or any other purpose.

Half a cupful of milk put in a dishtub full of hot water will serve instead of soap. It softens the water, keeps the hands better, because it will not roughen them like soap, and brightens dishes, cleaning off all grease and leaving no scum in the pan.

To remove grease from wall paper apply to the spots a paste made of fuller's earth and cold water, leaving this on all night. If the spots have not disappeared in the morning a second application will usually be found efficacious. It is well to take grease marks out of paper directly they are made.

Fasten a piece of tape or string to the end of your scrubbing brush so that when finished with, it can be hung up and allowed to drain, instead of the water soaking into the back and loosening the bristles and making them soft. For the same reason, do not leave the brush in the pail of water when the floor is being washed.

CUPID'S ADVENTURE : : By Michelson

THOUGH he does so many and such extraordinary things, Cupid is by no means a reckless fellow. O, no! He plays safe for LOVE, Cupid does. Don't be confused by the kind of thing that is often done in his name. The very fact that Love lasts—when it really is Love—ought to suggest that Cupid dodges strictly desperate chances. Notice that he is still on the job.

Thus he hates to be trifled with. Surf and sentiment may sometimes go together, but toying with love in the breakers is a hazardous matter. The sea is hazardous enough. Don't make the situation too complicated. Love has joined in many a sea rescue. But that's another game. Let HIM decide when to play it.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

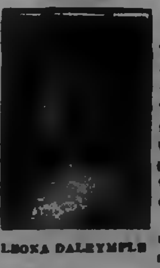
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 137.

Mary Gets the Money.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

BUYING clothes on the instalment plan! It was new to me, and for the first time I realized the horrible cunning of these clothing sharks who play up the vanity of women.

Since my wife made her confession I have learned that there are places of this sort in every city, where silly women may buy finery that they cannot afford, and pay for it in small instalments. That they pay many dollars over the real value of things, they do not seem to realize. One fact stands prominently forth. They may sport that spectacular finery which they love, and the man who puts up for it does not suspect how insidiously he is being bled by the wife of his heart.

"A dollar a week!" I blurted to Mary. "That's utterly new to me."

"And such a nice man!" gushed Mary, mistaking my dazed incredulity for indifference. "He does treat me with such respect and deference. Indeed, one would think I was some great lady when I sweep into his store. Everybody jumps to wait on me, and they show me the best of everything. Always the best, Peter, never anything shoddy. It's really quite a tribute to my appearance, don't you think so?"

"It's a game!" I said. "Fall down on your instalments once and see how deferentially he'll treat you. You'll find a claw under the velvet then, my lady."

And then—in a bewildering flash of indignation—I wondered where my wife got the money to pay her instalments.

"Mary," I said, "even yet I don't think this situation is fully explained. There hasn't been any money left to speak of since we adopted our new plan of paying bills. Where under heaven do you get the money to pay your instalments?"

Mary began to cry.

"If you don't borrow it from your mother," I insisted, "you must get it somewhere else."

I saw Mary glance furtively at me through her tears. I did not suffer my face to relent one iota of its sternness, for I realized that I was face to face with a new problem.

"You never seemed to notice anything," Mary said after a while. "I—I didn't suppose you'd notice I was getting new clothes—and oh! Peter!"

"Yes," said I patiently, "you were to tell me where you get the money to pay the instalments."

Mary's wonderful eyes suddenly flashed defiance.

"Well, I have to have money, don't I?" she said.

"You have to have money," I agreed, "but also if you're going to have it, you have to economize and save it."

"I—I don't know how to economize. I—I simply can't do it."

"I'm still waiting to hear," I hinted, and the blood was pumping so violently through my veins that my temples throbbed horribly and my head ached.

"I—I get the grocer to give me money," burst forth Mary with a wild spasm of sobbing, "and—and then he puts a few extra pounds of coffee and tea and butter on the bill—he—he gives me a good deal that way—and——"

"Mary!" I cried, so hurt and horrified that I felt the color leaving my face. "You can't mean it!"

"I—I do," sobbed Mary. "Mrs. Patterson told me about it. She does the very same thing, and—and, then, whenever Mrs. Watkins wanted anything from the drug store—I—I had it put on our bill and she paid me for it—and—and that way I had quite a little money all month. Oh, Peter, don't look so white and terrible. You scare me dreadfully. I—I had to have money. I—I had to have clothes. I—I had to have paints and things for my painting lessons. What else was I to do?"

I felt sick and discouraged.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why You Eat Energy Rather Than Mere Food

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

IF you eat to live, rather than live to eat, you should know how to augment your health, strength, and, yea, even your reservoir of reserve funds. "Every research," says Athenaeus, "which is guided by principles of nature, fixes its ultimate aim entirely upon the gratification of the stomach."

"The discovery of a new dish," said Brillat-Savarin," in his Physiology of Gout, "does more for the happiness of man than the discovery of a new star." Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are. Burton, too, in his Anatomy of Melancholy, says as much valor is to be found in fasting as in fighting, and some of your city captains and carpet knights will make this good and prove it.

Victuals serve several ends to man. They afford growth and equilibrium to the living textiles. They serve as a defense against dangers and disease. They evolve energy, vigor, blood and heat. The mere elegance or tang that comes to the palate from provender of one kind or another has little to do with its sustaining value.

Food makes for the upkeep of your every little movement as well as for your very breath. Indeed, your teeth could not chew, your saliva could not flow, your oesophagus could not swallow and your stomach itself could not digest were it not for the very viands which you engulf.

Much more than muscular effort, however, is necessary from the victuals you swallow. The tissues need new growth and repair. Many of the choicest provisions, much of nature's best sustenance is woefully wanting in tissue creative capacity. Only albuminous foods—proteins with nitrogen in them—are able to perform this every day miracle, to wit, the construction of sinews, brawn, tendons, ligaments, blood and bone.

Save in the matter of a need for new tissues—a requisite of youth, vitality and perennial muscular waste—there is little need for such as have meat and strange foods. Work-making foods, those which yield force and energy, are independent of tissue-building proteins, sugars, starches, oils, fats, water and minerals. Of these various aliments in the average individual there is a quarter of a pound of sugar and starch, nearly 30 pounds of meat and albumens, 11 pounds of salty minerals, 105 pounds of water, five pounds of fats and oils.

Since as yet there is not one satisfactory unit of work to stand for what a grain of food can do, the unit of heat called a calorie is taken instead. One grain of starch or sugar or meat or legumin, or egg albumen or gluten yields a little over four of these units. Oils and fats in equal amounts yield nearly nine and a half such units.

Human pasturage, such as meat, milk and cheese have an abundance of food units of this kind, because they contain all sorts and conditions of edible chemicals. A pint of milk, or a pound of milk gives something over [illegible] units of heat, while cheese of the same weight yields more than seven times as much. Of course, in the stomach possibly little more than three-quarters of this is absorbed into the tissues as usable material.

Even when you sleep you lose in breathing and heart pulsations about [illegible] units of heat each hour. When you sit in your easy chair you lose a hundred units each hour. Thus for eight sleeping hours you must equip yourself with a reserve of something between [illegible] and [illegible] units. As for a hard worker's day of toil, between [illegible] and [illegible] units are necessary.

Answers to Health Questions

M. W.—Am troubled with superfluous hair on face.

Try any of the sulphide depilatories or the electric needle.

• • •

SUFFERER—Have constant buzzing in my head. Am very dizzy. What can I do for it? I am [illegible] years old.

Live on lumps of sugar and milk, and eat nothing else but fruit juices for two weeks. You eat too much for your age.

• • •

B. S. P.—What would be a proper diet for an extremely weak stomach?

The less you eat the better. Never eat anything after supper. Take charcoal and oxide of magnesia in unlimited quantities.

• • •

M. B.—Am troubled with sneezing. I catch cold in winter and summer. Nasal passages and throat become clogged, and, sometimes, I can't talk plain. I cough a good deal. What is a remedy?

A physical examination is necessary in your case. Both your chest and your upper air chambers should be overhauled by two different specialists.

• • •

P. W.—Am a young man. Always had rosy cheeks and clear complexion until I started smoking cigarettes. Then complexion changed to brownish color. Gave up smoking, but cannot regain my clear, rosy complexion. What would you advise?

If you will now keep to the green fields, in the sunlight and open country, eat green vegetables, and otherwise attend to your sleep, bathing and toilet, your rosy cheeks will soon return.

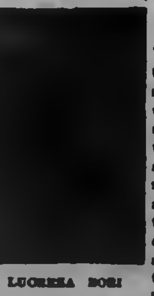
Bathing and Your Finger Nails

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of women."



LUCREZIA BORI

IF the nails are not carefully watched and cared for in these outdoor months they will become hard, brittle and ugly. During the days at the seashore or lake the nails grow very dry and they need a little dab of cold cream each night to soften the flesh at the base of each nail. Before you start manicuring your nails the hands should be soaked in a bowl of warm water mixed with glycerine and a few drops of toilet water. Twenty minutes is not too long for them to lie in the water, and after drying and a little cold cream has been added, any coating of superfluous flesh should be pushed back in its place.

After the flesh has been pushed back so that the half-moons show the hands should be washed again in warm suds. A tiny particle of nail rouge may with advantage be touched to each finger, and the coloring matter rubbed with a good buffer until the nails are pretty and pink. By rubbing one of the little white manicure powder cakes across the palm of the hand and passing the fingers over it with a swift motion, the nails gain a fine polish and make the fingers appear as if tipped by small window panes.

Oatmeal is excellent for softening and whitening the hands. Mix some finely powdered oatmeal with water and spread on the skin in a paste. As it dries rub it off in flakes, removing the last traces with lukewarm water. An oatmeal bag may serve the purpose if one does not care to rub the flakes directly on the hands. Pour some of the raw oatmeal into a silk handkerchief, tie the four ends together at the centre and rub the bag over the hands when they are washed. The skin will become creamy white if the oatmeal treatment is faithfully followed.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

There is a young man in the town who has just got a divorce from his deceitful wife. As far as I can hear the fault was all in his wife.

He is a fellow of about [illegible] or [illegible] and exceptionally good looking. Just lately he has been speaking and acting as though he might like to be in my company. Should I take up with this man? "ANXIOUS."

HOW do you know that the fault is all in his wife, dear child; has he told you so?

There are always two sides to a story, you know, and I should certainly like to hear the other side, if I were you.

Haven't you any brothers who can hear it for you? It isn't quite the thing for a young girl to pay too much attention to such affairs, and what on earth do you mean, dear child, by saying you want to "take up" with the man?

Do you mean that you want to marry him, or that you just want him for a friend? You don't have to marry every man who's nice to you, you know—did you ever think of that?

I should be a little careful in this particular case if I were you.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

LOCAL BAKERS DO NOT EXPLAIN HOLD UP

Possibly (?) the best security for money invested, if you don't look further than the end of your nose is to buy stock in a Peterborough bakery soaking the poor and soldiers' wives of this city [illegible] cents for bread, they, the bakers, or their agents, sell in Campbellford for 10 cents. The local bakers may make excuses galore,, and squirm and try to explain the exorbitant prices charged here for bread to customers, among English settlers, the poor and the soldiers' wives.

This fight against a local hold up was inaugurated by the Times and will be fought until bread is brought here from outside to be sold as cheaply as Peterboro bread is sold in other towns. The Times does not care whether local bakers wear diamonds or buy buildings. What we are after is the protection of the poor or even, the working man of this city. We don't care the value of a—— whether the evening papers take up this fight or not.

The Times has offered, and by actual test has shown its willingness to throw its columns open to the bakers. We have inserted a letter from Mr. Stock and quoted an interview held with Mr. Hooper, two of Peterborough's leading bakers.

We have yet to learn, outside "hot air" and present profits, why the poor of Peterborough are paying for real estate and luxuries for our local bakers.

Two local ladies who read that over 500 weddings were solemnized in Toronto last month, are thinking of moving to the Queen City.

Dear Mr. Burnham:

I have received your favor of Oct. 28th. In reply, let me say that words fail me to express my appreciation of the kind offer enclosed.

I am sure it is largely through your influence that this beautiful cup is to be in my possession for the ensuing year, and let me assure you it will have a longer stay in the township of Asphodel if my ability as a plowman will keep it here.

Thanking you very much for your kind interest in my behalf, I remain.

A Youthful Fairy Tale

At yesterday's police court a young man named Finn, aged 16, pleaded guilty to having been drunk and disorderly. In the witness box he said he lives at his home in the city and is not working. He got his liquor in the yard of a local hotel. He said he found it in a stall. The boy's evident fairy tale did not impress the Magistrate or Chief of Police, so he was remanded in jail for a week to take the memory cure.

Care and Abuse of Farm Machinery

Recent investigations by the Conservative Commission reveal some very interesting facts regarding the effect of care or neglect, as the case may be, upon the life of machinery on the farm. Between 90 and 95 farms, divided into three districts were visited in each of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta.

In Saskatchewan, out of 94 farmers visited by the Commission's representative, 76 leave all their implements out of doors. On 71 of the farms there were no implement sheds of any description. On 21 of the farms sheds large enough to cover a part of the implements were found, in most cases this being only a buggy or a democrat, but not on one single farm was the machinery all housed. Not one farmer was found who had painted his implements to protect them from the weather.

In Manitoba only 14 out of 94 keep their machinery under cover during winter, while 44 claim to keep part of it inside. On 34 of the Manitoba farms no provision whatever is made for protecting implements, and only four claim to have done any painting.

In the three districts visited in Alberta, mixed farming is carried on quite extensively, making more barn room available, so that implements are more likely to be protected, but even here 37 out of 92 visited leave all their machinery out of doors.

In one district in Ontario where 40 farmers were visited, every man housed his implements during winter, although none of these men do any painting.

In the Ontario districts visited where the implements are housed, the average life of the binder was found to be between 16 and 17 years. Many binders were seen which were in good running order after cutting 20 season's crops.

In Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where so much of the machinery is left out of doors the average life of the binders is given by the farmers as about seven years, which is less than half that of the binder protected from the weather. Many binders do not last as long as seven years. One farmer near Moosomin, Sask., who, after twelve years was retiring from the farm held an auction sale. His binder after cutting 12 crops sold for $80, or 50 per cent. of the original cost, and his other machinery at proportionately high prices. It had all been well housed and the necessary painting and repairing had been done to keep it in good order. On a neighboring farm a binder which had cut only three crops but which had been neglected, and had stood out of doors, was being relegated to the scrap heap and a new one was being purchased.

An implement shed costs money but if its use will double or treble the length of time the machinery will last, it is a good investment. Farmers often say that they cannot afford to build a shed. The truth is, they really cannot afford to be without one. Apart from the additional power necessary for operation, the depreciation on unhoused machinery on the average sized farm is so great as to amount to much more than the cost and upkeep of an implement shed. The binder works for only a short time during the year while machinery in a shop works the whole year through and lasts proportionately many times longer. It is simply a matter of care. The life of a machine extends in direct ratio to the care it receives, and abuse and neglect will shorten the life of any mechanism. The manufacturer is not responsible for the care of the machinery after it is sold. This rests entirely with the farmer and as a common-sense business proposition he should look after his own interests sufficiently to house his implements and thus save the thousands of dollars wasted annually in necessary depreciation.

Turkey and Holland

It appears to be taken for granted on all hands that Turkey has finally provoked war with Russia and the Allies, largely through the influence of Germany. The latter has long been in high favor at Constantinople, and strong elements among the Turks no doubt under special obligation to the ruling forces of Berlin.

It is hard to see what Turkey is to gain by her present course; but it is not hard to see that Germany will be very appreciably aided by Turkey's action provided that such action does not bring Italy into the field in support of France, Great Britain and Russia.

Turkey's course is a diversion that is bound to affect conditions in the Balkans, Asia Minor, Egypt and North Africa in such a way as to be a source of uneasiness to all the Allies and to a certain extent weaken them in their central operations in France and Belgium.

Germany has not yet played all her cards. In her desperate struggle for self-preservation it is probably only a question of a short time when Holland will be utilized in a very effective way. Already large quantities of supplies are passing from the outside world through Holland into Germany. Holland is nominally neutral, but her business interests are in sympathy with Germany.

Possibly Germany may be content so long as she can use Holland as a gateway for supplies; but if the time comes when Holland is necessary to carry out Germany's campaign against England. Holland may even let nominal neutrality go by the board and may openly side with Germany. Developments are looking in that direction.

In order to reduce the noise of street cars and particularly the flat wheel nuisance, it was suggested at a recent meeting of the Tramways Association, in Newcastle, England, that street cars be provided with rubber tires. It was also argued that a higher rate of speed would be possible with the flexible tire.

HOW LANGUAGE GROWS

Derivation of Some Commonly Used Words and Phrases

The turkey was unknown in the Land of Uz, and, as neither history nor legend record that Job owned any feathered stock, there seems to be no historic reason why the turkey should have been "wished" on the much afflicted man of Uz. Nevertheless, Judge Haliburton, the Canadian humorist, in his droll book, "Sam Slick," written in the early 19th century, gives a vivid description of Job's turkey, "a creature so poor that it had only one feather in its tail, and when it gobbled it had to lean against a fence for support." Thus the turkey, a native of this continent, fluttered back on the wings of fiction to about the third century, B.C., and we have the much-quoted expression, "Poor as Job's turkey."

The story of calico goes away back to an early day in India when the fabric was manufactured in Calicut, and sent from there to other parts of the world.

Muslin is also of far eastern origin and was first made in Mossul in the historic valley of the Euphrates. Cashmere comes from the "vale of Cashmere," famed in song and story. Damask is a product of Damascus.

The prettily flowered dimity was known to the Egyptians, and it's a fabric of ancient origin. It takes its name from the city of Damietta. Worsted was first made in an English town of that name, and, like most of the cloths, takes its name from the place from where it was first exported.

What is a dude? Don't go to the dictionary for information, for even the Century encyclopedia can do no better than say, "The term is probably one of the spontaneous products of popular slang." The dude is said to be the product of the "esthetic" craze that struck the world about 1882, with Oscar Wilde as its shining light in England. Although it is sometimes said that dude is a derivative of the old English word duds, meaning clothes, authoritative dictionaries say, that the connection between the two words, though apparently natural, is impossible.

A YEAR'S SUFFERER CURED BY "NERVILINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer long from Neuralgia.

Nerviline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia, and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russel post office, says:—"One long year, the longest of my life, was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced during some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nerviline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nerviline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Continuous treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evan's case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nerviline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, lame back, neuritis and Rheumatism. Forty years in use, and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion. Don't take anything but "Nerviline," which any dealer anywhere can supply in large 50c. family size bottles, or in a small 25c. trial size.

GETTING THROUGH COLLEGE

How Some of Canada's Future Professional Men Pay Their Way

Students tell wonderful stories of their struggles to earn money to put them through college. They turn their hands to almost everything, with the one object in view of making enough during vacation times to pay their board and tuition fees, as well as provide them with books and leave a little margin for pleasure.

"I travelled all over the province for a well known book firm," said a senior man of McGill University, "but in spite of all my persuasive power, and they used to say in the Mock Parliament that I could talk for weeks I only came out a hundred dollars to the good. This, won't last long in the present time of high cost of living, but the mater says I have got to get my degree so I am sure she will come to my assistance."

Another man, a Law student, who is proficient on the typewriter, boasts that he cleared a thousand dollars typing manuscript for professors, and people whom he learned were going to deliver lectures.

"I kept my eye on the papers," said this student, "and as soon as I saw the name of Mr. So and So published as going to give a lecture, I paid him an official visit. Being a fairly rapid shorthand writer and not asking too much for my labor I was in nearly every case successful. I found that when I mentioned I was working my way through McGill my hearers were always sympathetic and in many instances they introduced me to others who had work to do."

The favorite goods are, however, aluminum goods, and one budding Medico tells unblushingly of the far-fetched yarns that he told the country people of the wonderful nature and enduring character of the goods manufactured from this substance.

"I made money," said the student "and I earned many a good solid meal by taking a turn with the farmers at their work."

Selling wallpaper, acting as waiters on boats, porters on the railroads, dining car conductors, checking at steamship sheds, and furnishing copy for some of the newspapers, are also means used by some of the students to raise the required money. A few also secured positions as teachers in the West, and quite a number of Science men get employment on survey work on the railways and in the mines.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalised company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Butterfly's Long Trip

Brilliantly colored butterflies or moths, three inches in length and brightly hued, are not common in Canada, and consequently some workmen in a Toronto lumber yard were surprised to see one of this kind fluttering around in a car. It was in with some ash lumber, which arrived from the Southern States, so that evidently it had traveled the distance from its native clime in a box car. It was three inches long and measured three and a half inches from tip to tip of the wings. The body was two and a half inches long and the wings were striped with grey, yellow, black and white.

ther must Canada, with calm, deliberate, clear-eyed purpose, make resolve that she is committed to this conflict to her last man and her last dollar—not for the Empire's sake alone, but for her own sake and the sake of her national ideals. And when once Canada has already conceived it as her obligation to throw her entire national life and resources into this conflict, the problem then becomes a very simple one, namely, one of administration.

If it is clearly understood that every fit Canadian man is pledged to this war, then first let the Government take immediate steps for the enrollment, not of 20,000, but of 100,000 or 200,000 Canadians available for active service. Then from these enrolled men let contingents be selected for immediate training and sent on to the front as soon as they can be equipped and fitted and as they me be needed.

I am no pessimist, but I confess that that long, swaying line of men locked in deadly embrace on the French frontier, is ominous of possible disaster; these daring raids of German submarines are suggestive of dangers in a direction where we thought we were invincible. So far the war has gone well, but after all what signifies the loss of a few hundred thousand men to Germany out of her eight million soldiers, not to speak of the uncalled multitudes available out of her sixty-five millions of people? And we have yet to hear from Turkey—the possibilities of Islam as an anti-British force are faint it is true, but they are as yet unexplored. Then there is Italy. A sudden great disaster on the line of battle, which is by no means outside the fortune of war, a chance and fatal raid upon our fleet, an unforseen combination of crushing calamities, all of which lie within the possibilities of war, might change in one week the hue of our horizon. What then? It is the commonplace of war that battles are lost before they are fought. Let Canada wake before it is too late. Regrets are cheap and, however bitter, are unavailing. Let Canada prepare, eagerly, swiftly, surely prepare to-day, that in the last deadly crisis of the desperate fight she may be able to throw the weight of her young might upon the wavering line of battle and help to hurl the enemy backward in defeat. The final touch may be Canada's. There is no place for hysteria, but there is place for haste. Not a contingent, but the whole nation will fulfill Canada's obligation; and not when the cry comes for help but now should the preparation be made.

With a clear conscience and a steadfast heart we can invoke the God, not of battles, but the God of Righteousness and Truth to our aid, but only after we have made our full preparation; and if by God's good hand our men should not be needed, the loss is small, but if the day should come when there was desperate need for our men and we were found unready, not even God could help us then. The which may God forbid.

"RALPH CONNOR."

JAPS PUT TWENTY-SIX GERMAN GUNS OUT OF ACTION IN CHINA

Peking, China., Nov. 4.—Since Tuesday morning no word has been received by wireless telegraphy from the defenders of Tsing-tau, the fortified position of the German concession of Kiao-Chow in the Chinese Province of Shantung.

The Japanese began a general bombardment of the fortress with heavy siege guns several days ago.

Tokio, Japan, Nov. 4.—A despatch received here from Tsi-nan, in Shantung Province, China, says the Japanese forces before Tsing-tau, the fortified position of the German territory of Kiao-Chow, have destroyed 26 German guns and captured 800 prisoners.

Fleet Shells Forts.

New York, Nov. 4.—The East and West News Bureau made public today the following cable despatch received by them from Tokio:

"The navy general staff made today, Nov. 4, at 3 p.m., the following official announcement:

On Nov. 1 the Japanese fleet, together with English warships, made an effective bombardment on the Iltis and other forts. On Nov. 2 at 3 a.m. the Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elizabeth seemed to have been blown up in Kiao-Chow Bay. On Nov. 3 the floating dock in the Tsing-tau harbor listed and sunk."

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

End Itching Scalp and Stop Falling Hair—At Once.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To dothis, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

SAYS CANADIAN PRESS HELPS THE GERMANS

This is the Opinion of Japanese Official Who Contends Too Much News About Troops is Published—German Spy System Perfect all Over the World

Ottawa, Nov. 4.— Consul-General Yoda, of Japan, when seen this morning was quite frank in admitting that the victory of the German squadron off the coast of Chili, if correctly reported, was a serious blow, but he was extremely reticent regarding the movements of Japanese war vessels on the Pacific.

"I do not know where the Japanese ships are but even if I knew I would not say," was Mr. Yoda's remark. He added that far too much had been published in British and particularly Canadian newspapers regarding the movements of troops and vessels of the allies.

Web of German Espionage.

This was, he said, in large measure responsible for the successes of Germany. Throughout the whole world there was a perfectly woven web of German espionage and every particle of information published in newspapers was immediately transmitted to German authorities.

Mr. Yoda observed that this system of German espionage was strong in Canada, particularly on the Pacific coast. There was German spies, he stated, right here in Ottawa and the Canadians could not be too careful as to what they said and did.

Primitive Fish Hooks

What sort of hooks did our ancestors, our really remote ancestors, use "when wild in wood the noble savage ran?" I am inclined to agree with the American view that the earliest type of hook, if hook it can be called, was a straight bit of flint buried in the bait. When the fish had swallowed the bit of meat, or whatever the bait was, the tightening of the line pulled the flint across its throat, and, as it stuck there, the fish could be hauled ashore without more ado. Perhaps some bright innovator of that misty past one day tried a bit of flint which had a double curve like a pair of buffalo horns and found it effective, and perhaps out of that developed the genuine double hook, which seems to have been a very early form. And perhaps the single hook came into being because it was realized that one hand was as efficient as two for the most purposes.—Rod and Gun.

Rugby Still Unspoiled

Rugby is a great amateur sport, one of the truly amateur sports in Canada. Professionalism has not invaded the field and there are no immediate prospects. It will, no doubt, be a sorry day for the game when Mr. Money-Bags forms a league and begins to swing the big bundle to lure and entice away the amateurs. The Canadian Rugby Union, which is a strong body, controls the situation and so far the game has been managed properly.—Toronto Sunday World.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

RATS AND CANCER

Rodents Prove Dread Disease Caused by Irritation

Speaking of his observations at the Medical Congress at London and the International Cancer Conference at Brussels, Belgium, Dr. J. George Adami, of McGill University, Montreal, said:

"The most significant advancement in medical research which I noted was at the Cancer Conference with regard to the announcement of experiments made upon rats as to the cause of cancer.

"The cockroach had been found to be infested with small worms which when permitted to work caused irritation and cancer. The cockroaches containing these worms were fed to rats, and the rats became infested with cancer. Although this is only one step towards ascertaining the cause of cancer in human beings, yet it proved the theory that cancer is caused by irritation."

Wolves Near St. John

Wolves were seen near St. John, N. B., recently for the first time since the days of the early settlers in the district. John Johnston, of Gilbert's Lane, was enjoying an early morning stroll in Rockwood Park, about a mile back from the nearest settled section, when he saw four large black wolves and a cub. Two of the animals followed him for a short distance. They did not show any intention of attacking him, but he did not wait to make any closer investigation of their intentions.

While wolves are known to exist in the densely wooded regions in the north of the province, it is many years since any have been reported in the south.

BAKER'S STRONG MUSCLES

The Home Run Artist Has a Tremendously Powerful Body

Many stories are told of Frank ("Home Run") Baker's gigantic strength. Here is what Charlie Herzog has to say of him:

"I remember one time Baker and his younger brother and I were arguing over the weight of a sack of phosphate used in fertilizing. Neither young Baker nor I could lift it, but Frank had his brother sit on it, then carried both the phosphate and his brother across the barnyard with no trouble at all.

"Another time he offered to bet that he could throw a wagon axle further with one hand than his brother or I could with both. We had an awful time swinging the thing ten or twelve feet but Frank, taking hold of one end of the thing with his right hand, gave it a flip and sent it more than twenty feet.

"It's no wonder Frank can hit a baseball nine miles when he lays onto one. He figures he's going to get a hit every time he goes to bat and wonders what's wrong when he doesn't."

POULTRY KILLING KNIFE

Best Instrument For the Purpose Made From Old File

For killing poultry a special knife may be made, according to the following directions by a Government expert.

The knives in common use in bleeding and braining poultry are not suited to their purpose. The blades are too broad and too long, and the curve at the point should be on the back instead of on the cutting edge. The handle is so large that the killer is encouraged to use too much force in making the cut to bleed, whereas a light touch of the sharp knife, properly directed, is all that is needed to cut the blood vessels. The knives are also insanitary in that dirt collects at the junction of the blade and handle.

The knife which is to be used to bleed and brain poultry should be small, with a narrow blade; stiff, so that it does not bend; of the best steel, so that it can be kept sharp and is not nicked when used in braining; and the handle and blade should be in one piece. Such a knife, with the aid of the emery wheel or grindstone and oilstone, can be made from an 8-inch flat file.

To make this knife the handle of the file should first be ground off. Then the blade should be shaped from the small end of the file. It should be 2 inches long, one-fourth inch wide, and one-eighth inch thick at the back. The curve to make the point should slope from the back downward. A blade of this shape reaches the blood vessels to be cut more surely than does a blade on which the point curves upward. After the blade is made the ridges on the file should be ground down, leaving just enough roughness to prevent the knife slipping in the hand of the killer. The length of the knife, over all, should be 7 inches.

Origin of Old Expression

When William Rufus, second of the Norman kings, ruled in England he made a law that gave freedom to a man condemned to die, providing the convict proved he could read.

The first verse of the 51st Psalm in Latin was the test. If it was read correctly the magistrate announced that the condemned man "read like a clerk," and he was liberated. He was given the benefit of learning, or the benefit of clergy, which in that day meant learning.

New Clothing Fabric

A new fabric intended for undergarments will stretch lengthwise, but not across the weave of the material.

MAKING STEEL PENS

This Industry Has Developed in About a Century

The advent of the steel pen dates back to about 100 years ago, when steel pens of the barrel type—that is with the holder and pen in one piece—were made and sold for 50 cents.

To James Perry belongs the credit of bringing steel pens into general use. He began pen-making in Manchester in 1819, and ultimately developed the pen trade in London before the prominent Birmingham makers, Mitchell, Gilliot and Mason, caused a revolution in the trade by machine made pens.

The greatest improvement to the manufacture was the adoption of a screw hand press for the cutting out of pens. By means of this process one man can cut as many as 45,000 blanks a day.

The shape is given to the blanks, of course, by the dies in the press, and there are many different types of pen to be made. As a matter of fact, a leading pen maker has a catalogue containing 5,000 varieties of pens, while it has been estimated that no fewer than 10,000 different shapes and sizes are on the market.

The great objection to the steel pen when it first came into general use was its stiffness. There was not that "give" and spring in the metal pen which characterized the old fashioned goose quill pen. This was remedied however, by the side splits we see in pens to-day, and for many years the method of slitting the pens by means of a press was kept secret by those famous pen makers, Gilliot and Mason.

Briefly, the method of manufacture of a steel pen to-day may be described as follows: The blanks are pierced and the slits cut, after which the pen requires to be softened by annealing. Then they are raised and hardened, scoured with acid, colored, varnished and dried, girls afterward looking over the pens, throwing aside the faulty ones and packing the good ones into boxes ready for sale.

Pinhole Photography

For pinhole photography, any rectangular box that is absolutely light-tight will answer. In one end insert a very thin plate of metal, in which a minute hole has been made with the point of a needle, and at the other end place the sensitive plate. If you possess an ordinary camera you may remove the lens and replace it with the pinhole. A prolonged exposure is required, about twenty or thirty times the ordinary one for any given subject. No focussing is required, as the image is always fairly sharp, no matter what distance the plate is from the hole. The larger the plate the wider the angle, and the greater the distance between pinhole and plate the larger the image. Pleasingly soft effects of landscape subjects in particular may be obtained by means of the pinhole.

Waistcoats for Women

A remarkable women's fashion reported from Paris consists in wearing waistcoats of the regulation men's style and size. Some experts predict that a man's heavy gold watch chain will follow suit, to give a finish to the garment.

Smart Quebec Kiddies

The percentage of children around the age of seven years in the province of Quebec who cannot read or write is now practically nil, according to the statement of the head of the Department of Education.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One case nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

ART OF GROWING TALL

You May Easily Increase Your Height by This Process

Not a little envy must have been created in the minds of those who lack stature, and who aspire to greater physical height than that with which nature has endowed them, by the recent announcement that there is a man living who can add several inches to his height in the course of a few minutes. Such extraordinary growing powers are, of course, unique; but, at the same time, it is possible, without artificial aids, but by merely indulging in certain exercises, to add appreciably to one's height, even after what is popularly known as the "stop growing" period has been passed.

It should be mentioned, however, that exercises are scarcely likely to be beneficial after one has passed thirty years of age, for at that time the bones and cartilages have been so thoroughly matured that it is practically impossible to affect them. The following exercise, however, is often indulged in by army men, and if systematically carried on is said to give a man an extra inch in height.

The main exercise consists in standing, back to wall, until you are just as erect as possible. Then take two paces forward away from the wall, letting the arms hang by the sides with palms outward, and slowly raise the arms above the head until the fingers meet, taking care not to bend the arms in the least, and keeping the palms outward; then lower the arms. By doing this exercise thirty times in the morning and thirty times at night every day for a month or so, one seldom fails to add at least half an inch to the height, and it has been known to give a man even an inch and a half.

There are also certain simple rules which, if carried out, add considerably to one's height. There is the old habit of stooping, for instance. Nearly everyone stoops a little, and if we would only endeavor, as far as possible, to prevent this habit, we should not only look taller but feel taller.

Endeavor to sit up perfectly straight at all times, and stand up perfectly straight. It is not easy at first, particularly when one follows a sedentary occupation. In fact, one is rather apt to feel uncomfortable, but by quiet persistence it will be found quite as easy in a short time to walk and sit perfectly upright as it is to stoop.

If you wish to relax when sitting, don't get into an easy chair and bend over or sag down into a lazy position. Always rest in a chair by leaning back, no matter how far; but never bend forward to rest or talk or read.

TIRED METALS

Metals get tired with over-working just as much as human beings do. And, like human beings, they need a holiday and complete rest in order to recover from the strain and rush of modern life!

It was Lord Kelvin who showed that metals suffer from fatigue. He kept iron wires in constant motion during a week, and watched the way they acted. At the end of the week they had lost a considerable amount of their original elasticity. He gave them a day's rest and they completely recovered. He further experimented and discovered that an iron bar, after a three weeks' rest, gained ten per cent. in elasticity. In repeated experiments he found that steel and wrought iron deteriorated very rapidly if they were worked continuously, and, in the long run, break up completely, just as the human being does. Knocking them off work at regular intervals adds years to their powers of resistance.

A good instance of this was shown by Lord Kelvin. A steel rail, which had done service for over twenty years, suddenly broke into half-a-dozen pieces under the weight of a passing train. For the whole of that twenty years it had not had a day's holiday. Lord Kelvin pointed out that if that rail had had proper rests it would have done duty for another twenty years. As it was the strain was too great for it.

CANADA'S MINES

Coal Our Most Important Product With Silver Next

Particularly fortunate in its great store of mineral wealth is Canada. From this storehouse is being drawn an increasing and seemingly unending output of minerals. Before the year 1890 mineral production in Canada was comparatively small. In 1890, however, the production of all minerals exceeded 16 million dollars or a production of $3.50 per capita. The mineral output from that time showed a phenomenal development, increasing by 1900 more than three and a half times to a total exceeding 64 millions. Now, however, this figure has been more than doubled, the present total production being more than 132 million dollars, or $18 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion. Of the metals, silver is the most important in value, followed by pig iron, nickel, copper and gold, but the non-metal mineral product, coal, exceeds in value any of the metals, the yearly output of coal amounting to about $26,000,000.

Sheepskins in Gas Meters

It will undoubtedly surprise many to learn that sheepskin plays an important part in the construction and operation of the gas meter. The leather is used to form the "diaphragms" or two bellows from which gas is drawn when a jet is lighted. They are thoroughly saturated with oil and fastened between two circular pieces of metal, acting precisely as the diaphragm in the human bo[illegible] When gas is drawn from one [illegible] other is refilled, so the consu[illegible] given an even and constant [illegible]

A Valuable Pearl

The most valuable pearl ever found on the American continent was discovered by Dr. Jesse Carr, on the banks of the Fox River. It weighed sixty-two grains and was a perfect specimen. The finder named it "Queen of America" and presented it to his wife. On his first opportunity he took it to Chicago to have it appraised, and was astonished when he was told that it was worth over $10,000.

ROUGH TACTICS WIN PENNANTS

Baseball General of Bygone Day Believes in Real Warfare on the Diamond

Patsy Tebeau, one of the gamest of old-time managers, has no use for "kid glove" baseball. When he heard that President Ban Johnson regarded Manager Birmingham's Cleveland players as "too rough" Patsy expressed the opinion that the mollycoddle days had come.

"Show me a ball club that is fighting every inch of the way and I'll show you a team that is after the pennant," he said. "This having players shaking hands every time they meet is foolish. It gives the fans the wrong impression. You've got to get the fighting spirit to win.

"We never thought of greeting our opponents. Our idea was to get out and beat them. I can see a runner sliding to first with me playing the bag and getting his head pumped with the ball. Think I'd apologize? Not Patsy Tebeau! 'Get your head out of the way and you won't get hurt,' would be more like it. About a year ago I saw a fellow steal second. He came up all dust, and what do you think happened? Why, the second baseman helped him dust his uniform. And that team finished last in the race. That isn't my brand of baseball.

"Rush the other fellows off their feet. Make them think you're tough. Scare them to death and you've got them licked. We used to sit on the bench and file our spikes. They had to be sharp to give when they cut into the ground and at the same time the other team knew we wouldn't give an inch in a pinch. One day I was sharpening my spikes when I heard a man on the other team say, 'When Tebeau slides into me you bet I'm going to get out of the way.' I had him scared, see?

"There's a difference between rowdyism and aggressiveness. The aggressive player will be on top when the parlor boy is at the bottom. Off the field, oh, well, that's different. On the field fight them to the last."

PATSY TEBEAU
Fighting manager of the old Cleveland Spiders.

BEN TINCUP IS RICH

Indian Pitcher Plays Ball Only Because He Likes It

The majority of ball players are in the game for the amount of money they can get out of it; a few play it because of their love for the pastime. Ben Tincup belongs to the latter class. Tincup is a Cherokee Indian pitcher the Phillies picked up. He hails from Texas, and is said to be the richest ball player in the world, and probably one of the wealthiest men in baseball.

When the Indian comes of age in a few months his yearly income will be over $50,000 a year. He already has $20,000 stored away in a bank, besides being the possessor of 400 acres of valuable oil lands in Oklahoma, which the Government is leasing for him. So if Tincup fails to make good in the big leagues he won't have any cause to worry.

Since he is one of the few remaining Cherokee Indians, all the Oklahoma lands are held in trust for him. As soon as he is 21 years old he will go to Washington to collect the dividends which are accumulating for him. As Tincup's allotment of land was among the oil fields he is wealthier than many of the other survivors of the Cherokee tribe.

Preparing in Time

Antwerp has already commenced to prepare for the Olympic games, to be held in that city in 1920. A committee has been formed, and the support of the most influential persons in Belgium obtained.

The town authorities are to obtain a vote of several million francs for the expenses, and everything is being done to make the event a huge success. In recent years Belgium has come to the fore in international sports.

Forget Bride For Dog

So anxious was Charles Human, of Carlisle, Pa., a noted wing shot, to recover a black and white pointer that he had lost that he forgot that it was his wedding day. When he was told an hour before the wedding by his kennel keeper that the dog had disappeared he rushed out of the house and started hunting through the woods of his estate and the wedding party was getting nervous when he was reached by phone after finding his dog. He hurried to the bride's home to explain as best he could that he had "forgotten."

COMPLAINTS FROM CHINA

Far Away Wives Want the Money Husbands Earn in Montreal

Acting upon complaints which came all the way from China, prominent Chinese merchants in Montreal appealed to Chief Campeau for his assistance in a final attempt to put a stop to the wholesale gathering of married and single laundrymen in the various joints along Lagauchetiere street in that city, where they are lured by the fan tan game to hazard their earnings of a week at one sitting around the plain wooden table, over which the keeper presides and from which he takes the bets in unceasingly.

The gambling and its baneful influence was so far-reaching that far-off China was heard from in the complaint of the nine wives of as many Chinamen, who were sending no money home on account of fan tan.

The letters sent to Montreal declared that for a long time gambling has diverted the flow of money from the wives of many Canadian Chinamen, to the pockets of the fan tan gambling houses, and tales of hardship were recounted by the women, mothers of children, whose fathers were doing nothing for their maintenance.

When Chief Campeau was appealed to he readily accepted the offer of the delegation of Chinese merchants who agreed to place him in touch with the meeting places of the Tongs, where gambling was likely to take place. Heretofore it has been a difficult job to catch Chinamen at a fan tan game, and it is declared that the number of successful raids do not come anywhere near in numbers the ones which brought no results, other than to find a meeting of Chinamen with nothing in sight to indicate that a game was in progress. Spies are placed as far away as one hundred yards, and the semaphore signals of Boy Scouts are a poor second compared to the speed of the sentry once the police appear in sight.

Feed For Sheep

In feeding sheep in winter hay is all-important, and, although a heavy root or cabbage crop may be an inducement to give them an extra bite to save it, it is a risky proceeding. Sheep need hay, and good hay. Sweet, wholesome hay, the produce of young grass, is both easily digested and nourishing, and, after all, a daily ration costs very little in the end. Being a dry food, it is splendidly adapted for supplying to sheep on a watery root crop, which is by no means rich in nutritious matter. It sometimes happens that the turnip crop fails, and then, if cabbage or kale are grown, all will be well. But where there is no such crop to fall back upon the pasture is the only resource, with the assistance of food in the trough.

Strange Source of Wealth

There is a man in New York who makes a good living by buying worn out rags from dentists for the particles of platinum and gold they contain.

The Mysterious Egg

The hen's egg, although weighing but 2 to 2½ ounces, is a very mysterious little thing. Whilst the sex of an egg before the latter has been incubated, cannot be ascertained, it is quite simple, on the other hand, to discover the quality of the contents before breaking the egg.

If the egg rattles when gently shaken it may be considered a stale one, more or less, in which the contents have become decomposed. The best method for a wife to adopt to ascertain the freshness of purchased eggs is the salt test. Dissolve six ounces of ordinary salt in a tumbler of water and place the egg therein. If a genuine new laid article, the egg will sink just below the surface. After seven days it will float, and the more it protrudes from the surface of the water the older the egg.

An egg that is even good only in parts will, singularly enough, lose much of its staleness during its swim.

Will Burn Nine Years.

In a Long Island factory there recently was made a candle for religious purposes, which, if burned continuously, would last for about nine years.

Our Imported Hides

Horse skins come chiefly from Russia; India is the chief contributor of buffalo hides, though small quantities come from the Straits Settlements, and the Dutch East Indies, and occasionally from Siam and Egypt. Kangaroo skins, of course, originate in Australia.

Some people seem to get a lot of enjoyment in keeping others from enjoying themselves.

Lindsay Soldiers Leave.

Warder: Lindsay and Victoria county's second contingent of volunteers for overseas service left this morning for where they will go into training for divisional headquarters at Kingston, some two or three months previous to leaving for England to join the first contingent of 22,000 Canadians. The boys were accorded a grand send-off, the C.P.R. station platform and grounds being packed with citizens, the ladies being in predominance. Despite the early hour there were a large number of youths of the town on hand, and although there were a few sad faces and a number of wet eyes, the majority of those present were in the very best of spirits.

Former Soldier's Experience

Yesterday a Times reporter happened to meet an Englishman who had been through the Boer War. Our representative, whilst discussing the present war put on us by the mad Kaiser, asked "did you ever see actual death on the battlefield?" 'Why, yes sir," he replied. "My regiment charged the Boers with bayonets at Rudder Kopje. I was in the second line. In front of me charged my bunkie George Smith. As we charged, Mauser bullets whistled by our ears as though a hive of hornets had been released. When we got to within a hundred yards of the Dutchmen, my friend, in front of me, gave a kind of sob. His legs crumpled under him and his body fell as might a tropic plant exposed to severe frost. That night, amidst a stench of reeking blood and decaying corpses, I went out with the burial squad to look over my friend. At last I found him His tunic had two bullet holes in it One bullet had pierced his heart and the other, on the right side of the breast, had been stopped in its deadly flight by a copy of Boccacios' Decameron that my friend had always carried."

A HAPPY CHILD IN JUST A F W HOURS

When Cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs" then don't worry

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrdp of Figs" because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels and you have a well playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or sore throat, diarrhoea, stomachache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages, and grown-ups, are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company" We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Of Interest to Horse Owners.

Mr. Burnham has received the following letter from Major-General Macdonald that will be of interest to horse owners:

Ottawa, 31st Oct, 1914.

Dear Mr. Burnham,—In reply to yours of the 30th instant, I fear that there is some misunderstanding as no instructions or authority have been given to anyone to purchase horses for the Canadian Government; the circumstances you refer to must be in connection with the purchase of remounts for the British Government.

As I have already stated in my previous letter, this Department, has not anything to do with these purchases, all arrangements being made through Major-General Sir Frederick Benson. It is regretted that you have been inconvenienced in any way, but I assure you that it is through no fault of this Department.

I would suggest that you communicate on the subject with above-mentioned officer and I am sure that a satisfactory explanation will be forthcoming.

Yours faithfully,
D. Macdonald.

WILL EASE YOUR THROBBING HEAD—AND STOP DROPPINGS IN THE THROAT

You can end a cold mighty quick—cure it completely—by Catarrhozone. Any sort of Catarrh, whether in nose, throat or bronchial tubes, can be driven forever out of the system by simply breathing in the healing vapor of Catarrhozone.

It's in the nostrils and air passages that Catarrh germs breed. The germ-killing vapor of Catarrhozone means instant death to these germs—means that a healing process is started throughout all the sore membranes, thereby effectually ridding the system of the real cause of the trouble.

Catarrhozone promptly opens up clogged nostrils, takes that irritating pain out of the nose, prevents the formation of hard painful crusts. If there is a nasty discharge it disappears with a few hours' use of Catarrhozone Inhaler. If a bad cold keeps you sneezing, if you have dull frontal pains over the eyes, you'll get the speediest cure possible with Catarrhozone.

Years of wonderful success in Europe and America have proven Catarrhozone a specific for all catarrhal, throat, bronchial and breathing-organ troubles. Simple, pleasant, safe and sure. Use the tried and proven remedy. Any dealer anywhere can supply Catarrhozone, large complete outfit $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c.

In Canada are hundreds of business firms striving with all their might to make better times for themselves and their communities. To them all honor.

But there are other firms — manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers — who are "standing pat," "playing safe," doing absolutely nothing to build up business. They are mere lookers on, not participating in the valorous struggle of their brethren to maintain and establish good times.

Look about you and you will find in the advertising columns of this and other newspapers many messages from firms with a sturdy confidence in the future.

German Cruiser Goes to the Bottom; Sunk by a Mine Off German Coast--Reported That Von Kluk Has Been Killed--British Bombard Jaffa

GERMAN CRUISER SUNK BY A MINE THE KOENIGSBERG ALSO DISABLED

The Yorck of 9350 Tons Meets Her Fate in the Mine Game the Germans are so Fond of Playing--Two German Cruisers Which Took Part in Naval Battle off Chilean Coast are Not Yet Reported--Where are They?

London, Nov. 5.—The German cruiser Yorck has struck a mine in Jade Bay and sunk.

The information regarding the sinking of the Yorck reached London in an Amsterdam despatch to the Reuter's Telegram Company. It stated that an official despatch from Berlin said that the Yorck, on the forenoon of November 4, struck a mine chain blocking the entrance to Jade Bay and sank.

Late reports declare that 382 men, ready been saved, but that the rescue more than half of her crew, had al work was hampered by a thick fog.

The Yorck was an armoured cruiser of 9,350 tons, built in 1903, and is equipped with four 8-inch, ten 6-inch and 17 smaller guns. She had a speed of 21 knots and a complement of 557 men. She was 403 feet long.

Jade Bay, where the vessel was sunk, is an inlet of the North Sea on the German coast west of the mouth of the River Weser.

Koenigsberg Also Disabled

London, Thursday Nov. 5. — The Times prints a report to-day that the German cruiser Koenigsberg has been put out of action in the Indian Ocean.

The Koenigsberg is a protected cruiser and was laid down in 1905. She is of 3,348 tons, is 354 feet long, and has a speed of 23½ knots. Her main battery consists of ten 4.1 inch guns.

Admiralty Has No News

London, Nov. 5.—Rumors and reports have been received at the Admiralty from various sources of a naval battle having occurred off the Chilean coast. The Admiralty has no official confirmation of this and such accounts as they have received rest admittedly on German evidence.

It is reported that the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Leipzig, Dresden and the Nurnberg concentrated near Valparaiso, and that an engagement was fought with a portion of Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock's squadron on Sunday last. The German report asserts that the Monmouth was sunk and the Good Hope very severely damaged, The Glasgow and the auxiliary cruiser Otranto broke of the action and escaped.

The Admiralty cannot accept these facts as accurate at present, for the battleship Canopus specially was sent to strengthen Rear-Admiral Cradock's squadron, and would have given him a decided superiority not mentioned in them. Further, although five German ships concentrated in Chilean waters only three entered Valparaiso harbor. It is possible, therefore, that when the full account of the action is received it may considerably modify the German version. Effective measures have been taken to deal with the matter in any event.

Germans Have Been Decisively Defeated in West Belgium

Are Also Being Pressed Back Along the Eastern Frontier--Germans are Pushing Additional Forces Into France, But This Will Not Count, as the Allies Have Been Heavily Reinforced--Situation Excellent

PARIS, NOV. 5.—THAT THE ALLIES ARE EITHER ADVANCING OR ARE HOLDING THE GERMANS IN CHECK, DESPITE ASSAULTS OF THE MOST DESPERATE NATURE, WAS OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED THIS AFTERNOON. THE THREE O'CLOCK OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE IN SUMMING UP THE DEVELOPMENTS AT THE FRONT, DECLARES THAT THE ALLIES ARE ADVANCING EAST OF NIEUPORT, BETWEEN DIXMUNDE AND THE LYS. THE GERMANS, IT IS STATED, HAVE RENEWED THEIR ATTACKS BETWEEN LARWEEN LABASSEE AND THE SOMME, AND ARE USING THEIR ARTILLERY AT EVERY POINT. IN GENERAL THE SITUATION IS DESCRIBED AS EXCELLENT FROM THE STANDPOINT OF THE ALLIES.

PARIS, NOV. 5.—INCREASINGLY OPTIMISTIC REPORTS FROM THE BATTLE FRONT ARE REACHING THE MILITARY HEADQUARTERS. THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN DECISIVELY DEFEATED IN BELGIUM, BETWEEN OSLEN AND THE FRENCH BORDER. THEY ARE ALSO BEING PRESSED FAR BACK ALONG THE EASTERN FRONTIER.

IT IS REPORTED HERE THAT THE GERMANS ARE RUSHING ADDITIONAL TROOPS INTO FRANCE, IN THE NORTH, BUT THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES DECLARE THAT THIS WILL NOT AVAIL, INASMUCH AS THE FRENCH AND BRITISH HAVE THEMSELVES HEAVILY REINFORCED THE NORTHERN LINE. MOST OF THE BRITISH TERRITORIAL TROOPS WHO HAVE VOLUNTEERED FOR FOREIGN SERVICE ARE NOW ON THE FIRING OR THE RESERVE LINE IN THE NORTH.

PARIS, NOV. 5.—THE CORRESPONDENT OF THE EXCELSIOR AT HAVRE SAYS HE HAS, FROM A SOURCE WHICH HE DOES NOT DESIGNATE, NEWS OF THE DEATH OF GENERAL VON KLUCK TEN DAYS AGO IN A HOSPITAL AT NAMUR, WHERE HE WAS TREATED FOR A WOUND IN THE HEAD. THE NEWS OF THE ALLEGED DEATH, THE CORRESPONDENT SAYS, HAS BEEN CAREFULLY CONCEALED IN BELGIUM AND GERMANY.

GENERAL VON KLUK REPORTED KILLED

General Von Kluck, who led the dash of the German right wing which got to within a few miles of Paris in the first month of the fighting, has been reported within the last two or three days in official communications as directing his army in the fighting on the River Aisne. When the scene of severe fighting had shifted to Belgium and the German right wing was extended into that territory, General Von Kluck, following his skillful retreat from the vicinity of Paris, remained in the position he and taken on the Aisne. The fighting there recently has been over-shadowed by the operations in Belgium, and General Von Kluck and his army, according to reports, have been given a much needed rest.

CANADIANS IN BUFFALO SAID TO BE WELL ARMED WITH GUNS

They Take the Possibility of a German Raid on Canada Seriously and Are Preparing to Fight if Necessary--A Torontonian Gives His Experience in Buffalo--Told to Take His Tri-Colors From off His Coat if He Did Not Wish to Return Home in a Box

Toronto, Nov. 5.— An interesting story of the concern which is felt by Canadian residents of Buffalo over the greatly increased German population of that city is told by Mr. J. W. Geddes of 425 Spadina avenue.

Canadians in Buffalo, says Mr. Geddes, are taking quite seriously what they consider to be a menace, both to Canada and themselves.

"When I was in that city a few days ago," he states, "I had a bit of red, white and blue ribbon in my hat, As I was boarding a street car a gentleman in the same seat whispered to me: 'You had better take that out of your hat unless you want to go home in a box.'

All Are Carrying Guns

"He, himself, was a Canadian. He told me that all Canadians in Buffalo were carrying revolvers and expected, at any time, to have to use them. The whole current of feeling there is seething with the possibilities of trouble. I am no alarmist, but I feel it my duty to tell what I found there and what Canadians, who are living there, have to say.

"There is a good deal of bitter feeling in Buffalo against the British. I saw crowds of men standing on the street corners who didn't look like residents."

"I learned over there that many of the German residents of the city are railroad men firemen, brakesmen, wipers and even drivers— and it would not be difficult, if they had intentions upon Canada, for them to seize a train and be off across the border before any steps could be taken to stop them."

THE RETREAT OF GERMANS FROM FLANDERS OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED

London, Nov. 5.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Rotterdam says he has received official confirmation of the advance of the allies on all of the West Flanders front and he adds:

"The German military bakeries have been removed in a southerly direction from Ostend, showing the intended retreat of the main German force.

"I have learned from reliable sources that last week's transfer of the Ninth German Army Corps has been completed from Belgium and France to East Prussia and that only half of their number has been replaced by volunteers.

"The Germans are short of big gun ammunition in West Flanders and transport is impossible owing to the inundations. Interned Germans say they can fight men but not a waste of waters."

Loss at Sea Counterbalanced

London, Nov. 5.—Although England continued today to await with some uneasiness official news as to the fate of certain of her warships in the Pacific which were engaged last Sunday with a German fleet off the coast of Chile, this anxiety has been in a measure counterbalanced by the apparently favorable situation of the allied arms, with of the eastern and western arenas.

The first German rush for the French coast having been checked, the news of the next few days will determine the correctness or the falsity of the predictions as to the seriousness of the renewed German attempt to get to the coast by a more southerly route. There was nothing in the reports from West Flanders during the forenoon to indicate the trend of the new German attack, although Ypres continued to figure in the despatches as the military key against which the Germans proposed to deliver their hardest blows.

BRITISH CRUISERS BOMBARD FORTIFICATIONS OF JAFFA

Rome, Italy, Nov. 5.—It is reported here that British cruisers are to-day bombarding the fortifications of the town of Jaffa. This is Joppa of Biblical times, and it is only 31 miles from Jerusalem, now in possession of the Turks. It is considered quite probable that Britain intends to send an expedition quickly to occupy the whole of Palestine.

Paris. Nov. 5.—The correspondent of the Excelsior of Havre, says he has authoritative news of the death of General Von Kluck ten days ago in a hospital at Namur, where he was treated for a wound in the head.

London, Nov. 5.—Major General Robert George Kekewich, who defended Kimberley against the assaults of the Boers in the last Boer War, and who had just been recalled to the colours for a high position in Earl Kitchener's new army, died suddenly to-day at his home in Devonshire.

Southwold, Eng., Nov. 5.— Heavy cannonading was reported from the North Sea today. It is not known whether or not British warships were engaged with the German squadron which was reported to have left the Wilhelmshaven base. The Admiralty had no information this afternoon on the subject.

GERMAN ARMIES ARE EXHAUSTED BUT MORE SIEGE WARFARE LIKELY

Opinion here is divided as to whether this fresh attempt to open a way to the channel with rival in intensity the struggle along the Yser. Some British optimists hold that the apparent exhaustion of the Germans is an indication that they are really planning to fall back, as they did before Paris, on the entrenchments they have been so carefully preparing everywhere back of their lines. If this does occur it will mean another period of siege warfare along the entire front in Belgium and France, a condition which probably will persist until one side or the other starts off on a new tangent, as did the Germans in their coastal attempt, thus creating some new acute area of hostilities.

In the meantime the indications are that naval operations will daily become more prominent, particularly as Turkey's entrance into the situation widens the field for such operations.

Paris, Nov. 5.—Renewed violent attacks on the part of the Germans were expected to-day in the region between Dixmude and the Lys.

The recent efforts of the enemy in this section of the country, in spite of the fact that they have been reinforced by new contingents of reserves as well as by active troops are believed here to have been unsuccessful. According to the latest review of the situation made in Paris, both the allies and the Germans are fighting hard for every inch of this territory The Germans, for the time being, would appear to have abandoned their advance on the Channel ports. This being accepted as correct, the Germans are preparing to try other tactics. The French and English commanders, in the opinion of French observers, are satisfied with the result of the efforts they made yesterday, as well as with the general situation.

The telegram sent yesterday by General Joffre, commander - in- Chief of the French forces, to Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces in the field, in which General Joffre said that the French situation was good and expressed his hope that the combined efforts of the allies would bring final success, had served further to arouse confidence in France.

The question of the duration of the war is being continually asked in France and as often answered. One of the latest estimates is that made by General Berthaut who predicts that hostilities will be at an end in three months.

The General admits that the siege of Sebastopol lasted two years but says there is no reason to conclude that the present war will run such a protracted course. The relatively small armies engaged in the Crimean war made possible such prolonged contests. The General argues that today one will see Germany, fronted by the necessity of placing enormous forces of men on two fronts, reaching the point of exhaustion before either France or Russia, and that this period of exhaustion may be expected in three months. France also may be expected to reach the limit of her resources, but not so quickly as in the case of Germany.

GREAT BRITAIN HAS OFFICIALLY DECLARED WAR ON TRICKY TURK

LONDON, November 5.—It was officially announced in London to-day that a state of war exists between Great Britain and Turkey.

The proclamation to this effected, which subsequently was gazetted, read as follows:

"Owing to hostile acts committed by Turkish forces under German officers, a state of war exists between Great Britain and Turkey from to-day, and all proclamations and Orders-in-Councils issued with reference to the state of war between Great Britain and Germany and Austria shall apply to the state of war between Great Britain and Turkey."

A Privy Council was held in Buckingham Palace this morning to discuss this question. At the conclusion of the Council King George signed the documents proclaiming the state of war, and the announcement was made.

London, November 5.—Great Britain to-day formally annexed the Island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean, which nominally formed a part of the Turkish Empire.

The defensive alliance between Great Britain and Turkey having become annulled by the outbreak of war the British Government decided that it was necessary to appropriate the Island in order that proper provision might be made for its government and its protection.

BOUNDARY LINE OF FRANCE AND GERMANY RUNS THROUGH TOWN

La Schlucht, Nov. 5.—The boundary line between France and Germany runs through the main street of this town. There are two cafes facing each other—an aggressively Teutonic one on the German side, and a thing of super-Gallic grace opposite.

Some time ago, before the terrible war in this country broke out, your correspondent wandered up from the French side, and chose to lunch in France, frowning across the way at other travelling Britons who were quaffing beer in Germany.

A GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEE MAY BE A SPY

Wireless Outfit Found in His Room at Halifax--Is a Naturalized Canadian But German by Birth--Now Under Arrest by Military Authorities

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—Arthur Lauf, an employe of the Government at Halifax, has been arrested on suspicion as a German spy, and is being detained by the military authorities. Lauf was employed as an interpreter in the Immigration Department. He was arrested shortly after the war broke out, but was released on producing his naturalization papers. He was arrested again as a suspected spy, his rooms were searched and a complete wireless outfit was found. He will likely be interned as a prisoner until the war is over. He has been dismissed from the service.

The Government is working at the present time on plans for the best method of handling the Germans and Austrians who will be interned as a result of the registration which is now progressing. The Government does not wish to confine such prisoners, and particularly Germans and Austrians who are simply out of work in Canadian prisons or concentration camps. The proposal which has met with the most favor, and which will likely be adopted, is that of utilizing their labor in the Federal and Provincial Parks, cutting wood and clearing brush.

This means that in Ontario they would be put to work in Algonquin Park and in the west in Banff Park and Jasper Park.

General Sir William Otter, who is in complete charge of the work, will make a report on the whole question.

MASKED ARTISTS SING ON THAMES

Jobs Not to be Had, Says Prima Donnas Aboard Houseboats

London, Nov. 5.—How hard hit the English concert and variety artists are by the war is shown by a mysterious craft travelling slowly up and down the Thames, calling at houseboats, amusement parks, villas and cottages and stopping wherever crowds of people gather on the shores.

It's a well-sized punt, its name hidden by a board. In the centre stands a sort of hurdy-gurdy piano, and there are two women, young and attractive and two men of the same sort. One of the women strums the piano while the other sings; one man hands around a pole to which a bag made of soft cloth is attached; the second man sings occasionally.

And all wear black masks over eyes and forehead.

The women must be very pretty, indeed, to appear so with only part of their faces showing. They are neatly dressed but with an eye to economy.

The man who handles the cash, or rather angles for it, told your correspondent that he and his colleagues were artists out of work and could see no other way for making a living than entertaining the habitues of the river and exacting such toll as they could.

"If our soprano didn't wear a mask and didn't keep her identity under a cloud," he said, "the papers would be full of her name, and people would wonder that a bright star like her is among the needy, but what is one going to do? Starving is uncomfortable, to say the least, and jobs are not to be had."

CANADIANS IN FINE CONDITION INSPECTED BY KING AND QUEEN

Salisbury Plains, Nov. 4.—This has been a memorable day in the history of the Canadian contingent. Their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by Lord Kitchener and Lord Roberts, paid a flying visit to the Plains to see the first contribution of men from the Dominion to the Empire's war. The thousands of troops—cavalry, infantry and artillery—were drawn up and made a fine sight as Their Majesties and suite passed down the lines.

Visited The Camps

After the formal inspection the Royal party visited the camps. The troops lined the roadways for miles as the King and Queen, accompanied by Lord Kitchener, passed in the royal car. The cheering of the men, renewed again and again, gave stirring testimony of the loyalty of the Canadians. The appearance of Lord Roberts in one of the motors behind was the signal for a second outburst of enthusiasm, which was surpassed by that which marked the passage of the King and Queen. The men cheered again and again while Their Majesties bowed their appreciation of the stirring reception.

Men in Fine Condition

Nothing occurred to mar the inspection. Armed guards by the thousands patrolled the tracks between Waterloo Station, London, and Salisbury Plains. Special policemen and soldiers guarded the road crossings. The Royal party left shortly before noon and the camp settled down to routine.

The men are in first-rate condition, only 71 cases of illness being reported in the whole contingent. The heavy rains of last week made tent life miserable. The members of the force are looking forward eagerly to residence in the winter huts, which are to be ready soon. The Toronto regiments are in fine shape. It is the general opinion that the camp at Valcartier was better than the present training grounds, but the men are not supposed to grumble.

This Will Remove Hairy or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about two minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless, and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.

FROM ROD AND CHAIN TO PROUD POSITION

Lieutenant-Governor Hendrie of Ontario Started Busy Career With Surveyor's Gang

It was no surprise to those who have watched the career of the man when Lt.-Col. John Strathearn Hendrie, C.V.O., M.P.P., was elevated to the distinction of Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario. It was one of the essential steps in the crowning of a career which gave great promise ever since the youthful days when he started out upon the earning highway of life by carrying a rod and chain for an engineer's gang on railway construction.

Of the physical type which gives evidence of latent power, of the mental capacity which has enabled him to grasp great problems in the commercial world, of the mixing type which has permitted him to gain many tokens of the popular esteem of his fellow-citizens, of the political caste which has won the silent approval of his fellows, John Strathearn Hendrie is now reaping the harvest of his earlier industry.

Still in His Prime

Colonel Hendrie is still young in years for a man who has gathered about him so many of the world's good things, his fifty-seven years sitting upon him lightly. Grizzled of hair and moustache, there is still a youthfulness about his features which bespeaks many more years of usefulness.

There is Scotch blood in his veins, both parents having emigrated from Ayrshire, and he is also of Huguenot descent. His education was received at the Hamilton public and private schools and at Upper Canada College, after which he responded to the belief that there is nothing quite so effective as a personal grounding in the practical side of a life work. He became rodman and assistant engineer on the construction of railways, working both in Canada and the United States, from which position he speedily rose until he became manager of the Hamilton Bridge Works.

COL. THE HON. J. S. HENDRIE

Hamilton, being Col. Hendrie's home city, gave him all his honors, except the last. His business enterprises have been diversified, but it was not until he was chosen Mayor of Hamilton in 1901 that his merits as a citizen were recognised in tangible form.

Elected to the Legislature

The following year saw him in the Provincial Legislature as a follower of Sir James Whitney. Recognition from the Ontario Government came in 1905 when he was selected a Commissioner for the Hydro-Electric, and the same year saw him admitted to the Cabinet as a Minister without portfolio.

In and about the chambers of Parliament Col. Hendrie is looked upon as a silent man, somewhat indifferent, and when upon the floor of the House no one can accuse him of verbosity. One who has watched the proceedings of Parliament for years vouches for the statement that in his last four sessions he did not make a speech in the House. One might see him sauntering into the chamber hours after the deliberations began, apparently paying little attention to the routine of Parliament, sinking back in his chair and watching with the attitude of one to whom all this was an old story. But while Col. Hendrie watched in silence, he also worked.

As a Soldier

In the military world his ardor was felt for years. His first activity came when he linked his interests with the 4th Battery of Canadian Field Artillery, in which company he had risen to the rank in 1909. It is interesting to note that Col. Hendrie has always been an advocate of compulsory military training. In private life a fondness for horses has been one of his features, and he has done much to promote that sport. He is a member of many clubs and also a past president of the Canadian Artillery Association, the decoration of C.V.O. coming during his command of the Canadian Artillery at Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897

Tobacco Growing in Ireland

Efforts are being made to increase the tobacco industry in Ireland, the soil of which is said to be suitable for raising almost all varieties of leaf.

Sponge-like Lead

Porous lead, filled with microscopic cavities, has been invented by a Danish scientist to diminish the weight and increase the surface of storage batteries.

Wood For Lead Pencils

Government experts after tests have decided that juniper wood is the most available substitute for the rapidly disappearing red cedar for lead pencils.

Glorious War

M. Philouse, a French statistician, calculates that the war in the Balkans cost the belligerent countries $500,000,000. The money went for ammunition that was fired away, arms that were largely lost or broken, for soldiers' clothing that was worn out, food, etc. There is nothing material to show for it. The situation is as if a fire had swept over the land and destroyed so much property. The countries as a whole and the people individually are poorer than they were when the war began. Their case illustrates what the waste of war means.—Montreal Gazette.

MAKING THE WEATHER FOR THE DOMINION

Some Information on "Old Probs'" Methods of Forecasting What Is in Store For Us

From the Canadian Observatory and Meteorological Office on Bloor street, Toronto, the weather forecasts for the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland are prepared and distributed. The first stage in the preparation of this daily forecast is the gathering of information as to the prevailing conditions of the weather in all parts of the Dominion, in Newfoundland, and also in the United States. Forty-one stations report daily to the central office. These stations are equipped with suitable instruments for making the various weather observations such as, the pressure of the air, the temperature at time of observation, the maximum and minimum readings of the thermometer during the twenty-four hours, the relative humidity of the atmosphere, the direction and force of the wind, the amount of rainfall or snow, the kind of clouds and where they are moving from, whether the sky is clear, fair or cloudy. These observations are taken at the same time at all stations, which means, however, that owing to difference in longitude while Ontario observations are taken at 8 a.m. and 8 p.m., those in the Maritime provinces are recorded at 9 o'clock morning and evening, on the Pacific Coast at 5 o'clock and the Yukon at 4 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The reports are sent by a code which sums up the complete observation in three or four words. Including volunteer stations observations are sent from 548 points in the Dominion, although for the forecasting service the reports are required only for every 120 miles

The United States Meteorological service has 175 stations and these interchange reports daily with the Canadian service. Besides this the Observatory receives daily reports covering weather conditions in practically all the countries of the Northern Hemisphere. When these observations have been received two charts are made out, one covering North America and Newfoundland, and another the whole Northern Hemisphere—in the latter, the weather conditions are represented in less detail. These maps give the material from which the forecaster works—from knowing what the conditions are and applying the principles of forecasting the weather man is able to tell with a fair degree of accuracy what the weather will be for the next twenty-four hours, and at times to hazard a reasonable guess at the probabilities for the next two or three days.

JEWISH LONGEVITY

Due to Their Practice of Inspecting Meat, Says Medico

"The Jews have been the only people in the entire world who during the last twenty centuries required that every animal killed for food should undergo a post-mortem examination," says a contributor to a well known medical journal in urging greater liberality among Jews as to permitting autopsies on their dead. These are allowed among the orthodox only when they are "an honor to the dead; when a human life can be saved thereby—for instance, when there is present a sick man who suffers from the same malady from which the deceased died," but never for experimental purposes. Continuing the writer says: "Carcasses found on examination to have suffered during life from an incurable disease or injury were considered trepha, or unfit to eat, and those found to be sound were considered kosher, fit to eat. There is no doubt that the longevity of the Jews and their comparative immunity to a number of diseases are due to the fact that for centuries they have not ingested contaminated meat.

"It is quite incomprehensible why the other nations among whom the Jews dwelt, and whose general culture was higher than that of the Jews, have not grasped the hygienic importance of the Jewish method of postmortem examination of slaughtered animals. It is only a few decades since the civilised world made the discovery of meat inspection and its bearing on the health of the people. And even in our days the custom of meat inspection is practised in a desultory manner."

Five Barreled Megapone

A five barreled megaphone, with tubes radiating in as many directions, has been invented by a Maine woman to save a person turning around and repeating his words when making an announcement.

Internal Combustion Locomotive

After many tests an internal combustion locomotive, using crude oil fuel, is proving satisfactory in Germany, frequently attaining a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Celluloid Wings for Aeroplanes.

Celluloid wings for aeroplanes that are said to be so transparent as to be invisible 300 feet in the air have been invented by a German engineer.

DOGS OF THE WILD

Australian Dingoes or Wild Dogs Easily Domesticated

Although the highest authorities agree in stating that the dingo was at some remote period introduced into Australia, and that it subsequently reverted to a wild state—like the "wild" horses of the Andes—there are still those who regard this dog as one of the original wild dogs from which our domestic dogs are descended. In any case, the breed is one of very great antiquity, and therefore of the highest interest to all dog lovers.

The dingo is about the size of a collie and much resembles a wolf in appearance and habits, but he is much more easily tamed. Those who know him best are warm in his praise, declaring that the dog may not merely be tamed, but is capable of readily acquiring useful habits, and of becoming a good companion. Even his voice alters as he comes under the influence of domestication. In course of time he learns to bark, an accomplishment unknown to the dingo of the wild.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest

No. 119.

Dad's Money Gone.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"I WISH you wouldn't whistle when you're angry," said Mary. "It makes me furious."

"When I whistle like that," I said evenly, "it's extreme self-restraint. Don't forget that for a minute. Just this minute I could shoot off a pair of six-shooters, and roar a little, but I won't. Go on—tell me what else you did with the money I gave you to save for the first payment of Dad's note."

"I—I told you of the holly and—and the little things like that," faltered Mary.

"Tell me some more," I added. "There's $5 to account for. It was in an envelope, you remember, and I told you to keep it very carefully—"

Mary's Tree.

"Then," said Mary, "I—I had to buy a Christmas tree—and—all the things that go on it. Last year we spent Christmas home, and this is the first year we've been by ourselves. And—and I've always had a Christmas tree. It wouldn't be Christmas without it."

What a waste of good things the childless Christmas tree is! I said so.

"I don't like the idea anyway," I said morosely. "Why should we have a tree when there isn't a youngster to dance and crow around it. It's a profanation of the Christmas tree to buy it just for a whim."

"Why, Peter," said Mary, "mother even has a Christmas tree for Colonel!"

Colonel! Colonel, if you please, is a big, lazy brute of a dog who's always making you get up and open doors for him, or howling when his vanity's wounded. I despise him. He's built like Mrs. Penfield.

"That's disgusting!" I retorted. "Your mother makes me tired about that dog, anyway. She's an absolute bore with her anecdotes of his smartness, and he's spoiled. She's turned him into a pampered fool just through a sentimental devotion to his needs."

Which was quite true. And Mrs. Penfield isn't the only woman who wastes a lot of exuberant sentimentality on a dog. Women talk baby talk to dogs—they humor them—they relate uninteresting tales of their exploits, just as the new father with the very new baby, and without his excuse; but a dog Christmas tree—it was too much! I thought to annoy Mary with my biting criticism, but she merely smiled very sweetly.

Sweetness vs. Temper.

"Peter," she said, "I'm not going to quarrel with you. It's Christmas eve, and I shan't let you harbor any ill feeling. If I did spend the money you were going to pay on your father's note, it was merely because I thought he could wait just this once, and, besides, it was in a good cause. I couldn't do without a tree—and the house wouldn't be Christmasy without holly and wreaths. You're tired and cranky—that's all's the matter with you, Peter. Go lie down for a while and you'll feel better."

That cloying sweetness in a woman's voice is harder to endure than her fretful spasms of temper. There's so much behind it—a delicate sense of superiority—a sense of martyrdom, a sweet determination to bear with this brute of a man at any cost, forgive his obstinacy, and coax him into the semblance of a human being.

I did retire to a couch and lie down, but not because I was tired. I was utterly disgusted. And while I lay there, Mary, humming, proceeded to dress up the house in Christmas wreaths and holly. And presently she began to trim the tree.

Try as I might I could not banish the thought that all of these gew-gaws had been bought with money that really belonged to Dad.

"Before I'll fall down on that note," I said to myself, "I'll borrow money from my chief."

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

A boy friend of mine took me to a party the other night. I danced the first dance with him, but then a boy came up to me and took me in to supper and kept me by his side all evening.

The boy I came up with was very angry that I did not go in to supper with him, and will hardly speak to me, and then only very coldly. What should I do? I am 16 years of age. Should I invite a boy into the house when he takes me home from any sort of affair? GEORGINA D.

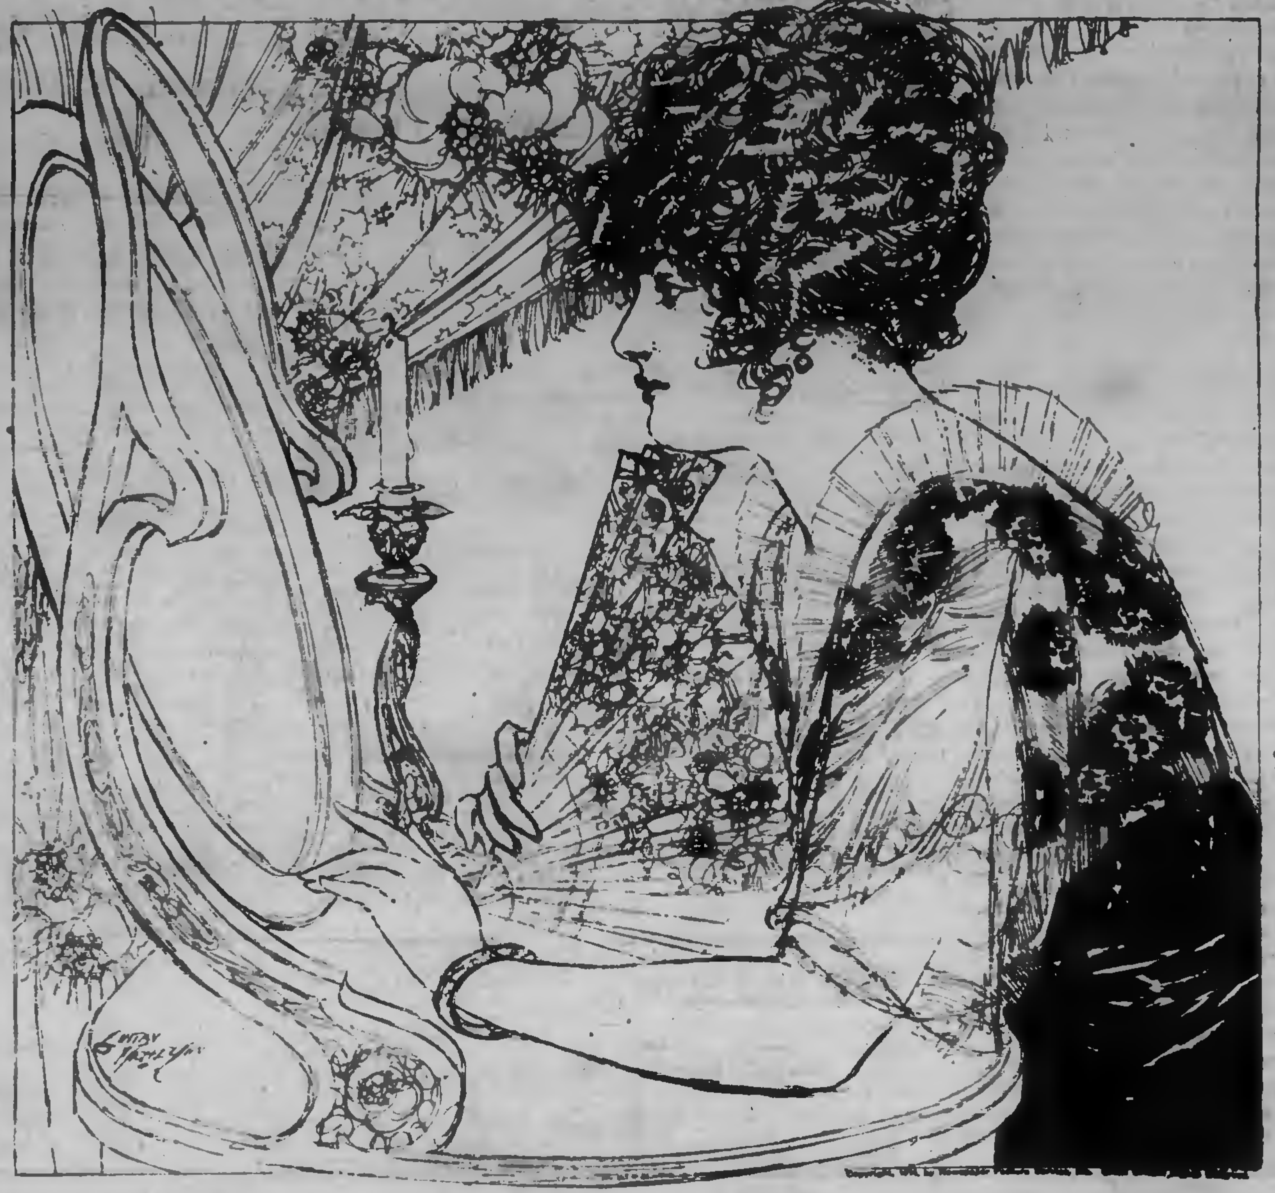
WELL, Georgina, I don't blame the boy who took you to the party at all. If I were he I would never take you or any girl like you to a party again.

Why should he ask you to go with him, and then have you insult him openly before every one at the party? That's what you did, you know—you were very rude and very ill-bred and very unkind and very thoughtless. If you want to be friends with that boy you'll have to apologize to him—that's all—and then, maybe he won't care to make up with you.

No, I wouldn't invite a boy into the house when you've come home from evening affairs. Nice girls do not spend much time alone with a boy when every one else in the house is asleep.

Now be a nice, sweet girl, and the next time you go to a party with a boy remember that you owe him at least ordinary courtesy. And don't let any other boy take you away from him, no matter how fascinating or how determined the other boy may be.

ASKING THE MIRROR :: :: By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. [illegible]

FACE to face, with nothing between them—just herself and the mirror to have it out. Really a solemn moment, maybe, for the question may be very important. What is she asking? Ah! that's a secret. Only she knows—and the mirror. It wouldn't be surprising if she really SAID it, though perhaps in a whisper. Perhaps she's asking whether he loves her, as if the mirror could answer THAT. Perhaps she's asking whether she loves HIM, which is another poser for the mirror. Even a hardened mirror might shy at that.

Perhaps—and this would be tremendously important—she's asking whether she shall say YES.

Really, you see, she is asking herself. But, looking straight into those other eyes in the mirror, which are a PERFECT likeness of the eyes HE looks into when he gets a chance, she somehow feels that the question is brought squarely home. Which is ABSOLUTELY true.

What Marrying for Money Means

By Winifred Black

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

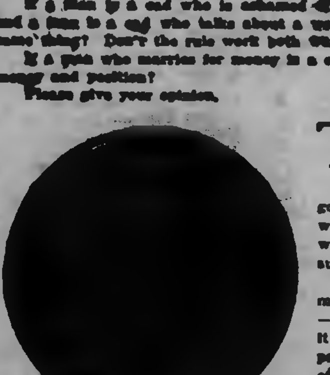
Dear Madam:

If a man is a cad who is ashamed of a girl who is not his equal socially, and a man is a cad who talks about a woman, what is a woman who does the same thing? Don't the rule work both ways?

If a man who marries for money is a cad, what is a woman who marries for money and position?

Please give your opinion.

JUSTICE.



Winifred Black

THE woman who marries for money and position—what is she?

This is a family newspaper, my good correspondent, and I'm afraid it would not do to say just exactly what I think a woman is who does such a thing as that.

For one thing—she's a fool. She may get her money, and her position—but she pays a price for them that it stops the heart to think of. A price no woman of honor, no woman of decent self-respect, will ever pay for anything in this world, so long as true women are true women.

Many women of good reputation do marry for money? Quite so—there's the shame and the pity of it. So do many men of good reputation lie and steal—and some day they go to the penitentiary for it, too.

There is no public penitentiary for the women who marries for money, but, oh, her soul sits ever behind the bars—and if you look closely at her you can see the shadow of the very gallows tree itself in her miserable eyes.

"It Isn't Done."

The man who marries for money is worse than the woman who marries for money, for the same reason that the man who lets a woman carry his suitcase is, somehow, on a lower scale than the woman who loads down her too willing escort with bundles, and makes no effort to help him up the station steps.

There are some things which can't be explained in so many words.

The English have a fine way of getting out of such affairs as that.

"Why don't you wear a bowler hat to a funeral?" said I to an Englishman upon occasion. "There's nothing really farcical about the hat itself, is there?" And the Englishman stared at me, after the fashion of his kind, with round eyes full of cool amazement.

"It isn't done," he said—and that settled the affair.

And, strangely enough, it really did settle it, for when a thing "isn't done" it isn't—by people who know the rules of the great game we call, for want of a better name, the game of life.

Women do—at present—but every one who knows the women who do marry for money despises them. And some day we will say of the woman who thinks of such a thing "it isn't done"—and it won't be.

In Europe it is done—the man marries for money—and so does the woman—and they are both perfectly happy and not in the least ashamed of it. Why should they be? It is done, over there, and that's all there is to it.

There's no pretence, no hypocrisy, no cruel deceit, no shallow wearing of a foolish mask; it is all a perfectly good matter of perfectly legitimate business.

A young Frenchman arrives at a certain age—he comes into a certain amount of money and a certain position. It is time for him to marry. His parents and friends look about them for a "suitable" wife for him.

To be suitable the girl the young Frenchman marries must belong to a family of a certain position, and must bring to her husband a certain amount of money. When the girl is found the marriage is arranged, the two little fortunes are made into one and the new home is started on quite a sensible, practical and perfectly honest foundation.

The Frenchman and the French girl are not marrying each other just for their own sakes—they are founding a family—and their own particular preferences and wishes, in a merely personal way, are not supposed to have much to do with the case.

The European Dowry.

I wish I could believe that the French, and the Germans, and the Italians, and all the rest of them, who marry to keep the family together, were entirely in the wrong—and that we are entirely in the right. I used to think so—like most Americans.

But somehow I do not see that the American marriage turns out much better, for the individual, than does the French marriage—and it certainly does turn out very, very often much worse for the family.

The most profligate Frenchman in the world will save money for his daughter's dowry. The most frivolous Frenchwoman who ever wore rice powder and made up her eyes before breakfast every morning will deny herself even of rouge to get her son up in business. She will half starve to find for him the right sort of girl, with the right sort of dowry, who will, when the time comes, sacrifice herself in turn for the grandson of the woman who gave up her rouge for the sake of the family.

Now with us—it is all different. John marries Mary because he's crazy about her. Mary marries John because she can't live without him.

They may have money, they may have none. John may be a swell, and Mary may be a girl who works for her living. "Love will make it all right," we think, we Americans, and we all look sentimentally on, shed a sympathetic tear, and are pleased with ourselves for being so pleased with what we like to think is "romance."

John loses his job, and Mary has to go back to work. John finds out that Mary is a better business man than he is, and he doesn't like her for it.

And so he makes love to one of his sister's friends who's sorry for him for marrying "beneath him," and Mary gets a divorce and John marries sister's friend.

Is Our System Best?

The children? Oh, grandmother takes care of them—or Aunt Susan, or old Uncle Joshua, or anybody who has nothing else to do.

Or else John gets rich and goes to the Senate, and Mary can't get over wanting to wash her own dishes and sweep her own front steps. And John hates to do it, but he gets rid of Mary—how can he help it, and ever be Governor of his state?

And the children go home to grandma—or to boarding school, or somewhere. Anywhere where they won't bother John—and the family

Oh, there isn't any family—there never was. There was just John and Mary, and John was crazy about Mary and Mary "couldn't live without John"—and so they married.

And so—

Sometimes I'm not so sure that our American system is just exactly the very finest system that has ever been evolved after all.

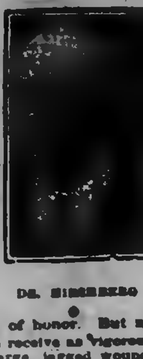
What do you think about it, "Justice"?

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How Wounds Are Healed Without Leaving Scars

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

THE secret wound long lives within the breast, but the open wound in these days of disinfection, sterilized bandages, harmless antiseptics and lockjaw antitoxin is not worth shucks. If—and here is the crux of the matter—you do not treat it with home remedies.

Whenever you have a friend in whom blood poisoning developed from a wound, inquiry is apt to disclose the fact that his grandmother, aunt or kind friend advised the application of "a certain sure cure."

Mr. Willie Preston ran a nail in his foot. His mother did not know what to do. A neighbor, who had "raised eleven children," said: "Put some bacon fat on it." Ten days later Willie Preston died of lockjaw. Yet that same neighbor still advises bacon fat for wounds and has, to my knowledge, caused half a dozen other infections.

A scar nobly got was considered, until lately, a livery of honor. But no more. Wounds heal so beautifully nowadays that, like Katashaw's white shoulder, some persons go miles and miles to see them.

Scars Out of Fashion.

Indeed, it is an established rule among the student guilds and fraternities of Germany, in their duels with swords, to keep the wounds from healing by pulling the edges apart every day.

Wounds of the heart, when not of the amatory sort, are now stitched together by most surgeons with triumphant results. Surgeons, since Dr. Alexis Carrel's discoveries, think nothing at all of cutting into the chest cavity and bringing the wound into a strong, normal condition.

The battling days when men were gashed with honorable scars are past. Today, Mameluke and the Hessians emerge from the emergency hospitals in the pink of condition. The wounds show either a bare hairline, or, by means of skin grafts, nothing.

Even gunshot wounds and rusty nail punctures, which formerly yielded a large return to the grim tyrant of lockjaw, have no terrors any longer—if domestic panaceas are not brought into requisition.

"Blood poisoning" is merely the extension and spread of bacterial matter in an infected wound, throughout the arm, leg and body from the point invaded.

Blood-Poison a Germ.

In other words, blood poisoning is an infection just the same as typhoid or pneumonia. Wounds treated by amateurs or carelessly left alone, "because the blood is in good condition," are the ones which lead to the invasion into the tissues of what is known as "blood poisoning."

A fallacy, widely prevalent among weepers and workers, and horny-handed sons of toil, is to the effect that "the blood is fine," and "heals all scratches and sores." While it is correct to expect the healthful flesh to prevent germs developing at times in wounds, it is frequently the false sense of security which many persons foolishly have that starts the scratch of a pin into a malicious, human conflagration.

A pin prick, a splinter, a tiny tear in the skin should each receive as vigorous an antiseptic as a large, jagged wound. Peroxide of hydrogen—clean and strong, not the dirty and weak mixture usually found—boracic acid, chlorate of potash, hot carbolated vaseline and other disinfectants should be used at once. Even upon the merest skin abrasion.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Birds Are Hunted on Horseback

By TEMPLE MANNING

ON the ice-bound plains of Roumania I once took part in a unique form of sport—hunting birds on horseback. Until I spent a few days in that interesting land of recent wars I had never known that birds were ever hunted with a horse, for the chasing of ostriches on horseback we used to read about in our school books is but the result of the ever active imaginations of their authors. In Roumania it is the bustard, or wild turkey, that is hunted.

I was very lucky to be in the interior one night when a heavy thaw had melted the snows and a biting frost the next morning had set the ice again. For it is only at that time that the bustards, lying out in the open, get their wings wet with melting ice, and, when it freezes again, their feathers freeze and they cannot fly. We started in the early morning before the sun could thaw those swift wings again.

Stretched in a long line, with my host and myself in the middle, we went thundering over the frozen snow, driving a flock of nearly 50 wild turkeys before us. The men were armed with whips or with long sticks, and as one would come within striking distance of a bird he would strike out. Sometimes he would hit his bird and jump to the ground to secure it before it could get up and away. But often both driver and pony would fall with the bird, and the bird would be off again before the rider could get to his feet.

It reminded me of nothing so much as polo. Imagine that great game played with living balls.

Crack! Crack! The whips rang out like pistol shots on the frosty air. The birds dodged in and out, until I realized the skill demanded. Every one had a couple of birds each before I got one. At last I stunned a bird. Scrambling down from my pony I set upon it before it could rise. I was met by claws and a beak that drove me off for an instant, but, at last, I killed my bird.

By this time all the birds had been collected along the route, and, tied by the legs, suspended before the pommels on their ponies' shoulders, and we rushed back to my hosts' mansion, tired but happy.

Running the Bustard Down.

More than one of the men showed evidences of fights with the birds, but they treated these scratches, that were often long and deep, as mere nothings. They were looking forward to the feast and celebration that would round out a memorable day.

BRITISH NAVY RENEW BOMBARDMENT OF TURKISH FORTS IN DARDANELLS

Washington, Nov. 4.—American Minister Fletcher at Santiago, Chili, today reported the naval engagement off Coronel Chile, and the arrival of three German warships at Valparaiso. The damaged Good Hope is reported as having escaped with the Glasgow and Otranto.

Renew Shelling of Dardanelles.

Paris, Nov. 4.—A despatch to the Havas News Agency from Athens says that the bombardment of the forts of the Dardanelles, which was participated in chiefly by the British fleet, was suspended momentarily but later was resumed and continued until 10 o'clock this morning. Seventy shells in all were fired at the Turkish forts.

Sink Russian Battleship.

Amsterdam, (via London,) Nov. 4.—The Vossische Zeitung publishes a despatch from Sofia saying that Turkish warships have sunk the Russian battleship Sinope.

The "Sinope" was a battleship of 10,180 tons displacement, and carried a complement of [illegible] men. She was a comparatively old vessel, having been launched in 1887 and completed in 1890 in the Russian shipyards at Sebastopol. She was 331 feet long with a beam of 69 feet and was fitted with 13,000-horse-power engines. Her armament consisted of six 12-inch, seven 6-inch, guns and eight quick-firers. She was also fitted with seven torpedo tubes.

German Fleet Comes Out.

Copenhagen, Nov. 4.—(via London.)—A fleet of German warships has gathered off the Aland Islands, in the Baltic Sea, northeast of Stockholm and opposite the entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

They evidently were proceeding north, and have stopped to await orders.

The reported presence of German battleships off the Aland Islands tends to confirm a report received last night in London, from Dunkirk that four German fleet was supposed to have had put to sea from Kiel, the terminus of the Kiel Canal on the Baltic side. When these vessels were supposed to have left Kiel was not stated.

Dover reported last night that the German fleet was supposed to have come out from its base. This statement probably referred to the German fleet in the North Sea.

Turks Seize Foreign Ships.

London, Nov. 4.—The Turkish authorities, according to a Reuter Telegram despatch from Constantinople, via Sofia, have begun to seize the shipping lying off Constantinople. The Porte also has ordered the extinction of the lighthouses in the Mediterranean littoral.

One Thing to Give Orders, Another to Execute Them

Emperor William of Germany seems to keep up his courage and optimism despite many and varied disappointments. He orders his troops to do this and that at any cost, and he finds that "any cost" is not sufficient to pay the toll for advancement either on Paris or seacoast towns. He prays that his boasted Bavarians may have another chance at the British; his prayer is answered, but with annihilating results. From a safe vantage point he cheers his troops up with the assurance that they will win under any circumstances, and they go forth to meet disaster and defeat. "Me and Gott" is not altogether meeting the expetations of "me"—in fact "me" is getting his eyes opened to the justice of the Almighty.

In this connection the Montreal Witness says:

"There still seems to be a pleasant feeling of omnipotence about the German Emperor that sustains him through many disappointments, and of omniscience that leaves him with no misgivings as to what he ought to do. He differs we are told, with his strategists, who have the name of being the greatest in the world. Btill the Hohenzollern wisdom is greater than the greatest. If great generals regard his commands as disastrous they may break their hearts, but all the same they must carry them out or shoot themselves. The Emperor, who in his march on Paris had altogether neglected the seaports which subtend England, whose contemptible little mercenaries he despised. So he counted it, though he denies that he embodied that view in a proclamation. Since then he has been becoming madder and madder, using that word for all it means against England. When his army has been driven back largely by the English army to the Belgian border, he gave orders to take the channel ports of France, Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne.

There was, of course, another reason for this, besides Count Zeppelin's ambition to invade the British atmosphere, though the notion of invading England was worth everything to hearten troops who had been nursed on hatred and horror of Great Britain. From the very beginning of the war the prime purpose of the German strategists had been to get round the northern end of the defending army. All their deeply-laid plans were based on that. This strategy worked the invaders in the days of their advance nearer and nearer to Paris. It so occurred, however, that when the German force had reached the striking point, and was consequently furthest from its base of supplies, weakness developed towards the middle of the line, and the conquering but starv[illegible] tumbled precipitately back to its succor. Still, all the way back to the Belgian border the strategy continued to be to lengthen out the line, to the northward in order to get around the defenders. But, as the German line lengthened so did that of the Allies, and this process went on till both lines had reached the sea. There was, therefore now nothing for it, unless the whole scheme was to be abandoned, but to throw a sufficient force against that end to smash it. Every corps that could be brought to bear was, as the reporters say hurled against it. But the Belgian army had hurried out of Antwerp and was there to save the last sliver of Belgium from being overrun. Reinforcements were there from England. The Indian contingent was there, and the successive ranks of boys that the Kaiser threw forward were simply slaughtered. They were thrown across the Yser river and their bodies choked it. "Like leaves of the forest when autumn hath blown, that host on the morrow was scattered and strown." What lesson did the Kaiser learn from this? He still thought that with him to command was to accomplish. He again gave orders to take the channel ports, and the whole tr[illegible] was repeated, and is to be repeated again unless the next blow goes through.

Dangerous Throat Troubles Prevented by Nerviline

IT ENDS MISERY OF COLDS QUICKLY.

Don't wait till night.

Get after your cold now—this very minute, before it grows dangerous you should apply old-time "Nerviline."

Rub your chest and throat, rub them thoroughly with Nerviline. Relief will be immediate.

Nerviline will save you from lying awake to-night, coughing, choking and suffering from congestion in the chest and acute pain in the throat.

Nerviline will break up that dull neuralgic headache—will kill the cold and chill at its very beginning—will save you from perhaps a serious illness.

To take away hoarseness, to break up a grippy cold, to cure a sore throat or bad cold in the chest, you can use nothing so speedy and effective as Nerviline. For forty years it has been the most largely used family remedy in the Dominion. Time has proved its merit,, so can you by keeping handy on the shelf the large 50c. family size bottle; small trial size 25c., sold by any dealer anywhere.

Bringing Back the Soul

Science is just now shaken by two movements, in one of which everything gets a material explanation, while in the other there is a frank admission of things 'twixt heaven and earth "not dreamt of in our philosophy." The human soul has always had a hard time of it, and is even now struggling as it were, to manifest itself to men. For primitive thought it was "the breath," and that material conception is not transcended in a widely held modern view which makes it merely the total functions of the body, vital powers and consciousness included. Dut outside the scientific camp there is insistence on the soul as a sort of spiritual essence separable from the body and surviving it. The psychologists are now rationalizing this thought by connecting it with personality in such a way as to throw light on purpose in both life and mind.

Along with the attempt to rehabilitate the soul without repudiating the body goes the effort to see in natural processes something of the same kind of contrivance and design which life itself reveals. In a little book asking "Is Conscience an Emotion?" published by the Houghton Mifflin Company, Dr. Hastings Rashdall, of Oxford, England, pleads for the view that the so-called 'moral sense' within us is not a mere feeling, recommended by its agreeableness, or socially imposed, but is an act of judgment rooted in the intellectual powers. That emotion may be associated with the obligation of duty he admits, but deeper than feeling is the directing guidance of reason itself. It is only upon the assumption that our ultimate moral decisions represent real deliverances of the reason—"self evident judgments about the real nature of things"—that we are justified in using them to interpret the nature and meaning of the universe. It follows that the ultimate reality is spiritual, then purposeful. Out of ouro wn natures as human beings thus comes "a revelation of the rational will that expresses ses itself in nature."

From this new view of the soul and this revised view of the moral sense the religious consciousness should gain the reinforcement of at least a working ronception of the world. Life on all planes is full of contrivances which the chemical account of it is utterly unable to explain. By no conceivable manipulation of mere physics can we elucidate the sublime problem of design in the heavens. It was of the old anthropomorphisms that Emerson was thinking when he called nature "the colossal shadow cast by man." The newer thought aspires to turn that shadow into a beam of light and make man once more the "measure of the universe."

PAVEMENTS OF RUBBER

Expensive as Yet But a Distinct Probability of the Future

It is not yet practicable to construct roads with surfaces of rubber except at a cost of $35 per yard, but there is little doubt that they will ultimately be adopted, says The Canadian Engineer. At the International Rubber Exhibition held in London recently, rubber paving was shown both for use on footways and on carriages. In each case the rubber constituted a surface cushion on blocks of jarrah wood, the material being held tightly in position by dovetailing, while a special joint locked the paving, preventing, when laid, the access of water to the concrete foundations. It is contended that thinner foundations are necessary owing to the reduced amount of vibration which occurs by heavy and fast-moving traffic, and further, that it never becomes slippery and that motor vehicles do not "skid" upon it under unfavorable conditions of weather. A section of rubber paving laid in the Old Kent Road, London, where the traffic is heavy, is not perceptibly worn after a year's use.

CARE AND NEGLECT OF FARM MACHINERY

Proper Housing Over Winter Trebles Life of Binder—Interesting Data Gathered Over Wide Area

Recent investigations by the Conservation Commission reveal some very interesting facts regarding the effect of care, or neglect, as the case may be, upon the life of machinery on the farm. Between 90 and 95 farms, divided into three districts, were visited in each of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In Saskatchewan, out of 94 farmers visited by the Commission's representative, 76 leave all of their implements out of doors. On 73 of the farms, there were no implement sheds of any description. On 21 of the farms, sheds large enough to cover a part of the implements were found. In most cases this being only a buggy or a democrat, but not on one single farm was the machinery all housed. Not one farmer was found who painted his implements to protect them from the weather.

In Manitoba only 14 out of 94 keep their machinery under cover during winter, while 44 claim to keep a part of it inside. On 34 of the Manitoba farms no provision whatever is made for protecting implements, and only four claim to have done any painting.

In the three districts visited in Alberta, mixed farming is carried on extensively, making more barn room available, so that implements are more likely to be protected, but even here, 37 out of the 92 visited leave all machinery out of doors.

In one district in Ontario where 40 farmers were visited, every man housed his implements during winter, although none of these men do any painting. In the Ontario district visited where the implements are housed, the average life of the binder was found to be between 16 and 17 years. Many binders were seen which were in good running order after cutting 20 seasons' crops.

In Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where so much of the machinery is left out of doors, the average life of the binder is given by the farmers as about 7 years, which is less than half that of the binder protected from the weather. Many binders do not last as long as seven years. One farmer near Moosomin, Sask., who after 12 years, was retiring from the farm, held an auction sale. His binder after cutting 12 crops sold for $30, or 50 per cent. of the original cost, and his other machinery at proportionately high prices. It had all been well housed and the necessary painting and repairing had been done to keep it in good order. On a neighboring farm a binder which had cut only three crops, but which had been neglected and had stood out of doors was being relegated to the scrap heap and a new one was being purchased.

An implement shed costs money but if its use will double or treble the length of time the machinery will last, it is a good investment. Far more often say that they can not afford to build a shed. The truth is they really can not afford to be without one. Apart from the additional power necessary for operation, the depreciation on unhoused machinery on the average sized farm is so great as to amount to much more than the cost and upkeep of an implement shed.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $60,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

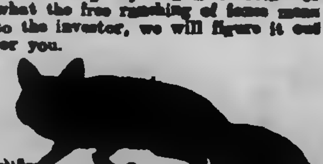
Shares are selling at $25.00 each. 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes means to the investor, we will figure it out for you.



We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Heaviness of Platinum

Platinum is the heaviest commercial metal known. Its specific gravity is 21.5, as compared with 19.26 for pure gold and 10.53 for silver. Briefly, platinum is 21½ times as heavy as water, more than twice the weight of silver and heavier, bulk for bulk, than pure gold. It is softer than iron, but somewhat harder than copper.

WESTERN PIONEERS

Men of the Eighties Who Persevered in the Face of Difficulty

There is little left of the Winnipeg of the early eighties. Each year sees a diminution of the links which bind the days when Winnipeg was the stepping-off place, to the present, in which Winnipeg acts the part of the gateway to prosperity and affluence to all who seek diligently and perseveringly. Each year, one or more of those who formed the little band of pioneers who exhibited that diligence and perseverance in the face of almost insuperable obstacles, who stuck to the town of their adoption in spite of hard times, through all the vicissitudes of the growth of Winnipeg from trading post to metropolis, steadfast in their faith in its future, pass to their long rest having seen their judgment justified, their dreams of the city that was to be come true. The city of Winnipeg, and indeed, the whole of Western Canada, joins in paying tribute to the worth of these pioneer citizens of the prairies, whose unbounded optimism it was which made possible the Winnipeg of to-day, and whose prophetic vision outlined, in spite of the struggles in which they were involved, the glorious future of the west, which to-day is just beginning to be realized. The story of their careers is an object lesson to all in display of sterling character, of business integrity, and a wealth of human kindness.—The Saturday Post.

INCONSPICUOUS CLOTHING

Dark Blue and Green Can be Seen the Farthest

Some curious and rather unexpected results have followed experiments in Europe for the purpose of determining what color in a soldier's uniform is the least conspicuous to an enemy. Of ten men, two were dressed in light grey uniforms, two in dark grey, two in green, two in dark blue, and two in scarlet. All were then ordered to march off, while a group of officers remained watching them. The first to disappear in the landscape was the light grey, and next, surprising as it may seem, the scarlet. Then followed the dark grey, while the dark blue and the green remained visible long after all the others had disappeared. Experiments in firing at blue and red targets, according to same experiments, proved that blue could be more easily seen at a distance than red.

It may be that khaki, which is the fashionable color now for army uniforms, will have to give way to grey, for in these days of long-range weapons inconspicuous clothing is vitally necessary for soldiers.

PRESERVE THE BIRDS

State of Oregon Interests School Lads—They Build Pretty Houses

Exhibits of bird houses, built by boys of the schools in Portland, Ore., have attracted much attention and aroused no little rivalry among the boys themselves as to design and execution. They constructed charming little bungalows of rustic strips of bark; quaint reproductions of old-world thatched farm cottages; log cabins, and tiny homes wrought of silvery birch-bark and bits of moss on sloping roofs. Through the co-operation of the Oregon Audubon Society and the State superintendent of Public Schools a widespread movement for systematic bird study and bird protection was inaugurated over a year ago in the Portland schools. Each schoolboy in the intermediate grades constructed at least one bird house during the year. These were placed in public parks, residence grounds, and along the highways. This was the beginning of a State-wide plan to bring the children of the schools into closer relationship with their bird neighbors. William L. Finley, State game warden of Oregon, has done much to have the economic value of birds taught to school children. The crow and the kingfisher both have unnecessarily bad reputations, it is pointed out. To determine the economic status of the crow the department of agriculture examined nearly a thousand of them taken in every month of the year all over the country, and it was found that most of the corn eaten by these birds was waste corn, and the part destroyed while growing was only 2 per cent. of the total food. On the other hand the amount of harmful insects and mice eaten rendered the final verdict in favor of the crow. It was also determined that the kingfisher does not eat trout, but only fish that are of no value to man.

THE DAINTY "FLIPPER"

A Delicacy in Newfoundland Associated With the Sealing Season

A dainty peculiar to Newfoundland which so far has received little attention is the seal's flipper or flipper which is the paw with which the seal propels itself through the water. It is esteemed by the people of the island as one of their greatest delicacies. A flipper weighs about a pound, and when the seal ships begin to arrive in St. John's most people begin to talk about securing "a meal of flippers." Small boys and others swarm about the steamers, and the crews are importuned to supply these dainties to all who ask for them. In the olden times they were given away freely, but latterly it is not uncommon for fifty cents a gad (six on a string) to be asked for them, while many among the crews now make a practice of salting quantities into barrels for their own consumption during the summer. A fresh flipper makes a most appetising meal. The method of cooking them is to wash them thoroughly in fresh water, then soak them in water in which salt has been dissolved; next transfer them to a baking pan or pot with slices of pork or bacon, and after being cooked over a hot fire they are as delicate of flavor and taste as the finest of veal.

Among all the capitalists in St. John's interested in the sealing industry, flipper suppers, with the accompaniment of champagne, etcetera, are the invariable rule as the ships come in, and owners, captains, and others indulge annually in these repasts at some of the hotels or inns near the city. Very many family parties also partake of the unusual dish, and among the poorer classes flippers are looked upon as a great and welcome luxury, a change from the usual dietary and one that is beyond all question nourishing and healthy. Roman Catholics likewise patronize flippers largely because, as the seal is an amphibious animal, it is not meat, and may be eaten during the Lenten season or on fast days. All round the north and west coasts, where the seals are often taken close in shore, they are a recognized item in the daily menu—not alone flippers but the carcases as well. These are perhaps even more appetising than the flippers because there is less fat permeating them, but, of course, space is too valuable aboard the ship to allow of carcases being brought home for consumption, they being worthless for any other purpose, and seal pelts being valued at $100 a ton dead weight.

MRS. CHARLES H. ANTHONY of Muncie, Ind., who has at different times attracted attention in New York by her original and almost daring ideas in regard to her costumes. "Anyone can follow, but it's the one who is first that is leader," she said.

FISH STORIES

Lightning Killed a Bass Weighing Eleven Pounds

From the Eastern Townships of Quebec there came a story of an eleven-pound black bass killed by lightning. That was pretty good. Nobody had ever seen an eleven-pound black bass before in the world, and nobody had ever seen a fish killed by lightning. The story was a double-edged stroke of genius. Next from the New England States there came a story of a lad who rammed his fist into the gills of a fish in diving and landed another big one. And this was followed up by a story from Baltimore, where an old tar tells of having his ship lifted out of the water on the back of an enormous whale.

The official viper-killer of France has a dress composed of 900 skins of venomous reptiles. He receives a small payment for the head of every viper he destroys.

HENS IN THE BACKYARD

Government Advises Town and City Dwellers to be Egg Producers

Many town and city people could not only produce sufficient eggs to keep their table going but have enough eggs left over that would go a long way towards supplying the household with groceries, etc., says a circular sent out from Ottawa by Mr. F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman. There are comparatively few city lots where a small flock of poultry could not be kept and enough scraps find their way into the garbage can to provide a large proportion of the feed. No male birds should be kept as they are both a nuisance and an expense which if done away with and the house kept clean and sanitary there is absolutely nothing about such a plant that could possibly annoy the neighbors. If say one in every hundred city families would produce even enough eggs for their own table, it would reduce the number of those who only consume and add that many more to the list of producers.

Salt For Livestock

Most stockmen realize the value of plenty of salt for their stock at all times, but very often this is neglected, and horses, cattle, and sheep are salted only once or twice a week, the owner believing that this is enough. It is absolutely necessary that mares with foals have salt where it is accessible whenever they wish to take it. Salt is an aid to digestion and should be within reach of the farm animals at all times, and more particularly when feed is being changed. A little salt may keep the veterinarian's fees down to a minimum.

COMPLAINTS FROM CHINA

Far Away Wives Want the Money Husbands Earn in Montreal

Acting upon complaints which came all the way from China, prominent Chinese merchants in Montreal appealed to Chief Campeau for his assistance in a final attempt to put a stop to the wholesale gathering of married and single laundrymen in the various joints along Lagauchetiere street in that city, where they are lured by the fan tan game to hazard their earnings of a week at one sitting around the plain wooden table, over which the keeper presides and from which he takes the bets in unceasingly.

The gambling and its baneful influence was so far-reaching that far-off China was heard from in the complaint of the nine wives of as many Chinamen, who were sending no money home on account of fan tan.

The letters sent to Montreal declared that for a long time gambling has diverted the flow of money from the wives of many Canadian Chinamen, to the pockets of the fan tan gambling houses, and tales of hardship were recounted by the women, mothers of children, whose fathers were doing nothing for their maintenance.

When Chief Campeau was appealed to he readily accepted the offer of the delegation of Chinese merchants who agreed to place him in touch with the meeting places of the Tongs, where gambling was likely to take place. Heretofore it has been a difficult job to catch Chinamen at a fan tan game, and it is declared that the number of successful raids do not come anywhere near in numbers the ones which brought no results, other than to find a meeting of Chinamen with nothing in sight to indicate that a game was in progress. Sentries are placed as far away as one hundred yards, and the semaphore signals of Boy Scouts are a poor second compared to the speed of the sentry once the police appear in sight.

Feed For Sheep

In feeding sheep in winter hay is all-important, and, although a heavy root or cabbage crop may be an inducement to give them an extra bite to save it, it is a risky proceeding. Sheep need hay, and good hay. Sweet, well-made hay, the produce of young grass, is both easily digested and nourishing, and, after, all, a daily ration costs very little in the end. Being a dry food, it is splendidly adapted for supplying to sheep on a watery root crop, which is by no means rich in nutritious matter. It sometimes happens that the turnip crop fails, and then, if cabbage or kale are grown, all will be well. But where there is no such crop to fall back upon the pasture is the only resource, with the assistance of food in the trough.

Ground Fence Wires

Grounding fence wires affords considerable protection from lightning and is a worth-while investment for farmers.

Hundreds of valuable animals are struck by lightning every summer, many of the casualties being directly due to currents carried along pasture fences.

To secure the best results ground wires ought to be placed about 100 feet apart and closely stapled to the post, so as to form a contact with every one of the fence wires. The ground wires should also extend slightly above the fence post, and like a lightning rod, should penetrate the soil far enough to reach moist earth. Number eight or nine wire is most satisfactory for this purpose.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties — must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

AVIATIONATIS

Are we to have a new disease? Half a dozen well known aviators declare that five years' regular flying will shatter any man's nervous system.

The medical faculty are almost unanimous in their declaration that for a person suffering from heart disease to go flying is to court death. Despite the assertion of an experienced lady aviator that she has never had any "sensation" when up in the air, it is common knowledge that flying brings on a dangerous dizziness, and that frequently a flying-man has to exercise most strenuous will power to keep awake while flying. When surrounded by clouds, an aviator frequently has not the faintest knowledge of his position—a fact that is probably accountable for a number of "inexplicable" falls of machines. Most flying-men find eventually that they need to reserve all their nervous force to use when up in the air—they dare not excite themselves or perform any too great exertion otherwise. The toll of the air has been great, but it is a mistake to reckon only those persons who have met their death while actually flying. The number will be greatly increased if you include those who have become more or less physical wrecks through their devotion to aerial science.—Answers.

RUSSELL NORTHUP

BOB STEELE

Pitching a no-hit-no-run game is the ambition of every pitcher in baseball. Few have achieved the honor and that two youngsters on one team should break into the exclusive class within four days is but one of the remarkable things that make baseball.

Bob Steele and Russell Northup of the Moose Jaw Robinhoods, Western Canada League, are the youngsters who thus achieved fame. Northup performed the feat against Medicine Hat, holding the Hatters to a hitless, runless game for nine full innings and Steele duplicated the performance at Calgary. Northup hails from Des Moines, Iowa, but Steele is a Canadian his home being in Vancouver.

A THREE-HOUR BOUT

The Great "Hack" Tells of His Hardest Mat Struggle

"In the course of a lengthy career as both an amateur and professional wrestler," says George Hackenschmidt, the famous wrestler, in the Strand, "I have taken part in so many strenuous bouts on the mat that I find it a matter of extreme difficulty to pin myself down to one performance as being my best. However, after carefully running over my record, I think I must give my vote to my success in the great Budapest tournament.

"In this important Continental tournament I defeated Albert de Paris in five minutes, Aimable in 25 minutes, and Vandenberg in 24 minutes. So far, I remember thinking at the time, 'things seem fairly easy for me.' Then came my bout with the famous Turk Kara Ahmed. The struggle which followed I shall never forget as long as I live. For three solid hours we wrestled and wrestled, until it seemed as if the contest would go on far into the night. At one moment Kara Ahmed seemed to be possessed of a winning advantage; then positions were reversed, and I looked to be 'top dog.' At the end of the third hour we were both almost as strong as at the start, but at last I saw a favorable opportunity. With the quickness of a panther I seized it, and in a trice the Turk's mountain of shoulders were pinned to the ground."

Danger in Matches

On this continent, matches are everywhere. Every room contains matches and even every pocket of a man's clothing contains matches. They are scattered about on desks and in drawers and are so common and are handled so carelessly that it is not to be wondered that we have a great many fires resulting from their use.—Halifax, N. S., Chronicle.

Football Not Pingpong

In a Yale scrimmage practice one big chap smashed through a guard and lit into the man opposite him in rugged fashion. He helped his opponent to his feet at the end of the play, saying: "Excuse me, old man, I didn't mean to get into you so hard." Coach Jones heard the remark and strode into the mix-up. "Here you," he said, calling to the humble one, "what are you [illegible] a man's game. I don't want to hear any more of this 'excuse me' business. They give us your signal, Mr. Quarter-back."

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work"

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One case nearly always effects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

ABOUT WOOD-FILLERS

The Man Who Works About the Home Needs This Information

Open-grained woods require paste filling, being "hard woods." The varieties most in use are ash, beech, butternut, baywood, black walnut, chestnut, elm, mahogany, oak and rosewood.

Close-grained woods such as bass, cedar, redwood, gum, poplar, spruce and whitewood are filled with liquid fillers, being soft woods.

There is another group of woods that occupy an intermediate place, though they might properly be classed with the close-grained woods, namely, birch, cherry, circassian walnut and maple. They are sometimes filled with paste filler, sometimes with liquid filler.

Chestnut and some oaks are very open-pored and not only require filling but often two fillings and a stiff paste. The purpose of the paste filler is to fill up the openings in the tissue of the wood, the liquid part of the filler saturating the tissue and so to some extent preventing the wood robbing the varnish coat and occasioning pinholing, etc. For this purpose it is best to sometimes apply a coat of liquid filler over the paste filling, and in some instances another coat of paste filler over the liquid is best. In any case the idea is to form a hard and impermeable foundation for the varnish coats that are to follow.

A filler should be colored to match the wood; but should be made a shade or so darker. The following is a very good formula for making a paste-filler: Mix two parts of best coach japan and three parts of raw linseed oil, both by weight. To this liquid add enough finely pulverized silica to form a stiff paste. The mass needs to be thoroughly mixed.

A white liquid filler is sometimes desirable, and the following is a good one. In one gallon of raw linseed oil put two pounds of pale powdered [illegible], and place in a suitable vessel on the stove until the [illegible] melted, [illegible] meanwhile. Then remove from the fire and add one pint of white [illegible] dried and two [illegible] of turpentine; stir well, then set aside to [illegible] when cold, stir in [illegible] corn starch. After [illegible] with turpentine and pass it through a strainer.

ARTIFICIAL PEARLS

Most of Them Merely Glass Balls With Lustrous Coating Inside

The industry of manufacturing artificial pearls has developed enormously of late years, both in extent and in the remarkable degree of perfection which these imitations of the natural gem have attained, some of them almost defying detection even under the close scrutiny of the [illegible] experts.

The simplest forms are uniformly [illegible] and are merely glass balls [illegible] by means of tubes of varying [illegible]. More ingenious and more [illegible]-looking are the irregular pearls [illegible] gelatinous. To produce these the workman sometimes merely touches the ball momentarily with the end of a redhot tube, thus melting the glass at the point of contact and drawing it out irregularly. In other cases he touches one against another of the ball to a flame, at the same time blowing gently in the tube. The ball is pierced by two holes, one of which is caused by the breath of the workman, and the other by the hollow in the tube at the moment when this is detached from the pearl by means of a slight tap.

These balls are then merely coated inside with a preparation known as "essence of the Orient." This, despite its elaborate title, consists merely of pure water holding in solution the scales of the little fish known as the bleak-fish. The operation consists in the sucking of the liquid into a tube drawn out to a fine point and then blowing it into the glass bead, which is then given a rotary motion to spread the coating evenly.

The beads when coated are placed in a sieve whose bottom is covered with parchment and shaken incessantly till dry. Finally they are filled with wax so as to be less fragile and a little heavier.

THE CHINESE VIEW OF CHRISTIANITY

People Eager to Avail Themselves of Educational Advantages—Change of Faith Said to be Doubtful

To counteract to some extent the attitude of bigotry and prejudice exhibited in the West against everything Chinese, a new Review has been founded in London. It is the "Chinese Review," which is edited by two Chinamen.

Writing of the Chinaman and Christianity, J. Wong Quincey, one of the publishers, says:

There probably has never been any antagonism in China against Christianity itself. Missionaries have occasionally suffered, not for their religion, but rather from a misunderstanding of their real purpose and mission, and from acts of indiscretion committed by the missionaries themselves. Although there is no indigenous faith in China that could offer any opposition to the Christian appeal, the Chinese temperament and outlook upon life constitute a serious obstacle to the vital and rapid spread of Christianity.

It can serve no honest purpose to minimize the excellent work achieved by missionary endeavor. The result so far obtained can call forth nothing but admiration. Statistics of church membership, however, are obviously misleading in that they do not offer any guide as to the inward intensity of belief in the case of professed converts. There is no question of sincerity; but it is open to doubt whether the Chinese nature lends itself easily to that mystical abandon and absolute resignation to the supernatural which is the "sine qua non" of a living faith in Christ.

The average Chinese is too wide awake, too tantalizingly calm and self-controlled, too easily satisfied with small mercies, and with the pursuit of the concrete good to be emotionally led away from the steady paths of "terra firma" to soar with uncertain wings.

Of Chinese admiration for the moral tenets and practice of Christianity there is no lack; but it is only a tribute to "what is excellent and lovely, to what is good." To the Chinese mind the supernatural appeal is not so much unconvincing as unnecessary; and the restless attitude of spirit involved in the Christian injunction to "watch and pray" is somewhat irksome and foreign to the easy-going Chinese temperament. All this being granted, the Chinese are exceptionally alert to anything which is calculated to help in the building up of sound character.

Parents and guardians who cannot be suspected of personal leaning towards Christianity are most anxious to send their young charges to educational institutions which are avowedly and aggressively Christian. This openness of the Chinese mind has profoundly influenced the policy of Christian missions during the last few decades. Incalculable good has been, and is being done, by these institutions in the matter of spreading among the educated ranks of China Western ideals which have have been inspired directly or otherwise by the Christian religion. It is questionable, however, whether these efforts have been successful in making many real and permanent converts to Christianity.

TRAFFIC IN DRUGS

Far Too Much Cocaine Sold in Ontario—Government Inspection

The Canadian Pharmaceutical Association is on record as against the traffic in cocaine. The Registrar-General, said that over two thousand ounces of cocaine were sold in Ontario alone during one year, and that was far more than is necessary for surgical use and prescriptions. He declared that too much of the habit begetting drug is being imported into this country by degraded agents, who distribute it like any other commercial commodity. "They barter them on the highway and in secret places for the sake of gain, which is a disgrace to humanity," said the speaker, who told his fellow-pharmacists that the only source of detection and imprisonment of such unscrupulous persons was by the appointment of a Dominion inspector. The cocaine laws of the Province and the Dominion were not put on the statute books any too soon. Speaking from actual experience, as inspector for the Ontario College of Pharmacy, of sales of cocaine by wholesale houses, he was of the opinion that there was far more cocaine being sold than was necessary for legitimate prescription purposes, and had the same opinion in regard to the sale of morphine and opium. Something should be done to further curtail the illegitimate sale of these three bad habit-forming drugs, and money should be expended by the Government toward furthering this end. He had not found it necessary to bring all cases and druggists into the public courts, but privately faced them with the charge that they were personally violating the law. In some cases, he was sorry to say, such accusations had been denied, but when they discovered that he had had access to wholesalers' records of sales, they acknowledged their faults, professed sorrow and begged of him to overlook their action, and humbly promised never to do it again. Judging from what he knew he would advise all pharmaceutical associations to recommend the Government to appoint a Dominion Inspector.

We are most of us willing to acknowledge that we have been fools—seldom that we are fools.

SUPERSTITIOUS PLAYERS

Why Should Loose Hay Bring Good Luck and Baled Hay the Opposite?

Superstition is one element in baseball "dope" that no one can figure out. In fact superstition plays an immense part in all sports.

The idea that meeting a hay wagon loaded with loose hay brings luck is general in baseball. Players frequently grab straws from such a load to wear in their caps. Baled hay, on the other hand, is unlucky.

Clark Griffith, who scoffs at all superstitions and jokes about them, has his pets. If Grif dreams that a pitcher is getting hit hard, that pitcher is kept out of the game. He says he isn't superstitious, but that it doesn't pay to take chances.

There is a major league manager who a few seasons ago was leader of a team that seemed the strongest in the circuit. It looked as if it would win as certainly as anything in baseball can be figured. One reporter picked the team to win. That evening the manager was gloomy.

"I thought we'd win sure," he said. "I never had a doubt until this morning."

"Why, that fellow picks us to win," he wailed. "He never was right about anything. He's jinxed us. If he'd have picked us for fourth we'd have won sure."

And his team didn't win.

Your Watch as Compass

Hold a watch horizontally and face upwards. Point the hour hand at the sun. Then a line drawn from the centre of the dial to a point halfway between the figure "XII." and the pointer of the hour-hand points approximately to the South Pole, and the rough directions of north, east, and west can be easily determined.

This method is to be used in the Northern Hemisphere only.

The Mysterious Egg

The hen's egg, although weighing but 2 to 2½ ounces, is a very mysterious little thing. Whilst the sex of an egg before the latter has been incubated, cannot be ascertained, it is quite simple, on the other hand, to discover the quality of the contents before breaking the egg.

If the egg rattles when gently shaken it may be considered a stale one, more or less, in which the contents have become decomposed. The best method for a wife to adopt to ascertain the freshness of purchased eggs is the salt test. Dissolve six ounces of ordinary salt in a tumbler of water and place the egg therein. If a genuine new laid article, the egg will sink just below the surface. After seven days it will float, and the more it protrudes from the surface of the water the older the egg.

An egg that is even good only in parts will, singularly enough, lose much of its staleness during its swim.

Vibrating Safety-razor

A safety razor in which the blade and frames are vibrated rapidly from side to side by an electric motor taking current from an incandescent light socket has been patented.

Will Burn Nine Years.

In a Long Island factory there recently was made a candle for religious purposes, which, if burned continuously, would last for about nine years.

Light of Fireflies

It has been proved by experiments conducted by M. Ives, a chemist, that the light emitted by fireflies, glow-worms and other insects is purely chemical and not in any way biological. Mr. Ives finds that this light is not extinguished by death. Of course after death some stimulus is necessary to excite it, but it can be produced in their tissues two years after their death, which makes certain that it is chemical in origin.

CATARRHAL FOREHEAD PAINS GO QUICK! SNIFFLING, CLOGGED NOSTRILS CURED

Not a Sign of Cold, Catarrh or Throat Trouble Will Remain!

Quick relief for that headache—just one breath through Catarrhozone inhaler and you feel better. The soothing piney vapor of Catarrhozone clears the head instantly; its healing balsamic fumes take the sting out of the nose, stop sniffles, ease the throat, cure the cough and destroy all the vileness of catarrh.

No other remedy treats Catarrh so directly, so quickly; every breath you draw through the inhaler carries a marvelous lot of healing virtue—carries death to the germs that cause the trouble.

You can't keep Catarrh—nor can you hang to a cold, or have any chest or throat trouble if you use Catarrhozone. It is guaranteed to make you well.

"My head used to fairly split with an awful pain over the eyes.

"It was always worst when my catarrh was bad. I had the meanest sores and crusts inside the nose, and continually coughed, both day and night. The first day's use of Catarrhozone made a grand improvement. Every hour I felt better. Catarrhozone cured me perfectly."

O. P. DINGMAN,
Cordova, Ont.

No one ever uses Catarrhozone without being satisfied. If your case is curable, Catarrhozone will do the work. It is guaranteed—get the complete dollar outfit. Small size 50c. Sample trial size 25c.

Our County Council

"We have no intention of saddling a financial burden on the 1915 County Council," said Warden Shaw in discussing the County Council's attitude toward the Patriotic Fund. For two days the matter of contributing to the fund has been in the hands of the Council, but up to noon yesterday nothing definite had been arrived at. A committee headed by Dr. Kendred has been dealing with the matter and there is every likelihood that the committee will ask the Council to pass a by-law authorizing a grant of at least one thousand dollars to the Patriotic Fund.

A Port Hope Lothario

A Port Hope man who had evidently not read the story of Naboth's vineyard, was fined $31.75 for breaking two windows in the door of his neighbor's house. It seems that the offender had his neighbor's wife down at Cobourg where the twain licked up a whole lot of Cobourg whiskey. When the gay cavalier called, by appointment later to see his lady friend on the previous afternoon, the door was locked. His lady friend's daughter had unexpectedly returned. The ungallant Port Hope Lothario broke two windows when he could not get in.

Did She Come Here?

Lindsay Warder: The attention of Mrs. E. E. Sharpe, secretary of the Children's Aid Society, was drawn to the advent of a young girl who arrived in town yesterday and was seeking employment as a domestic with a Lindsay lady. The fair arrival came to Lindsay by the C. P. R. noon train from Pontypool. She is sixteen years of age, of good proportions, wore a wristlet watch, and was well dressed for a girl who professed to be penniless. She claimed that her previous employer was named Blakely, and lives near Pontypool. It was about 8 p.m. when Mrs. Sharpe met the girl and asked her to accompany her to Magistrate Jackson's home to have an interview before taking her to a boarding house for the night. Matters went well until they came close to the magistrate's residence on Ridout-st. when the young lady bolted and went off on a hurried run, leaving her protectoress behind her. Any person seeing the girl can communicate with Mrs. Sharpe in reference to her location.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison. Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a distressed part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimer Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co., and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day — over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years — he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema.

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

THE CANADIAN INDIAN LONG MISUNDERSTOOD

Much Uncertainty as to His Origin—Redman of Early Days Was Not Bloodthirsty Savage

Scholars have not yet reached any definite conclusion as to the nature of the progeny of which the Canadian Indian is a type, writes "Transoceanum" in The Toronto Globe. Theory has it that he is of the same strain as the Mexican and Peruvian of the period previous to the Spanish conquest. This fact has been established beyond a doubt, however, that the Indian of tropical temperament and habits belongs to a totally different race to the sub-Arctic Eskimo, who in all probability migrated from Northern Asia. But of the original home of our Indian no one is certain. There is indeed some evidence that points to the Mediterranean region. If we assume the veracity of this evidence we must then conjecture that the entire root of the race of man was seated in the eastern Mediterranean, and that the body of water that now separates what we call the new world from the old did not exist. Anthropologists and geologists cannot agree on this point, and to us it seems preposterous that the human type grew up before such huge and necessary bodies of water as the Mediterranean and the Atlantic existed.

Be this as it may, the Canadian redman has undoubtedly been wrongly named owing to the fact that the first discoverers of the North American continent thought they had reached their objective—India. Accordingly they called the strange people with whom they came into contact Indians. Ever since that period the Canadian Indian has been more or less stigmatized equally with the ferocious creature of the more distant wilds written of by novelists. The white man regarded Indian habits and customs as absurd. The Indian in his turn marvelled at the appearance and actions of the white man. The European, with the contempt that comes from intellectual growth, believed that the Indians were mere animals preying on territory fit only for the white man. But the fact of the matter was they were very human animals.

Prior to the occupation of America by the European there were not prevalent the treacherous butchery and brutality that is too often connected with the Indian. True, the redmen had their struggle for existence, their tribal conflicts and their battles for the protection of common rights and property. But was not Europe continually in the toils of war arising out of more petty and personal reasons? I claim that internecine strife never flourished to the extent that it did in Europe. I stand aghast at the atrocities that were committed in Europe when myriads of lives were sacrificed to the bonfire, the gibbet and the thumbscrew by both individuals and the State. Tradition was the Indian law, and how devotedly did the Indian abide by it! Seldom was it necessary to punish one of a tribe. We must excuse their crude methods, seeing that they dwelt in a wild and rugged country, and amid an environment conducive to emotional development.

The Indian of Canada was a born artist, because, as William Morris says, he took pleasure in the doing of his work. Who to-day is not astonished at the skill that lurks in the Indian carvings of bone and stone, their birch-bark canoes and their handwork in straw? They were hedged about by very few conventions, and they expressed themselves wholeheartedly in their own crude way. We may laugh at their songs and dances, but we must remember that one did not sing or dance at another's behest, but all as one, according to the dictates of their own desires to do something that pleased, to express their emotional natures in action. Crude as we may regard these forms of expression, they were true, and true expression is art. How else, in what better way, could they express themselves, a people that were alone with nature? In reading the translations of the long speeches of the Indian chiefs we now find that they had an innate and a remarkable ability for oratory, and even the addresses of the tactful Frontenac cannot vash with the Indian masterpieces.

What is a Heifer?

The question is sometimes asked as to the exact age or condition necessary to transform a heifer into a cow. This is really rather a hard question to answer with finality, but in a prize list from the agricultural society at Johannesburg, South Africa, we find a definition. The prize list says: "The society's definition of a heifer for its show purposes is as follows: An animal (female bovine) shall remain a heifer until she attains the age of three years or has a calf, whichever event first happens."

CANADA'S PROGRESS

Lord Strathcona Predicts Era of Tremendous Expansion

"Looking back on Canada as it was seventy-five years ago," said Lord Strathcona recently, "the change is indeed, amazing. Canada was then comparatively a wilderness, with a population of barely a million or so of people, and now she has eight or nine millions. And this is nothing to what it will be in another three-quarters of a century, when it will unquestionably have a population equal to or greater than that of the United Kingdom."

"Little more than forty years ago," Lord Strathcona added, "the great territory of Rupert's Land, then possessed by the Hudson Bay Company, did not produce enough breadstuff for the use of the 200 or 300 white people who then resided at the company's posts, and out of that vast territory have been carved the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta which produces annually 300,000,000 bushels of wheat—the city of Winnipeg, then non-existent, with a population of about 200,000, and several other cities with populations ranging from 20,000 to 120,000, the latter being that of the city of Vancouver to-day.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and luxuriant at once—No more falling Hair.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp life, and if not overcome it produces the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair— you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

The "Good Hope" Not Engaged in Naval Battle Off Chilean Coast--Two German Cruisers Sunk Foe Renews Attack on France, But is Repulsed

GERMANS AGAIN RESUME ATTACK BUT ARE REPULSED EVERYWHERE

Fighting Between the Dixmude and the Lys Continues Without Any Marked Results Either Way--Foe's Cannonading to the North of Arras Continues, But Without Advantage to the Enemy--German Position Recaptured

Paris, Nov. 6.— This afternoon's French official statement says:

"There was no perceptible modification during the day of yesterday anywhere on the front. The fighting continued between Dixmude and the Lys, with the same characteristics as previously and without any marked advance or retirement at any point. There was violent cannonading to the north of Arras, without result for the enemy.

"The German effort in Belgium and in the North of France continues. The Germans seem to have undertaken changes in the composition of their forces which are operating in this region, and are reinforcing their reserve corps, composed of new organizations which have been severely tested, with active troops with the idea of undertaking a new offensive movement, or at least to mitigate the bloody checks which have been inflicted upon them.

"Between the Somme and the Oise and between the Oise and the Meuse, there have been minor actions. We have consolidated our advance on the village of Andechy, to the west of Roye. A column of German wagons has been destroyed by the fire of our artillery at long range in the region of Nampoel, to the northeast of the forest of Aigue.

"Near Berry-au-Bac we have retaken the village of Sapigneul, which had been captured by the Germans.

"There has been a furious fight in the Argonne, where, as a result of fighting with the bayonet, our troops drove the Germans back.

"In the Woevre district fresh attacks by the enemy have been repulsed.

"To the north-east and to the east of the Grande Couronne of Nancy (the chain of fortified positions surrounding Nancy), in the region of the forest of Parroy and between Baccarat and Blamont, our advance post have been attacked by mixed detachments of the enemy whose movements everywhere were checked.

Havre, Nov. 6.—The Belgian official communication given out here to-day says:

"The enemy is showing no activity on the Yser front, but several detachments with quick firing guns still occupy the left bank of the Yser near St. George and St. Uyvhenskerke.

"The Germans have placed numerous cannon, including all calibres, on the Belgian frontier between Middlekerke and Zeebrugge.

"On the Dixmude-Bixschoote ... the Anglo-French offensive movement continues. Violent German attacks in the direction of Bixschoote have been repulsed.

"Between Wytschaete and Messines the offensive movement of the allies has progressed as far as the road joining these two towns.

Germans Active on Yser?

Paris, Nov. 6.—The Germans are attempting to renew the battle of Yser. Reports from Belgium sources say that the enemy have requisitioned a large quantity of boats from Bruges and that neighborhood and expected to attempt to cross the deepest part of the waste of waters covering the north country in them. Artillery is being moved into position to frustrate this attempt.

Ignorance of the exact openings of the dykes caused the Belgians unintentionally to violate the military principle of inundation as a means of safety. The strategic plan provides for a depth which will make it impossible to move artillery and yet not deep enough to use boats. The Belgians apparently have turned too much water into the Yser territory and the Germans will endeavor to benefit thereby. Meanwhile the fighting in that section has settled down. Both sides are being constantly reinforced, and the fighting swings backward and forward across a tenmile stretch of territory, which is simply littered with dead and wounded of both armies. The fighting between Lille and Armentieres and in the vicinity of Arras is also warmly contested. The allied lines here are declared to be holding firm in the face of all assaults.

The Germans attacked in force in the Argonnes last night and gained an early advantage which they were later forced to relinquish by a determined French bayonet charge.

FIGHT AROUND YPRES CHARACTERIZED AS A GALLANT SOLDIERS' BATTLE

London, Nov. 6.—The Press Bureau today issued the following account of events at the battle front as witnessed and written by Colonel E. D. Swinton of the Intelligence Department of the General Staff.

The recital is dated November 1st, and says:

Friday, Oct. 30.—I have witnessed a renewal of the efforts against our right which were without success to the enemy. In the centre the bombardment was heavy. Indeed, so many shells fell around our positions that telephone wires frequently were cut. The attack in the direction of Ypres generally was renewed. Southeast of that town it was pressed in great force, and in places our line was again forced back a short distance, But on our left the oncoming Germans were stopped by our entanglements, under a close rifle fire, and after two efforts to advance, they gave way.

Still Held Coveted Position

On Saturday, October 31, a most determined attack was made upon our left and our left centre, the pressure being especially severe against the latter portion of our position. Part of our line was driven back temporarily by the sheer weight of metal and numbers, but it was almost all recovered again before night. Against our centre the enemy did not advance while against our right they were not nearly so active as they were farther north.

So far, with the assistance of the French who have been co-operating, most effectually, we have succeeded in maintaining our line and in retaining possession of Ypres, upon the capture of which, by the end of October, the Germans had set their heart.

"It Has Been Soldier's Battle.'

As may have been gathered, the fighting of the past five days has been of the most desperate nature. It has been eminently a soldiers' battle, and without exaggeration or any undue self-congratulation, it can be said that our men have behaved splendidly in the face of heavy odds and against the repeated onslaughts of great masses which were continually replaced by fresh men and backed up by the most continuous fire of immense guns. They have, by their dogged resistance, well upheld the reputation of our army.

Heavy as have been our losses we have taken a far heavier toll from the the enemy and we have prevented them gaining the object upon which all their energies have been concentrated.

High Praise For French.

"And not only have our troops maintained their traditions, but our French allies have been fighting with all the dash for which they are famous. Judging from all accounts they have made at Dixmude and along the Yser a name for themselves which will never die. The Belgian army likewise has resisted the furious onslaughts of the enemy with the utmost gallantry.

The German troops also have won our respect for the way in which they have advanced. Whether it be due to patriotism or to the fear induced by iron discipline, the fact remains that they steadily press forward to what in many cases must obviously have been certain death.

Reports From Lima Deepen the Mystery Surrounding Naval Fight

British Officials Say That the "Good Hope" Was Not Engaged. Also That German Cruisers "Briemen" and "Leipzing" Were Sunk. British-Jap Squadron After Germans. German Right Wing in France is Crumbled Up

LIMA, PERU, NOV. 6.—BRITISH SUBJECTS AND OFFICIALS HERE, THOUGH 1,500 MILES FROM VALPARAISO, DECLARE THAT THEY ARE FAR FROM SATISFIED WITH THE GERMAN REPORTS OF THEIR SUCCESSES IN THE BATTLE OF SUNDAY NIGHT OFF THE CHILEAN COAST. THEY STATE THEY HAVE RECEIVED INFORMATION THAT THE GOOD HOPE, REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SET ON FIRE BY THE GERMAN GUNS DID NOT PARTICIPATE IN THE FIGHT AT ALL. THEY ALSO CLAIM GOOD REASONS TO BELIEVE THAT THE GERMAN LIGHT CRUISERS BREMEN AND LEIPZIG MAY HAVE BEEN SUNK IN THE FIGHT.

IT IS CONSIDERED CERTAIN HERE THAT A BATTLE BETWEEN THE GERMANS AND A COMBINED BRITISH-JAPANESE SQUADRON CAN BE EXPECTED SOON. IT IS KNOWN THAT SUCH A SQUADRON IS SEARCHING FOR THE GERMANS WHO STEAMED NORTHWARD AFTER LEAVING VALPARAISO, BUT WHO HAVE NOT SINCE BEEN REPORTED BY MERCHANT VESSELS.

SMASHED LIKE WINE GLASS

LONDON, NON. 6.—THE CORRESPONDENT OF THE DAILY MAIL IN THE NORTH OF FRANCE, UNDER DATE OF NOV. 5, DESCRIBES THE RELIEF FELT IN DUNKIRK, CALAIS, AND THE NEIGHBORING TOWNS AND VILLAGES AT THE RETREAT OF THE GERMANS, WHICH, HE DECLARES, AMOUNT TO NOTHING LESS THAN A ROUT. HE SAYS:

"THE GERMAN RIGHT IS SMASHED LIKE A FALLEN WINE GLASS. GUNS, STORES, RIFLES, AND EVEN THE WOUNDED WERE ABANDONED IN THE RUSH FROM THIS FATAL BATTLEFIELD. THE CHANCE OF THE GERMANS WAS WELL ON THE WANE WHEN THE FLOODING OF THEIR POSITIONS CAME AS A CLIMAX OF THE DISASTER.

"THERE IS NOW LEFT NO MORE THAN A REMNANT OF THE GERMAN FORCE WHICH MET ITS FATE AT THE YSER. THIRTY THOUSAND GERMANS, SAY THE BELGIANS, HAVE BEEN PUT OUT OF THE FIGHT ON THIS LINE.

"NOT A SINGLE GUN REMAINS ON THIS SIDE OF THE RIVER, AND THE UNBURIED DEAD, THE DROWNED, AND THE WOUNDED, WITH THE MEMORY OF ALL THE TRAINS OF WOUNDED THAT LEFT THE FIRING LINE IN RECENT DAYS, LEAD ONE TO THINK THAT THERE IS NO OVER-TELLING OF THE ENEMY'S LOSS. THERE MUST BE MANY THOUSANDS OF PRISONERS."

Best Treatment for All Complexion Ills.

I'll tell you my panacea for all complexion troubles. If the skin be colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, if it be rough, chapped, blotchy, pimply, or freckled, there's nothing that will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercolized wax. The wax literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin so gently, gradually, you experience no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, one so clear, spotless, delicately soft and beautiful, you look many years younger. One ounce of this wax, procurable at any drug store, will rejuvenate even the worst complexion. It is smeared on like cold cream before retiring and removed mornings with warm water. The mercolized wax habit is a healthier and more economical one than the cosmetic habit.

If the skin be wrinkled or creased, bathe it daily in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This acts immediately, affecting even the deepest wrinkles.—Elsie Desmond, in Beauty's Mirror.

GERMANS GETTING HARD KNOCKS FROM THE RUSSIANS IN THE EAST

Their Left Wing is Isolated. Must Abandon East Prussia for Safety. Berlin Alarmed at Situation. The Germans are Positively Demoralized, Russians Attack German Forts. Austrians in Retreat

Petrograd, Nov. 6, (via London.)—According to Russian information Wirballen is the only obstacle to a general advance of the whole Russian front into East Prussia. The Germans, it is declared, soon will be forced to evacuate, being threatened by a flanking movement of the Russians.

The backward movement of the remainder of the German line left this point without sufficient support.

Austrian troops are pushing through the passes of the Carpathians to support the Austrians who are falling back before the Russian advance in the region west of the San River. A correspondent at Lemberg states that these troops have been exhausted by the struggle through the snow-filled mountain passes and are 'incapable of a serious resistance.

The Germans Demoralised.

The Russian War Office today claims that the Russians are retreating precipitiously into East Prussia with the Russian armies harassing them at every point. The cold weather has apparently demoralized the Germans and many of them are reported surrendering without a fight. At several points the Russians have already penetrated the Prussian border, and some of the reports indicate that the German left wing has been isolated from the main body of the troops.

Military experts declare that the Germans cannot hope to hold East Prussia, and they are expected eventually to withdraw from there entirely concentrating on their secondary defence line of forts.

In Galicia it is announced that the Austrians continue to retreat. Heavy Russian columns have already crossed the San River and are pressing the Austrians far back in the general direction of Cracow.

Russians Attack German Forts.

The Berlin War Office today says: "Reports from the eastern front are that the Russians, in enormous force are attempting to break through the barrier forts, but without success. The severe cold weather and occasional snow-storms makes all progress on this front very slow. Vienna reports that the Przemysl forts are still holding out and that fighting is still in progress along the San River."

CHINESE WOMAN IS CENTRE OF ALL EYES

New Orleans, Nov. 3.—From Mrs. Chee Kin Fong's small mouth poured a cataract of gurgling sounds. They floated around the corridors of the Grunewald Hotel and for want of a haven floated disgustedly out of a window. Mrs. Chee Kin Fong stamped a vexed foot, but this only lured the bland eyes of her tormentors from her purple pantaloons to her amazing feet.

It was all very annoying to Mrs. Fong—if that's the family name. Old Mr. Confucius bought those kind of clothes for his wives, the musical comedies belabored a kind public with the idea for years, so Mrs. Fong was rightly annoyed to be bundled into the position of cynosure of appraising eyes.

As she stood in the door of her room in the Grunewald Hotel, with 2-year-old Chee Kin Fong, Jr., grasping infantwise at the hem of her pantaloons, Mrs. Fong completely verified everything the geographies have said about the Chinese woman. Her straight black hair was plastered over her forehead. It trailed behind her ears and fell in a braid down her back. Gewgaws of every description were jabbed at random into the braid, giving the effect of a truculent porcupine. Jade rings hung from the lobes of her ear, dangling down until they touched he silk jacket that covered her shoulders. Her legs were enveloped in blue silk pantaloons.

Mrs. Fong, however, hates to be stared at. She said so in as many ways as she could and as the blank faces of her audience told her nothing she took advantage of an international code that is always convincing—she shut the door in everyone's face.

Mrs. Chee Kin Fong left Saturday morning for Panama. With her is Mr. Chee Kin Fong, a prominent Chinese merchant of Honolulu.

From behind one of those well-known Chinese grins Mr. Fong said that he was treating his family to a lance at the canal. He would then, said he, bring them back to glance over America before he returned to his dry goods store in Honolulu.

GERMAN OFFICERS SHOOT MEN DOWN IF THEY HESITATE IN ADVANCING

A Matter of Certain Death in Both Front and Rear--Atrocious Conduct of Foe's Officers Confirmed--Airmen Harass Advancing Hostile Columns--A Weary Time for Poor Refugees

"I was enlisted in October of 1913. On mobilization, the weakly and those backward in training to the number of about sixty per cent. of the company, were withdrawn from the active regiment to form the nucleus reserve regiment which was completed by men from Baden and Wurttemberg belonging to the second section of the Landwehr. We received new gray uniforms. After ten weeks of hard training we traveled for three days and two nights, from Thuringia up to a Aix-la-Chapelle, where we remained in reserve We were told that our nearest enemies were the English. On the seventeenth and eighteenth of October we performed such fatiguing forced marches that many fell out on the road.

Threat Carried Into Effect.

"On October 17, we each received 285 rounds of ammunition, and had our first taste of fire. Although we were told that there were only sharpshooters in front of us. I saw French cavalrymen and no other foes. From this day onward the fighting was uninterrupted. On October 20, my section received orders to go forward to attack, and our officers warned us that if we gave way, fire would be opened upon us from behind. This threat was carried into effect when the losses we suffered compelled us to retire. Indeed, it was by a German bullet that I was wounded.

"Having fallen to the ground I remained between the lines without food or ease for two days at the end of which time I dragged myself to a ruined house.

"During all this time German shells which were short, were falling almost my shelter located a few hundred paces from the French lines. The French having advanced on October 24, I myself moved forward and called out to a passing patrol and surrendered.

"We have received no distribution of food since our arrival in France. The commandant of my company was a reserve lieutenant, 28 years of age. The Colonel, whose name I do not know, also belonged to the reserve, as did all the other officers of the regiment. The officers told us that if we fell into the hands of the French we would be sent to the foreign legion and that we surely would be massacred by the Moroccans. I saw only one man shot. He was a priest, who they say was a spy."

Airmen Harass Hostile Columns.

The results of the inundation to the North of Dixmude have been observed by our aviators, who have seen numbers of the enemy collected in groups on the dykes which intersect the flooded area where, according to report, some German heavy artillery is bogged. Our airmen also have been able to harass advancing hostile columns by bomb dropping and machine gun fire.

The tactical transfer of troops behind the German front line is now carried out to a great extent by motor omnibuses, of which long lines are visible from above. During the past few days large numbers of refugees have been streaming back along all the roads from Belgium and crowding the empty trains returning from the front upon which the French have most humanely allowed them to travel.

Weary Days for Refugees.

In these trains whole families may be seen jostled together in horse trucks and having with them what few household goods they have been able to carry away. But the less fortunate have to trudge the roads making use of any shelter they can find.

The inhabitants of the district within our zone of operations also line the roads from morning to night and listen to the sound of the guns, there being nothing else for them to do. As the dull roar waxes and wanes, so does their confidence die away or return, and in such alternatives of fear and hope is each weary day passed. All this traffic to and fro of civilians entails the utmost vigilance in order to guard against espionage.

BRITAIN WILL ADOPT EFFECTIVE WAY TO STOP ZEPPELIN ATTACK

London, Nov. 6.—The London Globe urges that England's best defense against Zeppelins is the immediate official announcement of the heaviest reprisals upon German property in England, also bank balances here, for attacks on unfortified towns and the slaughter of peaceful citizens from the air or by mines. It suggests that all Governments throughout the British Empire take an inventory of German property within the Empire, the twenty-five hundred million dollars, value of which is believed to reach the Kaiser's reported possessions in British Columbia included. "For every pound of property belonging to the allies which Germany can confiscate, the allies can confiscate probably ten pounds' worth."

London, Nov. 6.—The correspondent of The Times in Pas de Calais sends the following under Thursday's date:

"I am credibly informed that the German losses in the supreme attack on the British between Ypres and Lille are well over 50,000.

"The fighting is still proceeding but its fury has spent itself. The Germans were repulsed but it is rather early yet to emphasize suggestions of German demoralization."

THE RUSSIANS HAVE RECAPTURED JAROSLAU AND TAKE 5000 PRISONERS

Petrograd, Nov. 6, via London, 2.45 p.m.—The Russians have recaptured the Galician town of Caroslau and have taken 5,000 Austrian prisoners according to a telegram received here today from Lemberg.

Jaroslau is seventeen miles northwest of the Austrian fortress of Przemysl.

The Austrian attempts to cut off the Russian attackers, the message says, finally have broken down and the Austrians now are in retreat along the San River.

Belgian Staff Leave Havre.

Havre, France, Nov. 6.— Premier Charles DeBroqueville of Belgium, with the general staff of the Belgian army, left Havre this morning for Dunkirk, a French fortified seaport on the Straits of Dover. In accordance with the Belgian constitution, Parliament should be convened November 10, but as yet no preparation to this end have been made at Havre in the absence of King Albert.

Wheat Yield of Manitoba

A report of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture on the wheat yield per acre covering a period of thirty years shows that the yield ranged from 8.9 to 27.86 bushels, with an average of 18.52 bushels. Only six times in the thirty years was the yield below fifteen bushels, and eleven times it was twenty bushels or higher.

SLIDING TO FIRST QUITE LEGITIMATE

Big League Magnates Disagree With Ruling That Player Must Stay on His Feet

May a player slide into first base, instead of running past it. If he does, is he necessarily out? President Chivington, of the American Association says yes. He calls it an unwritten rule of baseball. The ruling by Chivington came as a result of an informal protest by Manager Friel, of St. Paul, against a ruling made by Umpire O'Brien, who called out Dixie Walker for sliding head first to the initial sack.

"There is no time gained by sliding, and in the case of first base, where the base-runner does not have to dodge a touch, the only reason for the slide is to raise a dust that will hide the play from the umpire," said Mr. Chivington.

Herrmann Disagrees

Commenting on the ruling, the Louisville Couruier-Journal said:

"The statement given out by August Herrmann upholds the declaration made by this paper that a man who slides into first and beats the ball is no more out than the man who hits the ball to the fence. It is merely an unjust assumption of power by the official. President Chivington's contention that the umpires are right in calling out the player who slides into first base is ridiculous. Anybody who has run or played baseball knows that a leap when going at full speed will save time, and that the player who slides has a better chance to beat the ball. If Mr. Chivington is consistent, why not call the player safe when the first baseman slides into the bag in order to make a play? The baseman undoubtedly raises as much dust. Laying aside the question of whether the slide is advantageous, the rules are clear upon the point. Herrmann states the case plainly: 'A player is allowed to reach any base by running, walking, jumping or in any other manner as long as he remains within the lines prescribed. This is laid down in the rules of the game, and no umpire, president of a league or anyone else has any right to change this rule.'"

Mack Upholds Slide

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, also had something to say about the ruling.

"There is a lot to be said on both sides of the slide-to-first proposition," Mack declared. "The biggest thing in its favor is the fact that it undoubtedly prevents many collisions between the first baseman and the runner. A baseman may be drawn back upon the bag by a high throw or a bounce, and unless the runner, coming full speed down the path, slides into the bag, a head-on collision is inevitable. I have seen a slide prevent smashes that might have had serious results innumerable times."

Asked whether or not he thought the slide to first saved time, Mack said he thought it did, possibly a fraction of a second, which in so many cases decided the result of a game. "As to the danger of spiking," he continued, "some players try to spike the baseman every time they slide into a bag, but clean players won't spike a man jumping into first base often enough to warrant a change in the rules. The danger of colliding with both players on their feet is the great one, it seems to me," said he, and he ought to know.

ETON "ALPINE" FEAT

Boy Fixes Hat on Lightning Conductor Above Buildings

High above the street, pierced by the lightning conductor on top of the Eton memorial buildings, Windsor, England, was visible a soft grey hat, a challenge and a defiance to the powers that be.

It was placed there by a boy who had first to attack the top of the massive dome, then to surmount a number of pillars and ornamental work, and finally at a dizzy height above the street to "shin up" the lightning conductor.

How the climb—which to the ordinary man looks an utterly impossible one—was accomplished remains a mystery.

A local builder was called in to remove the hat. He engaged the services of an expert climber, who with the aid of ladders and other appliances succeeded in getting it down amid the cheers of the boys—but the dare-devil boy who fixed it had no ladder for his 100 foot climb.

THE MODERN WONDER

It is surprising what a single cent's worth of electricity will do. Taking 10 cents a kilowatt hour as a basis, it will do any one of the following things:

Bring two quarts of water to a boil.

Run an electric broiler for six minutes.

Operate a twelve-inch electric fan for eight minutes.

Heat a luminous radiator eight minutues.

Make a Welsh rabbit in an electric chafing dish.

Operate a sewing machine motor for three hours.

Keep a four-inch disk stove hot for fifteen minutes.

Operate a seven-inch frying pan for twelve minutes.

Make four cups of coffee in an electric percolator.

Keep an electric flatiron hot for fifteen minutes.

Raise 250 gallons of water 100 feet.

ROUGH TACTICS WIN PENNANTS

Baseball General of Bygone Day Believes in Real Warfare on the Diamond

Patsy Tebeau, one of the gamest of old-time managers, has no use for "kid glove" baseball. When he heard that President Ban Johnson regarded Manager Birmingham's Cleveland players as "too rough" Patsy expressed the opinion that the mollycoddle days had come.

"Show me a ball club that is fighting every inch of the way and I'll show you a team that is after the pennant," he said. "This having players shaking hands every time they meet is foolish. It gives the fans the wrong impression. You've got to get the fighting spirit to win.

"We never thought of greeting our opponents. Our idea was to get out and beat them. I can see a runner sliding to first with me playing the bag and getting his head pumped with the ball. Think I'd apologize? Not Patsy Tebeau! 'Get your head out of the way and you won't get hurt,' would be more like it. About a year ago I saw a fellow steal second. He came up all dust, and what do you think happened? Why, the second baseman helped him dust his uniform. And that team finished last in the race. That isn't my brand of baseball.

"Rush the other fellows off their feet. Make them think you're tough.

PATSY TEBEAU

Fighting manager of the old Cleveland Spiders.

Scare them to death and you've got them licked. We used to sit on the bench and file our spikes. They had to be sharp to give when they cut into the ground and at the same time the other team knew we wouldn't give an inch in a pinch. One day I was sharpening my spikes when I heard a man on the other team say, 'When Tebeau slides into [illegible] you bet I'm going to get out of the way.' I had him scared, see?

"There's a difference between rowdyism and aggressiveness. The aggressive player will be on top when the parlor boy is at the bottom. Off the field, oh, well, that's different. On the field fight them to the last."

BEN TINCUP IS RICH

The majority of ball players are in the game for the amount of money they can get out of it; a few play it because of their love for the pastime. Ben Tincup belongs to the latter class. Tincup is a Cherokee Indian pitcher the Phillies picked up. He hails from Texas, and is said to be the richest ball player in the world, and probably one of the wealthiest men in baseball.

When the Indian comes of age in a few months his yearly income will be over $50,000 a year. He already has $20,000 stored away in a bank, besides being the possessor of 400 acres of valuable oil lands in Oklahoma, which the Government is leasing for him. So if Tincup fails to make good in the big leagues he won't have any cause to worry.

Since he is one of the few remaining Cherokee Indians, all the Oklahoma lands are held in trust for him. As soon as he is 21 years old he will go to Washington to collect the dividends which are accumulating for him. As Tincup's allotment of land was among the oil fields he is wealthier than many of the other survivors of the Cherokee tribe.

Preparing in Time

Antwerp has already commenced to prepare for the Olympic games, to be held in that city in 1920. A committee has been formed, and the support of the most influential persons in Belgium obtained.

The town authorities are to obtain a vote of several million francs for the expenses, and everything is being done to make the event a huge success. In recent years Belgium has come to the fore in international sports.

Forgot Bride For Dog

So anxious was Charles Humer, of Carlisle, Pa., a noted wing shot, to recover a black and white pointer that he had lost that he forgot that it was his wedding-day. When he was told an hour before the wedding by his kennel keeper that the dog had disappeared he rushed out of the house and started hunting through the woods of his estate and the wedding party was getting nervous when he was reached by phone after finding his dog. He hurried to the bride's home to explain as best he could that he had "forgotten."

[illegible] Range Attachment

Levers on the outside of a new gas range permit a broiler inside to be moved to any position desired with relation to the heat.

Protecting the Guests

To insure hotels and restaurants serving their patrons fresh eggs, a candling apparatus using an electric light has been invented.

Massage While Lathering Face

In the midst of a new shaving brush there is a rubber massager which may be pressed down by a button in the handle to rub in the lather

A glass or two of the "Beer That Builds" at bed time, will bring restful, refreshing sleep. The tired business man—the woman who is nervous and run-down—will find this tonic and food most beneficial. Rich in food value—easily digested—and extra mild.

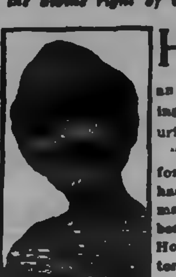
What Should You Spend On Your Beauty Aids?

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of women."



LUCREZIA BORI

"Is it good sense for a woman who has her living to make to pay for beauty culture? How much of a factor in business success is so-called beauty?

"If a woman does the work required of her better than any one else that could be hired for the same money, do you think it matters whether she has the wrinkles ironed out of her face or her hair dressed in the latest fashion?"

These are some of the questions asked in a letter received from a woman who tells me that she is "40 years old, looks it, and doesn't care, earns $2500 a year, and has no sympathy with all this foolish twaddle about beauty and youth."

She must be a capable woman to earn that salary, but if she is sincere in her contempt for the effort to look one's best she is pitifully short-sighted. Also, it is not beyond the possibility of happenings that she will wake up some day and find some woman who believes in looking attractive as well as competent walking away with her job.

Look Your Best.

I think it is of the utmost importance that the business woman shall keep her figure, her complexion, her youth, her charm. It is part of her business equipment. The man who earns a good salary and has a good position, or a business of his own, keeps himself looking worthy of his place in the business world. He knows it will gain him more consideration and respect, and give him more assurance.

Business people are human. They like to have their business associates look like the kind of beings they are proud to know. A business office that is clean and in order and well furnished, filled with fresh air and sunshine is more inviting than one that is dirty, dingy, disordered, isn't it?

Given your choice of firms, occupying the two offices, and you would choose the pleasanter one, wouldn't you? The dingy office may house more brains than the sunshiny one, but it won't make the appeal.

It is the same with the business woman. She should take care of herself in every way, and make herself as attractive, in appearance and character, as she can. If she wants to be thought a person of some consequence she must look as if she cared enough about herself to make a good appearance.

It depends upon how much money a woman makes when it comes to spending it on toilet luxuries. And do you really mean luxuries or necessities? I class good soap and creams and toilet waters and such aids to good looks as more or less necessities. So, too, is the Turkish bath, the manicured hands, the occasional visit to masseuse or hairdresser.

Gentlewomen in Business.

I have never advocated the spending of large sums of money in a reckless pursuit of beauty. I have tried to tell you that right living, taking care of your health, being careful about your diet, keeping your system in order and being cheerful would make for good looks. And that is not so expensive, but nearly every one can follow the rules.

Most successful business women are wise enough to try to look well. They dress becomingly. They keep the wrinkles out of their faces, and their complexions clear and fresh. They take care of their figures. They want to look trim, active, energetic, competent.

The new type of successful business woman is not a freak. She is a well-poised gentlewoman. There is nothing to distinguish her from any well-bred woman in what is known as "society." She is no different from her sister of like intelligence who is not in business. All intelligent persons recognize the fact that it pays to put one's best foot forward in this world.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

"DOING my own washing" is the limit of economy and martyrdom in the eyes of many housekeepers. Yet, washing is not such a mountainous task if one goes about it with a calm spirit, a level head, good cheer and willingness, and regards it more as a scientific performance of a necessary and important household duty rather than an unworthy drudgery.

Head work is just as important in washing as in any other achievement. The great painter said he mixed his paints with brains. Mix your compounds and do your washing with brains and see how much easier it is.

First, sort your clothes. Select the ones that are the most soiled and those that are stained, and lay them aside for special treatment.

Wash table linen by itself. Wash handkerchiefs alone. Don't use soiled suds for washing colored clothes unless you expect them to be muddy looking. Don't wash stockings after other clothes, such as flannels, unless you want them covered with lint.

Prepare the water for washing with some harmless washing fluid which will loosen dirt without eating the clothes, and soak the very soiled clothes. Turpentine is one of the most useful of washing aids. It will loosen dirt without the slightest injury to fabrics.

An excellent washing fluid is made by dissolving two pounds of soap in three gallons of water, adding a tablespoonful of turpentine and three tablespoonfuls of household ammonia. Soak the clothes in this for two or three hours before washing.

Clothes treated in this way will not need boiling. They can be put in the water when one first rises, and by the time the breakfast is out of the way they will be ready.

Another good washing fluid for very soiled clothes is made with equal quantities of turpentine, kerosene and lime water mixed. Wet the soiled garments with the mixture and after letting them stand in water enough to cover them, wash with warm suds.

All soaps are better if they are shaved and dissolved in the water. Soap jelly is made by shaving a bar of soap and letting it simmer in boiling water till it becomes thick like jelly. A teaspoonful of borax will soften it.

There are several meritorious washing machines on the market. One of the things to remember in using any of them is that the water should be boiling, and that the machine should be worked as rapidly and as long as is called for in the directions.

In washing, always try to have the water the same temperature throughout the wash. Before washing, all clothes should be wet thoroughly with cold water, and should be "set to boil" in cold water.

In removing clothes from the line, much trouble will be saved if they are pulled into shape and folded smoothly. Especially is this true of table linen and bed linen. In ironing table cloths and napkins be sure to iron with the warp. They should be ironed first on the wrong side and then on the right.

One of the things to remember on wash day is to have the kitchen freed of other work before the washing begins. Do up the breakfast dishes and get them out of the way. Of course this applies to the apartment or the small house where there is no separate laundry, the tubs being in the kitchen.

In starching fine things where only the stiffness of new linen is desired, a cup of gum arabic dissolved in a quart of boiling water is better than starch. Squeeze the articles, instead of wringing them, shake out the wrinkles, and hang them to dry with due regard to the warp of the material.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

For nine months I have known a sweet, pretty girl who works in our office. She is so simple and modest that I love her with all my heart. I think of her all day and dream of her all night.

But the other day when I bowed to her on the street she let me pass her.

Could it mean that she does not want me? It is very hard for me. What shall I do?

AGE 19.

WELL, Nineteen, can't you talk English? Can't you smile, can't you say it's a delightful morning? Can't you even look pleasant every time you see the girl, and see what that will do?

What do you expect her to do—rush wildly after you and beg you to speak to her?

Probably she didn't see you—that tragic moment when you met her on the street, and she "let you pass." She was probably trimming her holiday hat in her mind's eye, and trying to decide whether dark blue or light blue would be the most becoming.

Don't take the affair so seriously—be nice to the girl and she'll be nice to you. But, after all, you know, you're just 19. And if she's the first one you ever really loved you are pretty apt to find some day that she is—just the first one—after all.

GARLANDED GOWNS LATEST MODE

Chiffon Roses on Soft Tulle the Summer Fad

HERE is a new imported gown, presented as a refutation of the charges of improper dressing which are made from time to time against the American woman.

Could anything be more simple and charming? It is one of the trousseau gowns for a young woman whose position in life is such that she can have practically everything or anything in the way of clothes that her fancy dictates. She is invariably notedly well dressed. Yet not one of her gowns is any more conspicuous than the one shown.

This gown is developed in pale pink charmeuse of the most supple and exquisite quality. It is of that peculiar shade of pink which holds a hint of creamy-gray in its folds.

The tunic and bodice are draped in one piece, the folds being left at the waistline so there is no need of a girdle. The edge of the tunic is left selvage after the mode of the present making. The underskirt has the effect of draping, which is a matter of shaping rather than of actual tucking-up in any given place, and has the clinging lines at the hem.

The tunic slopes gradually and with a most graceful line from the front to back, reaching long enough at the sides, so as not to mar the line over the hips.

The bodice is sleeveless, and is draped across the bust and over the shoulders with loose folds of tulle. While the draping of the bodice is close enough at the waist to outline the figure it is left in slightly full folds over the bust, and is adorned with pink chiffon roses with silver hearts set at regular intervals. Nothing could be simpler and nothing more becoming to a woman of almost any age or type.

It is perfectly in style, yet there is nothing to criticise in its lines.

In speaking of the charges made against the American woman's dress, an American modiste who goes abroad twice a year to buy French models says: "It is the fault of the buyers more often than the fault of the makers, and still more the fault of the wearer when gowns are such that the words 'immodest' and 'indecent' can justly be applied to them."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 118

Mary's Christmas List.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

MARY'S Christmas list grew. Finally in a spasm of desperation I picked it up from the library table one night and looked at my wife who was embroidering an initial on a towel for somebody on the list.

"Mary," I said patiently, "you've simply got to cut out some of these people. I can't afford to give you any more money for Christmas, and you might as well make up your mind to it at once."

Mary's color rose.

"It seems to me," she flashed, "that Christmas is the one time you shouldn't stint money if you do every other month and week in the year."

"You don't 'stint' money any month in the year," I shot back. "I've told you that I have father's note to meet the first of January. That's for $50, and I must pay something on it——"

"I don't think your father ought to expect it," said Mary, resentfully, "when he knows the Christmas season is a period of such expense."

"He hasn't mentioned that he expected it," I flared angrily; "It's an honorable business obligation that I shan't ignore merely because the other party happens to be my father." I glanced indignantly down that fool Christmas list. "Just why do you give Mrs. Rayner a present of any sort? You hate her."

"She'll talk about me if I don't," said Mary.

"She'll talk about you if you do," said I bitterly. "If you give her an expensive gift she'll say you're spending more than your husband can afford—if you give her some simple, little thing, she'll swear you're a tight wad. I've met that type of woman before."

"Well," said Mary, flushing, "cross her off the list then, if you feel so cranky about it."

Very carefully then I went over my wife's Christmas list. Eighty per cent. of it I refused to regard as legitimate. Eighty per cent. of it had been inspired—not by motives of good feeling and generous giving—but by a grudging sense of obligation.

"I can't afford to have you lavishing gifts upon people merely to satisfy an ignominious sense of Christmas pride," I said. "It would please me most if you would narrow your Christmas list down literally to my people and your own. I can't afford to have it otherwise."

And after much tearful debate we revised the Christmas list at last to my approval. But even then Mary had wasted money on some foolish things that she eventually gave to a church fair, where doubtless they trapped some honorable, decent man with a silly wife into a spasm of profanity.

Littleness—that surely is the word for the mind that thinks of Christmas in terms of pin cushions. Littleness is the word for the energy that eats up time, money and patience for an unworthy cause.

Some one has said that Christmas isn't a season—it's a feeling.

And after all my trouble and worry, Mary deliberately spent the money I gave her for the payment on Dad's note, on Christmas baubles.

Tearfully one night—it was Christmas eve, I think—she confessed it.

"I—I thought your father could wait," she said, "and I—I did have to buy holly and wreaths and bells and everything to make the house look pretty, didn't I?"

I was too angry to answer. I merely whistled.

What Our River Names Mean

The strait of Juan de Fuca was named after an old Greek sailor who explored its shores in 1592.

Pecos river, Texas, was so named by the Spaniards from its appearance, pecos meaning "freckled."

The Connecticut river took its name from an Indian word, Quonaugticot, meaning "river of trees."

The Catawba river, in North Carolina, was named for the tribe of Indians that lived on its banks.

The Minnesota river was named by the Indians from the words, Minni-Sotah, meaning "green water."

The Menominee, in Wisconsin, was named from a tribe of the same name. The word means "wild rice."

Massachusetts bay was named from two Indian words, Mais Tchusaeg, meaning "this side the hills."

The Catawissa river, in Pennsylvania, was named from an Indian word that means "getting fat."

The Platte river was originally named the Nebraska, from an Indian word meaning "shallow water."

The Housatonic, in Connecticut, was called by the Indians Wussatenock, the "stream beyond the mountains."

The Delaware bay gave its name to the state. The bay was named from Thomas West, Lord De La War.

The Chickahominy had its designation from an Indian word, Chik-a-maw-hony, "the place of turkeys."

Appalachie Bay, Florida, was variously termed Apahlahchie, Abalachie, Apoolatel, Palaxy, Palatcy, and so on.

The Neversink was not named because its waters do not get low, but from the Indian Na-wa-sink, "mad river."

The Pascagoula, in Mississippi, was named from the Indians called the Pascagoulas, or "the bread-making nation."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why the Handerkerchief Is Considered Unsanitary.

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

THE Queen's lace handkerchief may or may not have been responsible for one of the wars between France and England, but that plain, everyday handkerchief of yours is responsible for more maimings and deaths than a dozen wars.

The linen handkerchief is an anachronism in these days of hygiene and bacteriology. In the pre-Pasteurian days, when germs and microbes were mere theoretical figments of a few super-heated imaginations, handkerchiefs were all very well in their way.

But nowadays, when each little drop of mucous, of perspiration, and of pretty much any spot of the body is known to reek with multitudes of microbes, the unhappy consequence of wiping your mouth, your nose, your forehead or any other fragment of your anatomy with a linen handkerchief, or, for that matter, any other kind, is to catch up the ultra-microscopic animalculae and bacteria and spread them to the next spot touched.

Say what you will against the pesky housefly, with its habit of spreading germs with its feet, its delicate tread and minimum of foothold places for bacteria to cling, yet its opportunities to extend diseases, bad as they are, are negligible compared with the overlooked pocket handkerchief.

When, in addition to its usual usufructs, the host of influenza bacilli and other "cold" causing bugs are poured into the folds of this all too handy mop, it needs no elastic imagination to realise what contagions are thus spread broadcast each time this white badge of iniquity is waved.

A Recent Inquiry.

Dr. Carl Hewson, a young bacteriologist, recently investigated and counted the number of bacteria in hundreds of freshly laundried handkerchiefs. These were compared with a similar examination of ordinarily soiled handkerchiefs. Finally a third research was made upon the handkerchiefs used for "colds," "coughs" and "sore throats."

The pathologist found that even the cleanest and sweetest of newly ironed linens had a large group of microbes in them. Happily, most of these were of the harmless, non-disease forming kind.

The handkerchiefs which most persons use and soil in the usual course of human events had all sorts and conditions of bacteria upon them. There were small ones and large ones, thin ones and fat ones, pus germs and blood poisoning ones, in short, those which cause boils, pimples, blackheads, dandruff, pink eye and other minor diseases.

Of the third group, the linens used by individuals sick with various ailments, almost all varieties of vicious bacteria from tuberculosis to diphtheria were present in abundance.

The Modern Substitute.

"What shall I do?" you ask fondly, "with my old family friend, the handkerchief? What is to replace it?"

Is it really necessary? If you needs must use something in lieu of the handkerchief to wipe away the briny tears, cast your clean lace, linen and paper kerchiefs into the garret, and take up the use of little tampons of sterilized, absorbent cotton.

Envelopes to fit milady's hand satchel with bits of cotton in them are now available. These may be had at sundry places. The eyes, nose, lips, ears or face may be mopped with them. They are then returned to the miniature envelope or package. At an opportune time these are burned with all the associated microbes of disease.

Tuberculosis, erysipelas, carbuncles, pneumonia, "colds" and all the infectious human ills are now borne by the respected handkerchief. Many victims of these maladies would have escaped their ravages had bits of absorbent cotton, or even paper ones, been in use and immediately thereafter burned.

Answers to Health Questions

M. A. B.—What shall I do for face breaking out in white splotches and itching?

Small doses of thyroid extract, watched by your doctor, and sesame oil with resorcin, 10 grains to the ounce, should stop it.

The Good-Night Story

The Golden Heart—By Vernon Morey.

A LONG time ago a young farmer, out hunting, met an old woman, who asked him for charity, because she had nothing to eat and had no money. He was good-hearted, so he gave her some of his money, and she thanked him with these words:

"Down the road you will see a tall tree, and in that tree nine crows fighting over a cloak. Take your gun and shoot into the flock; one of the crows will fall dead with the cloak at your feet. Keep the cloak, for it is a wishing cloak, and take out the bird's heart and carry it always with you. Put the heart under your pillow, and every morning you will always find a gold piece there."

The young farmer did exactly as the old woman had told him. He shot the crow and took its heart and carried the wishing cloak home with him. Next day he put on the wishing cloak and made a wish. In a second he was standing before a castle, talking with a beautiful girl.

Now, the young girl was as good as she was beautiful, but her stepmother was a wicked witch, and made the girl do what she wanted her to do. The old witch made the girl try to get the golden heart and the wishing cloak. To get it the pretty girl told the farmer that she would like some of the emeralds that were to be found on the distant mountain, but that she had never been able to go there because it was so far off. Distance, of course, was nothing to the farmer. He took the girl into his arms and wished himself there, and instantly they were standing on the mountain.

After they had gathered all the emeralds that they wished the poor young farmer fell asleep, because the old witch had given him a bottle of magic water to carry. When he fell asleep the beautiful girl took the golden heart and the cloak and wished herself back again.

When the farmer awoke he felt very badly over the lovely girl's treachery, and did not know what to do with himself, because he had lost every treasure that he had. Then, while he was sitting on top of the mountain, a cloud came along and carried him away. It dropped him in a garden.

In this garden he met again the old woman to whom he had been so good in his own country, and he told her his troubles. She gave him two cabbages, and told him exactly what to do to get his treasures back.

Without much trouble he found the castle where the girl and the wicked witch lived, but he disguised himself so that they did not know him. He invited them to eat a salad which he made from the cabbage, and, instantly, they were turned into donkeys. He drove them to a stable, and told the man there to take care of them, but to beat the old donkey every morning, as she was a very bad animal. Then he went back to the castle.

After some days the stableman came and told him that the old donkey was dead, and that the young one was very sick. Now, the farmer still loved the beautiful girl, so he had her brought to the castle, and fed her with the second cabbage the good woman had given him. Instantly she was turned into her own lovely self again.

She was so sorry for what she had been made to do to the young man that he forgave her, because he loved her very much. She found his cloak and the golden heart for him, and they were married and lived happily ever afterward in the castle.

CANADIANS IN BUFFALO SAID TO BE WELL ARMED WITH GUNS

Toronto, Nov. 6.— An interesting story of the concern which is felt by Canadian residents of Buffalo over the greatly increased German population of that city is told by Mr. J. W. Guddes of 425 Spadina avenue.

Canadians in Buffalo, says Mr. Guddes, are taking quite seriously what they consider to be a menace, both to Canada and themselves.

"When I was in that city a few days ago," he states, "I had a bit of red, white and blue ribbon in my hat. As I was boarding a street car a gentleman in the same seat whispered to me: 'You had better take that out of your hat unless you want to go home in a box.'

All Are Carrying Guns

"He, himself, was a Canadian. He told me that all Canadians in Buffalo were carrying revolvers and expected, at any time, to have to use them. The whole current of feeling there is seething with the possibilities of trouble. I am no alarmist, but I feel it my duty to tell what I found there and what Canadians, who are living there, have to say.

"There is a good deal of better feeling in Buffalo against the British. I saw crowds of men standing on the street corners who didn't look like residents."

"I learned over there that many of the German residents of the city are railroad men—firemen, brakemen, wipers and even drivers— and it would not be difficult, if they had intentions upon Canada, for them to seize a train and be off across the border before any steps could be taken to stop them."

Y. M. C. A. MEMBERSHIP

The Y.M.C.A. Membership Campaign which was started on the 15th of October will be continued until 16th of November. The effort so far has been not as successful as was first anticipated, although a good number of young men have been added to the Y.M.C.A. roll of membership and 2 0 [illegible] collected.

Watch fobs have been awarded to Stanley Taylor for having secured the largest amount in membership fees and to Allan Sharpe for having enrolled the largest number of members.

The teams will meet for supper on Thursday evening of this week (last night) and prepare plans by which the campaign may be pushed to a successful finish before the 16th of the month.

Mr. J. A. R. Harper who acted as captain of one of the teams left with the soldiers of the second contingent, so another captain will have to be appointed to fill his place. Mr. Harper will carry with him to the front a watch fob from the local association, in recognition of his efforts and the high esteem in which he is held by the Y.M.C.A. members.

A Reason for Doubt

A Berlin dispatch to the London Times recently said that preparations are being made in the German capital for the public proclamation of the annexation of Belgium which is mentioned officially as "The German Reichlan under the illustrious scepter of Kaiser Wilhelm von Belgium."

But what a multitude of things have been said that were not so! For three months the world has been in a daze as to what is true and what not true regarding the mighty struggle in Europe.

With reference to the point above referred to as to the German annexation of Belgium it is pertinent to recall the fact that on August 4, three days after Germany's ultimatum to Russia, the German foreign secretary said in a telegram to the German ambassador in London:

"Please dispel any distrust that may subsist on the part of the British government with regard to our intentions, by repeating most positively formal assurance that, even in the case of armed conflict with Belgium, Germany will under no pretense whatever annex Belgian territory.

"Sincerity of this declaration is borne out by the fact that we solemnly pledge our word to Holland strictly to observe her neutrality. It is obvious that we could not profitably annex Belgian territory without making at the same time territorial acquisitions at the expense of Holland."

These pledges and assurances were given after Germany had begun her march across Belgian territory toward France, and it is fair to assume that Germany will adhere to her declarations. Unconfirmed assertions to the contrary should not have weight.

Only Spectacular Successes

The manner in which German ships continue to win spectacular successes at sea is calculated to alarm the public unnecessarily. To those who bear in mind the relative position of the fleets of Great Britain and Germany, the supreme advantage possessed by the former at the start of war is still clearly maintained.

Not only that. Since the outbreak of war, Great Britain has added to her fleet strength, or is about to add to it, four battleships of the Dreadnought type, one battle-cruiser of the same type, four armored cruisers, three armored gunboats or monitors, two flotilla leaders, and eight large destroyers. This addition, which is a matter of a few weeks, will keep the German torpedo boats busy for at least two years at their present rate of progress. It will maintain the supremacy of the British fleet in numbers, not counting the inroads on Germany's naval strength made by British attacks.

A few weeks ago, just after the Germans had retreated from the vicinity of Paris to the Marne and when the friends of the allies at home were joyfully celebrating the victory, Mr. Winston Churchill said in a public address that the confidence he felt in ultimate victory would be just as great had the allies suffered the reverse instead of the Germans. That is the spirit in which the British navy faces the foe; and, while it would be idle to deny that the recent spectacular successes of Germany at sea have been somewhat disconcerting, it is ridiculous to imagine that the British fleet has suffered any loss of sufficient importance to give rise to feelings of uneasiness at home.

Police duty is proverbially a thankless task. That is what the British fleet is doing at the present time. In the pursuit of her duty, she is compelled to take risks and lay herself open to reprisals the German fleet does not have to encounter, both in the North Sea and in foreign waters. While Great Britain polices the avenues of the deep, which are the great roads of her Empire, Germany can hide in corners and holes and come out only when an opportunity occurs to strike a blow at a supreme advantage. Britain claims her Admiralty of the seas, and, as Kipling has pointed out, blood is the price she pays for it—blood and treasure. In time of war, she must meet her bills, and she is doing it, the world over.

Germany is making use of her strategic advantage: Britain is paying dear for her supremacy. Were the navies equal, the British people, with the greatest confidence, would back their own fleet; were Britain outnumbered, they would do the same; since Britain is in the majority, they are willing to give odds.

Joint and Muscle Pains Banished by Nerviline

IT CURES RHEUMATISM.

Thousands of people, chuck full of the joy of living—happy, glad, bright people, that Nerviline has cured of their pains, all tell the same wonderful story of its power to drive out the aches and tortures of rheumatism and kindred ills.

"My goodness, but Nerviline is a miracle-worker," writes Mrs. Charlotte Chipman, mother of a well-known family residing at Mount Pleasant. "Last month I was so crippled up with sciatica and muscular rheumatism as to almost unable to do a bit of housework. My joints were so stiff and the muscles so frightfully sore that I even cried at times with the pain. For years we have used Nerviline in our family and I just got busy with this wonderful, good old liniment. Lots of rubbing with Nerviline soon relieved my misery and I was in a real short time about my work as usual."

No matter where the ache is, no matter how distressing the pain you can rub it away with Nerviline. For forty years it has been curing lumbago, sciatica, back-ache, colds chest trouble and all sorts of winter ills. Keep a large 50c. family size bottle handy and you'll be saved lots of trouble and have smaller doctor bills. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

SPLENDID SPORT IN FLYING BOATS

All the Thrills of the Automobile, Aeroplane and the Motorboat But Not Nearly So Much Danger

Year by year, almost day by day, flying is becoming to the regarded more as a sport than what was once called "the art." Although flying is yet in its infancy, it is not too much to predict that the flying machine will become a strong competitor of the automobile and likewise, if not more so, the flying boat, to any other kind of sail pleasure craft. The landings from the aeroplane have not always been successful, but to alight with a flying boat after a flight is as easy as to guide a motor car to a standstill.

In the first recorded race of these craft, held on Long Island, the sight of three machines jockeying for position was inspiring, while the close finish of the return trip from the outer buoy would stir the blood of any sportsman.

Water flying is safe mainly because there is always a good place to alight. It is not necessary to guide the machine along a narrow course for starting or to pick one's ground in landing. The surface is smooth and level, and one may head in any direction with safety. Winds over the water are invariably much steadier than over land, and if, through carelessness or inexperience, the operator does make a bad landing, or plunges the boat at too steep an angle into the water, or strikes a wing too hard, the accident cannot be grave. The machine is not seriously damaged and the operator is none the worse, except for his "ducking."

The first development in water flying, the hydro-aeroplane, has these advantages, but the later flying boat with its large surplus of buoyancy has all the advantages of a motor boat and a flying machine combined. It is as seaworthy as any motor boat of its size, and flies as well as any aeroplane of equal proportions.

Now that we have a safe system of flying, the development of aviation is sure and unlimited. For racing nothing can compare with the flying boat. There is the same chance to struggle for position as in yacht racing, and every opportunity for the airman to exhibit his skill in rounding the buoys and making his starts and landings. No prettier or more impressive sight can be seen than a fleet of flying boats rising from the water at the start of a race, or coming down the course "neck and neck" at the finish.

On the water, the flying boat is handled like an ordinary motor boat, although the controls resemble those of an automobile. The rudder is operated by a steering wheel, which also operates the device for elevating

TAX ON RACING BETS

German Government Proposes to Legalize Making of Books

The "bookmaker question" is one which has long agitated German sporting circles. For the last thirty years bookmaking, according to the strict letter of the law, has been "verboten," like so many things in the Fatherland. Yet the profession has contrived to run its business and prosper to a fair extent.

Now the whole position is about to be changed. The Government has been considering the matter, and a bill has been drafted which will have the effect of giving State recognition to the bookmaker.

In Germany, as in France, the pari-mutuel system is in vogue, and the Government taxes all the transactions of that machine to the extent of 16 2-3 per cent., and realizes about $7,000,000 annually therefrom.

Now it is proposed to reduce that tax to 12 per cent. Of that the State takes one-half, the other 6 per cent. going to the various Rennvereine, or racing associations, for the purposes of horse-breeding. The Government hopes that it will lose no revenue by the decrease, as the bookmaker tax will preserve, and very possibly increase, the amount the State receives. As to the bookmaker, the bill provides for the recognition of a certain number in each large town, the figure to be fixed according to the population. He must pay a tax of 6 per cent. of his takings to the Government, and the Rennvereine will receive a small percentage of the winnings from the person betting. Small wins will be free from tax, which will afterwards rise as high as 10 per cent.

SUPERSTITIOUS CRICKETERS

Why cricketers should be superstitious is hard to say, but that the majority of them are very much so is a well known fact. Probably the most common belief in the cricketer's creed of superstition is that a bat which has made a good score can, if given a fair chance, repeat the performance. Hundreds of cricketers would give very large sums to possess themselves of a bat with which some famous batsman has knocked up a big score, and high prices have been offered for the bats of the leading cracks by amateurs who believed in the superstition.

Very frequently a batsman who discovers that he is unable to score with his own bat will borrow one with which some other man has made a big score. Another popular belief is that if a batsman places his pads on before the preceding batsman is out the bowler will almost invariably bowl him before he reaches double figures, and he will often ignore his captain's orders to be ready in that he refuses to put on his pads before he sees the retiring batsman well on his way to the pavilion.

Glorious War

M. Philouze, a French statistician, calculates that the war in the Balkans cost the belligerent countries $500,000,000. The money went for ammunition that was fired away, arms that were largely lost or broken, for soldiers' clothing that was worn out, food, etc. There is nothing material to show for it. The situation is as if a fire had swept over the land and destroyed so much property. The countries as a whole and the people individually are poorer than they were when the war began. Their case illustrates what the waste of war means.—Montreal Gazette.

RECLAIMING ALKALI LANDS

Conditions Which Are Met With in Parts of Western Canada

In some semi-arid regions in Western Canada, tracts are found where the soil is rendered barren by being impregnated with an excess of certain alkaline salts. These "alkali lands" are more particularly situated in parts of British Columbia and in south-western Alberta, but patches are found also in Saskatchewan and in Manitoba. With the increase in land values in the grain-growing prairie regions and in the fruit-raising valleys of British Columbia, the problem of the reclamation of these lands assumes a more pressing and practical aspect. That they can be reclaimed is, in most cases, tolerably certain, but reclamation is improbable where the expense involved would exceed the value of ordinary good land.

Besides the alkali lands which naturally occur, others are liable to be formed through the injudicious use of water in irrigated districts, and it is very important to take precautions in order that these otherwise highly fertile lands may not be ruined.

The so-called "alkali" consists of various salts, chiefly the sulphates and chlorides of sodium and magnesium, forming what is commonly known as "white alkali," and carbonate of sodium, which forms "black alkali" and is much more injurious to plant life.

Soils containing these salts are frequently met with everywhere, but do not tend to accumulate near the surface, except in dry regions, where, after being dissolved in the soil water and brought up by capillary attraction, they remain after the evaporation of the water. The salts, except the carbonate, are injurious only when present in excessive quantities. In humid regions, where drainage, rather than evaporation, is the principal factor in removing surplus soil water, no dangerous accumulation of these salts takes place. Moreover, there is more water in the soil and, consequently, even though there be an equal quantity of salts, the strength of the solution is weaker and plant life is not injuriously affected.

In dry areas, even where irrigation is practised, it is impracticable to keep the soil any moister than is required for the successful growth of vegetable life. But, by a good system of tile under-drainage, it is possible to cause the water to carry the excess of salts into the deeper layers of the soil, and thus overcome the dangerous accumulation near the surface, where seeds must germinate. This is especially important in some irrigated districts where alkali is making its appearance on lands that were formerly free from it.

In dry farming districts, much can be done to reclaim alkali lands by extra deep plowing, and by thorough cultivation to form a mulch on the surface and reduce evaporation. The application of manure is also very beneficial, because it gives the young plants a ready supply of available food material, improves the texture of the soil, and acts as a mulch to check loss of water through drying.

COSMOPOLITAN MONTREAL

Some Peculiar Facts Shown by the Latest Population Statistics

Containing within its boundaries an estimated population of 46,649 souls, St. Denis ward is accredited with being the most thickly settled of the thirty-one municipal divisions of the city of Montreal. West ward, with but 286 inhabitants, is the smallest in the city. The small population in West ward, however, is explained by the fact that this ward comprises the very heart of the downtown district, which after dark is practically empty of all but a couple of hundred janitors and bank guards.

St. Denis ward, in addition to being Montreal's most populous division, also heads the list with an estimated French speaking population of 36,917. Papineau ward comes second with 32,420 citizens of French-Canadian extraction. Strange as it may appear, St. Lawrence ward, which has an estimated population of 7,284 people, is the largest English speaking ward in the city. It contains 5,430 citizens of English descent. St. Ann's, with a population of 6,466 souls is the real "Little Ireland" of Montreal, with a representation of 3,972 sons and daughters of Old Erin, while St. Andrew's ward, true to tradition, contains the largest number of Scotsmen. The total population of the ward is 3,991, and the number of Scotch residents is placed at 2,355.

The nationalities represented in the 55,337 citizens classed as "all others" include Americans, Armenians, Albanians, Portuguese, Spanish, Old Country French, Belgians, Dutch, Germans, Italians, Swedes, Norwegians, Russians, Turks, Greeks, Bulgarians, Servians, Swiss, Indians, Mexicans, Chinese and Japanese, besides representatives of scores of smaller countries.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $60,000 worth of stock for themselves. $30,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each, 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranching, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Oil Stock is a speculative investment which gives the largest return on the amount invested that it is possible to obtain. This Statement is verified by the fact that the largest fortunes in the United States were made from speculation in oil.

The WHITE STAR OIL COMPANY, Ltd have taken every precaution to eliminate the hazardous features which usually accompany this kind of investment, viz

Each one of our different properties were approved before their purchase by an expert geologist with a great deal of experience in selecting well sites in this field.

Our holdings comprise 1000 acres which are located in the three proven districts of the Alberta Oil Field, namely The Monarch, Okotoks and Sweet Grass districts where scores of wells are now being drilled.

The Directorate of our Company is composed of substantial business men whose success in other lines of business is sufficient to warrant the stock holders a sound adminstration to the company's affairs.

Our Stock is now selling at 10c per share, par value $1.00. All prospective investors may obtain further information from our representative at 246 Antrim Street. Our advice is to buy while you can get in on the ground floor before the first issue is exhausted.

Heaviness of Platinum

Platinum is the heaviest commercial metal known. Its specific gravity is 21.5, as compared with 19.26 for pure gold and 10.53 for silver. Briefly, platinum is 21½ times as heavy as water, more than twice the weight of silver and heavier, bulk for bulk, than pure gold. It is softer than iron, but somewhat harder than copper.

ICELAND MISNAMED

Very Up-to-date Young Business Man Corrects Some False Impressions

Gisli J. Olafsson, manager of telegraphs and telephones in Iceland, upset all the mental pictures that hotel clerks had of Iceland, when he registered at a Montreal hotel. Instead of a man with long whiskers and wearing furs, they saw an athletic young man, who might be mistaken for a Canadian, dressed according to the latest style, and much more familiar with English than many hotel clerks.

"Iceland is misnamed," said Mr Olafsson. "The name of our country should have been changed with that of Greenland, for it is Iceland that is really the green land. Why, none of us had ever seen an iceberg until we got near Newfoundland.

"Our country now has about 85,000 population. We do very little in the way of manufacturing. Our telecover a good deal of the ground really cover a good deal of the ground, for, notwithstanding our small population, Iceland is bigger than Ireland.

"Of course we have the same king as Denmark, but otherwise we are independent of Denmark—very much like the relations that existed between Norway and Sweden before the two countries separated. We have a Parliament of two houses, and elect our own representatives and our own governor. As for our climate, it is no severer than that of Newfoundland, and on the south side of the island it may be milder.

Water-proofing Concrete

The following mixture has long been used by army engineers in waterproofing cement: One part cement two parts sand, three-quarters of one pound of dry powder alum to each cubic foot of sand. Mix dry and add water in which three-quarters of one pound of soap has been dissolved to each gallon. This is nearly as strong as ordinary cement, and is quite impervious to water, besides preventing efflorescence. For a wash, a mixture of one pound of lye and two pounds of alum in two gallons of water is often used.

Alfalfa For Horses

Undeniably alfalfa has become a crop of great value in Western Canada and is no longer in the experimental stage. In Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba it is produced in considerable quantities. In most cases the crop is harvested for hay but sometimes used for pasture.

WHY A HORSE BALKS

Overloading the Primary Cause and the Animal so Treated Remembers

The explanation of a balking horse lies in the horse having a delusion that he is hitched to an immovable body or is tied. Have you ever seen a man whip a horse tied in a stall? If you did, you noticed that the horse did not try to get away. It would jump around, snort, paw, kick, possibly, but it would not try to get away. Why, you ask, does it not try to get away? For the very good reason it has good horse sense and will not try a thing that it knows it cannot do. Sometime in the past it tried to break its halter, found it impossible, and, like a good, sensible horse that it knows itself to be, will not try again. So it is with your balky horse. Sometime in the past someone overloaded the poor horse, got it stuck, then beat it for a while, and, as a last resort, unhitched and left the load; then taking the bruised, half dead with fright, so-called balky horse to the barn, unloaded the whole wagon, pried it out, and, if it were in the mud, pulled it up on solid footing, hitched the balky horse up again, and, after a lot of swinging around, finally got off.

But, you say, that should not make the horse permanently balky. Well, sometimes it does not, but one or two more overloads, one or two more beatings, and it is all over with your horse's working days. If your horse could reason from cause to effect, the same as you, then we would never have such a thing as a balky horse. But it can't. It knows only this. One time it was rigged up with a lot of straps around its neck (collar), a lot more covering its body (harness) and tied to a solid place (wagon) its master at that time beat it and yanked it around until it was almost dead, and it could not get away, so with the same straps upon its body the tugs fast, neck yoke up, every environment the same as when it tried to go upon a previous occasion and could not, why should it try again? Sometimes, by leading it, you can get it to go, but if it comes up against the collar and then flies back, it thinks itself tied and will try no more. —Edward Vaughn, in Farm and Fireside.

To commemorate his twenty-two years' representation of the Merthyr Burghs in Parliament, Mr. D. A. Thomas is to present the town with a statue of Richard Trevithick, who ran his first steam engine from Pendaren Ironworks a hundred years ago.

THE DAINTY "FLIPPER"

A Delicacy in Newfoundland Associated With the Sealing Season

A dainty peculiar to Newfoundland which so far has received little attention is the seal's flipper or fipper which is the paw with which the seal propels itself through the water. It is esteemed by the people of the island as one of their greatest delicacies. A flipper weighs about a pound, and when the seal ships begin to arrive in St. John's most people begin to talk about securing "a meal of fippers." Small boys and others swarm about the steamers, and the crews are importuned to supply these dainties to all who ask for them. In the olden times they were given away freely, but latterly it is not uncommon for fifty cents a gad (six on a string) to be asked for them, while many among the crews now make a practice of salting quantities into barrels for their own consumption during the summer. A fresh flipper makes a most appetizing meal. The method of cooking them is to wash them thoroughly in fresh water, then soak them in water in which salt has been dissolved; next transfer them to a baking pan or pot with slices of pork or bacon, and after being cooked over a hot fire they are as delicate of flavor and taste as the finest of veal.

Among all the capitalists in St. John's interested in the sealing industry, flipper suppers, with the accompaniment of champagne, etcetera, are the invariable rule as the ships come in, and owners, captains, and others indulge annually in these repasts at some of the hotels or inns near the city. Very many family parties also partake of the unusual dish, and among the poorer classes flippers are looked upon as a great and welcome luxury, a change from the usual dietary and one that is beyond all question nourishing and healthy. Roman Catholics likewise patronize flippers largely because, as the seal is an amphibious animal, it is not meat, and may be eaten during the Lenten season or on fast days. All round the north and west coasts, where the seals are often taken close in shore, they are a recognized item in the daily menu—not alone flippers but the carcasses as well. These are perhaps even more appetizing than the flippers because there is less fat permeating them, but, of course, space is too valuable aboard the ship to allow of carcases being brought home for consumption, they being worthless for any other purpose, and seal pelts being valued at $100 a ton dead weight.

PRESERVE THE BIRDS

State of Oregon Interests School Lads—They Build Pretty Houses

Exhibits of bird houses, built by boys of the schools in Portland, Ore., have attracted much attention and aroused no little rivalry among the boys themselves as to design and execution. They constructed charming little bungalows of rustic strips of bark; quaint reproductions of old-world thatched farm cottages; log cabins, and tiny homes wrought of silvery birch-bark and bits of moss on sloping roofs. Through the co-operation of the Oregon Audubon Society and the State superintendent of Public Schools a widespread movement for systematic bird study and bird protection was inaugurated over a year ago in the Portland schools. Each schoolboy in the intermediate grades constructed at least one bird house during the year. These were placed in public parks, residence grounds, and along the highways. This was the beginning of a State-wide plan to bring the children of the schools into closer relationship with their bird neighbors. William L. Finley, State game warden of Oregon, has done much to have the economic value of birds taught to school children. The crow and the kingfisher both have unnecessarily bad reputations, it is pointed out. To determine the economic status of the crow the department of agriculture examined nearly a thousand of them taken in every month of the year all over the country, and it was found that most of the corn eaten by these birds was waste corn, and the part destroyed while growing was only 3 per cent. of the total food. On the other hand the amount of harmful insects and mice eaten rendered the final verdict in favor of the crow. It was also determined that the kingfisher does not eat trout, but only fish that are of no value to man.

Poor Stock

No dairyman should be satisfied with cows that produce much less than 300 pounds of butter fat per year. Use the Babcock test and dispose of the poor stock.

Saving Labor

In these days of high-priced farm labor or no labor at all, a little gasoline engine that costs around $100 will do more work than three hired men.

A mixture of slaked lime, linseed oil and cotton fibre is used in some portions of Turkey as a substitute for cement.

HENS IN THE BACKYARD

Government Advises Town and City Dwellers to be Egg Producers

Many town and city people could not only produce sufficient eggs to keep their table going but have enough eggs left over that would go a long way towards supplying the household with groceries, etc., says a circular sent out from Ottawa by Mr. F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman. There are comparatively few city lots where a small flock of poultry could not be kept and enough scraps find their way into the garbage can to provide a large proportion of the feed. No male birds should be kept as they are both a nuisance and an expense which if done away with and the house kept clean and sanitary there is absolutely nothing about such a plant that could possibly annoy the neighbors. If say one in every hundred city families would produce even enough eggs for their own table, it would reduce the number of those who only consume and add that many more to the list of producers.

Salt For Livestock

Most stockmen realize the value of plenty of salt for their stock at all times, but very often this is neglected, and horses, cattle, and sheep are salted only once or twice a week, the owner believing that this is enough. It is absolutely necessary that mares with foals have salt where it is accessible whenever they wish to take it. Salt is an aid to digestion and should be within reach of the farm animals at all times, and more particularly when feed is being changed. A little salt may keep the veterinarian's fees down to a minimum.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). cf a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

A GREAT YOUNG PITCHER

RAY KEATING

19-year-old spit-baller of the New York Americans. Frank Chance declares Keating is the best young pitcher he ever saw—and Chance has looked over some good ones. Keating uses a fast ball and the spitter. He has a near curve, but he seldom uses it. Keating's fast ball has such a hop and his spitter breaks so viciously that the batters failed to solve him.

IN THE LISTS

Women Compared With Men in Feats of Endurance

The athletic young woman of the twentieth century has shown that there are some sports in which she could give points and a beating to the men of her grandfather's time.

Take golf, for instance. Some few years ago, Miss Nancy Hazlet did a 77 at Burnham on a rough day. It would take a very fine player of the other sex to equal this score, let alone to beat it. And, more lately, Miss Leitch showed that even an Open Champion could only just give her a half—that is, nine strokes in an eighteen hole round. This is all the more wonderful when you come to consider that the longest drive yet achieved by a woman is 234 yards, whereas a man has driven a golf ball a distance of 370 yards.

Mastering Ben Nevis

Men have run the hundred yards in under ten seconds, but no woman has done the distance in less than thirteen, and man can long jump nearly twenty-five feet as against less than fifteen by the best feminine athlete.

Oddly enough, when it comes to feats of endurance rather than short and concentrated effort, woman shows up to much better advantage. Take, for instance, the favorite race up Ben Nevis, which is a terrific strain even for the best trained man. The time taken by the champion runner was just an hour and a half. A woman has done it in under two hours.

In long distance swimming the case is similar, for while a man is one-fifth faster than a woman in swimming a hundred yards, when it comes to a mile race in the water man is only one-fifteenth faster than his best feminine competitor. In other words, a man has only ten seconds' advantage over a woman in a mile swimming race. There is actually a case on record of a thirteen-miles swimming race, from Brooklyn to Coney Island, in which two girls came in ahead, beating no fewer than thirty-one men. Madame Icacescu, the Austrian lady swimmer, has done forty-eight miles in the Danube against the current in just over eight hours. Very few men could emulate such a magnificent swim, especially in fresh water.

In Shooting

Coming to shooting, we find that women can hold a rifle as straight as most men. A team of European ladies living in the Straits Settlements actually beat a team of marksmen by 19 points, the distance being 100 yards and the weapons rook-rifles. And with the gun, too, there are women who can bring down fast-flying birds with amazing accuracy.

The Duchess of Bedford has killed 126 partridges in a day's driving, and more than 300 pheasants in one day's covert shooting. She has also bagged 39 wild ducks with 50 cartridges, a record that any man might be proud of. A woman is not so quick with her cartridges as a man, but, apart from that, she is practically his equal as a game shot.

Mountain Climbing

At mountaineering, woman has showed herself to be able to bear the strain of climbing great heights. Mrs. Bullock Workman has climbed a peak 23,560 feet in height. Very few men alive can boast of having accomplished such a feat as that.

At long distance cycling man is hard pressed by the other sex. At a hundred miles on the road the latter is barely an half an hour slower than her male competitor.

There is just one game at which ladies can boast that they are equal to men. This is croquet. Miss Lilian Gower, after winning the Ladies' Championship, threw down the gauntlet to men, and proved victorious.

RECORD GOLF DRIVE

Over Half a Mile With Frozen River as Green

Robert Jolly, better known as "Wee Robbie," one of the younger members of the famous St. Andrews Jollys, all of whom are now golf professionals in the United States, established what he claims is the record drive of a golf ball. The feat was a drive of 1,026 yards, and the drive was made under conditions which were as unusual as the drive itself.

"WEE ROBBIE" JOLLY

Early last winter, after the weather had driven almost all the golfers off the links of the Park Ridge Country Club, a lawyer continued to play over the frozen ground. He experimented. Discovering that the cold golf balls could not be driven as far as he ordinarily drove in summer, he warmed them by a stove before starting out, and carried them inside his clothing finding that the warm balls striking on the frozen ground would bound and roll fully fifty yards per drive further than cold ones.

Then, without revealing his secret, he bantered Robbie Jolly into wagering that he could not drive 350 yards. On the frozen ground and with a heated ball the feat proved easy, and the joke was on the professional.

With his Scotch aroused, Jolly remarked that, under proper conditions, he could drive 1,000 yards. It seemed impossible, and the wager was made.

Then the Des Plaines river froze and presented a perfect sheet of ice clean and hard. Jolly notified the jokers that he was ready for revenge and took them to the river. He teed off a ball warmed to 105 degrees, and, save for a slight bend, the "fair green" was a sheet of ice without obstacles for two miles. The first drive struck the bank about 600 yards away. The second went past the only hazard, the jutting bank at the curve, and, bounding along forty yards to the bound, whizzed down the middle of the river. The judge stationed at the 1,000-yard mark said it was still going strong when it passed him, but bounded, struck an over-hanging willow limb and, after rolling a few yards further, rolled down a slope in the ice against the bank, where it was found.

Address on Grain of Wheat

The Canadian Churchman tells of a wonderful piece of microscopic engraving accomplished by a Jewish farmer in Alberta, who wrote, on a grain of wheat, in Hebrew characters, an address of welcome to the Duke of Connaught. The address contained 300 letters, and was so fine as to require a powerful microscope to read the inscription.

Mahogany Telegraph Poles

Probably the most expensive telegraph line in the world is one in Borneo, which is constructed of mahogany and ebony poles.

The Onion

What is the reason that so few people eat onions nowadays. The onion used to be a stand-by in this country, but it is getting to be about as popular as a divorced husband at the wedding feast. There is nothing that will bring tears of repentance to a hardened sinner's eyes quicker than a stout, wide-hipped Bermuda onion with teeth like a rip-saw and a grip like an entered apprentice. One of these onions, sprinkled with tasco sauce and inhaled slowly before each meal, will cause a man to perspire at high speed when the thermometer is 10 degrees below zero. Physicians tell us that if people would eat more onions they would have fewer microbes roosting about in their systems, as onions are death to germs of all kinds. The onion is also death to the course of true love—after marriage, but not before.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties — must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

Copper Jumps

"In The Land of Poco Tiempo"

Production of Copper in New Mexico Jumped from 1430 Tons in 1911 to 28,000 Tons in 1913

THE SIGNIFICANCE of this is that people are coming to realize that "The Land of Afterwhile" is full of opportunity and that now—having been asleep for 300 years—it is awakening to the fact that somebody is going to make enormous sums of money down there, right away!

How About YOU?

So long as copper was simply a by-product of a few mines—a plaything for the Indians—nobody took New Mexico Copper Mining very seriously—but

Those days are past. As a Copper State New Mexico is coming into its own on the jump!

The big, quick fortunes in the copper business are made by the men who get in first.

Here is Your Chance--

The Republic Mines Company offers you an interest — as much as you care to acquire — in its enormous tonnage of excellent Copper, Gold and Silver Ore ready to take out and sell, at a price to return you handsome profits upon your investment.

It has tried the experiments—taken the risks—acquired a magnificent estate—demonstrated its ore bodies and their great value—and now offers you

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

WHY FISHES LEAP

Usually They Have a Good Reason—Not Done in Play

If an angler were asked pointblank why he calls salmon and trout "game fishes" rather than carp and roach, I imagine that he would quote their habit of jumping out of the water when hooked as one of the reasons for which, affording finer sport, they are more game than the coarse fish, writes F. G. Aflalo, in The London Morning Post. It cannot be merely the fact of their taking an artificial fly, for the dace is also commonly caught on it. No, the power of leaping clear of the service, adding, as it does to the glorious uncertainty of bringing them to book, undoubtedly sets these members of the salmon family higher in the sportsman's estimation than the ground-hugging carp tribe. If this be definitely accepted, then the salt water fisherman has a wider purview of game fishes, since the mighty tarpon, the fierce swordfish, the delicate little ladyfish, and many other denizens of seas fulfill the conditions and give far more exciting sport on the rod than those which merely bore or sulk.

There are two possible reasons why fishes jump out of water. They certainly do not do so, like lambs in a meadow, for sheer joy of life. If you see small fry jumping in a lake, as likely as not some old pike or trout is on their track. Such larger fishes as attract the angler do not jump to escape their enemies, but are either jumping after flies or some other natural food, or shaking off parasites. The tarpon, to the best of my belief, jumps only when in throes of this kind, and then, if not too tired, it will jump every time the rod is jerked after it has been hooked. The fish that gives the most striking displays of leaping in the Gulf of Mexico is the gigantic whipray, and its object is quite evident, for I have seen these great fish fling off three or four remoras in the sunshine. The remora, or sucking-fish, is frequently found adhering to sharks and rays, and to carry a number of these about must be weary work. And so the whipray jumps to shake off its remoras as a dog might try to shake itself free of fleas.

Now and again both salmon and trout are known to jump into boats. In one case I knew of, a fifteen-pound salmon jumped clean into the lap of a lady fishing in the Duke of Richmond's water on the Spey. Porpoises are also notorious acrobats, jumping more continuously than any fish, and one of these marine mammals once jumped into the skiff of a sportsman and knocked him overboard. The only fish known deliberately to charge its captor's boat when hooked is the tremendous swordfish, caught on the rod on both sides of America, and the effect of a swordfish careering along, as it were, on its tail, seemingly erect, is alarming to anyone unaccustomed to such demonstrations. The others, tarpon and the rest, come in collision with the boat only by accident, and the rarity with which such accidents occur must often have struck those of us who have watched huge tarpon repeatedly fall back in the water within a foot or so of the gunwale.

TYRUS HAS BRAINS

Might Have Developed Into a Star Football Player

In the opinion of Dan McGugin, the famous Michigan football player, Ty Cobb would have made just as great a name for himself as a football player as a diamond star had he stuck to the gridiron game. The reason why Cobb became a baseball star, says McGugin, is because he made a careful study of the game. Some years ago Ty was at Nashville, Tenn., and tried out his hand at football. The first couple of weeks he was a joke. But later, after he had learned something, he was drop kicking better than any man there. Ty wasn't a natural footballer, but he used his brains. And that is what made him the great ball player he is to-day, says McGugin.

Wellington Campaign Plans

The map found on a captured Uhlan marked with the prearranged marches of the German troops reminds one that Wellington distrusted fixed plans of campaign. Asked on one occasion how he managed to capture Napoleon's marshals one after the other, he replied: "They planned their campaigns just as you might make a splendid set of harness. It looks very well, it answers very well, until it gets broken and then you're done for. Now, I made my campaign of ropes. If anything went wrong, I tied a knot and went on."

SHREWD FINANCIER WAS THIS MANAGER

Hughie Jennings' Story of the Baseball Boomer Who Knew the Value of Publicity

In my career in minor and major leagues I have heard a million funny baseball stories, said Hughie Jennings, the famous manager of the Detroit Tigers, when asked to spin his best yarn. The funniest of all may read like fiction, but is fact. The man around whom the story hangs is now a prominent semi-professional manager in a large western city, and has a bank roll that is the envy of many a major leaguer.

This man received his start as a department store clerk. While working for a small salary, he learned that the firm did not back a baseball team. It was the only large store in town that was not backing a fast amateur club, as an advertising dodge. The clerk was a fan. He read everything printed about baseball, inside and outside, and believed he was just the man to manage a team backed by the store. And he helped the store manager to reach the same conclusion.

He decided he must be a first class press agent, so he never failed to tip off to the sporting editors any bit of news that came his way, especially about his club. He broke into the sport pages with the name of his firm so often that he soon received an advance in salary.

At the start he scheduled games in his home city only, but his club quickly made such a reputation that out-of-town teams were asking for dates, usually offering $25 to $50 inducements. Impressing upon his players that acceptance of this money by them meant the loss of their amateur standing, he pocketed the money himself. Before long his stipend from the games exceeded his salary, and he decided to back a club of his own, employing his brother as traveling manager.

If you wonder why this clerk succeeded as manager, let me relate two instances of his shrewdness. He wanted to get the results of out-of-town games, but hesitated about paying telegraph or telephone tolls, so he evolved a scheme to beat the companies. After each game his brother would telephone, asking for an imaginary person. Their code was simple, the initials representing the score.

If the call was for Mr. C. A. Smith, the clerk-manager knew his team had won by a score of 3 to 1, for the first initial meant his team and the second the opposing team, the letters of the alphabet being numbered.

He filled his grandstand one day by advertising on the sport pages a reward of $200 for a $400 diamond ring lost in the grandstand upon the occasion of the last game. Men who never attended the games invested in grandstand seats on the hope of finding that diamond ring—which, of course, never had been lost.

"HUGHIE"

PUGILISTS' PARENTAL AFFECTION

By the recent death of the mother of Fred Welsh, champion light-weight boxer, another instance was recalled of the strong parental affection shown by so many prominent fighters. Amid all his triumphs, Welsh's first thought was always of his mother, to whom for years he remitted half his earnings in the ring.

Packey McFarland, one of Welsh's greatest rivals, is another exemplary son in this respect. Two years ago he wished to return to England for another bout with the Cardiff champion, but his mother, who was in ill-health, begged him not to go while she lived. And nothing could tempt Packey to break the promise he then made.

Jim Jeffries, after losing to Jack Johnson, begged that the news of his defeat might be kept from his mother. Johnson, himself, out of his championship winnings, bought his mother a house, and invested a sum of money to ensure her an income for life.

Caught Tame Bull Moose

A fisherman at Rossport, near Port Arthur, captured a bull moose swimming in Thunder Bay. The moose already was quite tame, and evinced no fear of man, and quietly ate from its owner's hand.

Butterfly's Long Trip

Brilliantly colored butterflies or moths, three inches in length and brightly hued, are not common in Canada, and consequently some workmen in a Toronto lumber yard were surprised to see one of this kind fluttering around in a car. It was in with some ash lumber, which arrived from the Southern States, so that evidently it had traveled the distance from its native clime in a box car. It was three inches long and measured three and a half inches from tip to tip of the wings. The body was two and a half inches long and the wings were striped with grey, yellow, black and white.

COMMON SENSE TALK ABOUT AGRICULTURE

Dr. Creelman Said That Rural Schools Were Not Close Enough to Farm Interests

Dr. Creelman, President of the Agricultural College, Guelph, in the course of an address on the attitude of agriculture to the rural school said in part:

"Our educational system is a good one. Is it too good? Is it so perfect that they are afraid to break in anywhere with changes that our times and conditions demand?" The speaker went on to describe his own public school days, how he had attended school for years without securing any knowledge of vital import. "I spent seven years," he said, "learning about the battle of Hastings in 1066, and a lot of other trash. I was taught a little sing-song about the relative pronoun, which I know yet, word for word. What good is it to me? Listen"—closing his eyes, with the easy nonchalance of a boy "hacking his book," the President recited at express speed the old ditty about the rivers of Europe as we all learned it. Through the full gamut he ran it, from Petchora back to Ural, taking in everything but the minor tributaries. "There—I know it still," he exclaimed. "I can't get rid of it. All that trash is taking up space in my brain that should be filled with something of value to me. And that's the stuff I was taught. I was not taught a thing that was of much use to me till I went to college. Make every girl going out to teach a rural school possess a training in the principles of agriculture. Send her to the Agricultural College? Yes. Why not? What else? She has no right to teach a rural school without the training she would secure at such a college."

"Does every farmer in this hall weigh and test the milk yields of his cows?" he asked. "If not, how do you know whether you are making or losing money? The time has gone by when an ordinary careful farmer can go ahead without testing. The farmer who goes by guess is a guess-farmer, and should not be allowed to keep good cows. Go to work! It is possible for us farmers to get a start now such as we never got before in the history of the Province. The average cow—the average, mind you—in Ontario gives less than 4,000 pounds of milk per year. What about the poor cows; where do they stand? Compare that with one of our cows at the O.A.C. which gives over 20,000 pounds of milk each year. Let us quit talking about the high cost of living and look to the performance of our cows. Why are there not more 20,000-pound cows? You say that we have the Government at our backs. Nothing makes me so angry as that silly remark. What has the Government to do with the number of eggs our hens are laying? The Government doesn't feed and superintend our hens, I assure you. Our poultry men are the ones responsible for the work not the Government. The Government has owned those college hens for a long time, yet only a few years ago did we find that some of our pure bred hens that went oftenest to the nest and cackled the loudest never laid an egg. That started things going, also some of the hens. We have now a pen of hens in which the birds average 259 eggs per year. Did the Government make that increase? Live stock is, in my opinion, the right arm of agriculture, and live stock is coming into its own."

A Coin With a History

One of the largest coins ever struck, being 23½ inches by 13 inches, has come into the possession of the American Numismatic Society. The piece is copper. It was coined in Sweden in 1659 and had an intrinsic value of about five dollars. As a numismatic rarity it is said to be worth at present at least $500.

It is a rectangular ingot with five large round stamps punched in it. Each corner stamp carries the Swedish crown, with the date. Around the edge is the inscription of Carolus Gustavus X., the reigning king.

This coin was struck at Avesta, Sweden. When fresh from the mint it fell overboard in the harbor of Riga, Russia, from which a dredge brought it up ten years ago. Coins of the kind were called "plate money." Sweden turned them out almost continuously for 110 years. Once 116 bronze cannon were melted down and turned into $6,700 coins; but the main purpose in minting the pieces was to find an outlet for the Swedish copper mines without depreciating the value of the metal.

Potatoes Are Good

Eat potatoes all the year round. In the winter they prevent scurvy. They supply energy in the summer when so much meat is not eaten. Be sure to cook them right. When boiling them, leave them in their jacket. Punch holes in them and put them directly into boiling water. Never eat half-cooked potatoes.

Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¾ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Usually They Have a Good Reason—Not Done in Play

[illegible] angler [illegible] asked point-blank why he calls salmon and trout "game fishes" rather than carp and roach, I imagine that he would quote their habit of jumping out of the water when hooked as one of the reasons for which, affording finer sport, they are more game than the coarse fish, writes F. G. Aflalo, in The London Morning Post. It cannot be merely the fact of their taking an artificial fly, for the dace is also commonly caught on it. No, the power of leaping clear of the service, adding, as it does to the glorious uncertainty of bringing them to book, undoubtedly sets these members of the salmon family higher in the sportsman's estimation than the ground-hugging carp tribe. If this be definitely accepted, then the salt water fisherman has a wider purview of game fishes, since the mighty tarpon, the fierce swordfish, the delicate little ladyfish, and many other denizens of seas fulfill the conditions and give far more exciting sport on the rod than those which merely bore or sulk.

There are two possible reasons why fishes jump out of water. They certainly do not do so, like lambs in a meadow, for sheer joy of life. If you see small fry jumping in a lake, as likely as not some old pike or trout is on their track. Such larger fishes as attract the angler do not jump to escape their enemies, but are either jumping after flies or some other natural food, or shaking off parasites. The tarpon, to the best of my belief, jumps only when in trouble of this kind, and then, if not too tired, it will jump every time the rod is jerked after it has been hooked. The fish that gives the most striking displays of leaping in the Gulf of Mexico is the gigantic whipray, and its object is quite evident, for I have seen these great fish fling off three or four remoras in the sunshine. The remora, or sucking-fish, is frequently found adhering to sharks and rays, and to carry a number of these about must be weary work. And so the whipray jumps to shake off its remoras as a dog might try to shake itself free of fleas.

Now and again both salmon and trout are known to jump into boats. In one case I knew of, a fifteen-pound salmon jumped clean into the lap of a lady fishing in the Duke of Richmond's water on the Spey. Porpoises are also notorious acrobats, jumping more continuously than any fish, and one of these marine mammals once jumped into the skiff of a sportsman and knocked him overboard. The only fish known deliberately to charge its captor's boat when hooked is the tremendous swordfish, caught on the rod on both sides of America, and the effect of a swordfish careering along, as it were, on its tail, seemingly erect, is alarming to anyone unaccustomed to such demonstrations. The others, tarpon and the rest, come in collision with the boat only by accident, and the rarity with which such accidents occur must often have struck those of us who have watched huge tarpon repeatedly fall back in the water within a foot or so of the gunwale.

TYRUS HAS BRAINS

Might Have Developed Into a Star Football Player

In the opinion of Dan McGugin, the famous Michigan football player, Ty Cobb would have made just as great a name for himself as a football player as a diamond star had he stuck to the gridiron game. The reason why Cobb became a baseball star, says McGugin, is because he made a careful study of the game. Some years ago Ty was at Nashville, Tenn., and tried out his hand at football. The first couple of weeks he was a joke. But later, after he had learned something, he was drop kicking better than any man there. Ty wasn't a natural footballer, but he used his brains. And that is what made him the great ball player he is to-day, says McGugin.

Wellington Campaign Plans

The map found on a captured Uhlan marked with the prearranged marches of the German troops reminds one that Wellington distrusted fixed plans of campaign. Asked on one occasion how he managed to capture Napoleon's marshals one after the other, he replied: "They planned their campaigns just as you might make a splendid set of harness. It looks very well, it answers very well, until it gets broken and then you're done for. Now, I made my campaign of ropes. If anything went wrong, I tied a knot and went on."

SHREWD FINANCIER WAS THIS MANAGER

Hughie Jennings' Story of the Baseball Boomer Who Knew the Value of Publicity

In my career in minor and major leagues I have heard a million funny baseball stories, said Hughie Jennings, the famous manager of the Detroit Tigers, when asked to spin his best yarn. The funniest of all may read like fiction, but is fact. The man around whom the story hangs is now a prominent semi-professional manager in a large western city, and has a bank roll that is the envy of many a major leaguer.

This man received his start as a department store clerk. While working for a small salary, he learned that the firm did not back a baseball team. It was the only large store in town that was not backing a fast amateur club, as an advertising dodge. The clerk was a fan. He read everything printed about baseball, inside and outside, and believed he was just the man to manage a team backed by the store. And he helped the store manager to reach the same conclusion.

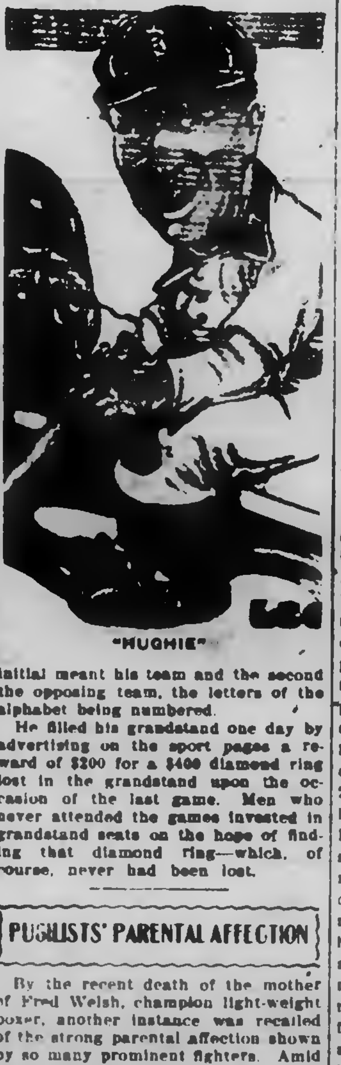
He decided he must be a first class press agent, so he never failed to tip off to the sporting editors any bit of news that came his way, especially about his club. He broke into the sport pages with the name of his firm so often that he soon received an advance in salary.

At the start he scheduled games in his home city only, but his club quickly made such a reputation that out-of-town teams were asking for dates, usually offering $25 to $50 inducements. Impressing upon his players that acceptance of this money by them meant the loss of their amateur standing, he pocketed the money himself. Before long his stipend from the games exceeded his salary, and he decided to back a club of his own, employing his brother as traveling manager.

If you wonder why this clerk succeeded as manager, let me relate two instances of his shrewdness. He wanted to get the results of out-of-town games, but hesitated about paying telegraph or telephone tolls, so he evolved a scheme to beat the companies. After each game his brother would telephone, asking for an imaginary person. Their code was simple, the initials representing the score.

If the call was for Mr. C. A. Smith, the clerk-manager knew his team had won by a score of 3 to 1, for the first initial meant his team and the second the opposing team, the letters of the alphabet being numbered.

He filled his grandstand one day by advertising on the sport pages a reward of $200 for a $400 diamond ring lost in the grandstand upon the occasion of the last game. Men who never attended the games invested in grandstand seats on the hope of finding that diamond ring—which, of course, never had been lost.



"HUGHIE"

PUGILISTS' PARENTAL AFFECTION

By the recent death of the mother of Fred Welsh, champion light-weight boxer, another instance was recalled of the strong parental affection shown by so many prominent fighters. Amid all his triumphs, Welsh's first thought was always of his mother, to whom for years he remitted half his earnings in the ring.

Packey McFarland, one of Welsh's greatest rivals, is another exemplary son in this respect. Two years ago he wished to return to England for another bout with the Cardiff champion, but his mother, who was in ill-health, begged him not to go while she lived. And nothing could tempt Packey to break the promise he then made.

Jim Jeffries, after losing to Jack Johnson, begged that the news of his defeat might be kept from his mother. Johnson, himself, out of his championship winnings, bought his mother a house, and invested a sum of money to ensure her an income for life.

Caught Tame Bull Moose

A fisherman at Rossport, near Port Arthur, captured a bull moose swimming in Thunder Bay. The moose already was quite tame, and evinced no fear of man, and quietly ate from its owner's hand.

Butterfly's Long Trip

Brilliantly colored butterflies or moths, three inches in length and brightly hued, are not common in Canada, and consequently some workmen in a Toronto lumber yard were surprised to see one of this kind fluttering around in a car. It was in with some ash lumber, which arrived from the Southern States, so that evidently it had traveled the distance from its native clime in a box car. It was three inches long and measured three and a half inches from tip to tip of the wings. The body was two and a half inches long and the wings were striped with grey, yellow, black and white.

COMMON SENSE TALK ABOUT AGRICULTURE

Dr. Creelman Said That Rural Schools Were Not Close Enough to Farm Interests

Dr. Creelman, President of the Agricultural College, Guelph, in the course of an address on the attitude of agriculture to the rural school said in part:

"Our educational system is a good one. Is it too good? Is it so perfect that they are afraid to break in anywhere with changes that our times and conditions demand?" The speaker went on to describe his own public school days, how he had attended school for years without securing any knowledge of vital import. "I spent seven years," he said, "learning about the battle of Hastings in 1066, and a lot of other trash. I was taught a little sing-song about the relative pronoun, which I know yet, word for word. What good is it to me? Listen"—closing his eyes, with the easy nonchalance of a boy "hacking his book," the President recited at express speed the old ditty about the rivers of Europe as we all learned it. Through the full gamut he ran it, from Petchora back to Ural, taking in everything but the minor tributaries. "There—I know it still," he exclaimed. "I can't get rid of it. All that trash is taking up space in my brain that should be filled with something of value to me. And that's the stuff I was taught. I was not taught a thing that was of much use to me till I went to college. Make every girl going out to teach a rural school possess a training in the principles of agriculture. Send her to the Agricultural College? Yes. Why not? What else? She has no right to teach a rural school without the training she would secure at such a college."

"Does every farmer in this hall weigh and test the milk yields of his cows?" he asked. "If not, how do you know whether you are making or losing money? The time has gone by when an ordinary careful farmer can go ahead without testing. The farmer who goes by guess is a guess-farmer, and should not be allowed to keep good cows. Go to work! It is possible for us farmers to get a start now such as we never got before in the history of the Province. The average cow—the average, mind you—in Ontario gives less than 4,000 pounds of milk per year. What about the poor cows; where do they stand? Compare that with one of our cows at the O.A.C. which gives over 20,000 pounds of milk each year. Let us quit talking about the high cost of living and look to the performance of our cows. Why are there not more 20,000-pound cows? You say that we have the Government at our backs. Nothing makes me so angry as that silly remark. What has the Government to do with the number of eggs our hens are laying? The Government doesn't feed and superintend our hens, I assure you. Our poultry men are the ones responsible for the work not the Government. The Government has owned those college hens for a long time, yet only a few years ago did we find that some of our pure bred hens that went oftenest to the nest and cackled the loudest never laid an egg. That started things going, also some of the hens. We have now a pen of hens in which the birds average 259 eggs per year. Did the Government make that increase? Live stock is, in my opinion, the right arm of agriculture, and live stock is coming into its own."

A Coin With a History

One of the largest coins ever struck, being 23½ inches by 13 inches, has come into the possession of the American Numismatic Society. The piece is copper. It was coined in Sweden in 1659 and had an intrinsic value of about five dollars. As a numismatic rarity it is said to be worth at present at least $500.

It is a rectangular ingot with five large round stamps punched in it. Each corner stamp carries the Swedish crown, with the date. Around the edge is the inscription of Carolus Gustavus X., the reigning king.

This coin was struck at Avesta, Sweden. When fresh from the mint it fell overboard in the harbor of Riga, Russia, from which a dredge brought it up ten years ago. Coins of the kind were called "plate money." Sweden turned them out almost continuously for 110 years. Once 116 bronze cannon were melted down and turned into 86,760 coins; but the main purpose in minting the pieces was to find an outlet for the Swedish copper mines without depreciating the value of the metal.

Potatoes Are Good

Eat potatoes all the year round. In the winter they prevent scurvy. They supply energy in the summer when so much meat is not eaten. Be sure to cook them right. When boiling them, leave them in their jacket. Punch holes in them and put them directly into boiling water. Never eat half-cooked potatoes.

COUNT TEN! BAD COLD RELIEVED FIGURE THREE HOURS--COLD CURED

Don't sniffle and sneeze with a nasty cold. Kill it at once by "Catarrhozone." It's the surest thing on colds ever known; simply knocks them out in no time. The medicated vapor of CATARRHOZONE spreads through all parts of the breathing organs, and its beneficial action is felt instantly. Doesn't matter whether the cold is in the head, chest or lungs, Catarrhozone will reach it and cure it quickly.

Easy to use—you bet it is—not a single drug to take because you simply breathe in the most healing and soothing of piney vapors that come from the wonderful Catarrhozone inhaler.

"I can cheerfully testify that Catarrhozone is simply a magical cure for colds," writes P. F. Clement of Augusta. "For days last winter my head was completely filled up with cold. My eyes ran water. I sneezed and coughed constantly. I took many medicines. I was sick of the sight of them. Finally, I tried Catarrhozone. Its effect was magical. It soothed the inflamed membranes, stopped the sneezing, and cured in no time. I never met anything to kill a cold like Catarrhozone."

AN EASY WAY TO STOP HEAD NOISES

Good Advice For Those Who Fear Deafness

Men and women who are growing hard of hearing and who experience a stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, accompanied by buzzing, rumbling sounds in their head like water falling or steam escaping should take prompt and effective measures to stop this trouble. Headnoises are almost invariably the forerunners of complete or partial deafness and most deaf people suffer from them constantly. Sometimes these head noises become so distracting and nerve racking, with their never ceasing "hum" they drive the sufferer almost frantic and complete nervous breakdown and even violent insanity have been known to result.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific discovery made recently in England it is now possible to almost instantly lessen the severity of these headnoises and in a very short time to completely and permanently overcome them. With the disappearing of the head noises, the hearing also greatly improves and very frequently can be restored to normal. This English treatment is known as Parmint and can be easily and safely self admin istered at home. Leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity now have it in stock. Get from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength) and mix it at home with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved and then take one tablespoonful four times a day until the noises disappear and hearing improves. Parmint is used double strength in this way not only to reduce, by tonic action, the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tube and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear and the results it gives are both remarkably quick and effective.

WE'RE MARRIED, CRY ELOPERS TO BRIDE'S MOTHER

New York, Nov. 6.—Led by a frantic mother, detectives from the West Harlem Bureau at two o'clock Sunday morning, forced their way into the apartment of Frank Stilwell, an actor, at No. 2542 Seventh avenue, to rescue Miss Margaret Coate, eighteen year old, who the mother said had been abducted.

The detectives found Stilwell and the girl, standing in a close embrace to terror in the middle of the living room, both grasping tightly a slip of paper. When the girl saw her mother, with flaming face, making a sinister movement toward the quaking Stilwell, she shrieked:

"Mother, see, we're married."

"Yes," echoed Stilwell, "we're married."

Mrs. Coate grasped the license, and read that Stilwell and her daughter had been married on Aug. 4, at the City Hall, by Alderman John J. Riordan. After perusing it deliberately she tore it into numerous small pieces and threw it at Stilwell. Then she ordered the detectives to arrest the young man anyhow, as her daughter was under the age of legal consent when the ceremony was performed.

Detectives who were guarding areaways, fire escapes and leevator shafts joined in the procession that led the weeping bride, her terrified bridegroom and the mother to the West Harlem Detective Bureau. At the door of the bureau the mother waved the pleading Stilwell aside.

"There you stay," she said, and went home.

Mrs. Coate was persuaded to return to Detective Bureau, where she refused to swear out a warrant against Stilwell. It was shown that the bride is eighteen years old, although she was in her seventeenth year when the ceremony was performed.

At half-past three o'clock Mrs. Coate went home again and the bride wiped her eyes and comforted her husband. They went home.

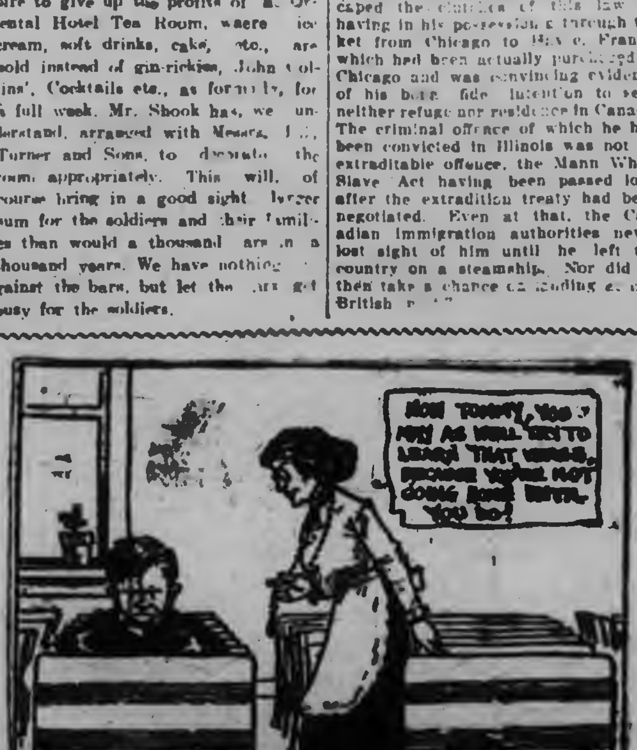
CANADIAN LAW IS COMMENDED

American Paper Says Canada Has Least Security in World For Escaping Criminals

The New York American referring to the capture of H. K. Thaw in Canada said: "Of all countries in the world, Canada offers the least security to strangers with unpleasant chapters in their histories. The Dominion has a cold way of looking at these things, that, to a suspect, must appear exceedingly inhospitable. In the first place, the Canadian courts have absorbed from the present British tradition an appalling contempt for technicalities. Anyone who has ever watched criminal trials of the present day in England must have been impressed with the brusque attitude of judges to phrase-juggling or efforts to translate words into some meaning other than what might be called their 'horse sense.' Barristers even hesitate to chance the snub of 'his worship' by advancing a technical objection, unless it be unusually clever and subtle in which case the court may, after a few brief, keen-witted sallies, leave it to the jury, with a shrug, as much as to say: 'You gentlemen of common sense are, of course, not going to take such mental gymnastics into consideration. This reaction from a too technical period, when [illegible] name or word by an [illegible] engrosser could almost upset an indictment, has had its effect on Canadian practise. We recall the [illegible] of Greene and Gaynor after the Captain Carter-Savannah harbor scandal. In these the defendants, refugees entrenched with unlimited money in a luxurious hotel in Quebec, fought with the aid of the finest [illegible] legal talent for months, right through all the Canadian courts to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council in London, only to be handed back [illegible] in the United States for trial and sentence.

Jack Johnson [illegible] escaped the clutches of this law by having in his possession a through ticket from Chicago to Havre, France which had been actually purchased in Chicago and was convincing evidence of his bona fide intention to seek neither refuge nor residence in Canada. The criminal offence of which he had been convicted in Illinois was not an extraditable offence, the Mann White Slave Act having been passed long after the extradition treaty had been negotiated. Even at that, the Canadian Immigration authorities never lost sight of him until he left the country on a steamship. Nor did he then take a chance on landing on any British [illegible]



NOW TOMMY, YOU MAY AS WELL GET TO LEARN THAT VERSE, BECAUSE YOU'RE NOT GOING HOME UNTIL YOU DO!

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

FIGHT AT DIPPING VAT ENDS IN A TRAGEDY

Clinton, Nov. 3.—G. W. Hodges, badly beaten, is in jail here, charged with killing Henry W. Covington. The men fought at a dipping vat ten miles east of Clinton, and Covington died in Dr. Toler's automobile while being conveyed to Clinton Tuesday morning.

The men quarreled at the dipping vat some weeks ago. Monday they renewed the fight and came to blows. Covington got the better of the fight. They were separated, and Covington then attacked Hodges and worsted him. Hodges requested parties present to take Covington off of him, which was done, Covington started to strike Hodges again. Hodges pulled out his pocket knife and opened it. A brother of Covington's present took the knife from Hodges. Covington then struck Hodges with a stick of wood and Hodges drew a pistol and shot Covington three times.

German Defeat in Flanders is Serious--Kaiser On the Spot and Trying to Save Rout of His Forces--Russian an Allies' Operations Interlaced

VIOLENT GERMAN ATTACKS ARE REPULSED BY FRENCH AND BRITISH

In the North East of Verdun the Allies Take Possession of Villages--Offensive Movements of the Enemy Fail Along the Meuse and in Forest of Apremont--Germans Lose Heavily at the Advanced Positions Around Nancy --No Change on the Yser

Between Armentieres and the Canal of La Bassee, the British army, on its side, repulsed a violent attack on Neuvchapelle. Between the Canal of La Bassee and Arras, as well as between Arras, and the Oise, several counter attacks delivered by night and by day, havebeen checked. We even made some slight progress in the region of Gernelles and to the south of Aix-Noulette.

"On the centre, in the region of Vailly, we continued during the day of yesterday to recapture ground previously lost by us. In the Argonne fresh attacks on the part of the enemy were repulsed, and at the end of the day our troops made progress at several points.

Two Villages Taken

To the northeast of Verdun we have taken possession of the Villages of Haucourt and of Nogeville

In the wooded region along the heights of the Meuse, southeast of Verdun, and in the forest of Apremont southeast of St. Mihiel, the offensive movements of the enemy failed. Some trenches in the vicinity of Saint Rem, were carried by our troops.

"On our right wing, the attacks of the Germans on the advanced positions of the Grand Couronne of Nancy (the circle of fortified positions surrounding Nancy), resulted in perceptible losses for the enemy. A surprise attack undertaken by the enemy against the heightt which dominate Mount Sainte Marie, resulted in complete failure.

No Change on the Yser.

The following Belgium official communication was given out at Havre today:

"The situation on the Yser shows no change. The enemy has posts on the left bank of the River, but has contented himself with a feeble artillery fire directed against the roads in the environs of Rams Capelle.

"The defeats in Russian Poland seem to have resulted in the retreat of portions of the enemy's troops in Belgium. There has been reported particularly, in this connection, the departure toward the east of a division of 5000 men, who have been seen marching from Bruges toward Ghent. Furthermore, five troop trains left Brussels recently, going in the direction of Louvain."

It is urged by the British observers that if Germany can hold entrenched positions along the River Warthe in Russian Poland, she may be able to throw much needed men into Belgium but on the other hand, if it is true that the Russians have occupied Kolo on this river, the theory is advanced that the defensive value of the stream is to an extent lessened and it may require every man that Emperor William now has there if Germany hopes to put up a stand along the Warthe to rival the resistance shown along the Aisne.

Working Closely Together.

A more frequent exchange of messages between General Joffre, the French commander-in-chief and Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, would seem to indicate how closely the allies are tempting to make their movements consistent in both theatres.

No noteworthy change in France or Belgium was reported during the forenoon. The latest British official statement mentioned a decreased vigor in the German attacks in West Flanders, while the French communication said the battle was as violent as ever. The allies are reported as driving forward in the vicinity of Dixmude and were at last accounts taking the offensive south and east of Ypres.

GERMAN. CRUISERS SCHARNHORST AND GNEISENAU ARE CAPTURED

London, Nov. 8.--The German cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, which participated in the fight that resulted in the loss of the British cruisers Good Hope and Monmouth last Sunday, have been captured while coaling, according to unconfirmed advices from Tokio. It is said that the Japanese squadron previously reported at Easter Island hurried westward immediately after learning of the British disaster and succeeded in surprising the two vessels named

THE ALLIES TRY FOR OSTEND.

Paris, Nov. 8.- Advices from the front today say that the allies are pushing north between the flooded area of Belgium and the ocean, apparently with the intention of occupying Ostend. The Germans are reported to have heavily entrenched to the northeast of Ostend, and to be preparing for an expected attack.

There is also severe fighting today on the French right, where the Germans are desperately endeavoring to break the advance toward Metz.

RUSSIANS ARE NOW ATTACKING THE GERMANS ON THE WARTHE RIVER

The region north of Erzerum has been occupied completely by Russian forces. The last three Turkish regiments in that vicinity have suffered a defeat. The population has extended an enthusiastic welcome to the Russians.

Petrograd, Nov. 7, via London, 2.40 p.m.--Russian forces are attacking the German position at Sieradz, on the Warthe River, in Russian Poland, southeast of Kalisz and about 15 miles east of the German border, according to information reaching Petrograd today.

This engagement marks the beginning of the Russian against the last fortified German position on Russian soil. The Germans have heavily entrenched at Sieradz, and appear determined to dispute the crossing of the River Warthe.

10000 Prisoners Taken.

enemy.

In addition to these prisoners the Russian forces captured three howitzers, 10 pieces of artillery, 39 rapid-fire guns and a large quantity of material for the manufacture of cartridges.

Open Berlin Road.

"There can no longer be even a vestige of doubt that the Russians have literally overwhelmed the Austro-German forces. It is known definitely that the Austrians are retreating on Cracow and Kalisz, both very strong fortresses, seventy miles apart. The fall of either would isolate the remaining unit and effectually open the road to Berlin. It is the German plan of strategy for the Austrians to make a stand on the Cracow-Kielce line until spring, authorities say.

Russian Staff and Gen. Joffre Are in Frequent Communication

Indications That Allies are Making Their Operations Consistent With the Needs of Both War Threatres. Kaiser Has Lost His Confidence and Looks the Worried Emperor That He is. Was Nearly the Victim of Bomb Recently. His Route is Always kept Secret

LONDON, NOV. 8.--THAT THE GERMAN KAISER IS EXERTING THE LAST OUNCE OF HIS PERSONAL INFLUENCE TO SAVE THE DEFEAT AND POSSIBLE ROUT OF HIS FORCES IN FLANDERS AND FRANCE IS FURTHER INDICATED BY A DESPATCH FROM THE CORRESPONDENT OF THE EXPRESS, WHO SAYS:

"THE KAISER HIMSELF IS CLOSE TO THE FIGHT IN FLANDERS, MAKING EFFORTS TO INSPIRE HIS TROOPS TO GAIN CALAIS.

"DESPITE THE NEARLY SUCCESSFUL BOMB ATTACK ON HIM AT THIELT SUNDAY, THE KAISER CONTINUES TO DRIVE DAILY THROUGH THE TERRITORY BEHIND THE BRUGES AND COURTRAI ROADS. HIS ROUTE IS ALWAYS KEPT SECRET, AND HE USES A NEW MOTOR CAR OF DIFFERENT APPEARANCE EACH TIME IN ORDER TO PREVENT A DESCRIPTION FROM REACHING THE ALLIES.

"THE KAISER DINED WITH HIS STAFF AT GHENT FRIDAY AND RETURNED TO THE STAFF HEADQUARTERS THOROUGHLY DISSATISFIED WITH THE RESULT OF THE LAST FEW DAYS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

"A PARTY OF REFUGEES SAW THE KAISER IN AN AUTOMOBILE FRIDAY. ONE OF THEM SAID:

"'THE KAISER SAT ON THE REAR SEAT WITH THE DUKE OF WURTEMBURG. THE FRONT SEAT WAS OCCUPIED BY INFANTRYMEN, WHILE A PILOT CAR FILLED WITH SOLDIERS WENT IN FRONT. THE KAISER'S EXTREME PALLOR AND RIGIDITY OF FEATURES WERE VERY MARKED. HE SAT LIKE A STATUE, WRAPPED IN A GRAY COAT AND LISTENED TO THE REPORT OF A PASSING OFFICER. AT THE END HE SALUTED, BUT WITHOUT A SMILE, AND THEN NODDED SILENTLY TO THE SOLDIER CHAUFFEUR TO GO AHEAD.'"

OPERATIONS BECOMING INTERLACED

London, Nov. 8--The operations in the eastern and western theatres of the war respectively, which, during the early stages of the campaign, were only broadly related, are daily becoming more closely interlaced as the Russians draw nearer the German frontier.

BELGIANS REINFORCED IN TIME

The French official announcement, given out in Paris this afternoon, says:

"On our left wing the situation is relatively quiet on the Yser, down stream from Dixmude. The Belgian troops, who advanced along the right bank of the Yser from Nieuport, in the direction of Lombaertsyde, and who have been counter attacked by the Germans, were sustained in time. The situation has been entirely re-established in this locality.

"At Dixmude the marine fusiliers repulsed a fresh counter offensive movement. Further to the south the attacks of the enemy around Bixschoote also were repulsed by French troops who subsequently advanced.

"To the east of Ypres the situation is without change. To the southeast of this town we have resumed the offensive in cambination with the British troops operating in this region, and repulsed an attack particularly violent and pronounced by detachments belonging to the active army corps recently brought into this region by the Germans.

TURKY QUICKLY SUFFERS FOR HER DEFIANCE OF TRIPLE ENTENTE

Already Badly Defeated by the Russians in Three Places --Portion of Turkish Forces Annihilated. Armenians Have Thrown in Their Lot With Russia, and are Now Operating in Rear of Army--Turkish Town of Van Now Being Besieged by Armenians

London, Nov. 8.--Covering operations in the Caucasus and Armenia, the following statement was given out today by the Russian general staff commanding in that zone:

"There has not been any considerable action as yet. Some Turkish regiments, supported by infantry and masses of the population in arms, attempted an offensive movement in the region northeast of Karakilissa. The Turks were driven back with great losses

"The Russians continue to pursue the Turkish and Kurdish troops who were defeated in the hilly regions of Passine, Diadine and Baiazet. These places have been occupied by our troops. The Turkish troops have been in part exterminated and in part dispersed."

It is reported from Austrian sources that the Turkish representatives at Tabriz, Persia, have been seized by the Russians. The message, which is unconfirmed, says that American Minister Russell and the Persian authorities have protested against this action.

A telegram from Tiflis, in the Caucasus, says:

"The Turkish town of Xan, (140 miles southeast of Erzerum, Turkish Armenia) is being besieged by a detachment of Armenians, who are aiding the Russians. The town has a large arsenal. Another Armenian detachment is operating in the rear of the Turkish army."

LOCAL PEOPLE AT HOSPITAL RECEPTION

The "Missionary Messenger" of Toronto, gives a large illustration of the Canora, Sask., Hospital. The accompanying article says, in part "Through the kindness and generosity of a friend, five members of the Hospital Committee of the late W. H. M. Board were given free transportation to the West, that they might attend the formal opening of the Memorial Hospital" at Canora, Sask, and visit other Home Mission Hospitals en route. In the party were Mrs. J.H. Thom, Mrs. Torrance Jack, Miss N Agnew Brown, Mrs. F. Sommerville, and the writer, the latter two being the official representatives of the Board. ...

We arrived at Canora, and the first person to greet us was Mrs Waddell, who, with her niece, Miss Needler, of Peterboro, was a guest at the hospital. On entering the building, we realized that important preparations were under way.

SETTLED FOOTBALL DISPUTE UNDER SHELL FIRE

The Nerve of British Soldiers is Truly Remarkable--They do Not Worry About the Chances of War

London, Nov. 8.--A private in the Coldstream Guards tells the following story, prefacing it with the remark --"If you want to know how our boys are behaving listen listen to this:

"The other day we were moved up to relieve a company of the 'Blind half-hundred' (Royal West Kent Regiment), who were being pretty badly shelled in their trenche. Quite close to me I found a first-class scrap going on between two privates, who, ignoring the shells, were settling a little dispute. And what do you think the row was about? JAPANESE CAPTURED TSING-TAU BY CHARGE AT POINT OF BAYONET

The Siege, Which Lasted Three Weeks, Was Pluckily Opposed by the German Garrison--Final and Successful Attack Commenced Shortly After Midnight, Tsing-Tau Will be Administered by the Japanese During Continuation of War, After Which Negotiations With China Will be Opened

Tokio, Nov. 8.--Tokio is celebrating today the fall of the German fortress at Tsing-tau after an actual siege of a few days more than three weeks. It was in the middle of September that the real attack began, although the preparations for the taking of the German stronghold in Asia were begun immediately war was declared by Japan on August 23. Crowds collected everywhere today and many processions were formed, the enthusiastic people dragging about with them floats decorated with flowers as a symbol of victory. Japanese and British flags are floating everywhere throughout the city.

Final and Successful Attack.

The final and successful attack on Tsing-Tau began shortly after midnight Friday morning, and the first inroad by the allied forces, which was largely instrumental in the fall of the place, was the taking of the middle fort of the first line of defence. This was achieved by a brilliant charge of infantry and engineers, led by Gen. Yoshimi Yamada.

Simultaneously with the charge of Gen. Yamada others were made, the troops dashing forward with cries of "Banzai" (Hurrah). Taitungchen, the fortification on the east, fell at 5.35 in the morning. Chungchiawa was captured soon thereafter, with its two heavy cannon.

A detachment of the first line occupied the Iltis, Bismarck and Moltke forts at seven in the morning, and then the enemy hoisted the white flag on the weather astronomical station adjoining the Governor's office. Another white flag was hoisted on the coast forts at the mouth of the Haipo at 3 o'clocu.

Vice-Minister of the Navy Suzuki, speaking today of the future of Tsing-Tau, said:

"While the European war continues Tsing-Tau will be administered by Japan. At the conclusion of the war Japan will open negotiations with China."

Further details of the Tsing-Tau fighting reaching Tokio show that the Germans made desperate efforts to repair the damages to their batteries, but without success. Japanese shells killed the men at work and demolished the batteries anew. Projectiles from Japanese warships started fires in several streets of the city, certain portions of which were burned.

The stopping of the smuggling of provisions along the Lingshan coast is thought to have hastened the capitulation of the German stronghold.

FRENCH EMBASSY SAYS GERMANS ABUSE THE USE OF THE WHITE FLAG

Washington, Nov. 8.--The French embassy has issued the following statement from the French Foreign Office.

"In one of their recent communications to the press the Germans accused our troops of having on many occasions put on the uniforms of certain of their regiments. This ruse, to which they have often retorted themselves, has never been employed by our soldiers, who proud of their uniform, are content to fix their bayonets and hurl themselves into the assault of a position.

"The Germans, however, have often abused the white flag since the beginning of the campaign, waiting to shoot down our troops at close range after they have advanced unsuspectingly."

DISGUISED AS WOMEN.

Paris, Nov. 8.--One of the latest of the German ruses is to disguise themselves as women, according to semi-official information given out in Paris to-day.

In this garb German soldiers recently went out to gather potatoes in a field near Senones, while in the neighborhood of troic Maisons a German convoy was observed, apparently escorted by a group of women. In both cases the fraud was discovered by the French troops, who opened fire. The disguised soldiers ran and under their skirts appeared the boots of cavalrymen.

RUSSIAN BLACK SEA FLEET IS REPORTED TO BE BOMBARDING PORTS

London, Nov. 8.--A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Amsterdam brings the following statement by the Turkish army headquarters received from Constantinople by way of Berlin:

"The Russian army showed no activity on Friday.

"This morning the Russian fleet bombarded the Black Sea ports Zunguldiak and Kuzlu for two hours. At Kuzlu the Greek steamer Ikos was sunk. At Zunguldiak the French church and the French consulate were destroyed."

RUSSIANS MASTERS OF ENTIRE BLACK SEA.

Rome, Italy, Nov. 8.--According to a telegram from Odessa, the Russians considers themselves absolute masters of the Black Sea. The Turkish fleet it is declared, has retired behind the Bosphorus and does not seem disposed to come out.

GERMANS CLAIM VICTORY.

Berlin, Nov. 8.--The folloYing official communication was given out at German army headquarters this afternoon:

"In the eastern arena of the war three divisions of Russian cavalry, which crossed the river Warthe above across the stream. There hade not been any encounters elsewhere."

THE SPAN OF LIFE SHOWN BY FIGURES

For Those Under Thirty the Expectation of Longevity Has Increased—Married People Fortunate

How long do you expect to live? Perhaps you have never given the matter a thought. The majority of people simply want to live as long as they can—and let it go at that. Therefore maybe it would be better to ask: How long can you expect to live?

Suppose you are between 40 and 45 years of age. If that is the case you may expect to live 23.4 years more—if you happen to live in a city. The matter of where you live changes the figure slightly but not much.

It occurred to the health department of one city to prepare a table of the expectation of life among the inhabitants of the city, in the hope that the people would help fight disease and so prolong their calculated allotted span.

The preparation of a table of this sort is a very complicated proceeding that requires an expert. But the results obtained are highly valuable. The figures are practically the same for all sections of the country. These show that there has been an increase in the expectation of life, as it is called, from the age of 1 year to the age of 30 and a decrease from 30 years on. For instance, a child 5 years old might expect to live 52 years more. That is an increase of 11 years over the expectation of life calculated a third of a century ago. An adult between 25 and 30 years of age has 32.6 years more to live, according to this table, while a person 85 years old may reasonably expect to live only 2 years and 3 months longer.

The expectation of life for men and women is different, for people in different trades it is different. These differences bring to light some curious facts. For instance comparison of the sexes instead of ages shows that women in general have about 6 years longer to live than men. The figures also show that married men live longer than single men and that married women live longer than single women. The Jew lives longer than the Gentile by a round dozen years. The negro appears to have less chance of life than the white man.

But throughout it is found that the span of life for people up to the age of 30 has increased during the last 30 years while that for people beyond the age of 30 has decreased.

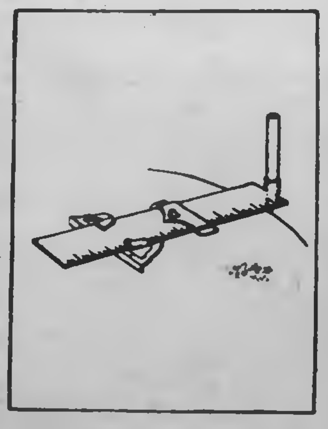
A NEW LIFE-SAVING DEVICE

Fire-fighters are interested in this gun which is designed to save life, not to take it. It looks much like a sawed-off shotgun and carries a projectile to which is attached a light but strong cord. It is used when people are trapped in the upper stories of tall buildings, the "bullet" being fired into a window and a heavy rope drawn up after the thin cord has been secured by those in danger.

SQUARE MAKES CIRCLE

Seemingly Impossible Performance Accomplished by a New Tool

The seemingly impossible achievement of making a circle by means of a square is accomplished by a new device which has been lately patented. A view of this implement is given herewith and anyone who may be the least bit familiar with the construction and use of a T-square will see at once how it is done and also the advantages of the improvement.



HOW A CIRCLE MAY BE MADE WITH A SQUARE.

A flat, graduated rule has a socket at one end, designed to hold a point such as a piece of lead or lead pencil, and the length of the rule is traversed by a metal slide, designed to be secured at any point and adapted to perform the ordinary functions of a square. The slide is supplied with a projecting point which is used in making the circle in conjunction with the lead or pencil point, as shown in the illustration.

An Ancient Bank Note

St. Petersburg's Asiatic Museum claims to have a Chinese bank note issued at Pekin in 2800 B.C. It is similar to those now in use. It is of thick white paper, inscribed in blue ink. Round the border is engraved the counsel: "However much you may possess, strive to be thrifty." If its date is authentic it disposes at one blow of a number of seemingly well-substantiated facts. It throws back the use of written characters at least 1,000, and the invention of printing more than 3,000 years and proves that a highly developed state of civilisation and an utterly unsuspected economic system must have existed under the Emperor Fu Hsi, who has hitherto been treated as a purely legendary monarch.

RADIUM IN CANADA

Traces of the Precious Stuff But no Big Find Reported

The Canadian Government is at present investigating several important possibilities in the Dominion. The occurrence of radium in Canadian rocks is being investigated by the Mines Department. The same department is having an investigation made of iron ore possibilities along Lake Superior and elsewhere. A further investigation is also being made into the possibilities of utilising flax straw for purposes of manufacture.

According to a report published by the Geological Survey Department, radium-bearing minerals have not yet been found in economic quantities. There are a few localities, however, in which such minerals have been discovered in traces or small quantities. Among these places are Madoc, Mamamse on the east shore of Lake Superior, Maisonneuve, Quebec; Murray Bay, Quebec, Snowdon, Ontario; Villeneuve, Quebec. More extensive prospects for this valuable ore will be made.

A Montreal firm has under consideration the manufacture of flax straw into binder twine, matting, etc. and the Government will also investigate the possibility of such an industry, and the advisability of granting to it a bounty in its initiatory and infant stage of development.

Reasons For Growing Trees

Trees retard wind.
Trees prevent drifting of soil.
Trees lessen evaporation.
Trees hold snow.
Trees increase yield.
Trees lessen the effect of hot wind.
Trees make a home for birds that eat harmful insects.
Trees furnish fuel and fence posts.
Trees make a place home-like and shelter stock, garden and fruit trees.

When clean-cultivated trees will do well. If left to fight weeds and grass they are quite apt to fall.—H. A. Bereman in Canadian Forestry Journal.

Canadian Beaver in Minnesota

There are now about four hundred beaver in Itasca Park in Minnesota. These are all descended from one male and two females sent from Algonquin National Park, Ontario, in the spring of 1902. The beaver were sent to the Governor of Minnesota by the Prime Minister of Ontario. Five beaver were sent, but two died on the way from Ontario to Minnesota. The descendants of these animals have spread themselves all over the west side of Itasca Park, an area of about twenty-five square miles.

TIRED METALS

Metals get tired with over-working just as much as human beings do. And, like human beings, they need a holiday and complete rest in order to recover from the strain and rush of modern life!

It was Lord Kelvin who showed that metals suffer from fatigue. He kept iron wires in constant motion during a week, and watched the way they acted. At the end of the week they had lost a considerable amount of their original elasticity. He gave them a day's rest and they completely recovered. He further experimented and discovered that an iron bar, after a three weeks' rest, gained ten per cent. in elasticity. In repeated experiments he found that steel and wrought iron deteriorated very rapidly if they were worked continuously, and, in the long run, break up completely, just as the human being does. Knocking them off work at regular intervals adds years to their powers of resistance.

A good instance of this was shown by Lord Kelvin. A steel rail, which had done service for over twenty years, suddenly broke into half-a-dozen pieces under the weight of a passing train. For the whole of that twenty years it had not had a day's holiday. Lord Kelvin pointed out that if that rail had had proper rests it would have done duty for another twenty years. As it was the strain was too great for it.

CANADA'S MINES

Coal Our Most Important Product With Silver Next

Particularly fortunate in its great store of mineral wealth is Canada. From this storehouse is being drawn an increasing and seemingly unending output of minerals. Before the year 1890 mineral production in Canada was comparatively small. In 1890, however, the production of all minerals exceeded 16 million dollars or a production of $3.50 per capita. The mineral output from that time showed a phenomenal development, increasing by 1900 more than three and a half times to a total exceeding 64 millions. Now, however, this figure has been more than doubled, the present total production being more than 133 million dollars, or $18 for every man woman and child in the Dominion. Of the metals, silver is the most important in value, followed by pig iron, nickel, copper and gold, but the non-metal mineral product, coal, exceeds in value any of the metals, the yearly output of coal amounting to about $36,000,000.

CANADA'S PROGRESS

Lord Strathcona Predicts Era of Tremendous Expansion

"Looking back on Canada as it was seventy-five years ago," said Lord Strathcona recently, "the change is indeed, amazing. Canada was then comparatively a wilderness, with a population of barely a million or so of people, and now she has eight or nine millions. And this is nothing to what it will be in another three quarters of a century, when it will unquestionably have a population equal to or greater than that of the United Kingdom."

"Little more than forty years ago," Lord Strathcona added, "the great territory of Rupert's Land, then possessed by the Hudson Bay Company, did not produce enough breadstuff for the use of the 200 or 300 white people who then resided at the company's posts, and out of that vast territory have been carved the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta —which produces annually 200,000,000 bushels of wheat—the city of Winnipeg, then non-existent, with a population of about 200,000, and several other cities with populations ranging from 30,000 to 130,000, the latter being that of the city of Vancouver to-day."

THE STAMP OF PUBLIC APPROVAL

PUBLIC approval of the light beer is most emphatic.

A Prominent Physician, speaking before the Ontario Medical Council, said :

"Lager and Mild Ale are forms of liquid beefsteak, which impart power and strength to the system."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

Shades and Sympathies.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I MET my mother-in-law on the street next day and she cut me dead. I presently began to realize that I was expected to apologize to her for speaking plain truth and that there would be absolutely no peace in my home until I did.

My wife and I then entered upon a period of quietude, under which thunder was constantly rumbling with a menacing suggestion.

Whenever Mary spoke of her mother now it was with a lingering gentleness, as if that dear, patient martyr who had reared her had been grossly misunderstood. Whenever I was looking she'd cross over to the window, study her mother's windows intently and brighten wonderfully if that estimable lady happened to be in sight. Then they'd exchange hand-waves and Mary would sigh. To be honest, that fluttering wave of the hand began to get on my nerves.

"It looks so foolish," I insisted. "People will think you're crazy. Whenever you go near the window you begin that sickly little flutter of your hand."

"I want mother to know that I'm thinking of her," said Mary. "I don't see why you should object in the least to that."

As a matter of fact, the motive behind Mary's action was that she wanted her mother to know she was in perfect sympathy with her, and disapproved decidedly of me.

Finally we quarrelled about the hand-waving. And then it began surreptitiously. Mary would wander nonchalantly over to the window and seat herself in the window seat. Frequently, in glancing up, I would just detect the flutter of her hand finishing one of those fool waves. It said as plainly as day: "I'm here, mother, and I'm thinking of you—but Peter's here and of course I can't go over there, and you can't come over here until he apologizes."

For those were the terms my esteemed mother-in-law had made. Until such time as I should humble my pride and apologize to her for speaking the truth, she would not set foot within my door—"absolutely not," she had said, "certainly one could not expect it," etc.

Finally, one night, catching Mary in a surreptitious hand-assurance of sympathy to her mother, who, it seemed to me, was most always hanging about the window of late, I arose and pulled down the shade.

Childish? I admit it. I am neither a saint nor a rational being any more. I'm getting nerves and I'm easily irritated.

Instantly Mary put the shade up again, with a jerk that sent it flying to the top. It was an act of rebellion incited by the presence of my gloating mother-in-law in the opposite window.

I pulled the shade down again and held it.

"What in the world do you suppose people are thinking of us?" I demanded. "Zig-zagging a shade up and down and glaring at each other while your mother watches the show from her window! It's silly!"

"Who began it?" demanded my wife. "You pulled the shade down."

"You waved your hand again in that silly way," I said. "If you want to talk to your mother, go over and talk. I don't in the least mind being alone—but I do mind such sickly exhibitions of sentimentality as you've been indulging in lately."

But I'm learning that it isn't wise to fight your mother-in-law. Instantly you exalt her in your wife's mind to the plane of a martyr and after that everything in the world is hers. A man stands very little chance, anyway, of getting away with a dispute when his mother-in-law is the other disputant. "Mother," I'm learning, comes first, right or wrong.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going with a young man for a month, and he seems to be very nice. But when I ask him to come up to the house and call for me he always makes some excuse, and asks me to meet him at the corner.

Do you think it is right for me to meet him there? LONELY ONE.

DON'T be lonely, Lonely One, the world is full of jolly girls who would like you for a friend, and nice fellows who would like you, too, if they knew you.

Don't allow this very shrinking young man to take up too much of your time. If he doesn't care enough for you to come to your house after you, you'd better find some one who does.

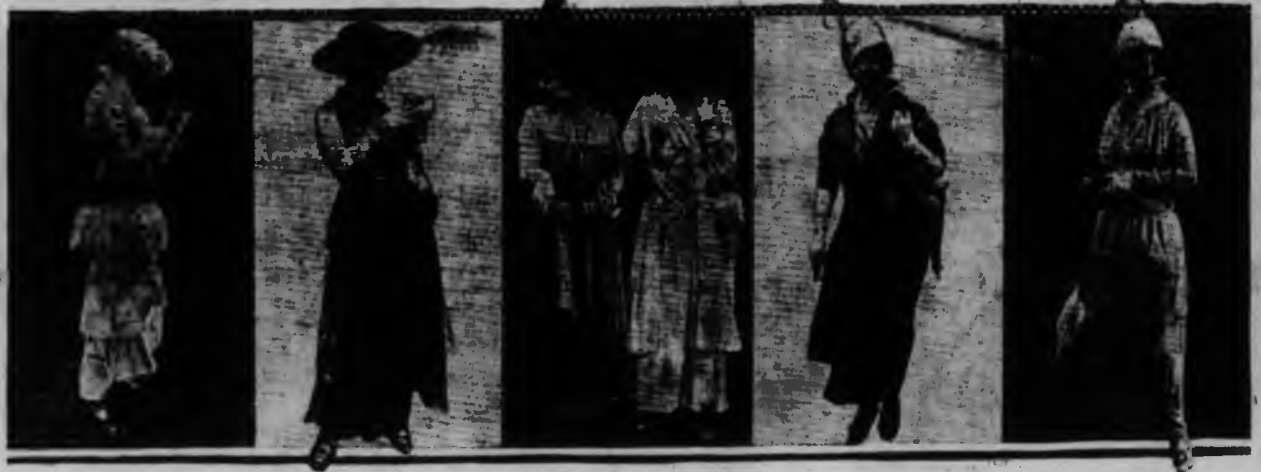
What's the matter with him—is he in disguise and afraid some one will see his face—or what?

Either make him come to the house after you or don't go with him at all.

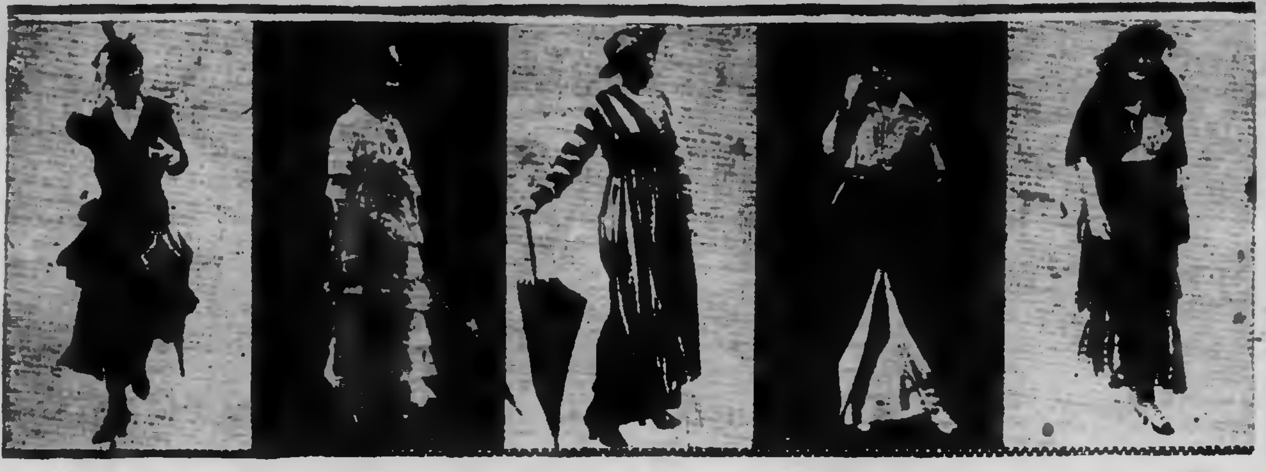
Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

PARIS' "BLACK AND WHITE" SEASON



These Petures and Those in the Panel Below, Are from Snapshots Made in Paris, and Show the Great Popularity of Black and White in Feminine Costumes.



Snapshots That Show the Curious Rage for "Non-Colored" Clothes

THERE never was anything like it in Paris—this rage for black and white clothes. Whether Mlle. Forzane started it or not, the fact is undisputed that, with all the shades of the spectrum to pick from, those non-colors, black and white, have been more widely chosen than any others for the clothes that are worn this summer. Designs are various—they never were so various—but whether the goods are satin, chiffon, linen or include the diaphanous veilings that add the final touch to so many of the smartest costumes, black and white seem to get first choice among the more artistic exponents of the art of dressing. Stripes and checks naturally have a conspicuous place, but the all-white suit is exceedingly prominent, and many of the soft variations from the all-black designs look (with some delicate splash of flower color) like a half mourning, though vastly more "chic" than is commonly permitted in such effects.

It Is Not "Smart" to Be Delicate Now-a-Days

DR. LOUIS BROCQ of Paris, France, says that the new-fashioned woman is a failure.

"Women are fast deteriorating physically," says Dr. Brocq, "owing to the exaggerated efforts, principally the intellectual efforts, they are making toward what they call their 'emancipation.'

"Women are stoop-shouldered, hollow-chested, pale-faced and dull-eyed.

"Where is the beautiful, rosy, healthy girl of 20 years ago? Gone—with the old-fashioned ideas as to modesty and a demure deportment!"

Well, well, well—what a world we live in, to be sure.

I suppose the frog in the puddle, there by the roadside, thinks all the world is green—when the scum begins to show on the top of the waters of his existence.

It's some little time since I've been to Paris, so I can't tell about the French women. But there isn't the least trouble in the world to tell about the American women, and I'm going to do it right here and right now.

The American woman was never so clever, never so interesting, never so pretty, never so good-humored, never so happy—and never in such rude health as she is in this very year of our Lord nineteen fourteen.

She's broader shouldered, deeper chested, bigger footed and taller by an inch and a half than she ever was before. All this by actual measurement.

Did you happen to know, Dr. Louis Brocq of Paris, France, that the girl babies born in the public hospitals of America average an inch and a half more in length and a pound and a half more in weight than they did ten years ago?

Women Becoming Taller.

And has it been brought to your attention that the graduates of the girls' high school in any city in America where they keep statistics on such matters is taller by two inches than the average girl of ten years ago? And, let me whisper, have you heard the terrible news from those high schools besides?

Sh, I'll tell it to you.

The high school boys' average in height and in weight, and in general physical development is going down, and has been going down, slowly but very, very steadily, for the last ten years.

What does it mean? I wish I could tell you—I'd love to do it.

But don't let any French gentleman distract your attention with his strange, weird statements concerning the modern woman—as he knows her.

The modern woman is the most amazing creature this world has ever produced. Some of the things about her are not particularly pleasing—oh, come, let's face the truth—for once—but she isn't aenemic and she isn't stoop-shouldered, and she isn't hollow-chested.

Compared to the woman her mother was at her age, she's a great, big, husky, wholesome, good-natured, loud-talking "How are you, Tom," and "Where did you come from, Bill," person, who eats like a hired man, sleeps out in the open air, and thinks nothing at all of a little stroll of 20 miles or so just for a constitutional.

It isn't fashionable to be lazy, it isn't "smart" to be delicate, it isn't the thing to die of a broken heart.

Age and Athletics.

I invited an old-fashioned relative of mine to visit me not long ago—a Sweet Girl from the back woods. She was just about twenty years behind the times, poor thing, and hadn't the faintest idea of it.

She wore a tight corset and high heeled shoes and a smothering veil. She didn't like to walk, she couldn't play golf—tennis tired her, and she was too timid to learn to swim.

I think she wanted to sit on the piazza and have somebody hold hands with her, but everybody was too busy—walking and motoring and canoeing and swimming and being generally about as active as a good, healthy, well-intentioned grasshopper on a June day.

Poor little cousin—she was a belle down home where she came from. It was hard on her—at first. But she had brains under all her blonde hair, and by the time she started home she was made over. I don't believe her own mother knew her when she met her at the station.

The woman of a generation ago always "had a headache" once a week, anyway, and the best aunt that ever lived in the world keeps telling me that she never went to a funeral or a wedding or a party in her young days without having somebody faint during the ceremony. She fainted herself, she says, when there was no one else to do it.

Aunty is a good bit over 60 now—she's taking tango lessons, and yesterday she joined a mountain walking club and is having a great time getting an Alpen-stock with a big enough spike in the end of it. She likes cliffs, and precipices and canyons and things.

Aunty has the fresh-air fad—now. She sleeps outdoors—the year round. If she'd tried to do it when she was a girl somebody would have locked her up in a sanatorium.

Tut, tut, Dr. Louis Brocq of Paris, France—come on over to America and let us show you a few modern women as they really are—and you'll change your mind. You'll have to—or stop being a clever, quick-witted Frenchman.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Cold Storage Fowls Should Be Bought Undrawn

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

FRANCIS BACON died a victim to the first scientific experiment in cold storage, if Lord Macaulay is to be believed. Nearly 300 years ago, in 1626, at the end of March, he was at Highgate. It was a snowy day. He left his coach to collect snow with which to stuff a fowl in order to observe the effect of cold on the preservation of its flesh.

A chill resulted and he was taken to Lord Arundel's house, where he died of pneumonia. His cold storage experiment was successful, but the patient died.

Some time later, in 1663, Samuel Pepys wrote in his diary that a fowl killed in December by Alderman Barker, and put in a box under his sledge, was forgotten and left until April. When found it was frozen hard, fresh and sweet—and tasted as if it had just been killed.

The unearthing of animals such as dinosaurs, mammoths and other ancient creatures preserved in glaciers, and other eternally frozen regions, shows Nature's cold storage lesson to man.

The ancient Persians, Egyptians and Romans must have known how to make ice and to use cold storage, for they had dainties and delicacies from all the corners of the globe. In such torrid climates such victualary novelties would have been impossible unless refrigeration had been in use.

It is known that in 1664 iced drinks—a supposedly American, hygienic or anti-hygienic measure—were a common table necessity in France. Yet just two years ago the International Cold Storage Association opened a public subscription for Charles Tellier of Paris, who was then 84 years old, as the discoverer of refrigeration.

At the present time there are more than $3,000,000,000 worth of food stuffs placed each year in cold storage. One-half of this is meat and fowl. Products that were perishable in days a-gone, which caused Joseph to build granaries in ancient Egypt to avoid lean years, are now guarded by science in appropriate refrigerators.

With the change from the theory of bacteriology to the proved science of bacteriology, it was learned that decay in foods is always due to microbes. These tiny creatures are held in sterile abeyance at icy temperatures.

Since preservatives and the destruction of germs of heat often injure the commissariat, as much as they head off decomposition, it is obvious that frigid temperatures are more to be desired than the other methods.

Unluckily, even cold storage, like an iced mint julep, has its felonies and misdemeanors, its dangers and drawbacks.

The water in the tissues evaporates, and the material shrivels. The fat under the influence of light, air and oxygen is, after some months, burned into acids. Furthermore, the few non-growing bacteria still present effect a few changes in the frozen foodstuffs.

Any victuals not fresh placed in cold storage will necessarily be bad when removed.

No "drawn" poultry should be purchased if previously kept thus. Poultry can only be hygienically stored undrawn.

Foods that come from cold storage decompose more rapidly than fresh foods. This is due to the fact that the "physique" and make-up of the refrigerated ration has been so changed by freezing that it is more accessible to bacterial invasion.

The weekly use of meat as an edible in Greater New York is about 100,000,000 pounds. Yet there are only about 2,000,000 pounds kept in that neighborhood in cold storage.

What may happen some day during a tragic cyclone, a shipping disaster or other cataclysm if cold storage facilities are not augmented, may well be left to the imagination.

Answers to Health Questions

G. M. A.—1—Have had cold in head all winter. What will cure it? 2—Have flat feet. What will help me?

1—Expose yourself more to the air. Sleep in the open, if possible. Have large tonsils removed. 2—Exercise on the toes and side of feet. Wear arches in the shoes, but wear soft ones.

• • •

R. D. R.—Have varicose veins on one leg which bother me, also a dull ache in the middle of my leg, inside, which does not seem to be in the bone. Is an elastic stocking the only remedy for varicose veins? Is cold water good? Is the other trouble from internal vein?

Varicose veins are now stitched up very easily. Elastic stockings are makeshifts. So are most other temporary reliefs.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

Apple and Tomato Jam.

Wipe five pounds of apples with a clean damp cloth, and cut them into quarters. Do not peel them. Put them in a preserving pan, and barely cover with cold water. Simmer until they are quite soft, and strain through cheese muslin.

Put some tomatoes into boiling water for one minute, and then take them out and skin them. Slice them thinly. Add the sliced tomatoes to the apple liquid, and weigh. To every pound of liquid and tomatoes put a pound of preserving sugar. Then color with a little cochineal. Simmer until a little of the jam put on a saucer gets firm. Pot while hot.

Banana Jam.

Slice up a dozen large bananas. To every pound of the fruit allow three-quarters of a pound of preserving sugar. Take the juice and pulp of five lemons, and add them to the bananas and sugar. Add a little water. Then chop up half an ounce of preserved ginger and add. Simmer very slowly for 30 minutes.

Date Jam.

Buy the dates by the pound. Remove the stones from three pounds and put the fruit in your preserving pan. Add about three breakfastcupfuls of water. Let the fruit just get hot, and then add a pound and a quarter of preserving sugar, a sprinkling of ground cinnamon and a teaspoonful of fresh butter. Stir until the jam begins to thicken, and pot while steaming hot.

Three Minute Journeys

Where the Women Wear Trousers

By TEMPLE MANNING

IN the mountains of Switzerland, near the village of Champery, some years ago I saw the strange sight of women working in the fields dressed in men's trousers. At a distance I thought that they were men, but when I approached and asked a question I discovered my mistake. And yet, with the exception of their hats, which were a sort of long toga hanging down their backs, their costumes were identical to those worn by their brothers.

This curious custom interested me so much that I diligently tried to discover the origin of it, but all I could get in answer to my questioning was this reply: "We have always done this, our ancestors always did it. We like the field work, and our men like the house." True enough, when I went down to the village I found the big sturdy men calmly smoking their pipes as they busied themselves with the babies or cooking dinner.

So many tourists have gone to Champery in recent years that the village elders have passed a law that no woman shall wear her trousers in the village streets, therefore the women hide their skirts by the roadside when they go out into the fields, and don them again on their way back. They seem to like the work in the open, singing as they pile the hay, or knitting as they tend the sheep and goats. But it is a curious thing that wearing trousers does not cause them to discard any of the motions that are peculiarly feminine when they climb a fence. Instead of vaulting over the fence, or stepping over, they invariably climb to the top rail and slide down woman fashion.

From earliest childhood these women of Champery are accustomed to the wearing of trousers, and they do not even discard them upon their wedding day, as I was fortunate enough to see. Coming down the road was a bridal procession, and I could not at a distance tell which was the bride and which was the groom. The bride was dressed white trousers, a white bodice, and wore a bunch of white violets in her hair. And yet she was as shy and blushing as any bride I have ever seen.

A Champery Shepherdess.

CHINESE WOMAN IS CENTRE OF ALL EYES

New Orleans, Nov. 3.—From Mrs. Chee Kin Fong's small mouth poured a cataract of gurgling sounds. They floated around the corridors of the Grunewald Hotel and for want of a haven floated disgustedly out of a window. Mrs. Chee Kin Fong stamped a vexed foot, but this only lured the bland eyes of her tormentors from her purple pantaloons to her amazing feet.

It was all very annoying to Mrs. Fong—if that's the family name. Old Mr. Confucius bought those kind of clothes for his wives, the musical comedies belabored a kind public with the idea for years, so Mrs. Fong was rightly annoyed to be bundled into the position of cynosure of appraising eyes.

As she stood in the door of her room in the Grunewald Hotel, with 2-year-old Chee Kin Fong, Jr., grasping infantwise at the hem of her pantaloons, Mrs. Fong completely verified everything the geographies have said about the Chinese women. Her straight black hair was plastered over her forehead. It trailed behind her ears and fell in a braid down her back. Gewgaws of every description were jabbed at random into the braid, giving the effect of a truculent porcupine. Jade rings hung from the lobes of her ear, dangling down until they touched the silk jacket that covered her shoulders. Her legs were enveloped in blue silk pantaloons.

Mrs. Fong, however, hates to be stared at. She said so in as many ways as she could and as the blank faces of her audience told her nothing she took advantage of an international code that is always convincing—she shut the door in everyone's face.

Mrs. Chee Kin Fong left Saturday morning for Panama. With her is Mr. Chee Kin Fong, a prominent Chinese merchant of Honolulu.

From behind one of those well-known Chinese grins Mr. Fong said that he was treating his family to a glance at the canal. He would then, said he, bring them back to glance over America before he returned to his dry goods store in Honolulu.

The Y.M.C.A. International Week of Prayer for young men will be observed Nov. 8—14. Meetings will be held at the local Association building each evening at 7.30 o'clock with the exception of Tuesday evening, when the service will be held at 7 o'clock sharp.

These will be very interesting services to which every man is invited to attend.

Local Greeks Patriotic.

We want to know who the local Greeks are that went to the Balkan War to fight for Greece against Turkey who proclaimed through the local press that they would fight for Great Britain if occasion arises? Why do not those same Greeks now volunteer when Great Britain is in danger. The Greek Colony as a rule is patriotic to their adopted land. This conversation was held with Mr. Constantine Chef at a local Hotel.

Unreasoning Suspicion

How much the successful activities of the German submarine fleet and the inability of the home fleet to strike back in kind has got on the nerves of Englishmen is illustrated by the resignation of Prince Louis of Battenburg as First Sea Lord of the Admiralty.

It mattered not that the Prince since boyhood has been a British subject; that for forty years he has been in the navy winning his way to the top by sheer ability; that he has had much to do with the preparedness of the fleet when the war came, and that his kin are fighting the cause of the Empire in France, and one has already fallen on the field of honor. The mere fact that German blood runs in his veins at this time of national peril, has been sufficient for a cruel newspaper campaign that has driven him from his high post.

The incident shows how blind is the prejudice which this war has bred—how bitter the race hatred.

Is it surprising that people should be asking whether the royal family itself is proof against the unreasoning fears that are growing up in some English minds of treachery and danger?

King George's father was a half-German. His mother was a Dane. He himself is a cousin of the German Emperor.

What more reason to distrust the loyalty of Prince Louis of Battenburg than that of the King himself?

The fact that some of the leading British newspapers, some of the most unflinchingly loyal of the Empire's public men are protesting against the injustice of the crusade that drove the First Sea Lord of the Admiralty into retirement suggests that the ramifications of such a campaign are not unappreciated.

The Egyptian Situation

Opinions differ widely as to how far the confidence and support of the people have been won by Great Britain during her more than thirty years' occupation of Egypt. There are some critics who assert that she is detested, at least by what were once the ruling classes, because she no longer lets them rule in the old ways of despotism, corruption and extortion. There are others who say that she has gained the affection of the great body of the people by her rescue of Egypt from bankruptcy, of the peasantry from poverty, of fertile fields from the desert, and of the Soudan barbarism. A certain measure of truth may be found in each of these views of the situation. One thing is sure, that Egypt has prospered greatly since 1882, when Britain saved the khedivate from Arabi's rebellion. But now it has to be ascertained if there is any gratitude for the good that has admittedly been done or if this is to be put on one side with a sneer as being only what Britain did in her own interests, especially that she might control the Suez canal as her short road to India.

The mixed sentiment, if not the mixed motives, may be clarified by Turkey's endeavor to reassert a right of control over Egypt, its prince, and its government. The Sultan talks, through German channels, of his "sovereign rights" in that country, but it is long since he had anything more than the shadowy right of a nominal suzerain. He only provokes a smile by stating that "the khedive will demand of Great Britain an explanation of her actions," seeing that the Khedive who was well content at Cairo, has been trapped and refused permission to return from Constantinople. We shall soon learn what influence, if any, the representatives of the line of usurping califs can exer and what can be done to get up a jihad or holy war on behalf of Germany. Canadian and Australian troops will have something to say about it on the lower Nile. Farther south, if the Turks attack, they may be faced by "Fuzzy-Wuzzy"—seven battalions of him—the "first-class fightin' man" who "bruk a British square" and a larger number of Egyptian and Arab battalions—the native army of 18,000 which was organized by Kitchener and is commanded by Wingate. If this army remains loyal, as it probably will—barring the advent of a Mahdi—the last political connection between Egypt and Turkey will be cut.

In any event the result will be the same. Britain will under no circumstances weaken her forces in Egypt, as the Kaiser hopes, to undertake a campaign in strength in Egypt. On the contrary, she will calmly await the defeat of Germany which is inevitable, and then, strengthened instead of weakened by war, settle her accounts with Turkey for all time, and Egypt, too, should she prove traitorous.

Painful Swellings Reduced
Muscular Strains Ended

Such Troubles Now Quickly Rubbed Away by Powerful Remedy.

If you have any muscles that are strained and weak, that are frequently subject to rheumatic pains; if you have any painful swellings that refuse to go away—get busy with Nerviline. This is the very sort of trouble that Nerviline is noted for curing quickly. "I have proved Nerviline simply a wonder in reducing a hard, painful swelling. It followed an injury I received in my left leg and caused me great pain and discomfort. The muscles were strained and sore and no other remedy gave the ease and comfort I got from rubbing on Nerviline. There is a soothing, pain-relieving power about Nerviline that touched the root of my trouble. Nerviline reduced the swelling, it destroyed the pain, it brought my limb back to perfect condition." The experience of Mr. Bowen, whose home is in Middlesex, is not unusual. Thousands are proving every day that muscular pains of every kind, chronic rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia and sciatica will yield to Nerviline when nothing else can possibly cure. Nerviline is an old-time family pain remedy, used nearly forty years with great success. The large family size bottle costs 50c., trial size 25c., at all dealers.

INCONSPICUOUS CLOTHING

Dark Blue and Green Can be Seen the Farthest

Some curious and rather unexpected results have followed experiments in Europe for the purpose of determining what color in a soldier's uniform is the least conspicuous to an enemy. Of ten men, two were dressed in light grey uniforms, two in dark grey, two in green, two in dark blue, and two in scarlet. All were then ordered to march off, while a group of officers remained watching them. The first to disappear in the landscape was the light grey, and next, surprising as it may seem, the scarlet. Then followed the dark grey, while the dark blue and the green remained visible long after all the others had disappeared. Experiments in firing at blue and red targets, according to same experiments, proved that blue could be more easily seen at a distance than red.

It may be that khaki, which is the fashionable color now for army uniforms, will have to give way to grey, for in these days of long-range weapons inconspicuous clothing is vitally necessary for soldiers.

Rugby Still Unspoiled

Rugby is a great amateur sport, one of the truly amateur sports in Canada. Professionalism has not invaded the field and there are no immediate prospects. It will, no doubt, be a sorry day for the game when Mr. Money-Bags forms a league and begins to swing the big bundle to lure and entice away the amateurs. The Canadian Rugby Union, which is a strong body, controls the situation and so far the game has been managed properly.—Toronto Sunday World.

FRIENDS OF FARMER

Destroy Mice and Insects Wholesale and Very Seldom Make Raid on the Poultry Yard

Among all our birds there is no group which stands in need of protection as much as the hawks and owls, writes A. B. Klugh, M.A., in The Farmer's Advocate. The reason for this is because as a group they are sadly misunderstood. All hawks and owls are condemned by the farmer and the sportsman because of the harm which is done by a very few species.

Taken as a group the birds of prey perform a most necessary service for the farmer, a service which is carried on quietly and continuously, and which is never realized or appreciated until it is rendered less efficient by a diminution in the numbers of these birds. This service is the destruction of small rodents. Where the birds of prey have been very much reduced in numbers the field mice have increased to such an extent as to constitute a veritable plague. It may seem an anacronism to many to class any hawk as an insectivorous bird, yet many species feed very largely upon insects.

If we look for a moment into the food of our common Canadian hawks and owls we shall see that most of them are among the most valuable allies which the farmer possesses.

The red-tailed hawk, a large species common in the East, in which the tail is red above, is commonly termed "hen-hawk," but as a matter of fact it very rarely takes poultry, and by far the greater portion of its food consists of injurious animals. It also feeds extensively upon large insects, such as grasshoppers, crickets and beetles.

The red-shouldered hawk is the commonest large hawk in many parts of the East. It may be known, when at rest, by the reddish coloration of the bend of the wing, and when in the air by the underside of the tail having narrow bands of black and white. This species shares with the red-tail the name of hen-hawk, a name even less [illegible] of the red-[illegible] than one-half per cent of its food [illegible] of poultry [illegible]. [illegible] are decidedly [illegible] on mice, [illegible] fish, grasshoppers, [illegible] spiders, crayfish, earthworms, snails and an occasional ground-haunting bird.

The rough-legged Hawk, which breeds in the West and is seen as a migrant in the East feeds almost exclusively upon field mice. It takes also ground squirrels and sometimes a rabbit, but never touches a bird either wild or domesticated. This is one of our largest hawks, being two feet in length, and may be recognized by its having the legs feathered down to the toes.

Swainson's hawk, which is the common large hawk of the prairies, may be known by the broad band of chestnut across the breast, which contrasts strongly with the pure white of the length. This species is about twenty inches in length. It feeds almost entirely upon field mice, gophers, and large insects.

WESTERN PIONEERS

Men of the Eighties Who Persevered in the Face of Difficulty

There is little left of the Winnipeg of the early eighties. Each year sees a diminution of the links which bind the days when Winnipeg was the stepping-off place, to the present, in which Winnipeg acts the part of the gateway to prosperity and affluence to all who seek diligently and perseveringly. Each year, one or more of those who formed the little band of pioneers who exhibited that diligence and perseverance in the face of almost insuperable obstacles, who stuck to the town of their adoption in spite of hard times, through all the vicissitudes of the growth of Winnipeg from trading post to metropolis, steadfast in their faith in its future, pass to their long rest having seen their judgment justified, their dreams of the city that was to be come true. The city of Winnipeg, and indeed, the whole of Western Canada, joins in paying tribute to the worth of these pioneer citizens of the prairies, whose unbounded optimism it was which made possible the Winnipeg of to-day, and whose prophetic vision outlined, in spite of the struggles in which they were involved, the glorious future of the west, which to-day is just beginning to be realized. The story of their careers is an object lesson to all in display of sterling character, of business integrity, and a wealth of humankindness.—The Saturday Post.

Butterfly's Long Trip

Brilliantly colored butterflies or moths, three inches in length and brightly hued, are not common in Canada, and consequently some workmen in a Toronto lumber yard were surprised to see one of this kind fluttering around in a car. It was in with some ash lumber, which arrived from the Southern States, so that evidently it had traveled the distance from its native clime in a box car. It was three inches long and measured three and a half inches from tip to tip of the wings. The body was two and a half inches long and the wings were striped with grey, yellow, black and white.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Campany re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs—all young foxes—good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. "The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:—"We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $60,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

These figures may be verified by enquiry to Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Company, 64 Queen Street, London.

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each. 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business—and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Heaviness of Platinum

Platinum is the heaviest commercial metal known. Its specific gravity is 21.5, as compared with 19.26 for pure gold and 10.53 for silver. Briefly, platinum is 21½ times as heavy as water, more than twice the weight of silver and heavier, bulk for bulk, than pure gold. It is softer than iron, but somewhat harder than copper.

SURE DEATH EITHER WAY FOR GERMANS

"I was enlisted in October of 1913. On mobilization, the weakly and those backward in training to the number of about sixty per cent. of the company, were withdrawn from the active regiment to form the nucleus reserve regiment which was completed by men from Baden and Wurttemberg belonging to the second section of the Landwehr. We received new gray uniforms. After ten weeks of hard training we traveled for three days and two nights, from Thuringia up to a Aix-la-Chapelle, where we remained in reserve We were told that our nearest enemies were the English. On the seventeenth and eighteenth of October we performed such fatiguing forced marches that 'many fell out on the road.

Threat Carried Into Effect.

"On October 17, we each received 285 rounds of ammunition, and had our first taste of fire. Although we were told that there were only sharpshooters in front of us, I saw French cavalrymen and no other foes. From this day onward the fighting was uninterrupted. On October 20, my section received orders to go forward to attack, and our officers warned us that if we gave way, fire would be opened upon us from behind. This threat was carried into effect when the losses we suffered compelled us to retire. Indeed, it was by a German bullet that I was wounded.

"Having fallen to the ground I remained between the lines without food or care for two days at the end of which time I dragged myself to a ruined house.

"During all this time German shells which were short, were falling almost my shelter located a few hunxred paces from the French lines. The French having advanced on October 24, I myself moved forward and called out to a passing patrol and surrendered.

"We have received no distribution of food since our arrival in France. The commandant of my company was a reserve lieutenant, 28 years of age. The Colonel, whose name I do not know, also belonged to the reserve, as did all the other officers of the regiment. The officers told us that if we fell into the hands of the French we would be sent to the foreign legion and that we surely would be massacred by the Moroccans. I saw only one man shot. He was a priest, wha they say was a spy."

Airmen Harass Hostile Columns.

The results of the inundation to the North of Dixmude have been observed by our aviators, who have seen numbers of the enemy collected in groups on the dykes which intersect the flooded area where, according to report, some German heavy artillery is bogged. Our airmen also have been able to harass advancing hostile columns by bomb dropping and machine gun fire.

The tactical transfer of troops behind the German front line is now carried out to a great extent by motor omnibuses, of which long lines are visible from above. During the past few days large numbers of refugees have been streaming back along all the roads from Belgium and crowding the empty trains returning from the front upon which the French have most humanely allowed them to travel.

Weary Days far Refugees.

In these trains whole families may be seen jostled together in horse trucks and having with them what few household goods they have been able to carry away. But the less fortunate have to trudge the roads making use of any shelter they can find.

The inhabitants of the district within our zone of operations also line the roads from morning to night and listen to the sound of the guns, there being nothing else for them to do. As the dull roar waxes and wanes, so does their confidence die away or return, and in such alternatives of fear and hope in each weary day passed. All this traffic to and fro of civilians entails the utmost vigilance in order to guard against espionage.

THE DAINTY "FLIPPER"

A Delicacy in Newfoundland Associated With the Sealing Season

A dainty peculiar to Newfoundland which so far has received little attention is the seal's flipper or fipper which is the paw with which the seal propels itself through the water. It is esteemed by the people of the island as one of their greatest delicacies. A flipper weighs about a pound, and when the seal ships begin to arrive in St. John's most people begin to talk about securing "a meal of fippers." Small boys and others swarm about the steamers, and the crews are importuned to supply these dainties to all who ask for them. In the olden times they were given away freely, but latterly it is not uncommon for fifty cents a gad (six on a string) to be asked for them, while many among the crews now make a practice of salting quantities into barrels for their own consumption during the summer. A fresh flipper makes a most appetizing meal. The method of cooking them is to wash them thoroughly in fresh water, then soak them in water in which salt has been dissolved; next transfer them to a baking pan or pot with slices of pork or bacon, and after being cooked over a hot fire they are as delicate of flavor and taste as the finest of veal.

Among all the capitalists in St. John's interested in the sealing industry, flipper suppers, with the accompaniment of champagne, etcetera, are the invariable rule as the ships come in, and owners, captains, and others indulge annually in these repasts at some of the hotels or inns near the city. Very many family parties also partake of the unusual dish, and among the poorer classes flippers are looked upon as a great and welcome luxury, a change from the usual dietary and one that is beyond all question nourishing and healthy. Roman Catholics likewise patronize flippers largely because, as the seal is an amphibious animal, it is not meat, and may be eaten during the Lenten season or on fast days. All round the north and west coasts, where the seals are often taken close in shore, they are a recognized item in the daily menu—not alone flippers but the carcases as well. These are perhaps even more appetising than the flippers because there is less fat permeating them, but, of course, space is too valuable aboard the ship to allow of carcases being brought home for consumption, they being worthless for any other purpose, and seal pelts being valued at $100 a ton dead weight.

PAVEMENTS OF RUBBER

Expensive as Yet But a Distinct Probability of the Future

It is not yet practicable to construct roads with surfaces of rubber except at a cost of $26 per yard, but there is little doubt that they will ultimately be adopted, says The Canadian Engineer. At the International Rubber Exhibition held in London recently, rubber paving was shown both for use on footways and on carriages. In each case the rubber constituted a surface cushion on blocks of jarrah wood, the material being held tightly in position by dovetailing, while a special joint locked the paving, preventing, when laid, the access of water to the concrete foundations. It is contended that thinner foundations are necessary owing to the reduced amount of vibration which occurs by heavy and fast-moving traffic, and further, that it never becomes slippery and that motor vehicles do not "skid" upon it under unfavorable conditions of weather. A section of rubber paving laid in the Old Kent Road, London, where the traffic is heavy, is not perceptibly worn after a year's use.

Concrete as a Bridge Material

Without an arched support or centre pier a single span concrete bridge 64 feet long, strong enough for the heaviest vehicle traffic, has been built in Illinois.

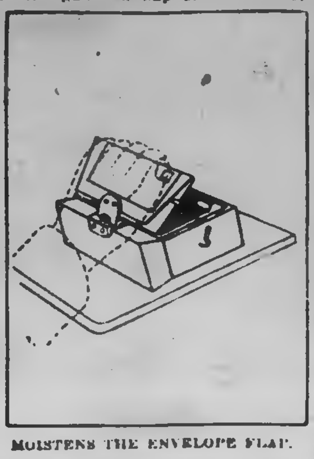
ENVELOPE SEALER

Handy Device Which Facilitates the Handling of the Office Mail

In the days not so long ago, the salivary secretions of the office boy were entirely sufficient for the purpose of moistening all the letters which had been written during the day and which were entrusted to him at the end of the day to mail. Such is not the case to-day, when the facilities for turning out letters and for doing business by mail are so great as to make the sealing and stamping of mail matter a serious problem.

The device shown herewith will apply just the right amount of moisture to the gummed flap of the envelope, and the inventor has also made provision that when once charged with water the supply will last a considerable time and not dry out by evaporation.



MOISTENS THE ENVELOPE FLAP.

It consists of a moisture-proof box with a hinged lid, the latter having a spring, the action of which is to hold the lid open. Under the lid is one moistening pad, which comes in contact with the envelope flap and this is maintained at the proper degree of moisture by automatically coming in contact with an auxiliary moistener. The envelope is placed on the lid with the flap overhanging, and as the lid is pressed down the water is applied. As the envelope is removed the parts are pressed together and the sealing effected. The moisture-proof qualities of the box prevent the evaporation of the water, which, when not in use is simply closed.

CONQUERS AIR POCKETS

French Aviator Brought Model of New Machine to Canada

Romin Garros, brother of Paul Garros, the famous French airman, exhibited an interesting object to some Montreal newspapermen. It was the model of his brother's new aeroplane, said to be able to defy air pockets one of the most fatal dangers to airmen. Garros explained the technical points of the machine.

"I am on my way to visit at the Bleriot farm in the west," said he, "and I take with me this little model. It does not look much, but it may prove the means of saving thousands of airmen's lives. It does what we call increasing the inherent stability of the plane, and this little apparatus which you see on the sides acts as a defence against sudden air currents, that is, they enable the airman to regain his balance after being tipped over. We are experimenting with this new plane in France, and are working it to a high stage of perfection. We are not saying much about it until we perfect it, but since you saw the model under my arm I have told you something about it."

Internal Combustion Locomotive

After many tests an internal combustion locomotive, using crude oil fuel, is proving satisfactory in Germany, frequently attaining a speed o 60 miles an hour.

Celluloid Wings for Aeroplanes

Celluloid wings for aeroplanes that are said to be so transparent as to be invisible 300 feet in the air have been invented by a German engineer.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties — must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

MARVELLOUS FEATS OF TRAINED PIGEONS

High-flyers Which Stay up in the Air For Eighteen Hours And Even Longer

To tell the uninitiated that pigeons will fly for over eighteen hours at a stretch, without food, water, or a rest, is probably to find oneself accused of pandering to one's imagination. Yet such is the astounding truth. Amongst the birds of those who make a hobby of breeding and training pigeons to fly for long periods among the clouds, specimens which regularly fly the clock around are to be numbered by the thousand. Week in, week out, in the districts where high-flying—the name by which the pastime is known—is followed, pigeons leave their aviaries at the break of day, go right up into the blue almost beyond the vision of the human eye, and remain flying there until the light fails in the evening. It is, in fact, by no means uncommon for them to keep up their aerial evolutions until darkness comes on, and the owner cannot see the birds of which he is so justly proud.

Somersaults in the Air

The variety of pigeon which flies the longest time is the Flying Tippler, and consequently it is the most popular. Other flying breeds are the Cumulet, the West of England Tumbler, the Performing Tumbler, and the Roller. The two last-named perform in the air as they fly, the Tumbler tumbling and the Roller rolling. The actions of the latter are most peculiar. A Roller will stop in its flight and turn somersaults downwards in an almost perpendicular line, sometimes actually striking the ground and injuring itself.

Thousands of English working men find recreation in the sport of high-flying. The great centre of the sport is Sheffield, which is as much the headquarters of the hobby as Newmarket is of the racing world.

Many clubs exist throughout England and these bodies organize the sport and promote the flying competitions.

How Contests Are Conducted

The manner of conducting these contests, briefly described, is as follows. A time is fixed by the club for the birds to start. This is as early as possible, say 3.30 a.m. or 4 a.m. An official referee is sent to each competitor's home to take the time, and see that the conditions of the fly are properly carried out. The referee remains until the birds drop. At the liberation hour the owner allows his "kit" of birds, usually three in number, to leave their loft. The pigeons, revelling in their liberty, immediately soar aloft, and commence flying with an easy, graceful action. Although they do not usually go very far out of sight of their home, they cover quite a wide area, flying backwards and forwards and round and round.

The conditions usually are that the "kit" has to be seen by the referee once in the first two hours of the fly, and once in each subsequent hour.

Calling the Pigeons Home

When the birds show signs of coming down, the owner puts out what is known as the "droppers." This is usually a white pigeon of some other variety—a white Fantail, for instance. When this bird appears on the loft top the high-fliers see it, and if they have been properly trained they fly down to their aviary, though it sometimes takes hours to get flying pigeons to "drop." The referee records the time up to the moment at which the owner puts out the "droppers." The pigeons have all to "drop" within a prescribed area, and within a fixed length of time, or they are disqualified.

The world's record fly is eighteen hours thirty-two minutes and there are many proud owners whose birds have stayed aloft for eighteen hours.

RAISING GEESE

A Profitable Side-line on the Farm—Pointers on Management

The breeding and raising of geese calls for altogether different treatment from the breeding and raising of ducks, the necessary conditions being very dissimilar. While the ducks will do very well when closely confined in yards and fed such green food as we have, geese will not thrive if kept in this manner. The breeding birds need a large, practically free, green range, and if well watered, either by pools or streams, the breeding results will be much more satisfactory than if the runs are unwatered.

Breeding geese require very little grain food. Through the winter they should be fed largely on vegetable foods. Cabbage, turnips, beets, cut clover, and other vegetable matter may be fed freely, together with a good quality of bran and oats. Corn and meal will prove rather too fattening, and should be fed sparingly even in the coldest of weather.

Very little shelter is required. A rough shed, free from extreme draughts, is all that is absolutely necessary. It should be littered with some dry material, and cleanliness will add much to the health and worth of the birds.

Old geese do not lay as many eggs as young ones, but they hatch good, vigorous birds. To the amateur it would be well to say, if your young geese (females) are but one year old, do not expect too many goslings, as you will do well to raise any from one-year-old females. Many a would-be geese raiser has given up the business because he did not know this.

The birds generally mate in February, and at this time such birds as are to be mated together should be shut apart from the others.

There is some question as to which is the best breed for general purposes. The three breeds which have the strongest following are the Toulouse, African and Embden. Each has its special virtues. The Toulouse is the largest of the three and produces a very strong and quick-growing gosling. The goslings require very little attention, except for the first day or two when they should be kept dry and warm.

A green run is really one of the necessary aids in the proper growth of young goslings. A little grain can be fed, say three times a day. This, with an abundant supply of green food, will cause them to grow and yield a profit to the producer.

Let them have free access to grit and oyster shell. They should be ready to kill when the first flight feathers are grown, and should be full fed at that time with corn, oatmeal and animal food.

Copper Jumps

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¾ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

WHAT COAL CAN DO

Does anyone realize the power of coal as a worker? A man was set to work a pump as hard as he could all day, and at the end of ten hours it was found that he had done just as much work as a little less than 3 ounces of coal could do.

Taking all the energy put forth by a hard-working man during one whole year, the same amount of force would be furnished by 36 pounds of good coal —or, say, 40 pounds of average coal.

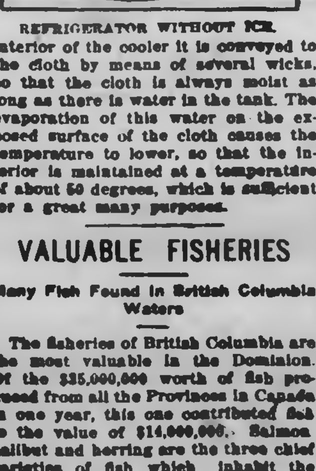
Of course, even in the best engines, the greater part of the working energy of coal is wasted. But even if only one-tenth is turned to account, 150 pounds of coal is equal to a man working for 300 days of the year.

A horse can do as much work as ten men, but 1¼ pounds of coal has as much working force as a horse expends in one day. So that a ton of coal, if we could use all its force, would do as much work as six horses working for a whole year!

ICELESS REFRIGERATOR

Keeps the Contents at a Desirable Temperature by Use of Water

The iceless refrigerator is not intended to put the ice man out of business, but is meant for service in localities not traversed by that august individual. This cooler consists of a stout wire mesh covered with an absorbent cotton cloth. The base and top are of metal, with provision made for accommodating a quantity of water. After this has been poured into the interior of the cooler it is conveyed to the cloth by means of several wicks, so that the cloth is always moist as long as there is water in the tank. The evaporation of this water on the exposed surface of the cloth causes the temperature to lower, so that the interior is maintained at a temperature of about 50 degrees, which is sufficient for a great many purposes.



REFRIGERATOR WITHOUT ICE.

VALUABLE FISHERIES

Many Fish Found in British Columbia Waters

The fisheries of British Columbia are the most valuable in the Dominion. Of the $35,000,000 worth of fish produced from all the Provinces in Canada in one year, this one contributed fish to the value of $14,000,000. Salmon halibut and herring are the three chief varieties of fish which inhabit the waters of British Columbia.

The Fraser River, especially that section of it flowing through the lower mainland, contributes most liberally to the fisheries of the Province. The salmon pack in all parts of British Columbia in a year amounted to 996,576 cases, of which the lower mainland district, including the Province's largest canneries at New Westminster, contributed 173,921 cases, or almost twenty per cent. of the entire pack.

The fishing business on "the coast" is only in its infancy. The rivers of the northern part of the interior are practically unknown, so far as their fertility is concerned, and the fishermen on the coast are only beginning to realise the immense wealth which lurks in the numerous bays and inlets of the Pacific coast.

A Share of the Catch

In the French fisheries on the Newfoundland banks the fishermen do not work for wages, but for a share in the catch. Before they leave France they receive an advance payment, varying from $75 to $150, to be deducted from their future earnings. If, as not infrequently happens, a man's share at the end of the season is not sufficient to cover the amount advanced to him, the owner of the vessel loses the difference, and the man himself comes home with empty pockets. The fisherman's total earnings in seven months of hard labor and exposure probably do not average more than $150. Strangely enough, the men appear to be content with their lot, and all the reforms that have been effected toward improving their wages and the conditions under which they labor have been initiated by naval officers, administrative officials and enlightened ship-owners.

Wholesale Smuggling

Wholesale smuggling of horses, cattle and grain across the Canadian border, amounting to thousands of dollars was unearthed by Collector of Customs Judson La Moure, Jr., of the district of North and South Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. According to information from Hallock, Man., near the centre of the smuggling district the operations were carried on along the Border between St. Vincent and Warroal, Minn. There is no customs port between these two points, which are about 100 miles apart.

Cement in Far East

Discoveries of extensive deposits of limestone and silica in the Philippines have led to the formation of a company to manufacture cement there.

WEATHER PROPHETS VERY UNRELIABLE

That is, the Unscientific Forecasters Who Base Their Guesses on Mere Superstition

There is no other subject around which such a mass of signs and superstitions has arisen than the weather. In spite of the repeated assertions of the most careful scientists, people will probably go on to the end of time talking of "wet" moons and "dry" moons and looking for weather changes with the varying phases of the moon. Most meteorologists are inclined to say that the moon can have no effect whatever in the making of weather changes, while some will suggest that the only possible influence it can have upon the atmosphere is similar to the tidal effect upon the ocean waters, but that even this must be so slight as to be insignificant.

Another favorite superstition is that of the equinoctial gales. Careful calculations made by the observatory officials at Toronto, based on tables of gales in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces covering a period of forty years, lead them to the conclusion that there is no marked increase in storm energy about the time of the equinox, and that a term of any other six days in any other part of the months of March or September would give quite as many gales occurring, whether moderate or heavy, as is shown to have taken place between the 19th and 24th.

There are millions of persons who cling faithfully to the belief that if rain falls on St. Swithin's Day—July 15—it will rain for forty consecutive days thereafter, and that in spite of the incontrovertible scientific fact recorded by the Greenwich Observatory for twenty years that not once did it rain for forty days.

On a par with these superstitions is our belief that a certain cold day is the "coldest ever"; and that when it gets really warm, "it never was so hot," and also that "the weather of the country is changing." It is of interest to note the information on this point in an article on "Meteorology in Canada" as reprinted from the Journal of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada:

"In order to gather information as to whether any attention was paid to Meteorology and Climatology in the early days of Canadian history, the 'Relations of the Jesuits' have been carefully gone over, and all references to climate phenomena have been copied and arranged under various headings, such as winter, summer, drought and other phenomena; and from these notes it has been possible to draw conclusions as to the general character of the seasons in Canada during the 17th and 18th centuries . . . and a study of the notes leads to the conclusion that the only valuable information to be gathered from this source is that this climate then was just about the same as it is now."

LORE OF THE SEA

Drastic Rules Which Portuguese Sailors Once Observed

Some remarkable advice to seafarers is given in an old Portuguese book, published for the guidance of mariners. Amongst other things it deals with the rights of captains to assault sailors, and the methods in which the attacks are to be legally met.

The sailor is advised to bear calmly any verbal abuse that an irate skipper may hurl at him, but if words passed to blows he was to run away into the bows and firmly take his stand beside the anchor chain.

Should an infuriated master, armed with a belaying pin or other lethal weapon, chase him to his stronghold, the mariner was to slip around to the farther side of the chain. Should he still be pursued, he was to call his messmates to witness that the master had broken the rules by circumventing the chain.

Then, at last, he was to defend himself! Other little matters of discipline are set out, and they show a noble effort to make the punishment fit the crime.

The ship's clerk, a privileged person who acted as bookkeeper, purser, and cargo-master, was liable to be branded in the forehead, to lose his right hand, and to forfeit all his property if he made a wrong entry in the ship's book, or connived at such an entry.

A seaman who fell asleep on his watch was only put on a diet of bread and water, unless the offence was committed in hostile waters. In that case he must be stripped naked, flogged by his messmates, and ducked thrice in the sea.

If he were an officer, however, he would only lose all food except his bread, and have a pail of water flung over him from the head downwards.

Hand-power Propeller

For propelling boats a Frenchman has invented paddle wheels which may be attached to any boat and revolved by a man pulling at oarlike handles.

HOW GERMANS REGARD IMPORTED GOODS

These ten commandments, an instructive circular which has been distributed throughout Germany by the Chambers of Commerce, were read in London at a meeting of British manufacturers:

1. In all expenses, keep in mind the interests of your own compatriots.
2. Never forget that when you buy foreign articles your own country is poorer.
3. Your money should profit no one but the Germans.
4. Never profane German factories by using foreign machinery.
5. Never allow foreign eatables to be served at your table.
6. Write on German paper, with a German pen, and use German blotting paper.
7. Use German flour, eat German fruit, and drink German beer. You alone give your body the true German energy.
8. If you do not like German malt coffee, drink coffee from the German colonies.
9. Use only German clothes for your dress and German hats for your head.
10. Let no foreign flattery distract you from these precepts, and be firmly convinced that whatever others may say, German products are the only ones worthy of the citizens of the German Fatherland.

Lakefield Wire Troubles

News: The electric lights were out for half an hour on Wednesday evening. During the high wind a large branch of a tree broke and fell across the wires on Queen street, near Mr. Leggott's residence, with the result that the wires were broken, necessitating a shut down to repair them. The cable of the Bell Telephone Co. was also broken by the branch.

A Tel-El-Weber Veteran.

On Saturday a Times reporter got into conversation with an Englishman who fought in the Egyptian campaign. The Englishman, referring to the present war said "I was present at Tel El Kibir. The Dervishes ran at our Square like mad men. I used my bayonet on the first that came my way. As I rammed the steel home through his breast I slipped and fell. The feeling of that steel piercing a man's body made me sick at the stomach. I vomited as I lay on the sand. However I recovered and a few minutes later put my bayonet into the bodies of two Fuzzy-Wuzzies. The stench of blood on that battlefield was overpowering!"

Mr. Hicks Is Right.

A joint meeting of the Fire, Water and Light and Powes Committees, also representatives of the Utilities Commission, was held to discuss ways and means of improving Peterboro's lighting system. Those present were, Ald. Green, R. Hicks, W. H. Moore, K.C., Manager Howse, Ald. Weir, Ald. Stratton, Ald. Duncan, Ald. Johnston, Ald. Langford, Ald. Saunders, Ald. Dobbin, Mayor Buller and Fire Chief Howard. Mr. Hicks stated that the system of lighting the street of Peterboro is very ancient, in fact the globes have to be purchased from the scrap heap for factories have ceased to make them. The scarcity of money witholds the Commission from installing a new system just at present although Mr. Howse was making preparations for it.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels, or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system, is re-absorbed into blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver, and carry out all the constipated waste matter.

Labor Bureau.

The following letter was received from the Minister of Labor in reply to a request for the establishment of a government labor bureau,

Ottawa, Oct. 26th, 1914

Dear Sir,—

In reply to your letter of the 16th instant suggesting that a government labor bureau be established in your city, I may say that at the present time the government has no authority from parliament to establish such bureaus, and if it were determined to do something in that direction I don't feel that in the beginning we should establish them in the small places such as Peterborough.

Many seem to think that the existence of labor bureaus would create employment for the unemployed; that is a great mistake. A few such bureaus have been established by the governments, both of Quebec and Ontario, but they cannot be said to be a success; certain municipalities have also established such bureaus, with no more satisfactory results.

The experience in Canada is that the employers prefer to deal with private agencies. However, I have given considerable thought to this matter, and it has not be definitely decided. we may do something toward the establishment of such bureaus in the larger cities of the country, but it is not our intention at the present time to establish them in the smaller places.

Faithfully,
T. W. CROTHERS.

GERMANS MUST ABANDON EAST PRUSSIA SOON

Petrograd, Nov. 6, (via London.)—According to Russian information Wirballen is the only obstacle to a general advance of the whole Russian front into East Prussia. The Germans, it is declared, soon will be forced to evacuate, being threatened by a flanking movement of the Russians.

The backward movement of the remainder of the German line left this point without sufficient support.

Austrian troops are pushing through the passes of the Carpathians to support the Austrians who are falling back before the Russian advance in the region west of the San River. A correspondent at Lemberg states that these troops have been exhausted by the struggle through the snow-filled mountain passes and are incapable of a serious resistance.

The Germans Demoralized.

The Russian War Office today claims that the Russians are retreating precipitiously into East Prussia with the Russian armies harassing them at every point. The cold weather has apparently demoralized the Germans and many of them are reported surrendering without a fight. At several points the Russians have already penetrated the Prussian border, and some of the reports indicate that the German left wing has been isolated from the main body of the troops.

Military experts declare that the Germans cannot hope to hold East Prussia, and they are expected eventually to withdraw from there entirely concentrating on their secondary defence line of forts.

In Galicia it is announced that the Austrians continue to retreat. Heavy Russian columns have already crossed the San River and are pressing the Austrians for back in the general direction of Cracow.

Russians Attack German Forts.

The Berlin War Office today says: "Reports from the eastern front are that the Russians, in enormous force are attempting to break through the barrier forts, but without success. The severe cold weather and occasional snow-storms makes all progress on this front very slow. Vienna reports that the Przemysl forts are still holding out and that fighting is still in progress along the San River."

Russia's Victory is Complete--Austro-German Lines of Communication Cut off--Czar's Armies To Make a Dash for Berlin--Japs Want to Help

RUSSIA'S SPEEDY CONQUEST OF THE INVADERS WINS WORLD-WIDE PRAISE

Her Victories Will Materially Effect the Western War Theatre Cossack Raids Across the German Border Continues--The Allies are Holding Their Own Everywhere on the Aisne--Germans Reported to be Sending Reinforcements Into France and Belgium

London, Nov. 9.—Russia dominates the military situation today. The speed with which she had cleared the invaders from Russian Poland was totally unexpected and must necessarily have a great effect on the campaigns in the other war theatres.

Already the terror stricken inhabitants are reported fleeing from their prosperous Silesian homes despite the fact that General Von Hindenburg's strong army is between them and the advancing Russians. But something besides the might of the German arms may enable them to remain still and for some time in security for a significent message from Petrograd announces that Russia may defer the invasion of Germany until her historic mission toward the Bosphorus is accomplished.

This mission includes the complete subjection of Austro-Hungary as well as the invasion of Turvey and if this is the actual plan of the Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian Commander - in Chief, the Russians may be content to hold their present positions along the German border while making an aggressive war toward the south and east.

Persistent reports continue to reach London that the Germans are sending heavy reinforcements to their western lines. News of a contrary nature to the effect that the Germans are preparing to retreat through Belgium is also rifle, but the experts seem to place more credence on the reports of reinforcements and the coming work is looked forward as one of the most crucial of the war.

The Cossack raids continue across the German border and Berlin now admits that the Russians are well beyond the River Warthe. The Russian advance has been made over bad roads at the unprecedented rate of fourteen miles daily and the German rear has now passed Czernstochowa without stopping. The Russian line is well back of the Warthe, between Czernstochowa and Kaliez.

Another Petrograd report states that Czernstochowa is still held, as the last German position in Russia but that this is regarded as untenable.

The latest Paris official communication states that the invaders are concentrating their activity about Ypres without achieving any results. The allies are reported as holding their own everywhere on the Aisne, while to the northeast of Soissons, they have reached a new position on the Vregny plateau.

THE JAPANESE EMPEROR DONATES $25,000 TO A CHRISTIAN MISSION

Tokio, Nov. 9.—Emperor Yoshihito has donated 50,000 yen ($25,000), toward the foundation of St. Luke's International Hospital at Tokio, which will be conducted under the auspices of the Episcopal Church mission, represented by Dr. Rudolph Tensier

The announcement of the Imperial gift to a Christian institution which is without precedent here, was made by Count Okuma, the Japanese Premier at a luncheon today attended by fifty of the most prominent persons in Tokio. The British Ambassador Sir William Conyngham Greene, sent a letter and the American Ambassador, George W. Guthrie, delivered a speech.

The substantial Imperial support, it is stated here, assures the success of the undertaking which will cost about half a million dollars.

It is planned to make the establishment the most elaborate in the Far East, and it will mark a distinct advance in medical research work here.

Count Okuma, in making the announcement of the Emperor's gift, said that the Emperor was personally derisious of solidifying the International undertaking.

GERMANS REPORTED PREPARING FOR EXTENDED WINTER CAMPAIGN

London, Nov. 9.—A despatch from Copenhagen to the Central News says: "According to a Berlin telegram Germany is making great preparation for a winter campaign, with tents, sleighs and furs for its entire army."

Berlin, via Aia Amsterdam, Nov. 9. -The retirement of the German forces behind the Warthe river, is admitted in an official statement from the war office today, but there was nothing to indicate that concern is felt officially oper the continued advance of the Russians. Reports reaching here declare that many of the great estates in Posen province are being deserted. The border inhabitants are heading for the interior. Repores of some excitement in Vienna, following rumours of general Russian victories have reached here, but the war office declares the German and austrian armies are still intact, and conducting their strategical retreat in the best of order.

EMDEN FLEES FROM BRITISH MAN OF WAR

London, Nov. 9.—A Sydney, N. S. W. despatch to The Evening News, says that the skipper of the steamer Parott arriving from Singapore, reports that after the German cruiser Emden's success in sinking the Russian and French warships at Penang, the German warship and two store ships were overtaken by a British cruiser. The speedy Emden fled, but the British man-of-war sank one store ship and captured the other.

The Position of the German and Austrian Armies is Serious

Lines of Communication are Practically Cut. Czar's Staff May Now Choose Manner in Which the Campaign May Be Conducted in the Interests of Allied Armies in Both East and West. Turkis Treasury is Empty

LONDON, NOV. 9.—SO COMPLETE IS THE VICTORY OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY ALONG THE EAST PRUSSIAN AND GALICIAN FRONTIER THAT THE CZAR'S GENERAL STAFF MAY NOW CHOOSE THE MANNER IN WHICH THE CAMPAIGN IN THE INTERESTS OF THE ALLIED POWERS ARRANGED AGAINST GERMANY MAY BE CONDUCTED.

WITH AN ADVANCE CAVALRY PATROL IN THE PROVINCE OF POSEN AND WITH THE EAST PRUSSIAN FRONTIER CROSSED THE ARMY OF THE CZAR HAS ATTAINED ITS FULL MOVEMENTS. THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE LAST FORCE HAS BEEN MOVED HAS STARTLED THE MILITARY EXPERTS. IT IS DECLARED IN OFFICIAL CIRCLES THAT MOTOR SLEDS IN GREAT NUMBERS ARE NOW EN ROUTE TO THE FRONT FROM PETROGRAD, AND SHOULD IT BE DECIDED TO PRESS THE ADVANCE INTO GERMANY, THE RUSSIAN ARTILLERY WILL BE ABLE TO TRANSPORT ITS GUNS OVER THE SNOW WITH THE GREATEST POSSIBLE SPEED.

ADDITIONAL REPORTS BRING FRESH DETAILS OF THE GREAT RUSSIAN VICTORY, AND THE BRITISH WAR OFFICE EXPRESS THE GREATEST SATISFACTION AT THE SUCCESS OF THE RUSSIANS.

THE LINES OF COMMUNICATION OF THE AUSTRIAN AND GERMAN ARMIES ARE DECLARED TO HAVE BEEN PRACTICALLY CUT AND THE POSITION OF THE ENEMY IS NOW EXTREMELY SERIOUS.

WORD HAS REACHED HERE THAT THR TURKISH TREASURY IS EMPTY. THERE IS A GREAT SENTIMENT AGAINST THE WAR PARTY IN CONSTANTINOPLE IS ALSO EVIDENCED BY THE FACT THAT MARTIAL LAW HAS BEENDECLARED IN THAT CITY; MANY ARRESTS HAVE ALSO BEEN MADE. THE OFFENDERS HAVE BEEN IMMEDIATELY COURTMARTIALED AND EXECUTED.

GERMANS AGAIN TRY TO BREAK ALLIES' LINES, BUT ARE REPULSED

Foe's Losses are Tremendous as Usual--General Advance are Attempted After Night Attacks and Artillery Fire Allies Advancing Between Dixmude and the Lys, Japanese Troops May Assist Allies in Europe

Paris, Nov. 9.—The Germans have again resumed the offensive at Dixmude and Ypres. After a general slackening of their attack, following a week of constant artillery and night infantry charges, the forces of the Kaiser have returned to their task of endeavoring to pierce the allied lines at these points, with renewed vigor. The official communique issued by the war office today, declares the allied lines still hold at every point. The renewed attacks of the German forces have been held in check, and suffered heavy losses.

Paris, Nov. 9. A very heavy fog still prevails between Dixmude and Lys seriously interfering with the work of the artillery as well as that of the air scouts. Despite these handicaps, however, the allied forces have advanced slowly in this section, the communique states. The situation elsewhere is unchanged.

Tokio, Japan, Nov. 9. Since the fall of the German [illegible] at Tsing Tau, the question of Japan sending an army to Europe has begun to attract increasing attention. It is believed that such a move would be welcomed in France. The army would go by way of Canada.

THE BRITISH ARE OCCUPYING TURKISH PORTS

No Casualties When Indian Troops Landed at Port of Fao—is Terminus of Cable—Forts of Dardanelles Smashed by Long Range Gunfire

London, Nov. 9.—The British occupation of Turkish seaports in Asia Minor is proceeding almost without incident. Two forces of the Dardanelles are said to have been totally wrecked by the bombardment from the big guns of the allied fleet, and the Russian army from Caucasia is steadily advancing to attack Erzerum, the chief fortified place of Turkish Armenia. Reports of internal unrest in the Ottoman Empire come tonight from many quarters and trouble is brewing between Turkey and Greece owing to the sinking of a Greek steamer and the persecution of Greek Nationals in Asia Minor. ... ...

Athens, Nov. 9.—Reports reaching here declare that the Britith and French warships are bombarding and rapidly reducing the Turkish forts at the Aegean entrance of the Dardanelles. It is believed here that with the fall of these forts the allied fleets will turn their guns on the Trojan Plain and on the ancient city of Troy.

Take Cable Terminus.

The occupation af Fao, a port of Asiatic Turkey at the mouth of the Shat-el-Arab River, in the Persian Gulf and the terminus of a cable line to India, was announced in a statement from the Admiralty on Saturday night. The statement was to the effect that a military force from British India, covered by the sloop Odin, landed with a naval detachment after the Turkish guns had been silenced. There were no British casualties. ...

Greeks are Molested.

The British squadron has bombarded several points along the coast of Asia Minor. A Reuter's despatch from Athens stated that two destroyers shelled the telegraph station at Sarmoussak and Ayasmat. Another destroyer visited Aivali for the purpose of taking on board the British Consul there, but the Turks refused to permit this. At Aivali a Greek steamer flying the British flag, was sunk by the Turks, who are hastily fortifying the place under the direction of German officers. The Greeks of Smyrna are said to be fleeing in panic. The Greek schools in Constantinople are reported to have been seized by the authorities.

LORD MAYORS PARADE WAS VERY PATRIOTIC

Canadians, London Scottish, and Naval Brigade Get Splendid Ovation—All in Smartest Khaki—Enormous Crowds on the Streets Cheer the Volunteers

London, Nov. 9.—Shorn of its picturesque pageantry, but with its Imperial and military features unprecedented in a century, the Lord Mayor's parade made its way through the streets today in the first part of the ceremonial inaugurating Sir Charles Johnston as Lord Mayor of London in succession to Sis Thomas V. Bowater.

No English institution is more traditional than Lord Mayor's Day, but with the exception of the gaudily decorated state coaches of the Lord Mayor and other civic dignitaries, the parade today showed little color. The men were clad soberly in khaki and there was none of the brilliant display which usually distinguishes the procession

Great London Scottish

Enormous crowds gathered early to obtain places from which to see the men who are fighting England's battles on the continent. One of the most popular organizations in the parade consisted of several battalions of the Canadian troops now waiting in England their opportuniey to go to the front. Many of the London city regiments were represented by squads of men, and when a battalion of the London Scottish who recently distinguished themselves in France, swung along to the skirl of the pipes the crowd hailed them with great enthusiasm. But none of the military created more interest than did the veterans of the naval battalions who survived the fall of Antwerp.

Canadian troops who appeared in the procession, 300 in number, came from Salisbury Plain to London on Saturday afternoon, and were quartered for the week-end in barracks. Six men were selected from each battalion Lots were drawn for most of the men. The Alberta band preceded the Canadians, Col. Turner, the commanding officer, was mounted. The other officers included Colonel Hill, Lieut.-Col. Villers and Major Higinbottom.

BELGIAN PORT IS QUIETER.

Havre, Nov. 9.—The Belgian Government issued the following:

The situation at Nieuport is stationary, with slight advantage to us. On the remainder of the front almost complete quiet prepails.

The enemy still occupies on the right bank of the Yser, several points of support which have been cannonaded by our artillery. Dixmude has been bombarded by the enemy.

GERMANY PREPARES ANOTHER BIG ARMY TO GO TO ITS DOOM AGAINST ALLIES

Twelve Army Corps Failed at Dixmude and Ypres, and Still There are More to Follow--Germany Will Strain Every Nerve and Sinew at Coming Battle of Ypres--But There is no Abatement of Optimism in the French Army and Amongst the French People

Paris, Nov. 9.—The lull in the fighting in the environs of Dixmude and Ypres, in the best opinion here, is only the prelude of a further effort to which all the forces that the Germans can raise will be concentrated. The last attack, made with twelve army corps, failed. The next, it is expected, will be made by even more.

All advices from the front indicate this clearly. The reports that the Germans are gathering an important army at Ingelmunster, the affirmation that the battle against France must be decided at an early date, the orders given to the German Generals to break through before the end of the month and the various movements of troops observed by aviators in Belgium, all tend to show the purpose of the Germans.

All of the military writers here agree that the effort will be of the first importance to the Germans. If unsuccessful, it is contended here, it will be the last the Germans will be able to make as they will then recognize the necessity of falling back on a line a little more to the rear, which, as is their custom will have been fortified in advance with the greatest possible care. They will, therefore, strain every nerve and sinew in the battle of Ypres and the fighting is likely to be of a character even more intense than anything that has gone before. If the allies successfully resist the new onslaught, in the opinion of the military writers, the day when France will be freed of the invaders will be brought sensibly nearer.

The fortunes of the war in the west are becoming more and more bound up with the progress of the Russians according to the general opinion here. If the latter succeed in making a serious threat in Silesia within a short time, the Germans, it is anticipated, will have to withdraw troops from their western front and this will enable the allies to advance more quickly. There is apparently no abatement of the feeling of optimism reigning in both the French army and among the French people.

NORTH-WEST MOUNTED POLICE ANXIOUS FOR CHANCE AT FRONT

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The Royal Northwest Mounted Police have not given up hope that they will be allowed to go to the front. The announcement that there are to be four mounted infantry regiments has raised their hopes and they have asked to be allowed to send a couple of squadrons However, the Government feels that it cannot spare the mounted police from their duties at the present time in view of the large alien population in the West. The police force is now 1265 strong, the largest it has been for years. Col. Fortescue, Comptroller of the Mounted Police, returned today from a Western inspection trip. He reports that there are no signs of trouble amongst the Germans and Austrians of the West and the mounted police are in a position to handle any disturbance which might develop.

REPORTED THAT CANADIANS MAY GO TO THE FRONT AT ANY MOMENT

London, Nov. 9.—There are two views held about the Canadian contingents. One statement is that Lord Kitchener is anxious to hold the Canadians back until the spring when he can send a new army of hundreds of thousands to the continent and strike an overwhelming and final blow at Germany. The other view, and the one more generally accepted, is that in recognition of the urgent need of reinforcements, the Canadians may be ofthered to the front on a day's notice. It seems to be admitted by the authorities that the Canadians are first-class material and even now not unfit for active service.

BELGIANS MUST HELP BRITAIN BEAT GERMANS

London, Nov. 9.—Another call to the colors has been issued by the Belgian Government to all nationals. The summons this time is accompanied by an intimation that those not joining voluntarily may be "commandeered."

Under the latest decision, the Belgian Government has regard to the Belgian refugees. All Belgians under forty-five years of age who were previously members of the civil guard, are now allowed to enlist in the regular army, and all unmarried Belgians between eighteen and thirty not wishing to enlist as volunteers are informed that they "may be commandeered and their services employed in different work for the army."

The Belgian Government explains that the object of this order is to get all the able-bodied soldiers back to the front and to induce as many others as possible to join the army and secondly to relieve the British public of the burden of "providing for Belgians who ought to be helping in the struggle to dispossess the invaders."

MASSEY-HARRIS MAY RE-OPEN IN MONTH

Possibly Even Sooner; Directors of Firm are Discussing the Matter

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 9. The Massey-Harris Company which closed down the day after war was declared, throwing 1,200 men out of work here, will start up again in a few days, employing 500 men five days a [illegible]. Married men will be given the preference.

Vice-President Thomas Findlay, of the Massey-Harris Company told The News that he was unable to make any definite statement for a few days yet, regarding the re-opening of the Toronto plant. A board meeting of the company, however, is now in session, and it is understood that the question of re-opening the plant is under discussion.

From another source The News learn that operations will be resumed, at the latest, during the early part of December.

Evening

From the upland slopes I see the cows file by.
Lowing, great-chested, down the homeward trail.
By dusky fields and meadows shining pale
With moon-tipped dandelions; flickering high
A peevish night-hawk in the western sky
Beats up into the lucent solitudes,
Or drops with girding wing; the stilly woods
Grow dark and deep, and gloom mysteriously.
Cool night winds creep and whisper
in mine ear;
The homely cricket gossips at my feet;
From far off pools and wastes of reed I hear
With ebb and change the chanting frogs break sweet
In full Pandean chorus; one by one
Shine out the stars, and the great night comes on.

A REAL ESTATE YARN

Ex-Mayor Waugh of Winnipeg told a real estate yarn in a way that was as fetching as the story itself. A real estate agent, selling California city lots in the mid-West, entered a town when it appeared to be deserted. Discovering that the town was virtually paying its respects to one of its departed citizens, the agent, seeing no chance of doing business, joined himself to the company of mourners in the cemetery chapel. He entered as the clergyman was asking anyone who would like to say a word in memory of the deceased, let him now come forward. No one accepting the invitation, despite a repetition of the request, the real estate salesman rose and respectfully said: "Mr. Minister, as no one seems anxious to say a word for the deceased, and as I didn't know him when he was alive, perhaps you will permit me to tell you something about some California lots that I have to sell."

BUSINESS IN 2,000 B.C.

The Babylonians and Their Neighbors Knew of "Short Cuts"

The deciphering of the old Babylonian records of clay have revealed some very interesting facts with reference to business life two thousand years before Christ. In many cases these records relate to trade transactions, to business disputes, incident to the ordinary, every-day doings of the merchants, and to their troubles as to the title to property. There are even data to show how the Babylonians and their neighbors conducted their accounting systems. Nearly four thousand years ago these people had so far progressed in "business" that it was actually found necessary to enact special laws to deal with those who were trying the "short cuts" to wealth. The young man with "prospects," like his prototypes of today, was wont to utilize those prospects in negotiation with the professional money-lender. The banker of Babylon deposited regularly and issued his brick "checks" and bill of exchange, and the law intervened, as it does to-day, to uphold the rights of property. Most careful accounts of revenue and expenditure were kept. These show in many cases that investments in loans and purchases of land, as well as other profitable dealings, were a regular part of the fiscal activities.

BUILDING MATERIALS

Valuable Resources Being Gradually Opened up in Western Canada

With the exception of British Columbia there is very little building stone produced in Western Canada. This is due to two causes. First the rocks which underlie the developed portions of the Prairie Provinces are of comparatively recent age, and are, consequently, soft in character and weather rapidly; second, there are very few rock exposures in the settled portions of these provinces, except in the Rocky Mountains and the foot hills. In British Columbia there are large potential resources of building stone. They have, however, been developed only in certain localities on the Pacific Coast, and have been confined to Cretaceous sandstone and certain volcanic rocks, situated on Vancouver Island and adjacent islands. Varieties of marble are also quarried on Texada Island.

MANGELS FOR POULTRY

A Cheap Food to Grow Where There is Room

In the production of mangels as a poultry food, very small areas, or comparatively large ones, show a decided profit when given over to the culture of these beets. They have proved to be one of the best and one of the most popular of the roots used as poultry food, because of their ease of growth and of their very heavy yielding qualities. They grow to immense size, and will produce a good many tons of roots per acre on good soil, are easily stored with little expense, and are highly relished as a part of the daily ration throughout the winter months.

Crooked Billet

The Crooked Billet—an inn which still stands upon Tower Hill, as it has stood for generations past—boasts itself as the oldest wine and spirit house in London. There is every reason to believe that the inn dates from the time of Henry VIII. Certainly no London inn is more romantic in the matter of sliding panels and concealed doors, secret rooms, and underground passages—one of these reputedly leads to the Tower—and thick walls richly carved. There is a tradition that Oliver Cromwell once lived (or lodged) at the Crooked Billet.

NEW PAPER MATERIAL

Elephant Grass May Prove a Substitute For Wood Pulp

Almost every month of every year brings a report of the discovery in some distant part of the world of a new paper making material, which is expected to take the place of wood pulp. One of these discoveries was made in Uganda, Africa, and the Imperial Institute of London described in a report on the subject a series of experiments made with this new material, which is known as elephant grass. The marshlands of tropical Africa are thickly covered with this grass, which grows to a height of from six to ten feet and has proved a source of trouble and expense to agriculturists, as it grows rapidly after the shoots above ground have been burned or cut down. A sample of dried mature elephant grass was sent recently from Uganda to the Imperial Institute with the object of ascertaining its suitability for the manufacture of paper. The consignment, which weighed 177 pounds after being air dried, yielded a pulp of good color, composed of ultimate fibre rather longer than those of esparto grass and about the same length as those of bamboo pulp. It furnished a fairly good paper, which the British experts expect to be able to improve so as to make this material a suitable and profitable substitute for wood pulp.

GUARDING THE FORESTS

Dominion Government Tells Campers How to Build Fires

The regulations relating to the preservation of Dominion forest reserves are very stringent but probably necessary to prevent a big annual fire loss. In regard to the lighting of fires, it is provided that every person who makes or starts a fire in the open air for cooking or camping purposes shall: (a) Select a bare rock whereon to kindle such a fire wherever possible, and if there be no bare rock in the neighborhood, then a site on which there is the smallest quantity of vegetable matter, dead trees, branches, brushwood, dry leaves or resinous trees. (b) Clear the place in which he is about to light the fire by removing all vegetable matter, etc., from the soil within a radius of ten feet from the fire. (c) Exercise and observe every possible precaution to prevent such fire from spreading, and carefully extinguish the same before quitting the place. Severe penalties are provided for neglect of proper observation of these regulations.

OVER NINETY YEARS

But Canada's First Missionary Still Hale and Hearty

At a meeting of the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Society, at Charlottetown, P.E.I., Rev. Dr Scott Whittier of Melbourne, Australia, brought greetings from that distant city from Mrs. John Geddie, wife of Canada's first missionary, who was sent from Prince Edward Island to the New Hebrides. Mr. Whittier was surprised to learn that several Presbyterians in Eastern Canada had died through monotony. Considering Mrs. Geddie's experience and the fact that she is now over ninety years of age her mental faculties are still wonderfully alert.

The Elephant's Bath

The elephant enjoys a bath in the streams and pools of his native habitat, but his lordly brother in captivity finds no such comfort in the bath that from time to time is given him. A trainer thus describes the expensive operation:

It takes a week to carry out the process in every detail. It requires the services of three men and costs $300. This treatment is necessary for a show elephant and, if the animal is a valuable one, the proprietor of the show does not consider the money wasted.

The first step consists of going over the immense body with the best soap procurable; 150 pounds of soap is used, and the elephant's ears are especially attended to. When the soaping and drying are completed, the elephant is well sandpapered, and after that rubbed all over with the purest Indian oil until the mouse-gray skin is supple and glistening.

This last finishing touch is the most expensive part of the whole bath, as it means the application of about $150 worth of olive oil.

This Woman Saw Life

Mrs. Henry Vaughan, wife of a farmer living near Fort Coulonge, had never ridden on a train, had not seen a city for 40 years, and had never seen an electric car till she made a visit to Ottawa recently. On her way to the Capital she rode for the first time on a railway train, and upon arriving at her destination had her first trolley ride. Later in the day a friend took her for a spin in an automobile, and —wonder of wonders—before her return home she saw an airship flight

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest

Dark Skies

LEONA DALRYMPLE

THE weather grew very cold snow came. December was a month of wind and blizzards. Mary began to talk of Christmas and the present she wanted—a year's instruction with Casetti, the artist. I am not blind to what this means. It is merely a pandering to vanity. Mary has no talent whatever. If she paints a long while she may evolve anaemic snow scenes and postcard effects. Her training will never be worth the money spent on it.

About this time I began to cast about for a way to earn some extra money. If we were going to have any Christmas at all it was absolutely imperative that I find extra money.

Night Book-Keeping.

My opportunity came from the treasurer of a small manufacturing plant. They were just beginning, had a limited amount of capital, and but a few men. They desired to eliminate the expense of a book-keeper.

"If I could find a man or a girl who'd take an hour or so every night and run over them," said Foote, the superintendent, "that would be sufficient I'm sure."

"I'll do it," said I, and we settled the thing then and there.

I told Mary I would be an hour later every night.

"What time will you be?" asked Mary.

"Seven o'clock," I said curtly. "Maybe later."

"Oh, dear—why?"

"Simply because," I said. "I must earn more money if we're going to have any Christmas at all. I'm going to do extra work."

"Nobody need know it, need they?" asked Mary anxiously.

I turned and left the room.

I may be growing inordinately sensitive, but Mary is constantly hurting me. She had no thought of the extra hour or so of work—no thought of my sacrifice to make ends meet. Her first thought was a snobbish reluctance to let people guess we needed money.

Seventy-five per cent of the snobbishness in the world, I believe, germinates among women. Only the exceptional woman will admit that she can't afford a thing. The average man will own to it with a regretful grin.

A Hard Task.

At 6, therefore, every night, I went over to Foote's grimy factory office and fixed up his books. They were in a horrible mess. Everybody had taken a shot at them from the shipping clerk down to the office boy.

It was a worse grind of work than I had imagined. I began to lose weight, though I didn't mind it in the least. People, however, began to comment upon it, and that I did mind.

I expected Mary to wait until 7 o'clock for me and then we'd dine together. What man wouldn't expect the same? I found it was entirely too much to ask.

"I get so hungry," Mary said, "that my headaches. I simply have to eat."

"Very well, then," I said, "eat by all means. I don't mind." And mentally I added, "that is, I don't mind very much." For I did mind. After a day's work, and the added hour over Foote's incomprehensible book-keeping—after a walk through the cold and dusk—I did mind a lonely dinner. And more and more my mind went back to those days at home with mother. We had an old-fashioned supper at night, and such cheerful tales of the day. And mother would wait for dad no matter what the hour was. How we would listen for the sound of the carriage wheels. And mother would say: "Never be a doctor, son. Father works too hard."

I am blue and discouraged.

UNSEEN COMPANY ✱ ✱ ✱ By Michelson

BUZZ!—no, it's more like a purr. At least that buzz sounds just like the softest purr to occupants of a car who may be utterly absorbed in each other. Call it a kind of music. Call the green and yellow and blue of the scene a chromatic whirr. These two really see and hear nothing but themselves.

They don't know about that unseen passenger. Perhaps they haven't even become accustomed to the name that passenger owns.

When Love rides, the speedometer and the emergency brake are extremely important. But they don't get much attention. That's the odd thing that isn't odd at all.

Is Love reckless? Maybe not. But you remember that, by all accounts, he is BLIND.

Common Origins

People say "God bless me" after sneezing from the fact that in the days of the plague this terrible malady began with violent sneezings and other indications of cold. The exclamation was thus originally a prayer to be delivered from the plague.

The bow is first seen depicted on Egyptian monuments about 2000 B. C. Its form then did not differ greatly from that in use among boys at the present day. It was used in European warfare as late as 1600, and was deemed quite as effective as the arquebuses then employed.

The title of doctor was invented for the especial benefit of the learned Inerius of the 12th century. The title was conferred by the University of Bologna. The first doctor of medicine was William Gordenio, who received the title from the college at Asti in 1329.

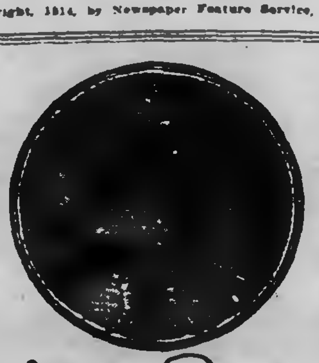
The Thanksgiving proclamation was originated by Francis Bernard, "Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay." It was issued Nov. 4, 1767, and the form was that which has been, in substance, adhered to ever since.

How Easy It Is for the Man

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

SHE killed herself three months ago—the pretty little woman I've known ever since I went to her wedding, when she was twenty and as sweet as a brier rose, as pretty as a pink and just as good as gold.

She was a good deal worried about the wedding—she was very much in love with the man she was going to marry, and the man she was going to marry was very much in love with her. And there was a secret in her life—such a poor, pitiful, forlorn, tragic secret.

I knew her when she was fifteen years old, and even then she was trying to forget the secret. She was the favorite pupil in the high school in her little village circle and she thought the principal of the school was the greatest man who ever lived. He was so wise and so kind and so patient. And then one dreadful day she suddenly awoke out of a foolish, wicked little dream, and found herself in dreadful disgrace.

And the mother who bore her, who was too busy being president of the Ladies' Aid Society and secretary of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions and alto in the choir and leader of the Boys' Club, to watch over her own simple-hearted, loving, trustful little girl—turned her out into the street.

Her Wages of Sin.

The school principal gave her just money enough to get away to the nearest big city, on condition that she didn't speak to any one before she went—and that she would keep his secret as well as her own. She came to the city—alone, in terrible pain, friendless—with just money enough to get a carriage and drive to a newspaper office where she had read of the name of a woman whom she thought might help her.

She was fifteen years old when this happened, and her hair was down in curls around her pale, terrified little face, and her dress did not come quite down to her shoe tops. But she found friends at the newspaper office and they took her to shelter and protection; and when she was able to be about again they found her work where she could keep her little boy with her—yes, she had a little boy, and she was nothing but a child herself. She worked, oh, so faithfully, to take care of him, but he died, poor little chap, and some people said they thought it was a good thing that he did.

But when she was twenty—oh, so old and so experienced and so lonely—one of the clerks in the office wanted her to marry him. And she said, "No." But the clerk in the office would not take no for an answer—he begged and begged.

He told the little girl that he could not live without her, that if she did not marry him he didn't care what became of him—and the little girl cried and was very much distressed. And so the man in the office asked her again.

She told him that she did love him—she loved him truly, deeply, as she had never loved before and would never love again—but that she could not marry any one. And the man of the office laughed and said that he would marry her, even if she was a convicted murderess.

The little girl cried and laughed—both together—and then she came and we talked it over together—she and I—the two who knew the reason why she thought she ought not to marry. She told me that she had tried to tell the man and he would not listen—and, oh, she loved him so and she would be so true and so good—and he wasn't a very clever man. He was just good and faithful and she loved him. She knew she could help him so much in his work and look after his health, for he was not very strong, and help him take care of his mother, who was an invalid.

And so they were married—and for fifteen years that woman was a faithful, devoted, loving wife.

She fairly made a new man of the kindly, easy-going fellow she had married. She had three children—two girls and a little boy—and they had a pretty home and they were all very happy. And then all at once things were different.

The man was cross and disagreeable; his wife thought at first that he was worried about business—for he had begun by this time to have quite a large business of his own which she had helped him to get. Then she thought he was ill and she cooked special little dishes for him and rang him up at his store and made him go out for long walks, and she persuaded him to join an athletic club to see if that wouldn't make him better.

But he grew worse and worse—moody, irritable, cold—until his wife was so worried about him she hardly knew what to do. Then one night after a revival meeting at the church to which the two belonged the husband told his wife what was the matter with him. He was worried about her, he said.

He couldn't bear to go to church, he said, or to pray, he felt so wicked. And finally the man told the woman that she would have to go away somewhere and leave him with the children—and that night the woman stole out of the house and went and drowned herself. That was three months ago.

His Happy Lot.

Yesterday I went past the little church where the man and woman used to go and the door was open and I stepped in to see what was going on.

And it was a wedding, and the bridegroom was the man whose wife had killed herself—and the bride was a young girl nineteen or twenty. Where had I seen her before? Oh, yes, I had sat behind her and the man at the theatre some six months ago and the man took great pains to tell me that he had just dropped in by accident and happened to find one of his Sunday school class in the seat next to him. And wasn't she the same girl I saw walking with the man out on a lonely country road—one Sunday, way last fall?

I wonder if she had anything to do with the man's sudden spell of conscience.

Of course—you couldn't blame the man—could you? They say he was rather a wild chap when he was young—his wife never believed any of those stories, though—but, of course, it's different with a man—isn't it?

I do hope whoever brings up these three motherless little children will be sure to teach them how very, very different it is—with a man.

I'm sure the gentle mother who died of grief and humiliation would want them to know.

In France it is believed that when a white pigeon settles upon a chimney the incident betokens speedy death for some inmate of the house.

It is a common belief in the rural districts of all countries that when hogs carry straw or sticks in their mouths rain will soon follow.

To kill a martin in all folklore is considered unlucky.

There is a superstition among many colored people in the South that to meet a frog is a lucky incident, indicating that the one thus favored is about to receive money from some unexpected quarter.

Among the country people of England there is an idea that to touch food which has been nibbled by a mouse will result in a sore throat.

In the New England states of this country there is a superstition that bees will never do well if the people of the house quarrel about them.

The Good Night Story

The Golden Mountain :: By Vernon Merry

IN the long ago there were two brothers who lived on adjoining farms, and one of them was very rich and one very poor. The rich brother never gave his poor brother any help, and was as mean as he could be whenever they met.

One day the poor brother went far out in to the great forest that lay at his door to gather firewood for the winter. He found some good wood near a mountain, back from the road. Soon he heard a voice shouting:

"Open Golden Mountain! Open thyself wide!"

The poor man looked and saw 12 men riding into the heart of the mountain that had opened at their command and closed behind them. After a while the mountain opened again, and the men came riding out with well filled bags on their saddles. When they had gone the poor man wondered what those men had brought away, so he determined to try the magic himself.

He shouted to the mountain, exactly as he had heard the 12 men shout, and the mountain opened and in he went. There, in the mountain's heart, he found great stores of gold and silver, and huge piles of diamonds and precious stones. Taking what he could carry in his hands he went out and called to the mountain to close itself again. Then he drove home, and his wife and family were very happy, because they knew they would never be hungry again.

The next time the poor man went to the mountain he borrowed from his rich brother a bushel measure in which to carry some gold away. When he returned the measure the rich brother looked carefully in it and found, between the meshes, a piece of gold. His suspicions were aroused, and he went to his poor brother and made him tell him where he had got the gold.

Then the rich brother went off himself, with the biggest measure that he had, to bring back all the gold and jewels he wanted. He said the right words when he wanted the mountain to open and let him in, but when he saw the gold and jewels in its heart they made him forget how to get out.

Then the 12 men came. "You're caught at last!" they cried. "You need not think that your visits passed unnoticed. The first time and the second time we could not catch you, but now, it is the third time, and you must pay the penalty."

The rich brother pleaded piteously, saying that it was his poor brother, but the 12 men would not believe him. They cut off his head. But the poor brother, who was now rich, lived happily, and never forgot to be kind to poor people.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Your Nose Lining Demands Strict Care

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

CHAUCER was the Canterbury poet who knew men and medicine better than the doctors of his day. He even anticipated the French physician of yester-week, who discovered that nose-piece for telephone service is superior and helpful to the mouthpiece. Thus:

"Full well she sang the service divine,
Entuned in her nose most sweetly."

This poesy is the first written word that calls physiological attention to the fact that the nose is an aid to a pure voice. When you hear musicians or doctors say: "He is singing through his nose," be up and at them. Everybody sings and talks through the nose. The so-called nasal twang, the stage-voice of Yankees and down-easterners is, after all, the voice of nasal obstruction.

Any interference in the nose or the "pharynx"—the back part of the nostril cavity—creates the same tonal troubles which a loose piano string does. The pure musical tones are broken up into discordant overtones.

The nose, as hilly an eruption as it is amid the valleys of the face, is a much neglected part of the human make-up. Commonly supposed to be ornamental, for smelling and for "catching cold," the nose is really an important structure. Like many other valuable, but undignified, articles in this world, as much respect must be paid to the nose as to other more popular organs.

Why Care Is Needed.

Defective ailments in their assault upon the nose, usually attack the red, membranous interior. The inside of the nose is like a rumpled carpet, namely, full of folds. Thus nature presents a surface as large as Dido's cowhide for the foundation of Carthage. Frigid winds are thus forced to blow over a large area of warmed nasal lining before they here leave this scarlet maze to purify the lungs. Ere this, the Arctic air has become as balmy as a June zephyr. The interminable meshes of "mucous" membrane in the nose have heated it.

When you consult a nose specialist about obstructed nostrils—this may be due to chronic colds, cysts, a broken partition or other irritation—do not call him a "nosologist." Nosology is an ancient medical term. It means classification of diseases as you would animals into varieties, species and genera. Therefore, all nosologists are not nasal experts.

Strange as it seems, the teeth are cleaned several times a day, yet the nose, which takes in more dirt and dust and is exposed all the time, is rarely washed.

Oils and oily sprays, whether harmlessly mild or saturated with antiseptics, should not be used in the nostrils and nasal caverns. The habit of using an oil atomiser, advised by doctors until a year or so ago, has been discovered to coddle the membranes too much. Disinfecting nasal sprays are now taboo.

Method Prescribed.

The nose should be rinsed out and cleaned at least once or twice a week. It is true that even this is overdone at times. When a sound nose—one that warms the incoming air, allows you to recognize odors and is open for good breathing—is irrigated or washed out every day, even with salt water, the lining becomes flabby and soggy. Injury, of course, follows.

When your voice has a "nasal tone" to it, one of several troubles is present:

1—An inflamed "mucous" lining.
2—A fresh "cold."
3—Swollen or enlarged "turbinates."
4—The middle partition pushed too far into one nostril.
5—"Mucus" cysts—little bladders of mucus; bags that fill the cavity.
6—A swollen "pharynx" or lining.

The maroon lining of the nostrils is always at work "oiling" its own surface with a thin gelatin-like fluid called "mucus." Most of the inner membranes of the body manufacture this "mucus." Hence they are called mucous membranes.

This mucus not only helps to wash off the dust and dirt which are always pestering your nose, but it mixes with cold air and helps quickly to warm it to blood heat.

Fresh air, sunlight, cold applications to the outside of the nose, cold water washes and the removal of all the clogging internal strangers, means health to the whole body. When you suspect such trouble in the nose, when you smell a rat, as it were, do not hold your nose to the household grindstone, but hie you to your friendly Galen. Thus will you keep the breath of life, which God breathed into Adam's nostrils, pure and undefiled in your lungs.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have at last decided to come to you for your advice upon a subject which I have been trying to consider for myself for some time now.

I am keeping company with a very nice young man whom I think a lot of. I have also a very dear friend who lives in another city. Do you think it is wrong of me to keep in correspondence with him, and also to receive presents from him?

I have told him that he wasn't to send me any thing more, but he still persists in sending me presents. What do you think is best for me to do?

ISOBEL.

WHAT do you mean, Isobel, when you say you are "keeping company" with a man?

Are you engaged to him, and do you expect to keep your engagement? If you are, then you certainly ought not to keep up your correspondence with your other friend without the consent of your fiance.

The young man in another city may be just a friend; in that case [illegible] reason why you should hurt his feelings for a foolish idea.

Why don't you talk the whole thing over with your real sweetheart, and then do what he says is best? It seems to me that's the sensible way out of the difficulty.

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

COOKED cucumbers taste better than they sound. Also they are becoming more popular as a table delicacy. Persons who have never been able to eat raw cucumbers without suffering the pangs of indigestion, enjoy them cooked with no fear of unpleasant after effects.

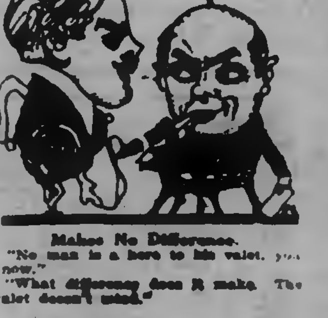
One of the simplest ways to cook them is to cut lengthwise in quarters, dip them in batter, and fry in deep fat until they are a delicate brown.

Another simple way of preparing them is to pare, cut in lengthwise strips and steam them over boiling water until they are tender, then serve with Hollandaise sauce. To make this most delicious sauce, which is useful to serve with many vegetables, cream half a cup of butter and add, one at a time, the yolks of two eggs, a pinch of salt, a dash of pepper and a fourth of a cup of boiling water. Cook this mixture over hot water, stirring until it thickens, then add a tablespoonful of lemon juice, mix well, and pour over the cucumbers.

Scalloped cucumbers make an agreeable vegetable entree. Three large cucumbers pared and cut in cubes will be enough for a family of four. Arrange layers of the cucumbers in a buttered baking dish and on each layer sprinkle salt and pepper, and a little finely chopped onion. When the dish is filled, pour a cup of milk over the whole and cover the top with bread crumbs, buttered and seasoned, and bake in a hot oven. Chicken soup stock or white sauce may be substituted for the milk.

Plain boiled cucumbers are good, if well cooked. There is one thing to remember in cooking cucumbers, and that is don't let them get so soft they will be mushy.

Boiled cucumbers should be peeled and quartered, and cooked in boiling salted water for 15 minutes. They may be served simply with drawn butter or with a cream sauce on toast, the same as asparagus. If you wish a more delicate dish, boil the cucumbers till they are tender, and then bake in cream sauce, dotting the top of the dish with bread crumbs.



Makes No Difference.

"What difference does it make. The valet doesn't count."

JAPANESE CAPTURED TSING-TAU BY CHARGE AT POINT OF BAYONET

Tokio, Nov. 8.—Tokio is celebrating today the fall of the German fortress at Tsing-tau after an actual siege of a few days more than three weeks. It was in the middle of September that the real attack began, although the preparations for the taking of the German stronghold in Asia were begun immediately war was declared by Japan on August 23. Crowds collected everywhere today and many processions were formed, the enthusiastic people dragging about with them floats decorated with flowers as a symbol of victory. Japanese and British flags are floating everywhere throughout the city.

Final and Successful Attack.

The final and successful attack on Tsing-Tau began shortly after midnight Friday morning, and the first inroad by the allied forces, which was largely instrumental in the fall of the place, was the taking of the middle fort of the first line of defence. This was achieved by a brilliant charge of infantry and engineers, led by Gen. Yoshimi Yamada.

Simultaneously with the charge of Gen. Yamada others were made, the troops dashing forward with cries of "Banzai" (Hurrah). Taitungchen, the fortification on the east, fell at 5.35 in the morning. Chungchiawa was captured soon thereafter, with its two heavy cannon.

A detachment of the first line occupied the Iltis, Bismarck and Moltke forts at seven in the morning, and then the enemy hoisted the white flag on the weather astronomical station adjoining the Governor's office. Another white flag was hoisted on the coast forts at the mouth of the Haipo at 3 o'clock.

Vice-Minister of the Navy Suzuki, speaking today of the future of Tsing-Tau, said:

"While the European war continues Tsing-Tau will be administered by Japan. At the conclusion of the war Japan will open negotiations with China."

Further details of the Tsing-Tau fighting reaching Tokio show that the Germans made desperate efforts to repair the damages to their batteries, but without success. Japanese shells killed the men at work and demolished the batteries anew. Projectiles from Japanese warships started fires in several streets of the city, certain portions of which were barred.

The stopping of the smuggling of provisions along the Lingshan coast is thought to have hastened the capitulation of the German stronghold.

Army Chaplain's Experiences

In a letter from an army chaplain at the front, which has been published in The Morning Post, he says:

"I have been able to do a fair amount of spiritual work. It is remarkable how at such times as this men look for it. If ever human nature showed that at the bottom the consciousness of God is in it, it is at times like this, when men cannot tell what the day will bring. I have been able to hold communion, and wish you could see the officers and men in big circles, not such ones as one sees in times of peace, bue hundreds. And round the camp fire where they can be lighted, we hold evening service and sing hymns, "Abide With Me," "Lead Kindly Light", and "Holy Father in Thy Mercy," which goes so well to "Arth Thou Weary,"—the real tune they do not know. Well, a great deal of good is done, and the desire and response of all shows that the work done has been good. Our men are wonderful, but the Germans—well, if the way they carry on here is any criterion of how they will carry on if they got to England, God help us, for no one else could. England is waking up, I see, but the full extent of the need cannot be driven home too deeply."

The Game of War

The British naval disaster off the coast of Chile, when three warships were defeated by five German vessels is, so far, the first important naval engagement outside of home waters since the beginning of the war, says The Montreal Mail. The success of the Germans can fairly be attributed to the superior communication they have maintained since the war broke out.

The game of war consists largely in manoeuvring until you catch the enemy at a numerical disadvantage. That appears to be what the Germans did in this case. Admiral Craddock, with three ships, had rounded the Horn in search of German cruisers which ahd been making raids on British commerce. The Germao admiral was informed by wireless from spies and advance posts of his approach and, concentrating his strength, lay in wait for him. The disaster resulted. No reflection has been cast upon the bravery of the British seamen; the reflection seems to be on the methods of communication which permitted the Germans to ambush the British ships.

Germany is efficient in nothing more surely than in her mastery of the wireless. From her station at Sayville, on the Atlantic coast of the United States, she has communication direct with a point near Berlin. German spies captured in England invariably are found with wireless outfits. An alleged spy just captured at Halifax is reported to have had a wireless outfit in his rooms. By means of a private code, these spies are able to communicate to all ships at sea the sailing of British velsels, thus delivering the British ships into the hands of the Germans wherever the latter are in sufficient strengta to take or destroy them.

Reports from South America make it plain that scouting by wireless on the part of the Germans was what delivered Admiral Craddock into their hands. The system has been built up by years of effort in peaceful times when future enemies were disarmed by pacifist propoganda. Now the Germans are in a position to reap where they have sown, and the perils of British ships at sea are measurably increased.

This aspect of the situation is no doubt engaging the attention of the British Admiralty at the present time. Under the circumstances which have existed the Germans have been somewhat in the position of a man with keen sight fighting a blind man. Besides making use of their efficient naval wireless system, the Germans have honeycombed most of the world with their secret service department, and the British Admiralty must take these factors into account if future disasters are to be avoided.

Lumbago's Misery Ceases Every Aching Muscle Cured

JUST RUB ON OLD-TIME "NERVILINE."

Not necessary to drug inside!

That awful stiffness that makes you yelp worse than a kicked dog will be cured—cured for a certainty, and quickly, too, if you just rub on Nerviline.

Rub Nerviline right into the sore spot, rub lots of it over those tortured muscles, do this and the pain will go. You see Nerviline is thin, not oily. Therefore it sinks in, it penetrates through the tissues, it gets right to those stiff, sore muscles and irritated nerves that make you dance with pain.

You'll get almost instant relief from muscle soreness, stiffness, aching joints, lameness or rheumatism by rubbing with Nerviline. It's soothing liniment, and doesn't blister, doesn't burn or even stain the skin.

It's the most harmless cure in the world for Lumbago, Back Strain or Sciatica. It takes away the ache at once and ends your misery quickly.

Now quit complaining—don't suffer another day—Nerviline, that good, soothing old-time liniment will limber you up mighty quick. Get busy to-day, the large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, the trial size costs but 25c. Any dealer anywhere can supply Nerviline.

Help to Re-establish Prosperity

It is beginning to be recognized throughout the country ehat the man who thinks he is helping himself by hoarding his cash, or postponing the payment of his current accounts is altogether mistaken. So far from any qenefit accruing, he is injuring himself as well as the whole business structure; because, even if he is not in active business and has no business investments, he is more or less dependent on some line of business for what he has, and he must necessarily feel his share of the business slump.

It is the main contention of most speakert and writers who advocate reforms in various directions, greater mobility in business of all sorts, that at a time when war stalks through Europe, dislocating business in many countries and profoundly affecting commerce in all parts of the world, working capital is needed in order that industrial as well as commercial lines may be maintained on a basis approaching the normal. As we have emphasized once or twice the individual consumer holds for the most part the key to the situation. He can contribute generously towards keeping the wheels of industry tuening by discharging his obligations promptly, and he will contribute proportionately to his own well being by meeting his responsibilities in this respect. The more business suffers by becoming stagnant because of neglect of duty on the part of the consumer the more the consumer himself will suffer as a part of the business structure, a member of the business community.

If the war has taught anything it has taught that nations as well as individuals cannot live entirely by themselves. The individual citizen is mistaken if he thinks he can do this. He cannot. Therefore it is up to him to adopt and pursue a practical co-operative spirit in helping business to get back on a normal basis for his own individual good as well as for that of the business community in which he lives.

These matters should be kept in mind by every individual who has an interest in the re-establishment of business ou a sound basis. And, this includes nearly every individual, whether he has a business of his own or is dependent upon the business of somebody else.

Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a new scientific preparation put up into tablet or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles.

There is no connection between the lungs and the stomach.

Suppose something were wrong with your stomach—say indigestion, or ulceration—would you think of taking some medicine which went—not to your stomach, but to your lungs? Certainly not!

Why then, when your lungs and chest are affected, should you dose your stomach—an absolutely separate organ—with medicine? Is it not far better to treat the ailing organ direct?

Peps provide a direct treatment for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all lung, chest and throat troubles. Peps contain highly medicinal essences and pine extracts condensed into tablet form. You put a Pep on your tongue, and as it slowly dissolves, these volatile essences turn into vapor. You BREATHE the remedy to your sore ailing lungs direct—not swallow it to your stomach, which is not ailing. (See diagram.) The healing fumes, thus breathed down, bathe the delicate, inflamed membranes of your breathing-tubes and pass right on to the tiny passages of the lungs—a course no liquid or solid medicine could possibly take.

Peps fumes are healing and antiseptic. They heal sore tissue and kill disease germs. Peps bring pine-forest fumes to your home, instead of you going to the pine forest!

For that cold, that night cough, that touch of bronchitis, don't dose your stomach! The trouble lies in your lungs. Peps go to the lungs direct and will cure you.

BRITISH INFLUENCE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Intermarriage Lessens Hate—English Literature Over-runs the Country

Mr. B. Ryan, of East London, South Africa reports that a great deal of intermarrying is taking place between Briton and Boers, that the country is being over-run by light literature all of which is published in English and the children become absolutely English. While the Dutch do not like the other race at the present time the country is surely becoming British in spite of Boer prejudice and customs.

Mr. Ryan then explained why South Africa was bound to be British to the end. Although the Government had spent a million and a half pounds on a magnificent Parliament building at Pretoria, evidently with the object of keeping it in the old Transvaal capital, Johannesburg with her 300,000 people and the Rand with its gold production of $300,000,000 per annum, will be in connection with the British influence in Cape Colony the ever-growing predominating power in the South African Confederation.

FOREST RESERVES

Thirty-five Thousand Eight Hundred Square Miles of Reservation

Over ten thousand five hundred square miles were added recently to the existing area of Dominion Forest Reserves, making a total of over thirty-five thousand eight hundred square miles of reserved forest land in the Western Provinces under Dominion jurisdiction. Of this reserved area, three thousand seven hundred and eighty-two square miles are found in Alberta, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two square miles in Saskatchewan and four thousand one hundred and eight square miles in Manitoba. Over two-thirds of the total area is found in Alberta, owing to the fact that practically all the eastern slope of the Rockies has been set apart as a forest reserve, not only to perpetuate the supply of timber, but to preserve and equalize the flow of the large prairie rivers which have their source in this reserved area.

These western reserves are created by the Dominion Government as cited in the Act "for the maintenance, protection and reproduction of the timber growing thereon, or which may hereafter grow thereon, for the conversation of the minerals and the protection of the animals, birds, and fish therein, and for the maintenance of conditions favorable to a continuous water supply." To accomplish these ends the reserves must first be protected from fire, and under the direction of technical foresters and supervisors, fire-lines are being cut or ploughed; trails are being cut, telephone lines and lookout stations installed, "caches" of tools distributed in accessible places throughout the reserves, and efficient patrols established in accessible places throughout the reserves, and efficient patrols established.

Nor is the timber so protected allowed to die of old age. The foresters determine at what diameter in each section the maximum production is attained and when the trees reach this size, they are granted free or for a nominal sum to homesteaders who apply to the forest officials for cutting permits. Care is taken not to allow over-cutting, for it is the forester's aim to crop the forest perpetually and at the same time increase its producing capacity by proper methods of management. Thus, by this policy of forest reservation, instead of denuded hillsides, drifting sand and barren rocks and muskegs, these areas will in time be covered with great tracts of forest owned by the people and supplying their wants, not only now but to all future time, when countries with less foresight will be in the throes of a timber famine.

THE NEW WELLAND

Twenty-five Miles Long With a Fall of 325 Feet

As finally located the enlarged Welland ship canal will conform closely to the route of the present canal from Lake Erie to Allanburg, a point about midway between Lakes Erie and Ontario. From Allanburg an entirely new location will be followed. This will cross the present canal twice, finally reaching Lake Ontario at the foot of Ten Mile Creek—three miles east of the present terminus at Port Dalhousie. The total length will be 25 miles. The fall of 325½ feet will be accomplished by seven locks, each having a lift of 46½ feet. Each lock will be 800 feet long and 80 feet wide, with a minimum depth of water over miter sills of 30 feet. The canal will be 200 feet wide at the bottom, designed for a depth of 30 feet, but excavated for only 25 feet for the present. This will permit dredging out the remaining 5 feet at any future time. At Port Colborne, the Lake Erie terminus, a new breakwater will be built on the west side of the entrance to insure quiet water in the harbor during storms, the present breakwater being insufficient for the purpose. The new breakwater will consist of an immense rubble mound of stone from the excavation north of Port Colborne, and will terminate in a timber-and-concrete headblock located some 2,000 feet farther out in the lake than the present breakwater.

The First Regatta

June 23 was the date of the first British regatta, held between Westminster Bridge and Ranelagh in 1775, to which Dr. Johnson appears to have taken Mrs. Thrale. It was suggested by Lady Montague's description of a regatta she had witnessed in Venice. The only rowing contest was "a race of wager-boats," after which a procession of boats manned by red, [illegible], and blue oarsmen rowed from Westminster to Ranelagh, where various festivities followed in a Temple of Neptune. Some of the 2000 [illegible] attended seem, says the "[illegible] Gazette," to have supped "not wisely but too well," for on the return journey "many accidents occurred," and seven persons were drowned.

ALLIES ARE DRIVING FOE OUT OF FRANCE

Between Armentieres and the Canal of La Bassee, the British army, on its side, repulsed a violent attack on Neuvchapelle. Between the Canal of La Bassee and Arras, as well as between Arras, and the Oise, several counter attacks delivered by night and by day, havebeen checked. We even made some slight progress in the region of Germelles and to the south of Aix-Noulette.

"On the centre, in the region of Vailly, we continued during the day of yesterday to recapture ground previously lost by us. In the Argonne fresh attacks on the part of the enemy were repulsed, and at the end of the day our troops made progress at several points.

Two Villages Taken

To the northeast of Verdun we have taken possession of the Villages of Haucourt and of Nogeville

In the wooded region along the heights of the Meuse, southeast of Verdun, and in the forest of Apremont southeast of St. Mihiel, the offensive movements of the enemy failed. Some trenches in the vicinity of Saint Rem, were carried by our troops.

"On our right wing, the attacks of the Germans on the advanced positions of the Grand Couronne of Nancy (the circle of fortified positions surrounding Nancy), resulted in perceptible losses for the enemy. A surprise attack undertaken by the enemy against the heightt which dominate Mount Sainte Marie, resulted in complete failure

No Change on the Yser.

The following Belgium official communication was given out at Havre today:

"The situation on the Yser shows no change. The enemy has posts on the left bank of the River, but has contented himself with a feeble artillery fire directed against the roads in the environs of Rams Capelle.

"The defeats in Russian Poland seem to have resulted in the retreat of portions of the enemy's troops in Belgium. There has been reported particularly, in this connection, the departure toward the east of a division of 5000 men, who have been seen marching from Bruges toward Ghent. Furthermore, five troop trains left Brussels recently, going in the direction of Louvain."

It is urged by the British observers that if Germany can hold entrenched positions along the River Warthe in Russian Poland, she may be able to throw much needed men into Belgium but on the other hand, if it is true that the Russians have occupied Kolo on this river, the theory is advanced that the defensive value of the stream is to an extent lessened and it may require every man that Emperor William now has there if Germany hopes to put up a stand along the Warthe to rival the resistance shown along the Aisne.

Working Closely Together.

A more frequent exchange of messages between General Joffre, the French commander-in-chief and Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, would seem to indicate how closely the allies are tempting to make their movements consistent in both theatres.

No noteworthy change in France or Belgium was reported during the forenoon. The latest British official statement mentioned a decreased vigor in the German attacks in West Flanders, while the French communication said the battle was as violent as ever. The allies are reported as driving forward in the vicinity of Dixmude and were at last accounts taking the offensive south and east of Ypres.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, or half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! See if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver or bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach is sour, breath bad or has stomach ache diarrhora, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the constipated poison undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies children of all ages and for grown-ups on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" then see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Company.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

FRANK ODELL

Frank G. Odell, editor of a farm magazine, has been chosen secretary of the American Rural Credit Association. The purpose of the society is to float long-time loans on farm lands as a means of enabling men to acquire farms. He says there are a hundred millions in European banks that are available.

CRICKET IN ENGLAND

Some Sarcastic Comment by a Lover of Amateur Sport

When I come across a man who decries the glorious game of cricket, writes George Robey in "Answers," the warlike spirit of my gladitorial forefathers inspires me, and I want to slay him.

I don't say that first class cricket is an ideal game from the spectator's point of view; but, after all, it was fashioned for the players, not for idle onlookers, and I don't think I have met a practical player who has anything to say against the present condition of the game.

But, of course, if it is necessary that cricket be brought up or down to the business level of Association football; that the gentlemen and sportsmen who govern the game are to throw aside the old traditions and become keen seekers of dividends; and that "gates" are to be secured at any price, then the game must be forced upon the public.

First of all, the game must be discouraged at our schools and on our open spaces, because, once cricket is learned by the younger generation and "the seed is sown," I know of nothing which will turn a player into a spectator, and so secure gates.

But, before doing this, we must, at least, provide sport worthy of good patronage. Three-day matches are long-drawn-out affairs, and only made necessary by the fact that skill is opposed to skill. But if big "gates" are necessary, science is not wanted; the enjoyment of those who actually play is a something unworthy of consideration.

Excitement must dominate cricket completely; and so it will be necessary to curtail the time spent on a match and crowd into, say, two hours, an International game, or a County Championship fixture.

We must condense the game by giving each man on the side an innings of five minutes, both sides fielding.

The eleven scoring the greater number of runs in the allotted period, would, of course, be declared the winners. At all matches played in fine weather a military band should be in attendance. I fancy I can see C. B. Fry and Jack Hobbs endeavoring to take a ball off the middle stump and place it to leg when a selection of "rag-time" is given.

I have always understood that "money talks;" so if we desire absolute success in cricket from the spectacular point of view we must talk and think in thousands, as they do in the more refined world of football.

But—and a very big "but"— why do we want to make the game more attractive to the spectator? Cricket is a game, and not a business; and as a glorious branch of sport I know of nothing so full of pleasure.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties — must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

TO PRESERVE EGGS

Have your preservative ready to receive the fresh eggs as you get them.

If you are in doubt as to the freshness of the eggs, candle them, or see whether they sink when placed in a dish of fresh water. If an egg sinks, it is reasonably fresh.

Do not preserve dirty eggs or eggs that have been washed. Washed eggs will not keep, because the shell has been moistened; and dirty eggs will become tainted in flavor.

Do not use the same liquid preservative more than one year.

Infertile eggs are better than fertile eggs for preserving.

Do not leave eggs in the preservative longer than one year.

Eggs that are in good condition when removed from water glass solution will usually remain good for two weeks.

Water glass eggs are practically as good as fresh eggs for all cooking purposes. If it is desired to boil them, prick a small hole through the large end of the shell before placing them in the water. The pores of the shell have been sealed by the water glass solution, and without the pinhole the expanding air within the shell would burst it.

SCALED NEW MOUNTAIN

Two Ladies Climbed Peak in Canadian Rockies Never Before Visited

During a mountain climbing trip in the Southern Selkirks Mrs. E. T. Parsons, of Berkeley, and Miss Lulie Nettleton, of Seattle, traversed much unmapped country and ascended one of the highest peaks of that region.

Leaving Invermere, B.C., the party consisting of five persons, went to the head of Horse Thief Creek, forty miles in. The first ascent of the unmapped peak took nine hours from the base camp. The route lay over the Starbird glacier and embraced steep, icy slopes and interesting rock-work. The party was roped in alpine fashion, as the snow slope below the summit required the greatest care.

On the summit ice axes were planted and the mountain was christened Mount Bruce, in honor of Robert Randolph Bruce, of Wilmer, B.C.

The view from the summit is described as wonderful. Glaciers of stupendous sizes and hundreds of peaks, varying from 9,000 feet altitude to 11,000 or 12,000 feet. Most of them are unnamed and unclimbed. Allowing for corrections, the aneroid reading gave the altitude of Mount Bruce as 11,500 feet.

An attempt was made upon Mount Jumbo from a base camp below the terminal moraine, of the Jumbo glacier. The party came within 500 feet of the summit, the final section of the route lying plainly before them when a storm broke loose and they were obliged to retreat to camp.

Mr. Howard Palmer, the well known mountaineer, has estimated that there are no fewer than 40 peaks in the Selkirk Mountains, whose altitude exceeds 10,000 feet.

WINE MAKES HENS LAY

An Ancient Bit of Knowledge Rediscovered by French Professor

M. Joubert, professor of the Agricultural College at Fontainebleau, announced to the agricultural world some time ago that, after exhaustive experiments, he had at last discovered something that would make hens lay. This something proved to be wine, which was given to the fowls daily, whereupon they laid many more eggs than hens not so treated. Peculiarly enough, it is not a new idea, for the earliest poultry chronicler, "Columella," about the first century, recommended wine for fattening fowls.

Doubtless many aged country folks can remember how common it was in the younger days to give beer to hens to encourage them to lay. Many old-time fanciers made it a practice to give their prize fowls wine-soaked pills just before they were judged to brighten up the birds, so that they would show off their good points. One fancier, not so many years ago, at a show, inadvertently gave his bantams too many of these pills, and the poultry judge had comfortably finished his task of judging the winners ere this fancier's exhibit "came-to."

WATERING THE STOCK

Four Rules That It Will Pay to Know and Observe

An unlimited supply of good pure water is essential to the health of all animals used for farm purposes. Pools formed from surface drainage where large quantities of organic matter are carried into them, and wells or pools contiguous to farmyards or manure heaps are especially to be avoided. Water from good tanks or wells, running streams, and properly-constructed pools is usually good, but too much care cannot be taken in reference to this matter. The quantity of water is also of importance. No animal will drink too much if watered sufficiently often, hence there is no necessity for limiting the supply except when the animal has been deprived of water for too long a time. Animals at rest should be given water at least three times a day in summer, and twice a day in winter, if they cannot have free access to it at all times. There is a common error that horses should not be watered when warm. An animal is never too warm to be watered if not more than two gallons be given. A large quantity of water will injure an animal at any time, but especially is this so when he is very warm or much fatigued.

The watering of animals immediately after feeding, so frequently practised, is not in harmony with the physiology of digestion. The stomach of a horse is very small in proportion to his size and the quantity of food he consumes, hence only a small amount of water can remain in the stomach, and if given immediately after feeding undigested food must of necessity be carried with it in its passage through the stomach into the intestines. Another reason why animals should not be watered immediately after feeding is that the digestion begins only when the food has been warmed to a temperature of about 90 degrees; therefore if a large quantity of cold water be taken with the food the temperature of the contents of the stomach must be lowered, and consequently digestion must be retarded.

Copper Jumps

"In The Land of Poco Tiempo"

Production of Copper in New Mexico Jumped from 1430 Tons in 1911 to 26,000 Tons in 1913

THE SIGNIFICANCE of this is that people are coming to realize that "The Land of Afterwhile" is full of opportunity and that now—having been asleep for 300 years—it is awakening to the fact that somebody is going to make enormous sums of money down there, right away!

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

From Doolan to Dolan to Dooin

Since Jennings, McGraw and the Baltimore crew
Invented the great inside game,
And Covaleski, Schultz and the Cubans
Made the box scorer's fingers feel lame,
Never a thing that has happened
Gets the cheers where the fans are a-stewin'
Like the combine that doubles 'em up at the plate,
"From Doolan-to-Dolan-to-Dooin."

What could the Cubs do, with the Phils one ahead,
To try and shove over the tally
That'd tie up the game in the last of the ninth
And prepare for a tenth-inning rally?
(Say, there's one out and two on the bases.)
From the plate, where his big average grew in,
Zim slams one toward short—and it's all over quick—
"From Doolan-to-Dolan-to-Dooin."

Sure, 'tis the Harps that hallow the diamond
As they never did old Tara's halls;
They have tightened up things 'till you never get on
Except through a base on balls.
That "Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance" thing
Sounded good when trouble was brewin',
But it wasn't a sweet sounding mouthful,
"Doolan-to-Dolan-to-Dooin."

THE POOR MAN'S BANK

An Institution Which Might Advantageously be Copied in Canada

The Atlanta Loan and Savings Company is the official title of an institution in the Georgia city which everyone calls "The Poor Man's Bank."

W. W. WHITE

It was founded by Mr. W. W. White as a protest against the loan shark and lives up to its name in spirit and act. Its basis of credit is honesty and labor, the only capital a poor man has. To draw money from this bank all the borrower needs do is to get three reputable persons to endorse him as honest and industrious. On this security "the poor man's bank" will advance money for a term of 52 weeks on dollar-a-week payments. Eight per cent. interest is charged. Each borrower, whether his loan be large or small, subscribes for one or more shares of stock, according to the amount of his loan. This stock is hypothecated to secure the loan. At the end of the 52-week term the borrower may surrender his stock and cancel his note or he may re-invest it in bank stock. In its first year it made 1,115 loans for a total of $150,552, and it has practically put the loan shark out of business.

YUKON TIMBER WASTED

Immense Fire Damage Caused by Careless Travellers

Writing from the Yukon a gentleman interested in the conservation of natural resources, said: "I know of no other place in Canada where our limited area of timber should be so zealously guarded as in the Yukon. We have many uses for wood here, whereas it is not so necessary in other parts of Canada. We must depend entirely upon it for fuel, and we cannot import timber for mining purposes as it would be too expensive and we would have to let low grade mines remain undeveloped. Notwithstanding these facts, our timber land is burned over and thousands of cords destroyed every year. Most of this destruction could be avoided. The fires mostly occur along the Yukon valley on account of people making their way into the interior in small boats. They land on the bank of the river to cook their food. After this is done they return to their boats, leaving the fires to go out or to ignite the nearby woods just as may happen. This could be stopped by increasing the Mounted Police patrol, and this should be done as early as possible."

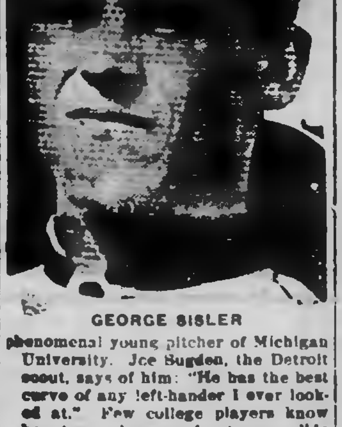
SPORT SACRIFICED

Money the Only Consideration in Profession Baseball

Organised baseball seems to be on the verge of losing its last vestige of sport for sport's sake, according to W. J. MacBeth, a New York sporting writer. The commercial end of the enterprise overshadows all else. The magnates are out for the money and make no bones of the fact. The lust for gold is as deeply rooted in the minor leagues as in the major organisations.

The two big circuits depend upon patronage for financial gains. Because of this it is necessary for them to secure the very best talent to display before the public. Thousands upon thousands of dollars are expended every season by each club in the National and American Leagues for the sole purpose of fortifying for the future. Every club owner has several highly paid scouts beating all around the country in search of likely looking "bush" timber. Some have as many as six sleuths under salary. Besides these, there is a grand army of amateur sharps who do business on a commission basis. This policy of near extravagance is all well enough for first division aggregations; the end more than justifies the means. But it is a serious drain upon the pocketbook of the unfortunate holders of second division franchises.

Because of their weaknesses, second division clubs in the major leagues call for the greatest expenditures. This makes their lot all the more severe. The money is put up on a sure gamble, because a club away down in the race is lucky to make interest on investment. The leading teams which might well afford to speculate in talent, have not the same crying need to do so. But those leaders usually string along in a sort of "dog in the manger" fashion and often corral most promising talent which they cannot possibly use, just to keep it away from some lowly rival that might utilise it to the disadvantage of the strong.



GEORGE SISLER

phenomenal young pitcher of Michigan University. Joe Sugden, the Detroit scout, says of him: "He has the best curve of any left-hander I ever looked at." Few college players know how to run bases and not many slide properly. Sisler is an aggressive runner and has the hook slide down to perfection. His one fault seems to be over-anxiety to hit. He is almost as brilliant as an outfielder as in the pitcher's box where his specialty is the spit-ball.

OLD RACING TERMS

Fine Distinction Between Stake and Purse Often Overlooked

The old and well defined term "stake" receives some rough handling on the trotting turf when races are reported by art critics, golf experts, baseball writers or any person who happens to be available when the trotters come to town. Some of the trade papers of the trotting turf and even track officials themselves seem at times unable to recognize the plain distinction between a purse and a stake.

From the earliest period of racing the term stake, or sweepstakes, has always been used to designate a race for which the prize is the total amount of money contributed by the nominators, all of which belongs to the winners. This is the definition incorporated in the rules of the National Trotting Association, and the same meaning is given to the term sweepstakes in the New York Jockey Cluub's rules of racing. A race is still a stake when money or other prizes are added to the entrance fees or subscriptions, but is never a stake if the prize is less than the total amount paid by the nominators. In a "stake" the association promoting the race merely holds the entrance money in trust for the nominators.

A purse is a fixed sum offered by the promotor of the race, to which the nominators do not contribute. All entrance fees in such a race belong to the association, and if they amount to more than the purse, as often happens on the trotting turf, the association profits to that extent, and the purse remains the same as if there were only two or three entries.

Ever since instalment purses came into vogue on the trotting turf, there has been a tendency to call all early closing races stakes. As a matter of fact there are few—very few—stake races on the trotting turf, most of the promoters preferring to offer purses so that they need not pay out all the entrance money in case this exceeds the face of the purse. Even the futurities in harness racing are nearly all purses instead of stakes, and for the reason just mentioned.

SPREADING THE GOSPEL

Touching Incident of Canada's Far North Related by Pioneer Bishop

Writing in Church Life the Bishop of Athabasca described a trip through the Peace River district and a visit to the Indian Mission of St. Peter, far up toward the Arctic Circle. Concerning the latter place the Bishop said:

"One of the most interesting and sincere Christian Indians is a poor old man of remarkable intelligence, but unfortunately totally blind. I was much impressed to see a young boy, named Arthur, who, but a year ago, was brought to our school, knowing not even the simplest rudiments of Christianity, but whom I shortly afterwards baptized, leading by the hand, through the steadily falling rain, the poor blind man, to Church; to worship and to be present at the Confirmation. The child so recently brought to Jesus that he might bestow His blessing, and the aged follower of Jesus, hand in hand, through the sodden grass to Church, the child leading. Was it not a vision of the triumph of the Christian faith?"

The Reward of Kindness

"It requires a lot of courage and charity to be philanthropic," said Sir Thomas Lipton. "I remember when I was just starting in business. I was very poor, and making every sacrifice to enlarge my little shop. My only assistant was a boy of fourteen, faithful, willing and honest. One day I heard him complaining, and with justice, that his clothes were so shabby that he was ashamed to go to any place of worship on Sunday. 'There's no chance of my getting a new suit this year,' he told me. 'Dad's out of work, and it takes all my wages to pay the rent.'

"I thought the matter over, and then took a sovereign from my carefully-hoarded savings and bought the boy a stout, warm suit of blue cloth. He was so grateful that I felt repaid for my sacrifice. But the next day he didn't come to work. I met his mother in the street and asked her the reason. 'Why, Mr. Lipton,' she said, curtsying, 'Jimmie looks so respectable, thanks to you, sir, that I thought I would send him round town to-day to see if he couldn't get a better job.'"

Will Lasso Gorillas

"Buffalo Jones," who used to divert himself lassoing buffalo on the Western plains, has found a new sport—lassoing gorillas. No full grown specimen of the great ape has so far been taken alive. But "Buffalo Jones" is now in the French Congo to get some for the London Zoo. A moving picture man will trail the gorilla hunter.

RATS AND CANCER

Rodents Prove Dread Disease Caused by Irritation

Speaking of his observations at the Medical Congress at London and the International Cancer Conference at Brussels, Belgium, Dr. J. George Adami, of McGill University, Montreal, said:

"The most significant advancement in medical research which I noted was at the Cancer Conference with regard to the announcement of experiments made upon rats as to the cause of cancer.

"The cockroach had been found to be infested with small worms which when permitted to work caused irritation and cancer. The cockroaches containing these worms were fed to rats, and the rats became infested with cancer. Although this is only one step towards ascertaining the cause of cancer in human beings, yet it proved the theory that cancer is caused by irritation."

Wolves Near St. John

Wolves were seen near St. John, N. B., recently for the first time since the days of the early settlers in the district. John Johnston, of Gilbert's Lane, was enjoying an early morning stroll in Rockwood Park, about a mile back from the nearest settled section, when he saw four large black wolves and a cub. Two of the animals followed him for a short distance. They did not show any intention of attacking him, but he did not wait to make any closer investigation of their intentions.

While wolves are known to exist in the densely wooded regions in the north of the province, it is many years since any have been reported in the south.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH, PERHAPS WEAK THROAT USE "CATARRHOZONE"--DEAD SURE CURE

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone, and neither the moisture of an atomiser nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation.

You breathe in its healing balsams, inhale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant—nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mr. H. B. McLaughlan, the well-known representative of Parks and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy."

Large size sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed, $1.00; small size 50c; sample or trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Coal Scuttle vs. Ankle.

Mr. John C. Craigi who formerly conducted an oyster parlor in this city, is walking 'about carrying a cane. It seems that a few nights ago Mr. Craig went down the cellar and took up a scuttle to replenish the fast disappearing supply of coal in the family furnace. Unfortunately the scuttle swung round, caught Mr. Craig on his ankle. A severe bruise was sustained which cut the overlaying artille. Some infection began and the ankle began to swell. Dr. Carmichael is in attendance.

Mr Robertson reports moose, deer, bears and wolves and of good size, but have changed their tactics this year, and do not confine themselves so much to runways as they previously did. He reports moose, deer, bears and wolves as being plentiful. His party succeeded in shooting seven deer and three large bears.

EAT CABBAGN, FISH SAUSAGE, NEW BREAD

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Upset Stomach if you'll take "Pape's Diapepsin"—Try This

Do some foods you eat hit back — taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick sour, gassy stomach) Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down? Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes — your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

Our Local Jail.

Yesterday a Times reporter who happened to be at the Court House to ask a question of Mr, Ed Elliott, the County Treasurer, met Mr. Henderson Nesbitt, County Jailer. In response to a question put by the Times, Mr. Nesbitt said: "We only have fifteen prisoners here now." The Times man asked: "What the Dickens do you do with prisoners sentenced to hard labor, now there is no wood to cut?" Mr. Nesbitt replied: "Why they have grass to cut, snow to shovel and sidewalks to shovel during the winter. If it were not for our local prisoners, the County would have a big bill to pay for labor."

Our Local Tightwads.

At the Lord Major of London's annual speech last night at his official residence, Sir Charles Johnston's remarks concerning the Canadian Contingent must have made the ears at more than one local rich man here tingle. Why do our local rich simply express sympathy. Why do they stand on the corner as the boys going to lose or risk their lives in sodden trenches for defence of the Empire, and for protection of the rich men's property "loosen up." Surely the rich men of this city could donate for the defence of the Empire, at least, a tenth of what they soak away every week to add to their unearned increment. Let our wealthy men wake up and learn that they, their families, their coming generation of former "tightwads" will, in the future, if they, the present tightwads put a small part of their respective incomes towards the defences of the Empire rejoice.

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Makes It Dull, Brittle, Lifeless and Causes It To Fall Out.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon. Apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous soft and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all that you need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN IS PROGRESSING

The region north of Erzerum has been occupied completely by Russian forces. The last three Turkish regiments in that vicinity have suffered a defeat. The population has extended an enthusiastic welcome to the Russians.

Petrograd, Nov. 7, via London, 2.40 p.m.—Russian forces are attacking the German position at Sieradz, on the Warthe River, in Russian Poland, southeast of Kaliaz and about 15 miles east of the German border, according to information reaching Petrograd today.

This engagement marks the beginning of the Russian against the last fortified German position on Russian soil. The Germans have heavily entrenched at Sieradz, and appear determined to dispute the crossing of the River Warthe

18000 Prisoners Taken.

The left wing of the Russian army, in engagements taking place between Oct. 23 and Nov. 4 on the front in the vicinity of Cracow, took prisoners 274 officers and 18,500 men of the enemy.

This information was given out in Petrograd today.

In addition to these prisoners the Russian forces captured three howitzers, 40 pieces of artillery, 39 rapid-fire guns and a large quantity of material for the manufacture of cartridges.

"There can no longer be even a vestige of doubt that the Russians have literally overwhelmed the Austro-German forces. It is known definitely that the Austrians are retreating on Cracow and Kalisz, both very strong fortresses, seventy miles apart. The fall of either would isolate the remaining unit and effectually open the road to Berlin. It is the German plan of strategy for the Austrians to make a stand on the Cracow-Kielce line until spring, authorities say.

Admiralty Reports "Emden" Destroyed by Australian Cruiser 'Sydney'--German Cruiser Konigsberg Also Said to Have Been Bottled up

OUT CLASSED BY AUSTRIAN BOAT THE EMDEN IS TOTALLY DESTROYED

One of the Storeships Sunk and the Other Captured by Victorious British Cruiser--Germans Loss of Life Said to be Heavy--London in a Fever of Excitement Over the News. Cry Now that the Good Hope and Monmouth Must be Avenged

London, Eng., Nov. 10.—(Special Cable.)—The cruiser Emden, the German terror of the Pacific, whose sensational raids upon British shipping and even upon allied warships, have been a continual source of humiliation to the British Admiralty, is no more

Finally forced into battle by the Australian cruiser Sydney, the Emden was sent ashore afire from stem to stern. Her grave is on Cocos Island, in the Indian Ocean, south of Sumatra, where she was driven by the Sydney after a sharp fight.

The news of the destruction of the Emden was announced by the Admiralty today. Almost at the same time came word of another British victory on the sea, when it was announced that the German protected cruiser, Koenigsberg had been driven into port in Rufigi Island off German East Africa. The British cruiser Chatham ran her down and the Admiralty claimed the German vessel had probably been driven ashore.

It is believed that the loss of life on board the Emden must have been heavy. She carried a crew of 361 men. In the destruction of this German vessel the sinking of the Russian cruiser Ze tchug and the French destroyer Mosquet, has been avenged. The Emden's career has been the most picturesque of any of the Kaiser's navy. Commanded by Captain Karl Von Muller, she has swept the Pacific capturing or sinking more than a score of merchant vessels of the allied nations, and brought her raids to a climax by boldly entering the harbour at Penang, where she sank two of the allies' warships.

Coming on the heels of the stirring war speeches of Lord Kitchener and Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the feat of the Sydney in destroying the Emden roused London to a fever of excitement today. The cry now is that the Good Hope and the Monmouth must be avenged. Weight of metal obviously told in the fight between the Emden and the Sydney, as the Australian ship carried heavier guns. Once on the trail of the German cruiser the Sydney was not to be denied. The Emden escaped when the Australian first came in contact with her. The German lost both of her storeships one being captured and the other sunk, but the Emden herself fled, refusing combat. The Sydney continued her pursuit, finally overhauled her and forced her to battle.

A fleet of at least seventy vessels has been combing the Pacific in search of the Emden. She has always eluded her pursuers just when it seemed she must give battle and go to her doom before the heavier guns. When reported in one section she would suddenly appear in another and capture or send some merchantman to the bottom. In the midst of her career of sinking and capturing vessels, the Emden appeared off Madras on September 22, and shelled a portion of that city. It is estimated that she caused a loss of ten million to the allied powers by the destruction and capture of vessels, not including the loss of trade. The nearest approach to the record of the Emden has been made by the German cruiser Karlsruhe, which is still operating in the Atlantic. The Karlruhe has sunk twelve British vessels to date.

London, Nov. 10. The German cruiser Emden, which has been one of the terrors of British shipping in the Pacific has been destroyed by the British warship Sydney. The Admiralty announced today that the Emden has been driven ashore on Cocos Island and then burned to the water's edge.

The Sydney which finally ran down the Emden after a chase which lasted for several days, is a part of the Australian navy. It is presumed that it was the Sydney which located the Emden only a few days ago, and sank one of her storeships and captured another. The fleet German vessel escaped, however, showing a clean pair of heels to the British vessel. The Emden's most notable feat was her raid in to Penang Harbour, where she sank a Russian cruiser and a French destroyer.

The cruiser Sydney, which destroyed the Emden, called in Berlin, the "terror of the seas," is one of the protected cruisers belonging to the Australian navy. She was completed in 1913, displaces 5,600 tons, is 430 feet long, and has a speed of 25 1-2 knots. Her armament consists of eight 6-inch guns and some small quick firers, with two submerged torpedo tubes. She carried 400 officers and men. The Emden was a protected cruiser of 3,540 tons, with a maximum speed of 24 1-2 knots. Her armament consisted of ten 4.1 inch quick firing guns and two torpedo tubes. She carried 361 officers and men.

London, Nov 10.—The Admiralty announces that Captain Karl Von Muller, commander of the Emden, was among those rescued and taken prisoners.

ANOTHER NAVAL BATTLE REPORTED OFF CORONEL ON THE COAST OF CHILE

Lima, Peru, Nov. 10.—Heavy cannonading was heard at sea off the Chilean seaport of Coronel, according to reports received here from Chile. Coronel is a seaport about three hundred miles south of Valparaiso. It was off Coronel that the German squadron under Admiral Count von Spee engaged the British squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock on November first.

Berlin Stirred by Russian Victory.

London, Nov. 10—The fog which during the past few days has hampered military operations along the Aisne seems to have blotted out also, so far as the receipt of news is concerned, the entir? zone of continental fighting.

The direction in which German reinforcements are being moved, whether to the east or to the west, continues to be a prolific source of discussion which is not likely to be settled until the full extent of the Russian operations along the German border is known. The phenomenal speed of the Russian advance excites the wonder and admiration of British observers, some of whom believe that the whole operation must be a gigantic cavalry raid, as they are sure, that the Russian infantry and artillery could never move so fast as the reports reaching London indicate over the inadequate roads of Russian Poland.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed.

Allies' Success in Repulsing the Foe's Offensive is Very Marked

Frantic Efforts of Germans to Break Through Allies' Lines Have All Been Ineffective --British and Indian Officers Killed in the Neighborhood of Ypres. In North Belgium Artillery Cannot be Moved in Inundated Ground

PARIS, NOV. 10.—A REPULSE OF THE GERMAN ADVANCE IN THE REGIONS OF BIXCHOOTE YPRES AND ARMENTIERES, WAS ANNOUNCED IN TODAY'S 3 O'CLOCK COMMUNIQUE. IT WAS DECLARED THAT THE FIGHTING CONTINUES WITH UNABATED VIOLENCE BETWEEN ARMENTIERES AND THE SEA, BOTH SIDES CLASHING IN OFFENSIVE MOVEMENTS. SOUTH OF YPRES THE ALLIES' SUCCESS IN REPULSING THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE WAS PARTICULARLY MARKED. ELSEWHERE ALONG THE BATTLE FRONT, THE STATEMENT DECLARED THERE WERE BUT FEW IF ANY CHANGES.

LONDON, NOV. 10.—THE FIERCENESS OF THE RECENT FIGHTING BY THE BRITISH ARMY IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF YPRES, IS EMPHASIZED BY THE CASUALTY LIST OF TWENTY BRITISH OFFICERS AND EIGHT INDIAN OFFICERS KILLED THIS WEEK, AND A CORRESPONDING LARGE NUMBER OF MEN, IN NORTH BELGIUM THE OPERATIONS ARE AT A DEADLOCK, NEITHER SIDE BEING ABLE TO MOVE THE ARTILLERY IN THE RECENT INUNDATED GROUND.

LONDON, NOV. 10.—TO MAKE SURE THAT THE GERMAN CRUISER KOENIGSBERG IS EFFECTUALLY OUT OF ACTION, THE BRITISH CRUISER CHATHAM HAS SUNK SEVERAL VESSELS IN THE MOUTH OF THE KIFIJI RIVER CHANNEL, WHERE THE GERMAN CRUISER TOOK REFUGE.

LONDON, NOV. 10.—THE GERMAN STRONGHOLD OF TSING-TAU, ACCORDING TO A DESPATCH RECEIVED BY THE CENTRAL NEWS FROM SHANGHAI, WAS UNCONDITIONALLY HANDED OVER TO JAPAN AT TEN O'CLOCK THIS MORNING.

BERLIN (VIA THE HAGUE). NOV. 9, (VIA LONDON), NOV. 10.—OFFICIAL DENIAL IS MADE OF THE FOREIGN REPORTS THAT GEN. VON HINDENBURG, THE GERMAN COMMANDER ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT, AND A 42 CENTIMETRE GUN HAVE BEEN CAPTURED BY THE ENEMY.

GERMAN OFFICERS LEAD TURKISH FORCES IN HARD FIGHT IN CAUCASUS

Russian Troops Hard Pressed for a Time but Held Position Till Night Fell -Wonderful Valor and Tenacity of Czar's Forces--Emperor Nicholas Takes Dinner With His Officers. Turks Attempted in Vain to Envelop One Flank of the Russians

Petrograd, Nov. 10.—An official communication from the Caucasian army staff at Tiflis, dated Nov. 8, says:

"At daybreak near Koprukeui the combat was resumed with renewed force when the enemy launched against us troops concentrated in the region of Erzerum, which, in their turn, were reinforced from the garrison of that stronghold.

"To judge from the character of the action and such information as could be gathered German officers commanded the Turks.

"In the afternoon, the fighting assumed a particularly tenacious character when the Turks supported their advance guards by fresh divisions However, their attempted envelopment of one of our flanks failed.

"Thanks to the valor of our troops we were able, towards evening, when the battle moderated, to hold all we had previously conquered. One of our columns took possession of positions at Karaktine (Karakilisses) and Alaschkertska."

It is announced here that the Emperor, while en route from Kholm to Siedlce, received a report from Gen. Avonoff, commander-in-chief of the army of the southwest. Gen Avonoff, with his staff, was invited to the Imperial breakfast. At the station at Siedlce the Emperor received General Rouzsky, commander-in-chief of the army of the northwest.

BRITISH FLEET TAKES TURK'S CABLE PORT

London, Nov. 9.—The British occupation of Turkish seaports in Asia Minor is proceeding almost without incident. Two forces of the Dardanelles are said to have been totally wrecked by the bombardment from 'the big guns of the allied fleet, and the Russian army from Caucasia is steadily advancing to attack Erzerum. the chief fortified place of Turkish Armenia. Reports of internal unrest in the Ottoman Empire come tonight from many quarters and trouble is brewing between Turkey and Greece owing to the sinking of a 'Greek steamer and the persecution of Greek Nationals in Asia Minor. ... ...

Take Cable Terminus.

The occupation of Fao, a port of Asiatic Turkey at the mouth of the Shat-el-Arab River, in the Persian Gulf and the terminus of a cable line to India, was announced in a statement from the Admiralty on Saturday night. The statement was to the effect that a military force from British India, covered by the sloop Odin, landed with a naval detachment after the Turkish guns had been silenced. There were no British casualties. ...

Greeks are Molested.

The British squadron has bombarded several points along the coast of Asia Minor. A Reuter's despatch from Athens stated that two destroyers shelled the telegraph station at Sarmoussak and Ayasmat. Another destroyer visited Aivali for the purpose of taking on board the British Consul there, but the Turks refused to permit this. Ae Aivali a Greek steamer flying the British flag, was sunk by the Turks, who are hastily fortifying the place under the direction of German officers. The Greeks of Smyrna are said to be fleeing in panic. The Greek schools in Constantinople are reported to have been seized by the authorities

Wrinkles Disappear As If By Magic.

"In the removal of wrinkles I have discarded cosmetics entirely" writes Mme. Corsan, the celbrated Parisian beauty artist. "The results they produce are deceptive and never permanent. Massaging is the only partially successful and it's too slow a method.

"I've never seen anything work such wonders as a simple harmless solution any woman can prepare at home, without the least trouble. A half-pint of witch hazel and an ounce of good powdered saxolite are all you'll need. Mix the two and apply this refreshing solution to your face daily. The effect is marvellous, instantaneous. The skin becomes firmer, tighter—every wrinkle and sag is affected. You feel so refreshed after using the wash; you look refreshed too; soon you will look ten years younger.—Society World.

RUSSIANS WELL ON THEIR WAY TO BERLIN NOW

London, Nov. 9.—Russia dominates the military situation today. The speed with which she had cleared the invaders from Russian Poland was totally unexpected and must necessarily have a great effect on the campaigns in the other war theatres.

Already the terror stricken inhabitants are reported fleeing from their prosperous Silesian homes despite the fact that General Von Hindenburg's strong army is between them and the advancing Russians. But something besides the might of the German arms may enable them to remain still and for some time to security for a significent message from Petrograd announces that Russia may defer the invasion of Germany until her historic mission toward the Bosphorus is accomplished.

This mission includes the complete subjection of Austro-Hungary as well as the invasion of Turvey and if this is the actual plan of the Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian Commander - in Chief, the Russians may be content to hold their present positions along the German border while making an aggressive war toward the south and east.

Persistent reports continue to reach London that the Germans are sending heavy reinforcements to their western lines. News of a contrary nature to the effect that the Germans are preparing to retreat through Belgium is also rifle, but the experts seem to place more credence on the reports of reinforcements and the coming work is looked forward as one of the most crucial of the war.

The Cossack raids continue across the German border and Berlin now admits that the Russians are well beyond the River Warthe. The Russian advance has been made over bad roads at the unprecedented rate of fourteen miles daily and the German rear has now passed Czernstochowa without stopping. The Russian line is well back of the Warthe, between Czernstochowa and Kalisz.

Another Petrograd report states that Czernstochowa is still held, as the last German position in Russia but that this is regarded as untenable.

The latest Paris official communication states that the invaders are concentrating their activity about Ypres without achieving any results. The allies are reported as holding their own everywhere on the Aisne, while to the northeast of Soissons, they have reached a new position on the Vregny plateau.

ALLIES SUCCESSFULLY ADVANCE IN ALSACE, IN BELGIUM AND ON AISNE

In Alsace the Enemy Has Suffered a Marked Defeat, as Their Attacks to Gain Point of Vantage Have be Fruitless, Slight Advances at Ypres by British of Importance. Critics Loud in Praise of Gen. Joffre

Paris, Nov. 10. Fighting from sand dune to sand dune, hampered by thick fog banks and at times crawling on hands and knees through high grass, the advance of the allies along the Belgian seacoast continues, according to reports received here today. The advance on Monday was somewhat slower as the Germans, after two days of retreat and rest, again resumed the offensive. The allies, however, presented a stonewall defence, and the Germans were again forced to retreat.

Ypres Sees Heaviest Fighting.

The region around Ypres is the scene of the greatest activity as the Germans apparently wish to take possession of the territory between La Basse and Nieuport, which is considered of great strategical importance.

Although the advance yesterday was only slight this should not be depreciated in the opinion of the leading military critics, but rather acclaimed at its full value, as it appears now, after many retreats, counter-marches and intermediable delay that the allies' advance has begun in reality.

Critics Now Praise Joffre.

The critics say it is impossible to pay too high a tribute to General Joffre's policy, which, unfortunately, has been hitherto criticized by those who are impatient and desirous of quicker results.

Gen Berthaud, writing in the Petit Journal, considers the allies advance on the right bank of the Aisne, together with the occupation of Soupir, Chavonne and Vailly, of prime importance. This means that the high plateau including the Chemin des Dames, has probably been occupied and will give the allies the hotly contested position on the plateau of Vregny, northeast of Soissons, which is believed to be the key to the Aisne situation.

Germans Lose in Alsace.

This plateau once taken, can easily be held as it is criss-crossed with ravines through which flow tributaries of the Aisne. The heights from this point to Craonne are believed to be held by the allies.

In Alsace the Germans have suffered a marked defeat as their attack to gain the vantage point on St. Marie Heights have been fruitless The situation here, it is stated, becomes more serious every day as the only available roads running east and to the west are in possession of the allies, and unless the Germans succeed in breaking through and joining the main army, their only alternative will be a retreat.

WILL HEAR ABOUT CANADIANS WHEN THEY GET THERE, SAYS HON. HUGHES

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—Major General the Hon. Sam Hughes, who reached Ottawa last night, was in his office with a mass of correspondence this morning, and has again taken over his duties as Minister of Militia. "I did not go to the front," said General Hughes, "only idle curiosity would have justified me in going. They have no time for visitors on the battlefield these days. The Canadians are doing splendidly at Salisbury; they are mastering the new platoon form with great rapidity, and as for their shooting—well, it's been all we ever claimed for it. They had just started shooting the last time I was there, and the first regiment which shot made 87 per cent. It op?ned the eyes of those who saw it."

General Hughes stated that he did not know when they were to go across to the continent. "I would not tell you if I did. You will hear about them when they get there," he remarked.

The Minister said that all accounts of wounded British officers from the front agreed that the slaughter of the German troops on the northwestern line of battle was appalling. Many of them declared that so dreadful were the casualties before the allies' rifle and machine gun fire as to turn the beholder sick.

IN THE HOUR OF VICTORY BRITAIN PAYS HONOR DUE EMDEN AND CAPTAIN

London, Nov. 10.—In the hour of victory and rejoicing the success of the Australian cruiser Sydney in finally running down and destroying the German cruiser Emden, the British press this afternoon does not neglect to pay to the gallant ship of the enemy and her commander the honour which is their due. The Evening News in an editorial commending upon the destruction of the German ship, says: "To the British nation there is no regret in the destruction of the Emden, that is the possibility of the lots of the Emden's captain. A brave, ingenious and courteous gentleman, he has played the game admirably, We hope he has been saved."

ITALY WILL STOP WHEAT SHIPPED TO GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN POINTS

Rome, Nov. 10.—The large increase in the price of foodstuffs is causing some anxiety. In the public discussion that has followed on this condition many remedies have been suggested, especially in regard to wheat.

The surplus of this cereal in the United States and the next crop in Argentina, it is stated, have already been taken despite the fact that prices in both countries were considerably higher.

Italy, thus far, it is brought out in the discussion, has allowed wheat destined for neutral countries to pass through with the result that the importation of wheat into Italy, itself, as compared with that passing through nominally destined for Switzerland, but in reality, it is said, going to Austria and Germany, stands at two bushels to ten.

It is suggested that the Government prohibit wheat passing through Italy for all destinations until Italy has imported the quantity necessary for her own consumption. Then either all wheat sold in Italy should be at a moderate price or have no purchasers.

MAJ.-GEN. MACKENZIE DIVISION COMMANDER

London, Nov. 10.—Among the division commanders announced today appears the name of Major-General Colin John MacKenzie, who succeeds Maj-Gen. Hamilton, killed in action at Mons. Gen. MacKenzie, who was chief of the Canadian section of the Imperial general staff, became the first military adviser to the Dominion's Military Council some four years ago

Wellington Campaign Plans

The map found on a captured Uhlan marked with the prearranged marches of the German troops reminds one that Wellington distrusted fixed plans of campaign. Asked on one occasion how he managed to capture Napoleon's marshals one after the other, he replied: "They planned their campaigns just as you might make a splendid set of harness. It looks very well, it answers very well, until it gets broken and then you're done for. Now, I made my campaign of ropes. If anything went wrong, I tied a knot and went on."

AVIATIONATIS

Are we to have a new disease? Half a dozen well known aviators declare that five years' regular flying will shatter any man's nervous system.

The medical faculty are almost unanimous in their declaration that for a person suffering from heart disease to go flying is to court death. Despite the assertion of an experienced lady aviator that she has never had any "sensation" when up in the air, it is common knowledge that flying brings on a dangerous dizziness, and that frequently a flying-man has to exercise most strenuous will power to keep awake while flying. When surrounded by clouds, an aviator frequently has not the faintest knowledge of his position—a fact that is probably accountable for a number of "inexplicable" falls of machines. Most flying-men find eventually that they need to reserve all their nervous force to use when up in the air—they dare not excite themselves or perform any too great exertion otherwise. The toll of the air has been great, but it is a mistake to reckon only those persons who have met their death while actually flying. The number will be greatly increased if you include those who have become more or less physical wrecks through their devotion to aerial science.—Answers.

RUSSELL NORTHUP

BOB STEELE

Pitching a no-hit-no-run game is the ambition of every pitcher in baseball. Few have achieved the honor and that two youngsters on one team should break into the exclusive class within four days is but one of the remarkable things that make baseball.

Bob Steele and Russell Northup of the Moose Jaw Robinhoods, Western Canada League, are the youngsters who thus achieved fame. Northup performed the feat against Medicine Hat, holding the Hatters to a hitless, runless game for nine full innings and Steele duplicated the performance at Calgary. Northup hails from Des Moines, Iowa, but Steele is a Canadian his home being in Vancouver.

A THREE-HOUR BOUT

The Great "Hack" Tells of His Hardest Mat Struggle

"In the course of a lengthy career as both an amateur and professional wrestler," says George Hackenschmidt, the famous wrestler, in the Strand, "I have taken part in so many strenuous bouts on the mat that I find it a matter of extreme difficulty to pin myself down to one performance as being my best. However, after carefully running over my record, I think I must give my vote to my success in the great Budapest tournament.

"In this important Continental tournament I defeated Albert de Paris in five minutes, Aimable in 25 minutes, and Vandenberg in 24 minutes. 'So far,' I remember thinking at the time, 'things seem fairly easy for me.' Then came my bout with the famous Turk Kara Ahmed. The struggle which followed I shall never forget as long as I live. For three solid hours we wrestled and wrestled, until it seemed as if the contest would go on far into the night. At one moment Kara Ahmed seemed to be possessed of a winning advantage; then positions were reversed, and I looked to be 'top dog.' At the end of the third hour we were both almost as strong as at the start, but at last I saw a favorable opportunity. With the quickness of a panther I seized it, and in a trice the Turk's mountain of shoulders were pinned to the ground."

Danger in Matches

On this continent, matches are everywhere. Every room contains matches and even every pocket of a man's clothing contains matches. They are scattered about on desks and in drawers and are so common and are handled so carelessly that it is not to be wondered that we have a great many fires resulting from their use.—Halifax, N. S., Chronicle.

EDUCATION IN CANADA

There are 2,141,909 children, between 6 and 20, in attendance at school in Canada according to the latest available figures. Of this total, 1,801,779 (or 84 per cent.) are Canadian-born, 142,560 British-born, and 197,570 foreign-born.

Persons in Canada who can read and write, of population of five years of age and over, 88.98 per cent.

Persons who can read only: One-half of one per cent.

Illiterates: 10.50 per cent.

Ontario still leads in percentage of those able to read and write, namely, 93.17 per cent.

Of 2,197,663 males of voting age, 90.57 per cent., or 1,990,341, can read in some language.

REAL BOYS LOVE DOGS

But Many a Lad's Heart is Saddened Because He Cannot Keep One

"Aw, Ma, lemme keep him. Aw—Ma!"

"I won't have the dirty beast around. See the mud he's brought in already."

And so the boy led the dog out of the house and the two sat on the back steps and communed together, both faces wearing very much the same expression.

There were three unhappy beings because of the mother's ultimatum—for the mother herself, though she triumphed, felt something wrong in the atmosphere.

Good housewives, however, have always forbidden dogs in the house. Dogs don't stop to wipe their feet before coming in. Dogs shed hair on carpets. Dogs, in the exuberance of their feelings, jump on one and muss one's dress. Dogs lie on cushions and the best sofa. And dogs have fleas. Ugh!

NO PEDIGREE—JUST A DOG

What if the very soul of one's boy longs for the intimate companionship of a dog? What if one's husbands would be a happier man with the understanding eyes of his dog sending warm glances toward him every time he moved?

But these are not considerations for many women. Rather a spick-and-span house than a happy boy or husband, if it's a question of a dog. A lot of women never can see anything attractive about a dog. They have eyes only for his faults—just as they manage to have eyes only for the failings of everybody in their environment.

Of course a dog can be an awful nuisance. But so also can a small boy be an awful nuisance. It's largely in their training—and in the way you look at the boy, or the dog. Many a boy is actually starving for affection because his mother just tolerates him and makes no effort to understand him.

BACKYARD GARDENS

Any Kind of Soil Can be Utilized For Vegetable Growing

Many a backyard could annually produce vegetables that would cost $150 if they were purchased at the grocer's. Any patch of ground will grow some kind of vegetable if given half a chance. No matter what kind of soil one has to deal with, it can be made to grow things. If the soil is sandy it will grow early crops to great advantage, but will not stand the hot, dry weather of summer as well as clay or loam. For this reason most sandy soils would be improved by the addition of several inches of barnyard manure and heavier soil plowed in in the spring and thoroughly mixed. Heavy clay soil is the toughest proposition for a gardener to handle. A loamy soil is the best for general cropping. If there is sod in the new garden, it should not be stripped off as is often done, but should be turned under, where it will decay and improve the texture of the soil.

Another feature is fertility. Barnyard manure or commercial fertilizers must be used in abundance. It is difficult to give advice on the kind and amount of fertilizer to use. This depends upon the character of the land and the nature of the crops to be raised. All seedmen have for sale combination fertilizers that will answer the purpose of most amateur gardeners. Good drainage and lots of sunlight are other necessary factors in getting best results.

Should You Whip a Child the Way He Should Go?

By Winifred Black

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Winifred Black

MRS. HARRY HASTINGS, of the far and boundless West, says that children ought to be whipped—when they need it.

"Some children can't be ruled any other way," says Mrs. Hastings, "and children must be ruled—they must not rule.

"The greatest virtue the finest child in the world can have is obedience—obedience to the letter—blind, dumb absolute obedience. I know a little boy who was playing on a railroad track. His father suddenly shouted to him, 'Lie down between the rails.' The little boy lay down between the rails and the train passed over him and did not hurt him.

"Now, if that boy had stopped to reason or argue, or even to wonder, he would have been killed. He had been taught to obey—and that teaching saved his life.

"Yes, I believe in whipping children—for their own good. The best children I know are children whose parents whip them—when they have to be whipped to make them mind. This country is full of careless parents and spoiled children. Let's go back to the old-fashioned spanking and see if we can't get some old-fashioned children."

How interesting—how enlightening—how sweetly reasonable—and, furthermore, how civilized.

I always like to meet a woman who says she whips her children to make them mind. She's always such a dear, simple creature—so easy to understand. One look at her, one half-hour spent in her society, always tells me just exactly why her children won't "mind" without a whipping.

Ruling by Fear.

Now that highly intelligent father who told his little boy to lie down on the track and let the train pass over him. If he'd been any kind of a man with any kind of common sense, he would not have let his little boy play on the track at all.

Of course, if you're going to be the kind of man or woman who allows the children to take such risks as that, the rest follows, as a matter of course. You don't have to tell us any more about that particular father, Mrs. Hastings. We know all about him right this minute.

Now, it seems to me that the man in this story would have made a better job of being a father if he had taught his boy that a railroad track is hardly the place to use as a playground, and had relied upon the child's common sense to keep him out of such danger—or, if he got into it, to show him the quickest way out.

The most obedient child in history was Casabianca—the boy who stood on the burning deck. And we know what obedience brought him.

I never could get up very much sentiment about poor little Casabianca. He may have been blindly obedient—he certainly was blindly stupid, too. Probably his father whipped him to "make him mind"—and that's why the poor, dazed little fellow, who had never been taught to think for himself, couldn't save his own life without an order from the father who had taught him such blind obedience.

I know a cousin of Casabianca—oh, yes, he's a real cousin, he'll tell you so a dozen times a day—if you'll let him. All about how his great-grandfather emigrated from Corsica, and all the rest of it that is such a romantic story—in a poem—and such a commonplace affair of third class tickets, a loaf of black bread and a bunch of garlic—in real life.

Casabianca's cousin carries out Casabianca's idea of obedience. He obeys, implicitly, any one who can shake a big enough stick at him. He's rather a good sort of chap, naturally, this Casabianca of today—but those who rule him are not good. Some day poor Casabianca is going to find himself on the burning deck—alone—and what in the world will he do then—poor thing?

So you believe in whipping children—for their own good—Mrs. Hastings? Well, then, I don't agree with you.

I never saw a child who was whipped for his own good in my life. And I never knew a child who was whipped at home who wasn't a demon to manage away from home. The minute the whip is put away the child is unmanageable—and you really can't keep whipping every minute.

Character by Training.

I asked my friend, the school teacher, about it the other day, and she said that the worst children she had in school were children who were whipped at home.

Sullen—defiant—deceitful—sly—cowardly—bullying—oh, she called those children terrible names—and I believe the names she called them were all true. Why not? Rule a child by fear, and what shall you make of him but a liar, a coward and a bully? How can he be anything else?

No, no, Mrs. Hastings—you're wrong, you're all wrong.

Your idea of things may have been all right back in the days when people were nothing much but children themselves, and had to have kings and whipping posts and ducking stools, and things to make them "mind."

And two or three generations ago in this country people were too busy to stop and explain things—a cuff on the ear is a good deal easier than a good, sane, logical talk.

You can't blame a pioneer mother for cuffing one of her children under the bed—when she heard a queer noise at the door and was afraid to look out of the window for fear of seeing a befeathered head looking in.

But nowadays the Indians are not on the warpath, and mother has time enough, and strength enough, and she ought to have sense enough, to learn how to rule a little bit of a child—without being helped out by a whip.

If my brain and my strength of character are not equal to the strain of training a weak, helpless, little tike of a rascal to do what I tell him, not because he's afraid of me, but because I've made him realize that what I tell him is pretty apt to be the best thing there is for him to do—then I think I'd better stop trying to raise children—and go to raising dogs.

And I shouldn't expect to take the blue ribbon with any of them—either.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a girl of 19. I went with a fine young man having no bad habits; an accomplished young man. We went together for over a year, but not steady.

We quit as good friends, he went with other girls, and I with other boys, but I never enjoy myself for thinking of him.

Five months passed, and he came back; both being happy again. I kept regular company with him for eight months. About two months ago he was away for three weeks, and I got acquainted with a strange young fellow that came to our town.

In some ways I liked him better. He made love to me, and I let him, but he proved to be a bad young man and has left the town. Trouble came between my old friend and me, but he says he loves me yet, and asked me to forgive him if he hurt my feelings; but, somehow, I can't like him as I did. SORRY.

POOR little Sorry. I should think you would be—sorry.

You took a perfectly good diamond out of a perfectly good ring and threw it away, and now the poor bit of stained glass that you put in the diamond's place has gone, and what shall you do?

What do you mean when you say you can't like him as you did? Which one? Your letter is as confused as I'm afraid your mind is.

I don't believe you ever really cared for the first young man at all, and it is quite evident that the second young man never really cared for you. So it seems to me that the best thing you can do is to forget them both as soon as possible, and the next time you are lucky enough to be loved by a good, true man, go down on your knees and say your prayers and be thankful and very good—and very happy.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

EARS ARE NOW WORN AGAIN

BLACK and white once more insists upon recognition.

Here is a redingote of white satin trimmed with black lace and buttoned with black jet buttons. It is the very newest thing from Paris and illustrates again the recurrent trends of Fashion to the garments of earlier days.

THE ear has come into its own once more. Kept down, hidden in the tendrils of the hair for so long that we hardly gave them a thought, our ears have at last—shall we say—risen and demanded recognition.

Those of us who have not seen our own ears, except at bed time, for so long that we hardly know them, must now study the new hair-dressing style. We may no longer pretend that we do not possess them, for ears are now worn again.

WELCOME!

ITS long since verses have been penned
To My Lady's shell-like ear;
How could they be? Twixt you and me
We've had a hateful fear
My Lady had no ears at all,
Because she did not show em;
But Fashion's sway proves it today,
And once more we shall know 'em.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 130.

Marriage and Chivalry.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

UNABLE to endure the electric tensity of the atmosphere I seized my hat again and went forth to walk. The night was very clear and cold. A winter moon hung high above the town, silvering the snowy roofs and the church steeple at the end of the street. At the corner I met my father-in-law.

"Well, Peter," he said, "out for a walk?"

"Yes," I said uncomfortably, for I was not quite sure how he felt about my quarrel with his wife. "The night was so bright and keen I couldn't resist it."

He glanced at me a little quizzically, and, all at once, I realized that he, too, was out to free himself from the married atmosphere of home. With the maid and the doctor and his wife stirring things up, what wonder that he needed the relaxation of fresh air and solitude?

I glanced at his kindly face—it was heavily lined and his hair was grayer this winter than I have ever seen it, and I realized again that all his life he had been fighting this problem that I was facing now—the extravagance of a thoughtless, silly woman.

"Mr. Penfield," I blurted, for I have never made any secret of my liking for him, "I want to tell you that I'm very sorry I bolted into your house tonight and talked as I did. You've likely heard of it. But Mary and I are running behind in expenses, and when I found she'd been getting money from her mother—it, well, it seemed the last straw. I had to say something. I suppose a man ought never air his views to a woman as I did——"

"Chivalry," said Mr. Penfield, a little bitterly, "there's nothing in it, Peter. Chivalry is the sentimental science that keeps a man from telling a woman what a rotter she is, when he'd thrash another man. Chivalry is the convenient sex arrangement that gives a woman in silk and satin, who's been playing bridge all afternoon, the right to the only seat in a car, while the workman with blisters on his feet stands gallantly up: Chivalry——" but here he paused and flung his cigar into the road.

"Ah, well," he shrugged, "what's the use? Chivalry ought to be for mothers—not for women as a class—and only for mothers who've made good."

And I knew from the way he spoke that Mrs. Penfield's hysterics and her fictitious faint had gotten upon his nerves—that he didn't entirely blame me—and that his own married life had been none too happy.

"Business is bothering me a lot," he said after a while. "And, to tell the truth, I've been dabbling a little in stocks. Don't do it, Peter. It's a fool's pastime. I'm always putting up margin lately. Somehow, when you find your income isn't elastic enough to stretch over a year's expenses, you immediately cast about in your mind for a way to make more money easily—and speculating sounds simple enough, but it isn't."

I spoke of my nightly work over the factory books for extra money.

"You're beginning wrong, Peter," he said. "I've learned a bitter lesson. Mary's my daughter, and a sweet pretty girl, but when she gets the money fever she'll drive, and drive hard. Half of the human runaways that end in jail are the result of a money-mad woman driving hard, and when the crash comes she weeps and doesn't understand why. Men are great, sentimental fools. The passion and pity that women awaken in them complicate their lives at times beyond endurance. Take a firm stand, Peter, and handle your own money. It's the only way."

Passion and pity! They were the only emotions, indeed, my wife aroused. Was marriage worth it?

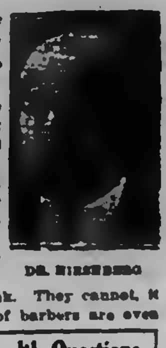
Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Your Hair-Cut Should Be a Sterile Rite

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

BARBERS, unlike other individuals, need not be judged by the company they keep. Nor need they be held as abominations because they continue to perpetuate the Pilgrim's mistakes of 400 years ago.

The herbs and other tonsorial messes which the razor-handed myrmidon caresses as cure-alls of falling hair and baldness are the heirlooms of a once dignified but now badly trained "profession."

Heaven has sent many a man a fine suit of hair, and the barber has deported it from him. Not that the barber is wicked, or wishes ill to his patrons, but because barbers are notoriously unobservant and, unconsciously, avoid seeing the results that do not accord with their treatment.

Many barbers, nowadays, have fallen into a pit of ink. They cannot, it seems, be washed clean again. The arts and practices of barbers are even more antiquated than those of many doctors and merchants.

Take, for example, the filthy practice of shampooing the head with eggs. If there is a better nest for germs and microbes to make their home in it is unknown to bacteriologists.

If there is one germ or fungus of ringworm, itch, eczema, or dandruff present before the egg shampoo is applied you may hazard a can of stale sardines with assurance that there are a centillion billion of them a few hours later. For if there is anything a microbe loves better than an egg shampoo it must be two egg shampoos.

Yet this tonsorial delusion is no worse than singeing the hairs to make them grow and stop them from falling. Singeing the hairs really splits them, dries them, and injures them almost beyond redemption.

Each time a barber singes a victim's hair he opens up the hair shaft and permits moulds, microbes and other disease germs to be gradually squeezed downward into the hairs. Thus, before decay's defacing fingers have swept the lines where beauty lingers, the singeing process brings on baldness.

The haircut, though necessary, also has its dangers. It kills off the shafts almost as often as singeing. The reason lies partly in the fact that a barber's scissors are rarely, if ever, sterilized, and germs of disease, like the proverbial flea, jump from head to head without respect to color, race or previous condition of servitude.

We have become civilized enough to pass pure food laws and clean milk statutes, now let us get after the barber. Sterilization of every instrument in a barber shop should be compulsory.

Skirts Are Short and Fuller and the Fitted Basque Is Here

By MADGE MARVEL

FLOUNCED from ankles to hips and buttoned straight up the front from hips to neck, with her hair strained back and her ears sticking out under funny little hats or floppy big ones, the woman of the summer looks like a stranger to those of us whose minds can't travel fast enough to keep up with the styles.

It is not the styles that are so ugly and muddled and incongruous. It is the adaptation of them. To be sure, we hardly know what is in style now, for no two makers of clothes seem to agree on many points, and every wearer of clothes tries to give them that ruling element of the times, individually.

Four style facts are apparent: skirts are short; skirts are fuller; basques are here; hats are larger.

Also there is a splash of bright color on nearly every dress. Also, there is such a conglomeration of periods that one's head seems in a hopeless historic whirl. To see 1830 basques, topped by early Norman collars, shadowed by Napoleonic hats, shaded by oriental parasols, with military capes thrown over the shoulders, is a trifle disconcerting to those of us who have always cherished a belief in the eternal fitness of things, even of fashions.

Out of it all should come some interesting developments by fall. The basque and the redingote are the two garments which, from this midsummer view, it seems we shall have to reckon with.

Personally I like the basques. Perhaps, they will not be so attractive when every one gets to wearing them, and they are made in all kinds of goods, put upon all sizes and varities of figures and fashioned with various degrees of skill. But these first basques have the merit of being creations. They have good lines, are well fitted and have worlds of that desirable quality known as "chic."

Black satin is coming into favor with the advent of the basque. Some exclusive modistes are using it in preference to taffeta. It is quite the rage in Paris.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, the beautiful young widow in whom all the world is interested, has worn black chiffon a great deal this summer, and her gowns are charming in their simplicity. One in particular seemed to be draped on her figure, with a long tunic, a blouse which fitted rather closely, with no hint of bagginess at the waistline, and a surplice front effect. The sleeves were set in, which is somewhat unusual in such a sheer fabric. Also they were long and close fitting, and finished with small white organdie cuffs. The bodice was collarless and she wore her superb pearls. Her hat was a medium affair with a flare over the face, in the manner of the poke.

To go back to basques: Some are plain and fitted with darts, others are tucked round and round, leaving the shoulders plain in yoke effect, and others are wrinkled. All the sleeves are set-in at a normal place and are long and fitted to the arm. The buttons on the basques are large round affairs and make a conspicuous line directly up the front of the garment. They are often of rubies or jet.

The redingote is like the basque in front, but has long back portions which reach to the hem of the skirt and fall free. Plain redingotes, worn over a plaid skirt made of a series of flounces, are novelties.

Masterpieces of the Cuisine

TWO EGG DELICACIES of M. LATTARD

Maitre d'Hotel of the Plaza Hotel, New York.

M. LATTARD

THERE is no more delicious food than the egg, and it lends itself to so many delightful combinations that the kitchen would be crippled without it.

The two recipes that I offer you here together you will find particularly pleasing these hot summer days. If you will follow the directions with painstaking faithfulness you need have no fear of "bad luck." You will have as good luck as I have myself.

EGG PUPKE.

HAVE some Bearnaise sauce ready. Prepare ahead of time the desired number of unsweetened cream puffs. Fifteen or twenty minutes before serving put these in an oven to warm. In the meanwhile prepare a stuffing of lobster as follows: Two-fifths artichoke bottoms, two-fifths fresh mushrooms, one-fifth smoked salmon, all cut in small cubes. Fry these in butter and set aside in a warm place.

Now take out your cream puffs, cut the top off, scoop out, and, inside, place a spoonful of lobster stuffing, over this a soft-poached egg. Mask the egg with a spoonful of Bearnaise sauce, place the top that you cut off over this and serve at once.

COLD EGG NUREMBERG.

A SOFT boiled egg placed on a little crab meat salad made with some hashed green peppers and highly seasoned. Serve in a china cassolette, glaze with paprika cream sauce.

LORD MAYORS PARADE WAS VERY PATRIOTIC

London, Nov. 9.—Shorn of its picturesque pageantry, but with its Imperial and military features unprecedented in a century, the Lord Mayor's parade made its way through the streets today in the first part of the ceremonial inaugurating Sir Charles Johnston as Lord Mayor of London in succession to Sir Thomas V. Bowater.

No English institution is more traditional than Lord Mayor's Day, but with the exception of the gaudily decorated state coaches of the Lord Mayor and other civic dignitaries, the parade today showed little color. The men were clad soberly in khaki and there was none of the brilliant display which usually distinguishes the procession.

Great London Scottish

Enormous crowds gathered early to obtain places from which to see the men who are fighting England's battles on the continent. One of the most popular organizations in the parade consisted of several battalions of the Canadian troops now waiting in England their opportunity to go to the front. Many of the London city regiments were represented by squads of men, and when a battalion of the London Scottish who recently distinguished themselves in France, swung along to the skirl of the pipes the crowd hailed them with great enthusiasm. But none of the military created more interest than did the veterans of the naval battalions who survived the fall of Antwerp.

Canadian troops who appeared in the procession, 300 in number, came from Salisbury Plain to London on Saturday afternoon, and were quartered for the week-end in barracks. Six men were selected from each battalion. Lots were drawn for most of the men. The Alberta band preceded the Canadians, Col. Turner, the commanding officer, was mounted. The other officers included Colonel Hill, Lieut.-Col. Villers and Major Higinbottom.

Former Local Man Enlists.

Mr. W. H. Dobbie, formerly of the Bank of Montreal in this city but now connected with the same Bank in Nova Scotia, has enlisted with the Canadian artillery for the war on the second Canadian contingent. He is the fourth of his family to go to the front and fight for the Empire. This means that five generations of Mr. Dobbie's family have fought on the battlefield for England.

Japan True to Her Alliance

Bearing in a very important way upon the course of events in the pending war is the question whether Japan will extend her military operations to India in case of a Moslem uprising against Great Britain in that region.

The Japanese consul general at New York has said that if at the instigation of Turkey and Germany the East Indian Moslems should make trouble Japan would take that trouble off the hands of Great Britain and leave the latter free to use her East Indian forces in Europe!

This remarkable declaration again invites attention to certain provisions of the offensive and defensive treaty of alliance between Great Britain and Japan. For instance, one of the objects of the agreement is declared to be "the maintenance of the general peace in the regions of Eastern Asia and of India." This specific inclusion of India is specially significant.

The treaty says that it is also the object of the agreement "to maintain the territorial rights of the high contracting parties in the regions of Eastern Asia and of India, and the defense of their special interests in the said regions." Again there is that specific inclusion of India.

It is also specifically provided that if by reason of unprovoked attack or agressiv? action wherever arising on the part of any power or powers Great Britain should be involved in war in defense of its territorial rights or special interests above mentioned, Japan "will at once come to the assistance of its ally and will conduct the war in common and make peace in mutual agreement with it."

Apparently much of the significance of this treaty of alliance has heretofore been overlooked.

As Others See It

The following in the Boston Herald speaks for itself:

Mr. John F. Moors asks the pertinent question, why this country should be called upon to feed the Belgians when the Germans are in occupation of substantially the whole of that country, and have, furthermore exacted huge sums from various cities and towns, including Brussels, which they entered without resistance. To this question there can be but one answer, that the duty is Germany's, and not our's.

Nevertheless, a condition, and not a theory, confronts us.

Sciatica Vanishes Instantly If Nerviline is Used

CAN YOU BEAT THIS CASE?

No ordinary liniment will even relieve Sciatica. Nothing but the most powerful kind of a remedy can penetrate through the tissues and finally reach the Sciatic Nerve. You can always depend on the old-time "Nerviline." Nothing made to-day is as good for Sciatica as Nerviline was when first produced, about forty years ago. All this time the same old "Nerviline" has been curing Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism and is considered to be without an equal in relieving pain or soreness anywhere. "'Nerviline' couldn't be made stronger or better," writes James E. Edwards. "The way it cures Sciatica is to me simply a miracle. For years I suffered frightfully. I ruined my stomach with internal dosing. I rubbed in gallons of oils and liniments — none were strong enough. One good rubbing with Nerviline relieved. I kept on rubbing and shortly was cured. My fathers cured rheumatism in his right arm and shoulder with Nerviline, and my mother cured herself of chronic lumbago with Nerviline. Our family simply swears by Nerviline and we are never without a 50c family size bottle in our home. We find that for external pain, for coughs, colds, earache, such minor ills it is a veritable family physician."

The Germans having effected the ruin of Belgium, "disclaim all responsibility" as to feeding its unhappy people, and will allow them to starve, if we do not send aid. This is the fact, and comment on the conduct of the Germans in this letter is unnecessary.

The Belgians have excited the admiration of the whole civilized world, outside Germany, by their magnificent defence of the independence of their country and of the principles of freedom against overwhelming odds; and, under these conditions we ought, as it seems to us, to do all that we can to alleviate the misery of the Belgians.

We are in communication with the Belgian Minister, and also with the New York Committee of the Belgian Relief Fund, and are informed that the American committee in the city of London, which is working in co-operation with our ministers in Belgium and Holland, has received definite assurance from Germany that the supply of food to the suffering Belgians will not be interfered with. We can hardly believe that the Germans, in spite of their past conduct toward Belgiums would dare to violate this pledge.

Moreover, it must not be forgotten that a considerable part of the food supply is to go to the large number of destitute Belgian refugees in Holland.

JAPANESE EMPEROR CO-OPERATES

Tokio, Nov. 9.—Emperor Yoshihito has donated 50,000 yen ($25,000), toward the foundation of St. Luke's International Hospital at Tokio, which will be conducted under the auspices of the Episcopal Church mission, represented by Dr. Rudolph Teusler.

The announcement of the Imperial gift to a Christian institution which is without precedent here, was made by Count Okuma, the Japanese Premier at a luncheon today attended by fifty of the most prominent persons in Tokio. The British Ambassador Sir William Conyngham Greene, sent a letter and the American Ambassador, George W. Guthrie, delivered a speech.

The substantial Imperial support, it is stated here, assures the success of the undertaking which will cost about half a million dollars.

It is planned to make the establishment the most elaborate in the Far East, and it will mark a distinct advance in medical research work here.

Count Okuma, in making the announcement of the Emperor's gift, said that the Emperor was personally derisious of solidifying the International undertaking.

WOLVES AND BUFFALO

Extermination of Wood-Buffalo Threatened by Wolves

Investigations carried on by the Forestry Branch of the Dominion Government have proven conclusively that several large herds of wild buffalo are still to be found in the hilly country on the northern boundary of Alberta, in the neighborhood of the Slave River. A party working under the direction of A. J. Bell, the Government agent at Fort Smith, made a study of the habits, and obtained photographs of these buffalo, which are identical in appearance with the former buffalo of the plains, the remnants of which were forced to seek shelter in the timbered fastnesses of the north.

These wood-buffalo, when fully grown, are able to defend themselves against their natural enemies, but in the winter, before the young yearlings have attained full strength, they frequently fall victims to the timber-wolves. Bands of these wolves hover around the flanks of the buffalo herds as they pass in single file from one feeding-ground to another, waiting for the opportunity to cut off a young animal and drive it from the beaten trail into the deep snow, where it is unable either to escape or to defend itself.

Partly eaten carcasses were found by the investigating party, which clearly indicated that the wolves were the cause. These great timber-wolves are of large size, and are very numerous in this region, where they menace the existence, not only of the wood buffalo, but of other game as well. The Dominion Government already offers a bounty of twenty dollars apiece for their destruction, but so sparsely inhabited is the region, and so clever are the wolves in avoiding traps, that the present bounty has had little effect in reducing their numbers. It is possible that the Dominion Government will raise the bounty here to forty dollars in the hope of ridding the regions of these pests and of preventing the extinction of the last wild bison in existence.

USES FOR SAWDUST

A Former Waste Product is Now Extensively Employed

Not so very long ago about the only real use anyone had for sawdust was for packing ice. That was when small local saw mills were more common, and the amount of this form of waste wood was, or at any rate appeared, comparatively small. Now, when the tendency is to consolidate these into large mills with a capacity of several hundred thousand feet of lumber per day, the daily waste in sawdust is seen to be enormous and much experimenting is being done to discover new methods of utilizing it. Perhaps the most promising venture in sawdust utilization in Canada is the manufacture of ethyl (or grain) alcohol. The sawdust is treated with sulphuric acid under suitable conditions, resulting in the formation of sugar, which is then fermented to produce alcohol. Several plants have been erected to produce alcohol from wood in this manner, and, though there are some difficulties still to be overcome, the ultimate success of the process on a commercial scale is assured. Sawdust has been successfully manufactured into briquets for fuel for a considerable time in Europe by a very simple process. The shavings and sawdust are first steam-dried, the water contained in the wood being thus evaporated and the resin almost liquified. The sawdust is then compressed under heat into briquets of the desired size, the contained resin acting as a binder. A firm in Vancouver is engaged in a similar line of manufacture, the sawdust being compressed into a cylindrical tube where it is cut into short lengths by a revolving knife, emerging in the form of small round briquets. These briquets are clean to handle, easy to kindle, and leave very little ash. In England sugar is manufactured on a commercial scale by treating sawdust in closed retorts with weak sulphurous acid under high pressure. In Austin, Texas, also a plant is being built to manufacture stock food from sawdust, by a somewhat similar process. The tar, pitch and turpentine are removed from the sawdust leaving only sugar and fibre to which is added forty per cent. of cottonseed meal. The mixture is sold for fattening cattle. Two and one-half parts of clean sawdust mixed with two parts sand and one part cement make a warm long-wearing and sound-proof floor, to which carpets can be tacked with less injury than to a board floor, and which has the advantage over a cement floor in being more elastic. These qualities should win an extensive use for this form of flooring, which has the additional advantage that it can be stained to harmonize with interior finishings by the addition of color to the mixture while in a semi-liquid state. The sawdust of certain kinds of woods is used in considerable quantities by manufacturers for metal polish, for packing, for meat curing, for making safety explosives, and composition novelties, and for fibre and pulp manufacture. Patent cleaning powders for use on carpets and rugs consist principally of sawdust, lightly moistened by some cheap mineral oil.

Heaviness of Platinum

Platinum is the heaviest commercial metal known. Its specific gravity is 21.5, as compared with 19.26 for pure gold and 10.53 for silver. Briefly, platinum is 21½ times as heavy as water, more than twice the weight of silver and heavier, bulk for bulk, than pure gold. It is softer than iron, but somewhat harder than copper.

A free telephone office for the use of pilots and ships' officers has been opened on Platte Fougère, the unattended lighthouse guarding the rocky approach to St. Peter Port, Guernsey. The instrument, which calls up Guernsey, is gained by climbing a forty-two rung ladder.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $60,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each. 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes means to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

WHITE STAR OIL COMPANY, LIMITED

Non Personal Liability

Oil Stock is a speculative investment which gives the largest return on the amount invested that it is possibleto obtain. This Statement is verified by the fact that the largest fortunes in the United States were made from speculation in oil.

The WHITE STAR OIL COMPANY, Ltd have taken every precaution to eliminate the hazardous features which usually accompany this kind of investment, viz

Each one of our different properties were approved before their purchase by an expert geologist with a great deal of experience in selecting well sites in this field.

Our holdings comprise 1000 acres which are located in the three proven districts of the Alberta Oil Field, namely The Monarch. Okotoks and Sweet Grass districts where scores of wells are now being drilled.

The Directorate of our Company is composed of substantial business men whose success in other lines of business is sufficient to warrant the stock holders a sound adminstration to the company's affairs.

Our Stock is now selling at 10c per share, par value $1.00. All prospective investors may obtain further information from our representative at 246 Antrim Street. Our advice is to buy while you can get in on the ground floor before the first issue is exhausted.

THE NEW WELLAND

Twenty-five Miles Long With a Fall of 325 Feet

As finally located the enlarged Welland ship canal will conform closely to the route of the present canal from Lake Erie to Allanburg, a point about midway between Lakes Erie and Ontario. From Allanburg an entirely new location will be followed. This will cross the present canal twice, finally reaching Lake Ontario at the foot of Ten Mile Creek—three miles east of the present terminus at Port Dalhousie. The total length will be 25 miles. The fall of 325½ feet will be accomplished by seven locks, each having a lift of 46½ feet. Each lock will be 800 feet long and 80 feet wide, with a minimum depth of water over miter sills of 30 feet. The canal will be 200 feet wide at the bottom, designed for a depth of 30 feet, but excavated for only 25 feet for the present. This will permit dredging out the remaining 5 feet at any future time. At Port Colborne, the Lake Erie terminus, a new breakwater will be built on the west side of the entrance to insure quiet water in the harbor during storms, the present breakwater being insufficient for the purpose. The new breakwater will consist of an immense rubble mound of stone from the excavation north of Port Colborne, and will terminate in a timber-and-concrete headblock located some 2,000 feet farther out in the lake than the present breakwater.

GREAT SWIMMERS

The Channel Attracts Many But Few Get Across

Long-distance swimming is a sport that has been almost monopolised by the English. Practically all the great distance swimmers have been born on the British isles, with the exception of the three noted women experts, [illegible] Kellerman, of Australia; Rose Pitnof, of Massachusetts, and Madame Isacescu, of Vienna. And the goal of every long distance swimmer's ambition is, of course, to swim the English Channel.

The water in the English Channel is ten degrees warmer than that of the North Atlantic, and while a swimmer is apt to become numbed from his long immersion, as a rule he has not to desist from this cause. To swim the English Channel demands the utmost powers of endurance, a thorough knowledge of the course to be followed, and a slice of luck. When Webb crossed the channel happened to be as calm as a lake, and when he was beginning to feel the effects of the heat a cool breeze sprang up and refreshed him. Burgess, too, was favored by a calm sea, and water at a temperature of 66 degrees. Both Webb and Burgess were accompanied by friends and advisers in boats, and without a pilot it would be madness for anyone to attempt the swim. Photographs taken of Burgess at the time show him floating on the water while he studied a chart held by one of his friends over the side of the boat.

Webb's feat was accomplished on August 25, 1875, and followed an unsuccessful attempt by 13 days. Webb was in the water nearly 22 hours, and was at the point of exhaustion when his feet touched bottom on the French shore. A party of friends rushed out and carried him to land. He was the hero of the hour in both England and France, and gifts were showered on him. Captain Webb lost his life later on in an attempt to swim the Whirlpool Rapids at Niagara. Burgess who crossed the channel a couple of years ago, is a Yorkshire man, now a resident of France. He covered the course in 22¼ hours. It was Burgess' thirteenth attempt in eight years. On two or three occasions he was close to the French shore, but was swept away by the tide. In 1908 he was only half a mile away from the coast. All told, there have been 82 attempts by 24 different swimmers to cross the English Channel.

CETS DECORATION FOR GR AT BRAVERY

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Mrs. William Boultbee, of Walmer road, has just received a letter from her daughter, Miss Rosamud Boultbee, who is at present in London, England, on her way to Russia. The letter announces that M. Tadilne de Zboromirski, Miss Boultbee's fiance, who is an officer with the Russian army, has been decorated with the cross of St. George for conspicuous bravery in the Galician campaign. This decoration, it is said, ranks with the Victoria Cross of Great Britain.

CLEVER WORKMANSHIP

Aged Goderich Man Made Pistol From Odd Scraps of Metal

A rare example of skill, patience, and perseverance is found in a remarkable piece of handicraft by Mr. William McArthur of Goderich, Ontario.

Mr. McArthur filed and fitted without the aid of any machinery a pistol that is the admiration of everyone who sees it. But when one learns from what a miscellaneous assortment of oddities the weapon was made, one can be excused for doubting at first that such an intricate work could be performed by hand.

From a sewing machine shaft the firing barrel was filed; a rat-tail file changed its shape to a firing bolt; a flat file became the trigger; a tuning fork was utilized for the barrel-brake, while a piece of copper steam pipe was cut and fitted for the stock sides.

Nine years ago the pistol first took shape in the mind of the old gentleman, now well over the allotted span of life, and many a dreary winter night was spent filing and shaping the manifold parts that each might fit its proper place with exactness.

PAVEMENTS OF RUBBER

Expensive as Yet But a Distinct Probability of the Future

It is not yet practicable to construct roads with surfaces of rubber except at a cost of $25 per yard, but there is little doubt that they will ultimately be adopted, says The Canadian Engineer. At the International Rubber Exhibition held in London recently, rubber paving was shown both for use on footways and on carriages. In each case the rubber constituted a surface cushion on blocks of jarrah wood, the material being held tightly in position by dovetailing, while a special joint locked the paving, preventing, when laid, the access of water to the concrete foundations. It is contended that thinner foundations are necessary owing to the reduced amount of vibration which occurs by heavy and fast-moving traffic, and further, that it never becomes slippery and that motor vehicles do not "skid" upon it under unfavorable conditions of weather. A section of rubber paving laid in the Old Kent Road, London, where the traffic is heavy, is not perceptibly worn after a year's use.

Concrete as a Bridge Material

Without an arched support or centre pier a single span concrete bridge 64 feet long, strong enough for the heaviest vehicle traffic, has been built in Illinois.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). cf a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

ORIGIN OF AMBER

"Clotted Sunshine" of the Ancients is Merely Fossilized Gum

Scientists have said that the high value placed on gold is purely a hereditary instinct, coming down to our present enlightened generation from our sun-worshipping ancestors, who saw, in its color, some kinship with the life-giving "orb of gold" above their heads. The same explanation has been given for the esteem in which amber has always been held—"clots of sunshine," the glowing globules have been called. Whether because it was "sun-stuff" or simply because it was pretty, the fact remains that in all ages amber has been coveted by the ladies for their adornment, and has ranked as a gem from the stone age to the present day.

Great mystery the ancients made of its origin, appearing as it did mysteriously and by chance on the shores of many seas, but amber is now known to be the resinous gum of prehistoric trees fossilized in certain strata of the earth's crust, and here and there laid bare by the gnawing of the ocean currents, to be rolled up in rounded pebbles or nuggets on the nearest strand.

Amber has been found on all the coasts of Europe, and sometimes in inland lakes and springs, or in the shafts of coal mines. The so-called amber of Burma and other parts of the East seems to be rather a non-fossil gum similar to the copal which is used in making varnish. It seems probable that all the genuine amber is directly or indirectly of European origin. The chief deposits of amber are on the shores of the Baltic near Konigsberg, the only place in the world where the collecting and mining of the precious fossil is an organised industry. From these shores the Greeks and Romans obtained their chief supply, and here it is to-day worked into pipe mouthpieces, or ground up to serve as a basis for varnish. Another use of the powdered amber is in Oriental temples, where it is burned by Mohammedans and by Buddhists as an incense.

It is as a gem, however, that amber is most attractive; and here the pale yellow product of the north is surpassed by the many-hued nuggets which the streams and shores of Sicily yield. Not only does yellow deepen into orange and orange into a dark rust-red—it even occurs in greens and mellow blues, and is rendered more lovely by the fluorescence of its surface, causing a shifting play of colors with every change of light. Such treasures, however, are rare, and when found compete not unequally with diamonds in value. The surface of cut amber dries and darkens with age, adding variety to the hues obtainable. A wide variety of object has been found embedded in amber and much interesting knowledge of early insect life has been obtained by zoologists from the specimens thus immortalised—a form of immortality which has also provided a favorite figure for the poets.

GERMANY'S TRAINER

Rumored Big Salary Paid to Secure Olympic Supremacy

It is reported that A. G. Kraenzlein has signed a five-year contract to prepare Germany's representatives for coming Olympic meets and it is said he will receive $50,000 for his services.

The $50,000 part of the contract however, is to be doubted, according to Lawson Robertson, trainer of the Irish-American A. C. track and field team. Lawson was offered the German job, with a three-years' contract at about $2 500 a year.

Lawson calls attention to the fact that all the European countries who are engaging trainers pick native sons. While Kraenslein isn't a German by birth, he is a product of Milwaukee, a little Germany in itself.

Kraenslein has been a wonderful athlete. He first shone as a hurdler, afterward took to broad jumping, and then to all-round athletics. Some of his records still stand. He was a big, heavy-set chap with a wonderful pair of legs. He never could lay claim to being the most graceful athlete in competition, but he was a wonder at getting over the ground. He is now a successful dentist.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties — must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

SHREWD FINANCIER WAS THIS MANAGER

Hughie Jennings' Story of the Baseball Boomer Who Knew the Value of Publicity

In my career in minor and major leagues I have heard a million funny baseball stories, said Hughie Jennings, the famous manager of the Detroit Tigers, when asked to spin his best yarn. The funniest of all may read like fiction, but is fact. The man around whom the story hangs is now a prominent semi-professional manager in a large western city, and has a bank roll that is the envy of many a major leaguer.

This man received his start as a department store clerk. While working for a small salary, he learned that the firm did not back a baseball team. It was the only large store in town that was not backing a fast amateur club, as an advertising dodge. The clerk was a fan. He read everything printed about baseball, inside and outside, and believed he was just the man to manage a team backed by the store. And he helped the store manager to reach the same conclusion.

He decided he must be a first class press agent, so he never failed to tip off to the sporting editors any bit of news that came his way, especially about his club. He broke into the sport pages with the name of his firm so often that he soon received an advance in salary.

At the start he scheduled games in his home city only, but his club quickly made such a reputation that out-of-town teams were asking for dates, usually offering $25 to $50 inducements. Impressing upon his players that acceptance of this money by them meant the loss of their amateur standing, he pocketed the money himself. Before long his stipend from the games exceeded his salary, and he decided to back a club of his own, employing his brother as traveling manager.

If you wonder why this clerk succeeded as manager, let me relate two instances of his shrewdness. He wanted to get the results of out-of-town games, but hesitated about paying telegraph or telephone tolls, so he evolved a scheme to beat the companies. After each game his brother would telephone, asking for an imaginary person. Their code was simple, the initials representing the score.

"HUGHIE"

If the call was for Mr. C. A. Smith, the clerk-manager knew his team had won by a score of 3 to 1, for the first initial meant his team and the second the opposing team, the letters of the alphabet being numbered.

He filled his grandstand one day by advertising on the sport pages a reward of $200 for a $400 diamond ring lost in the grandstand upon the occasion of the last game. Men who never attended the games invested in grandstand seats on the hope of finding that diamond ring—which, of course, never had been lost.

PUGILISTS' PARENTAL AFFECTION

By the recent death of the mother of Fred Welsh, champion light-weight boxer, another instance was recalled of the strong parental affection shown by so many prominent fighters. Amid all his triumphs, Welsh's first thought was always of his mother, to whom for years he remitted half his earnings in the ring.

Packey McFarland, one of Welsh's greatest rivals, is another exemplary son in this respect. Two years ago he wished to return to England for another bout with the Cardiff champion, but his mother, who was in ill-health, begged him not to go while she lived. And nothing could tempt Packey to break the promise he then made.

Jim Jeffries, after losing to Jack Johnson, begged that the news of his defeat might be kept from his mother. Johnson, himself, out of his championship winnings, bought his mother a house, and invested a sum of money to ensure her an income for life.

Jim Corbett, immediately after winning his historic fight with Sullivan, cleared the mortgage on his father's home, settled other of the old gentleman's liabilities, and treated him to a long-desired trip to his native Ireland.

Caught Tame Bull Moose

A fisherman at Rossport, near Port Arthur, captured a bull moose swimming in Thunder Bay. The moose already was quite tame, and evinced no fear of man, and quietly ate from its owner's hand.

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of sound worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SLIDING TO FIRST QUITE LEGITIMATE

Big League Magnates Disagree With Ruling That Player Must Stay on His Feet

May a player slide into first base, instead of running past it. If he does, is he necessarily out? President Chivington, of the American Association says yes. He calls it an unwritten rule of baseball. The ruling by Chivington came as a result of an informal protest by Manager Friel, of St. Paul, against a ruling made by Umpire O'Brien, who called out Dixie Walker for sliding head first to the initial sack.

"There is no time gained by sliding, and in the case of first base, where the base-runner does not have to dodge a touch, the only reason for the slide is to raise a dust that will hide the play from the umpire," said Mr. Chivington.

Herrmann Disagrees

Commenting on the ruling, the Louisville Courier-Journal said:

"The statement given out by August Herrmann upholds the declaration made by this paper that a man who slides into first and beats the ball is no more out than the man who hits the ball to the fence. It is merely an unjust assumption of power by the official. President Chivington's contention that the umpires are right in calling out the player who slides into first base is ridiculous. Anybody who has run or played baseball knows that a leap when going at full speed will save time, and that the player who slides has a better chance to beat the ball. If Mr. Chivington is consistent, why not call the player safe when the first baseman slides into the bag in order to make a play? The baseman undoubtedly raises as much dust. Laying aside the question of whether the slide is advantageous, the rules are clear upon the point. Herrmann states the case plainly: 'A player is allowed to reach any base by running, walking, jumping or in any other manner as long as he remains within the lines prescribed. This is laid down in the rules of the game, and no umpire, president of a league or anyone else has any right to change this rule.'"

Mack Upholds Slide

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, also had something to say about the ruling.

"There is a lot to be said on both sides of the slide-to-first proposition," Mack declared. "The biggest thing in its favor is the fact that it undoubtedly prevents many collisions between the first baseman and the runner. A baseman may be drawn back upon the bag by a high throw or a bounce, and unless the runner, coming full speed down the path, slides into the bag, a head-on collision is inevitable. I have seen a slide prevent smashes that might have had serious results innumerable times."

Asked whether or not he thought the slide to first saved time, Mack said he thought it did, possibly a fraction of a second, which in so many cases decided the result of a game. "As to the danger of spiking," he continued, "some players try to spike the baseman every time they slide into a bag, but clean players won't spike a man jumping into first base often enough to warrant a change in the rules. The danger of colliding with both players on their feet is the great one, it seems to me," said he, and he ought to know.

ETON "ALPINE" FEAT

Boy Fixes Hat on Lightning Conductor Above Buildings

High above the street, pierced by the lightning conductor on top of the Eton memorial buildings, Windsor, England, was visible a soft grey hat, a challenge and a defiance to the powers that be.

It was placed there by a boy who had first to attack the top of the massive dome, then to surmount a number of pillars and ornamental work, and finally at a dizzy height above the street to "shin up" the lightning conductor.

How the climb—which to the ordinary man looks an utterly impossible one—was accomplished remains a mystery.

A local builder was called in to remove the hat. He engaged the services of an expert climber, who with the aid of ladders and other appliances succeeded in getting it down amid the cheers of the boys—but the dare-devil boy who fixed it had no ladder for his 100 foot climb.

SPLENDID SPORT IN FLYING BOATS

All the Thrills of the Automobile, Aeroplane and the Motorboat But Not Nearly So Much Danger

Year by year, almost day by day, flying is becoming to the regarded more as a sport than what was once called "the art." Although flying is yet in its infancy, it is not too much to predict that the flying machine will become a strong competitor of the automobile and likewise, if not more so, the flying boat, to any other kind of sail pleasure craft. The landings from the aeroplane have not always been successful, but to alight with a flying boat after a flight is as easy as to guide a motor car to a standstill.

In the first recorded race of these craft, held on Long Island, the sight of three machines jockeying for position was inspiring, while the close finish of the return trip from the outer buoy would stir the blood of any sportsman.

Water flying is safe mainly because there is always a good place to alight. It is not necessary to guide the machine along a narrow course for starting or to pick one's ground in landing. The surface is smooth and level, and one may head in any direction with safety. Winds over the water are invariably much steadier than over land, and if, through carelessness or inexperience, the operator does make a bad landing, or plunges the boat at too steep an angle into the water, or strikes a wing too hard, the accident cannot be grave. The machine is not seriously damaged and the operator is none the worse, except for his "ducking."

The first development in water flying, the hydro-aeroplane, has these advantages, but the later flying boat with its large surplus of buoyancy has all the advantages of a motor boat and a flying machine combined. It is as seaworthy as any motor boat of its size, and flies as well as any aeroplane of equal proportions.

Now that we have a safe system of flying, the development of aviation is sure and unlimited. For racing nothing can compare with the flying boat. There is the same chance to struggle for position as in yacht racing, and every opportunity for the airman to exhibit his skill in rounding the buoys and making his starts and landings. No prettier or more impressive sight can be seen than a fleet of flying boats rising from the water at the start of a race, or coming down the course "neck and neck" at the finish.

On the water, the flying boat is handled like an ordinary motor boat, although the controls resemble those of an automobile. The rudder is operated by a steering wheel, which also operates the device for elevating.

TAX ON RACING BETS

German Government Proposes to Legalize Making of Books

The "bookmaker question" is one which has long agitated German sporting circles. For the last thirty years bookmaking, according to the strict letter of the law, has been "verboten," like so many things in the Fatherland. Yet the profession has contrived to run its business and prosper to a fair extent.

Now the whole position is about to be changed. The Government has been considering the matter, and a bill has been drafted which will have the effect of giving State recognition to the bookmaker.

In Germany, as in France, the pari-mutuel system is in vogue, and the Government taxes all the transactions of that machine to the extent of 16 2-3 per cent., and realizes about $7,000,000 annually therefrom.

Now it is proposed to reduce that tax to 12 per cent. Of that the State takes one-half, the other 6 per cent. going to the various Renuvereine, or racing associations, for the purposes of horse-breeding. The Government hopes that it will lose no revenue by the decrease, as the bookmaker tax will preserve, and very possibly increase, the amount the State receives. As to the bookmaker, the bill provides for the recognition of a certain number in each large town, the figure to be fixed according to the population. He must pay a tax of 6 per cent. of his takings to the Government, and the Renuvereine will receive a small percentage of the winnings from the person betting. Small wins will be free from tax, which will afterwards rise as high as 10 per cent.

SUPERSTITIOUS CRICKETERS

Why cricketers should be superstitious is hard to say, but that the majority of them are very much so is a well known fact. Probably the most common belief in the cricketer's creed of superstition is that a bat which has made a good score can, if given a fair chance, repeat the performance. Hundreds of cricketers would give very large sums to possess themselves of a bat with which some famous batsman has knocked up a big score, and high prices have been offered for the bats of the leading cracks by amateurs who believed in the superstition.

Very frequently a batsman who discovers that he is unable to score with his own bat will borrow one with which some other man has made a big score. Another popular belief is that if a batsman places his pads on before the preceding batsman is out the bowler will almost invariably bowl him before he reaches double figures, and he will often ignore his captain's orders to be ready in that he refuses to put on his pads before he sees the retiring batsman well on his way to the pavilion.

GROWTH OF LANGUAGE

English Dictionary of 1616 Contained Only 5080 Words

Roughly speaking, the English language may be said to grow at the rate of 5,000 words a year. At least, that is the average growth by the measure of the dictionaries. Bullokar's "Compleat English Dictionary," in 1616, the year of Shakespeare's death, contained 5,080 words. Thomas Blount's "Glossographia" (1656) improved on this and was superseded in its turn by Edward Phillips' "New World of English Words" (1658), a small folio containing 13,000 words; and by the time it reached its sixth edition (1706) the number had grown to 20,000 odd. Johnson's dictionary published on April 15, 1755, though it improved all predecessors off the face of the earth by the perfection of its system and the soundness and breadth of its wording contained only 50,000 words, and it remained master of the field, even at this modest total, until Noah Webster's came along in 1828, and Worcester's "Comprehensive Pronouncing and Explanatory English Dictionary," in 1830, with 160,000 and 105,000 words respectively.

The latter part of the nineteenth century kept the ball rolling. The "Imperial Dictionary" contained 300,000 words, and Dr. Funk's "Standard Dictionary" (1894) entered the field with half as many again—318,000 words in all. There have been half a dozen editions of this, and the next new one will reach the high water mark with a total of 450,000 words, most of which are English beyond question.

Baseball in Prison

The American passion for baseball has been turned to good purpose at a Delaware prison. The warden decided to gratify the inmates' love of the sport as a reward for conduct. All prisoners who obey the rules and observe the discipline of the institution are permitted to play or witness the games. While armed guards patrol the top of the wall about the exercise-yard where the sports are held, they have not been called upon to quell any trouble.

Lifeboat Dwelling

A famous Cornish lifeboat, after years of service, has been converted into a dwelling, and is to let for $3 a week. This old lifeboat has done duty at many wrecks. It was launched when the ss. Mohegan went ashore on the Manacles with the loss of so many lives, and also at the stranding of the American liner Paris.

SEAL IN NEWFOUNDLAND

An Effort to Commercialize the By-Products Failed

An enthusiastic genius from England who visited Newfoundland promoting a scheme for developing various fishing industries more extensively, advocated the employment of a steamer to follow the sealing fleet, pick up all the carcases, and bring them into St. John's, where the best of the meat might be sold and the remainder converted into fertiliser; but it was pointed out to him that if it would pay a steamer to do this it would pay her very much better to engage in the actual seal hunt, and the scheme thereupon collapsed. The same genius it was who proposed, and actually did put into practice, the experiment of canning flippers and offering them for sale, but it is scarcely necessary to observe that as the appetite for these dainties is somewhat of an acquired taste he has not yet succeeded in inducing even the Island railway to include them in its dining-car menu. At the same time it must not be imagined that there is anything unpleasant or unpalatable in seal flippers, because the contrary is the case. They are excellent nourishing food.

The flipper or the carcase must be eaten fresh to enjoy it at its best, but staleness is not an insuperable obstacle, as may be understood from the fact that the salting of both into barrels for summer consumption is by no means unusual. Just as with beef and other meats the flipper or carcase of an old seal is not nearly so delicate or tender as the younger one, and it becomes rancid through the operation of the oil much quicker. There is, however, an ample number of the flippers of young seals obtainable every year to satisfy all of the local demands, and it would be no exaggeration to say that the sturdy health of the 4,000 Terranovan seafarers who tread the Arctic icefloes in the quest for these creatures is due in a substantial measure to their indulgence in flippers and seal meat, which provides the good red blood and the other elements that make for strength and physical endurance.

Wheat Yield of Manitoba

A report of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture on the wheat yield per acre covering a period of thirty years shows that the yield ranged from 8.9 to 27.86 bushels, with an average of 18.52 bushels. Only six times in the thirty years was the yield below fifteen bushels, and eleven times it was twenty bushels or higher.

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest test in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

All the Thrills of the Automobile, Aeroplane and the Motorboat But Not Nearly So Much Danger

Year by year, almost day by day, flying is becoming to the regarded more as a sport than what was once called "the art." Although flying is yet in its infancy, it is not too much to predict that the flying machine will become a strong competitor of the automobile and likewise, if not more so, the flying boat, to any other kind of sail pleasure craft. The landings from the aeroplane have not always been successful, but to alight with a flying boat after a flight is as easy as to guide a motor car to a standstill.

In the first recorded race of these craft, held on Long Island, the sight of three machines jockeying for position was inspiring, while the close finish of the return trip from the outer buoy would stir the blood of any sportsman.

Water flying is safe mainly because there is always a good place to alight. It is not necessary to guide the machine along a narrow course for starting or to pick one's ground in landing. The surface is smooth and level, and one may head in any direction with safety. Winds over the water are invariably much steadier than over land, and if, through carelessness or inexperience, the operator does make a bad landing, or plunges the boat at too steep an angle into the water, or strikes a wing too hard, the accident cannot be grave. The machine is not seriously damaged and the operator is none the worse, except for his "ducking."

The first development in water flying, the hydro-aeroplane, has these advantages, but the later flying boat with its large surplus of buoyancy has all the advantages of a motor boat and a flying machine combined. It is as seaworthy as any motor boat of its size, and flies as well as any aeroplane of equal proportions.

Now that we have a safe system of flying, the development of aviation is sure and unlimited. For racing nothing can compare with the flying boat. There is the same chance to struggle for position as in yacht racing, and every opportunity for the airman to exhibit his skill in rounding the buoys and making his starts and landings. No prettier or more impressive sight can be seen than a fleet of flying boats rising from the water at the start of a race, or coming down the course "neck and neck" at the finish.

On the water, the flying boat is handled like an ordinary motor boat, although the controls resemble those of an automobile. The rudder is operated by a steering wheel, which also operates the device for elevating.

TAX ON RACING BETS

German Government Proposes to Legalize Making of Books

The "bookmaker question" is one which has long agitated German sporting circles. For the last thirty years bookmaking, according to the strict letter of the law, has been "verboten," like so many things in the Fatherland. Yet the profession has contrived to run its business and prosper to a fair extent.

Now the whole position is about to be changed. The Government has been considering the matter, and a bill has been drafted which will have the effect of giving State recognition to the bookmaker.

In Germany, as in France, the pari-mutuel system is in vogue, and the Government taxes all the transactions of that machine to the extent of 16 2-3 per cent., and realizes about $7,000,000 annually therefrom.

Now it is proposed to reduce that tax to 12 per cent. Of that the State takes one-half, the other 6 per cent. going to the various Rennvereine, or racing associations, for the purposes of horse-breeding. The Government hopes that it will lose no revenue by the decrease, as the bookmaker tax will preserve, and very possibly increase, the amount the State receives. As to the bookmaker, the bill provides for the recognition of a certain number in each large town, the figure to be fixed according to the population. He must pay a tax of 6 per cent. of his takings to the Government, and the Rennvereine will receive a small percentage of the winnings from the person betting. Small wins will be free from tax, which will afterwards rise as high as 10 per cent.

SUPERSTITIOUS CRICKETERS

Why cricketers should be superstitious is hard to say, but that the majority of them are very much so is a well known fact. Probably the most common belief in the cricketer's creed of superstition is that a bat which has made a good score can, if given a fair chance, repeat the performance. Hundreds of cricketers would give very large sums to possess themselves of a bat with which some famous batsman has knocked up a big score, and high prices have been offered for the bats of the leading cracks by amateurs who believed in the superstition.

Very frequently a batsman who discovers that he is unable to score with his own bat will borrow one with which some other man has made a big score. Another popular belief is that if a batsman places his pads on before the preceding batsman is out the bowler will almost invariably bowl him before he reaches double figures, and he will often ignore his captain's orders to be ready in that he refuses to put on his pads before he sees the retiring batsman well on his way to the pavilion.

GROWTH OF LANGUAGE

English Dictionary of 1616 Contained Only 5080 Words

Roughly speaking, the English language may be said to grow at the rate of 5,000 words a year. At least, that is the average growth by the measure of the dictionaries. Bullokar's "Compleat English Dictionary," in 1616, the year of Shakespeare's death, contained 5,080 words. Thomas Blount's "Glossographia" (1656) improved on this and was superseded in its turn by Edward Phillips' "New World of English Words" (1658), a small folio containing 13,000 words; and by the time it reached its sixth edition (1706) the number had grown to 20,000 odd. Johnson's dictionary published on April 15, 1755, though it improved all predecessors off the face of the earth by the perfection of its system and the soundness and breadth of its wording contained only 50,000 words, and it remained master of the field, even at this modest total, until Noah Webster's came along in 1828, and Worcester's "Comprehensive Pronouncing and Explanatory English Dictionary," in 1830, with 100,000 and 105,000 words respectively.

The latter part of the nineteenth century kept the ball rolling. The "Imperial Dictionary" contained 300,000 words, and Dr. Funk's "Standard Dictionary" (1894) entered the field with half as many again—312,000 words in all. There have been half a dozen editions of this, and the next new one will reach the high water mark with a total of 450,000 words, most of which are English beyond question.

Baseball in Prison

The American passion for baseball has been turned to good purpose at a Delaware prison. The warden decided to gratify the inmates' love of the sport as a reward for conduct. All prisoners who obey the rules and observe the discipline of the institution are permitted to play or witness the games. While armed guards patrol the top of the wall about the exercise-yard where the sports are held, they have not been called upon to quell any trouble.

Lifeboat Dwelling

A famous Cornish lifeboat, after years of service, has been converted into a dwelling, and is to let for $2 a week. This old lifeboat has done duty at many wrecks. It was launched when the ss. Mohegan went ashore on the Manacles with the loss of so many lives, and also at the stranding of the American liner Paris.

SEAL IN NEWFOUNDLAND

An Effort to Commercialize the By-Products Failed

An enthusiastic genius from England who visited Newfoundland promoting a scheme for developing various fishing industries more extensively, advocated the employment of a steamer to follow the sealing fleet, pick up all the carcases, and bring them into St. John's, where the best of the meat might be sold and the remainder converted into fertiliser; but it was pointed out to him that if it would pay a steamer to do this it would pay her very much better to engage in the actual seal hunt, and the scheme thereupon collapsed. The same genius it was who proposed, and actually did put into practice, the experiment of canning flippers and offering them for sale, but it is scarcely necessary to observe that as the appetite for these dainties is somewhat of an acquired taste he has not yet succeeded in inducing even the Island railway to include them in its dining-car menu. At the same time, it must not be imagined that there is anything unpleasant or unpalatable in seal flippers, because the contrary is the case. They are excellent nourishing food.

The flipper or the carcase must be eaten fresh to enjoy it at its best, but staleness is not an insuperable obstacle, as may be understood from the fact that the salting of both into barrels for summer consumption is by no means unusual. Just as with beef and other meats the flipper or carcase of an old seal is not nearly so delicate or tender as the younger one, and it becomes rancid through the operation of the oil much quicker. There is, however, an ample number of the flippers of young seals obtainable every year to satisfy all of the local demands, and it would be no exaggeration to say that the sturdy health of the 4,000 Terranovan seafarers who tread the Arctic icefloes in the quest for these creatures is due in a substantial measure to their indulgence in flippers and seal meat, which provides the good red blood and the other elements that make for strength and physical endurance.

Wheat Yield of Manitoba

A report of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture on the wheat yield per acre covering a period of thirty years shows that the yield ranged from 8.9 to 27.86 bushels, with an average of 18.52 bushels. Only six times in the thirty years was the yield below fifteen bushels, and eleven times it was twenty bushels or higher.

Statues of Concrete

Adapting the principle of reinforced concrete construction to the making of models for statuary, a New York sculptress builds her models of wire netting and coats them with plaster with a brush.

Propeller Above Water

For use in French colonial waters where thick vegetation would foul submerged wheels shallow draft boats have been built that are driven by aeroplane motors and propellers.

CLEARS THE HEAD, OPENS THE NOSTRILS STOPS SNEEZING, CURES CATARRH

You Get Instant Relief by Inhaling the Soothing Vapor "Catarrhozone."

Catarrh is bound to come with this weather. Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head. Soon the ears begin to buzz and ring. The head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully, the nose gets plugged up and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally, this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMATIC CATARRH, which saps strength, depletes the vital energies till consumption is the unhappy result.

There isn't the slightest use in trying to cure this condition with tablets, snuff or spray. Such treatments are wholly inadequate. You must employ Catarrhozone the only remedy that possesses power to kill the germs of Catarrh. The healing vapor of Catarrhozone is carried by the air you breathe to the most minute cells of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Its antiseptic medication goes everywhere that air can go. No case is too chronic, no person too old—everybody that has catarrh of any kind can be cured by this grand treatment which is endorsed by thousands of physicians throughout America who say: "The only way to permanently get rid of Catarrh is to use Catarrhozone."

Inquest on Former Lindsay Man.

Lindsay Warder: The mysterious death of Simon Marshall is being investigated by the local authorities Marshall, apparently in excellent health, dropped dead on Saturday, just as he was about to step into an automobile. His last remark, addressed to the driver of the car, was that he was feeling exceptionally well. The words were hardly out of his mouth when he fell unconscious. He was carried into the office of a physician, but was dead before his bearer had taken him there. Coroner Turner decided to hold an inquest, and the stomach of the dead man was sent to Edmonton for analysis. The deceased went to Lindsay from Calgary.

From Church to Cellar.

Port Hope Guide: An accident occurred at the Methodist Church at Shiloh, just west of Osaca last evening. The church had been closed for the last month, being repaired and the opening services yesterday brought out exceptionally large crowds. In the evening the church was packed to the doors. Just as the service was about to commence the floor at the rear of the church began to sag under the weight and in an instant the crowd on this portion of the floor were hurled into the basement a distance of eight feet. Chairs and seats crashed through and two box stoves with a good fire in each went smash to the bottom. It is a miracle that some person was not killed.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

Lindsay Warder: Mr. Harry Hall, son of Mr. Joe Hall, South Ops, received a painful wound in the right foot on Sunday afternoon through the careless discharge of a revolver in his own hand. Mr. Hall had received the weapon as a gift from a member of the volunteer contingent on Saturday last, and it was at the home of Mr. Thomas Hawkins where the accident happened. It appears that young Hall, went out to the barn to examine the revolver, thinking it was empty, and Hall started snapping the hammer with the muzzle towards the barn floor. Finally it went off, with the result that the ball went through his heel.

HEARING IS RESTORED TO DEAF

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence" thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread notice throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to produce a stimulous necessary to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or headnoises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

IMPORTANT.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine st., Montreal, P.Q. who make a specialty of it.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

IMPORTANT DECISIONS IN YESTERDAY'S COURT

At yesterday's police court Everett Castle and Joseph Fallon were charged with disorderly conduct. Mr. O'Connell acted for the prisoners.

A local policeman gave evidence as to the disorderly conduct of the accused. The policeman Deighnan was not present when some girls came to see the prisoners when they were in the cells. He saw Castle locked up, Fallon came in to see Castle and Fallon came to see of Castle were locked up he, Fallon, wanted to stay all night. Fallon was put out of the station, and came back again when he was locked up. The witness did not see Fallon knocked down in the station. P.C. Cervante said Fallon "was knocked down but needed it." P.C. Cervante said the threw Fallon into the room where he was searched and Fallon fell. Fallon was not put into a cell with Castle. Chief Thompson remarked "Its not always wise to put such prisoners into the same cell." Castle, in the box, said he and Fallon were going home along George St on Saturday night. He denied any disorderly conduct.

P.C. Meagher arrested him. He thought P. C. Meagher was a "boob" In reply to Mr. O'Connell he, did "not think all the local police are 'boobs.' Meagher kicked Fallon out of the police station and told him to "get to H—— out of here!" On Sunday night, after his arrest Saturday night, two girls were brought in and for fun, locked in the cell with him. They were locked in by a man in uniform. Later on a man named Jas. Cooney was brought in by a police officer, and Castle, the witness, was introduced to Cooney as the "Spiritual Adviser." The officer asked "when are you going to hold service" Prisoner replied "As soon as I get my mouth organ." Joseph Fallon practically corroborated the former witness' evidence.

P. C. Meagher in the box, denied using profane language or making threats against Castle. He denied kicking Fallon. Fallon never came into the police station whilst here was there.

The Magistrate remarked that Detective Meagher did his duty when he saw the two young men loitering in a lonely place where women might be frightened by their actions. He continued that Meagher only did his duty.

Mr. Gordon remarked that the city wanted to clear out the dark places of the city.

The Magistrate imposed a nominal fine of $2 on each of the defendants without costs.

It is understood that an appeal will be made by Mr. O'Connell.

CLEANSE YOUR HAIR MAKE IT BEAUTIFUL

It becomes thick, wavy, lustrous and dandruff disappears—Hair stops coming out

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Russian Armies Advance Toward Berlin--Are Now Only Twenty Miles From Cracrow, Which They are Now Preparing to Attack in Force

RUSSIANS ARE NOT SATISFIED WITH THEIR VICTORIES OVER THE GERMANS

No Slackening of Their Pressure Against the Foe--Military Council at Petrograd Contends That Germans Should Have Been Allowed to Cross the Vistula, Even Had Warsaw to be Abandoned, Not one German Would Then Have Succeeded in Returning

Petrograd, Nov. 11.—The task of dealing with Turkey in the East will in no wise cause a slackening of the pressure being exerted along the German frontier, according to military authorities here today:

It is the confident belief in Petrograd that the great Russian army will crush its way through to East Prussia, Galicia, and Posen by force of its own weight of numbers. The reports from the front declare it is evident that the Kaiser is rushing reinforcements to the eastern front from Belgium. Men of commands reported a week ago to be fighting in Flanders have been taken prisoners in East Prussia, it is declared.

Russians Not Satisfied.

Telegraphing from Petrograd the Morning Post's correspondent says:

"The Russians are by no means satisfied with their recent victories. In certain quarters the opinion is expressed that the German armies ought never to have been allowed to leave Russia.

"At the war council, where the plans were laid down, distinguished councillors argued in favor of allowing the Germans to cross the Vistula even if Warsaw had to be abandoned stating that not one German would then succeed in returning.

"From a military point of view their contention was justified, but they were over-ruled by political arguments and it was decided Warsaw was not to be sacrificed.

"The surprising arrival of heavy Siberian reinforcements at Warsaw in the nick of time was part of the strategic scheme, the object being to catch the Germans unawares. Germany's finest forces were there, among them royal princes who brought gala uniforms to celebrate the capture of Warsaw at a ball to which invitations had already been issued. The Siberians had heavy artillery, outranging that of the Germans by nearly a mile which completely routed the Germans."

Tremendous Task For Russians

A Petrograd despatch to the Daily Telegraph says that at every point the lack of artillery by the Russians is compensated by the numbers of infantry. All along the Russian front bayonet tactics have been as common as artillery duels on the German-French battle-line.

"Having reached the German frontier," says the despatch, the Russians have a tremendous task before them, because the Germans on their own territory will fight in accordance with their own theories, with absolutely perfect lines of communication, on which the army will move automatically.

"The imperfect transportation conditions of the Russians will improve on the arrival of winter, which in Poland is about a month hence. This will harden the roads. During this month of waiting Russia will rush forward her reserve forces to the points of contact."

"That the Germans have abandoned hope of coming back to Poland is shown by their destruction of the bridges and their even plowed up the ain roads on their retirement. During four days, from Thursday to the Russians kept up a hot pursuit Sunhay, on the Thorn-Cracow front, of the retreating Austro-German army, which hastily flung strong rear guards on to the crossings of the rivers Warthe, Pilica, and Niday, with the object of checking the Russian advance and affording the main body on opportunity to pull itself together In general the artillery played the chief part in these rear-guard actions.

"On Sunday, the Russians, keeping up the pursuit, let their cavalry loose on the flanks of the defeated army with the object of completing the enemy's disorganization.

Czar's Forces Follow Up Their Successes and are Pressing On

Russian Troops Officially Reported at Miechlow, Only Twenty Miles From Cracow--The Advance Upon Cracow Expected to be Rapid--Captain Lieutenant and 150 Men of the Emden Were Rescued, and are Now Prisoners

PETROGRAD, NOV. 11.—THE INVESTMENT OF CRACOW WILL BE THE NEXT DECISIVE STEP IN THE EASTERN CAMPAIGN. RUSSIAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN OFFICIALLY REPORTED AT MIECHLOW, ONLY 20 MILES FROM CRACOW. THE MAIN ADVANCE UPON THE FORTRESS IS PROCEEDING ALONG THE RAILWAY FROM IVANGOROD. THE ADVANCE UPON CRACOW MAY BE EEPECTED TO BE RAPID. MIECHLOW IS ON THE MAIN RAILWAY FROM IVANGOROD AND SPEEDY TRANSPORTATION OF THE TROOPS, AS WELL AS GUNS, MUNITIONS AND SUPPLIES WILL BE POSSIBLE.

LONDON, NOV. 11.—THE ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCES OFFICIALLY THAT CAPTAIN KARL VON MULLER, LIEUT. PRINCE FRANZ JOSEF OF HOHENZOLLERN, AND 154 OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE EMDEN, WERE RESCUED, AND ARE NOW PRISONERS OF WAR.

PHILADELPHIA, NOV. 11.—ALDERMAN R. A. RIGGS, DELEGATE FROM WINNIPEG, CANADA, ELECTRIFIED THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOUR, IN CONGRESS HERE TODAY IN APPEALING FOR ACTION THAT WILL REACH THE COURTS OF EUROPE, AND ENABLE THE WORKERS OF THE WORLD ONCE MORE TO ENTER INTO BROTHERLY RELATIONS WITH EACH OTHER. HE SAID THAT THROUGH THE PRESENT BLOODY WAR THE SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD OF THE WORKERS OF THE AMERICAN CONTINENT IS BEINGOR CANADIAN UNIONISM HE ENDANGERED, BUT SPEAKING FOR CANADIAN UNIONISM HE WOULD SAY THAT THE WORKERS OF CANADA WOULD NEVER CONSENT OR ASSIST IN WAR BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN, RESULTING FROM SECRET DIPLOMACY, OR ANY OTHER MEANS, TO FLY AT EACH OTHERS' THROATS OR SPILL THE BLOOD OF ANY OTHER FELLOW WORKERS ON THE CONTINENT.

THE TIDE OF BATTLE IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM FLOWS BOTH WAYS

The Allies Join Along the Coast Northward--Germans Occupy Dixmude, Which Has Repeatedly Changed Hands During Recent Operations--New York Herald Publishes Veiled Threat Against Germany

Paris, Nov. 11.—Fighting on the battle line from Nieuport to the Lys, continues with the greatest intensity, but with varied fortunes for both the allies and the Germans, the official communique issued at 3 o'clock this afternoon declares. It adds that the French have reoccupied Lombaertsyde, but the Germans however, now hold Dixmude.

This would indicate an advance of the French lines northward along the coast but a similar slight advance for the Germans to the south. Dixmude has changed hands repeatedly during the fighting, marking the efforts of the Germans to pierce the allied lines and reach the coast.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Herald says editorially: "If it is true, as cabled from Amsterham that Germany has threatened to prevent the American Relief Committee from distributing food and other supplies to the suffering Belgians the defenders of 'kultur' in this country will have some more defending to do. Germany's attitude toward and actions in Belgium are a crime against civilization. Having conquered and overrun a country with which they had neither quarrel nor excuse of quarrel the Germans have stripped the country of not only its valuables but of its food supplies, and at this time when neutral nations are compelled in the interests of humanity to undertake the task of saving the Belgian people from starvation, the Germans continue their pillage. Now that to their handalism they add the threat of preventing the distribution of supplies to the needy, the spectacle is one that not even the greatest admirer of German prowess can view with any feeling save disgust."

BRITISH PAY GLOWING TRIBUTES TO CHIVALRY OF CAPT. OF EMDEN

London, Nov. 11. The English press today makes the handsomest acknowledgements of the courage and chivalry of Captain Muller of the German cruiser Emden, whose conduct throughout his meteroic career presents so striking a contrast to the behavior of German officers and troops in Belgium.

"We salute Von Muller as a brave and chivalrous foe," says The Times. "We trust his life has been saved, for if he came to London he would receive a generous welcome. Our maritime race knows how to admire a daring and resourceful seaman."

The Morning Post concludes a warm eulogy with: "The conduct of Von Muller, who seems to have been brave with brutality, is something to set against the inhuman, beastly cruelties practised by the German army, especially officers on the civil population of Belgium and North France."

The Daily News says his chivalry hope that his name may be found in the survivors' list, says he won the respect of the British people as an enterprising and honorable fighter.

The Daily News says his was as high as his skill, courage and resource, and in the end his vessel was worthy of her whole career.

The Telegraph says: "It is almost in our heart to regret that the Emden had not been captured but destroyed. We certainly hope Muller has not been killed, for he has shown himself to be enterprising, cool, and daring in making war on our shipping. So far as known he has destroyed over seventy-four thousand ton of shipping without the loss of a single life. There is not a surviver who does not speak well of this young German, the officers under him, and the crew who were obedient to his orders."

TSING-TAU SURRENDERED TO ALLIES TO SAVE UNNECESSARY LOSS OF LIFE

Jap's Heavy Guns Had the Range, and Nothing Would Have Been Gained to Germans by Holding Out Any Longer. Peking Did Not Expect Surrender for Two Weeks. Governor and 2,000 Officers and Men Will be Transported

New York, N.Y., Nov. 11.—The East and West News Bureau today made public the following cablegram which was received from Tokio:

"Permitted to capitulate instead of surrendering unconditionally, the former Governor of Tsing-Tau and his officers, were, in compliance with the gracious wish of the Japanese Emperor, allowed to wear their swords and maintain soldiers' honor, Capt. Meyer Waldeck said:

Wireless Was Destroyed.

"'Four or five days prior to the surrender of the fortress the wireless station was destroyed, making it impossible any longer to communicate with Peking. The successful storming of Bismarck fort by the attacking soldiers, who recklessly hurled themselves at us by making human bullets of their bodies, sealed the fate of Tsing-Tau. It then became evident that the garrison could no longer hold itself against the shelling of heavy artillery. To have done so would have swelled the list of casualties and nothing would have been gained. That forced me to raise the white flag.'

Two Weeks Too Soon.

"The German Charge D'Affaires at Peking says that Tsing-Tau fell two weeks sooner than was expected.

"The Governor, with 2,300 officers and men, will be transported to Japan as prisoners on Nov. 12."

CAPT. CARR-HARRIS, A CANADIAN REPORTED AS MISSING IN AFRICA

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 11.—A cable from the British War Office today to Prof. Carr-Harris announced that his second son, Capt. Edward Dale, Carr Harris, was among the missing in South Africa. Captain Carr-Harris graduated from the Royal Military College here in 1899. He was attached to the Imperial army and had served in China in 1900, when he received a medal and clasp. On the outbreak of hostilities he was removed from the staff college at Quetta, India, to South Africa.

Has Relatives in Toronto.

Capt. Carr-Harris is a brother of Mr. R. R. Carr-Harris and Miss Marguerite Carr-Harris of Toronto. He was born in Kingston, the second son of Prof. Carr-Harris. He was well known in Toronto in social and athletic circles, more particularly the latter since he was captain of both football and hockey teams of the R. M.C., He was promoted to be battalion Sergeant-major at R.M.C., the highest honor in the gift of the college; got the sword of honor and passed out at the head of his class.

Early Saw Foreign Service

He went to England upon receiving a commission in the Royal Engineers but was soon appointed to the China service, going to Wei-Hai-Wei. Later he saw service at Singapore; in the Kohat valley (N.W. India) as district engineer; in the Kuaram valley (Afghanistan frontier) and later in the Quetta staff college. Recently he was ordered to South Africa where he saw active service.

MR. ASQUITH SAYS EUROPEAN WAR MAY END SOONER THAN EXPECTED

London, Nov. 11.—"I doubt if the war will last as long as people originally predicted," was the statement of Premier Asquith in the House of Commons this afternoon, following the opening of Parliament by King George with a speech from the throne.

The Premier pointed out that the first plans of the Germans have been frustrated by the allies, who now hold the advantage.

A distinctly optimistic tone was taken by Andrew Bonar Law, Opposition leader, in an address.

"The aim of Germany," he said, "was to win before the resources of the allies were available, but they have failed on both fronts.

"I have never cherished the delusion that this is a war of the German rulers only, It is a war of the German nation, but the resources of the allies are greater than the enemy's.

Hon. George Perley officially attended the opening. The High Commissioners for some time now have had the same status at State functions as ambassadors and occupy similar places in the Lords and Commons. Needless to remark, there were some significant absentees among the ambassadors at today's ceremony.

CRUISER SYDNEY NOT DAMAGED IN FIGHT WITH THE CRUISER EMDEN

Hong Kong, Nov. 11.—The Australian cruiser Sydney was not damaged in her fight with the German cruiser Emden off Cocos Island, according to reports reaching Hong Kong.

The captain of the Sydney according to these despatches, has said he saw only thirty survivors of the 300 men supposed to be on board the Emden. The German cruiser was a veritable shambles. Four officers and 22 other men were made prisoners.

More Fast Cruisers of the Same Type.

London, Nov. 11.—Todays critics of the incidents closing the career of the Emden naturally endorse very cordially the congratulations already extended by the Admiralty to the Australian Government on the distinguished services rendered by their own battleship. One exponent of naval strategy remarks that the Emden's career has shown our naval strength in the Pacific at the outbreak of the war was not what it ought to have been. The Westminster Gazette says that clearly we must have more fast cruisers of the same type. The lesson will no doubt be remembered when we come to consider the problem of Dominion navies.

PUBLIC MEETING TONIGHT

In compliance with the petition of seventy-five leading citizens of Peterborough, His Worship Mayor Buller has called a public meeting for to-night in the Council Chamber at 8 o'clock sharp. The object of the meeting is to consider and take action upon any suggestions which may make for universal peace at the conclusion of the present war. While the impossibility of peace until Prussian militarism has been destroyed for all time is recognised, still it is contended that now is the time for public opinion to bring pressure to bear upon the Allies to so arrange subsequent peace terms that a recurrence of present belligerent conditions in the future shall be impossible.

Mayor Buller will preside at the meeting.

MAJOR-GEN. HUGHES IN TORONTO NEXT SATURDAY

Ottawa, Nov. 11. Major-General Hughes declared today that no changes were made in the plans for mobilizing the second Canadian contingent, while he was absent in England. The troops would have been mobilized at Valcartier the same as before, he said but for the winter weather. He himself had arranged the plans with his officers before sailing. General Hughes expected to leave for Lindsay on Friday night, and on Saturday morning was planning to be in Toronto with his staff to inspect the troops at the Exhibition grounds. Returning here early next week he will speak at the opening of the Conservative Club

NEW TENDERS FOR SNOWPLOUGHING WILL BE INVITED BY BOARD OF WORKS

The City Board of Works met in regular weekly session last night, Chairman Alderman Geo. Duncan presiding. There were also present Mayor Buller, Aldermen Weir, G. W. Green, McIntyre, Johnston and Saunders.

Regarding the unprotected embankment of the creek on McDonnell St., between Downey and Donegal streets, some eighty feet in length—the City Solicitor reported that the danger spot is on private property, and the city in doing work thereon would assume liability for accident, which the city is not at present. However, as the spot is a veritable danger trap, and used by the public, the owners of the land will be asked to deed the city ten feet of land for a right of way, at the point in question, between McDonnell street and the railway, in which event the latter will protect the bank.

The Bell Phone Co. was granted permission to erect a number on Hunter Street and Homewood Avenue

Ratepayers Should Notice.

Discussion elicited the fact that property owners are responsible for maintenance of their sewer connections from house to main sewer on street, unless such work has been inaccurately laid, in which event the city will pay cost of repairs, etc.

Snow Ploughing Tenders

Quite a batch of tenders for snow ploughing in the seven districts advertised were to hand. The Board spent an hour or more in considering them, when they concluded circumstances warranted tenders being asked to tender again to avoid any mis- These specifications provide that all understanding as to specifications. snow and slush must be properly removed from walks, and discussion in Council evidently led some tenderers to conclude that much hand-shovelling would be called for. Council's idea is that the work must be properly executed, and not skimped and that in cases of very heavy snowfalls, some few spots might require additional attention, even should a shovel have to be resorted to. Apparently in consequence of previous discussion to this effect some tenderers last night distinctly stated that their tenders included no shovelling, others pledged themselves to live up to the specifications. Therefore to avail friction and tions, and some did not state that they tendered according to specifica- dissatisfaction the following resolution carried.

Moved by Ald. Green seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that each tenderer be notified that new tenders will be received up to five o'clock on Wednesday next, that only tenders as laid down in the specifications will be considered, and no riders or qualifications must be attached.

Primitive Fish Hooks

What sort of hooks did our ancestors, our really remote ancestors, use "when wild in wood the noble savage ran?" I am inclined to agree with the American view that the earliest type of hook, if hook it can be called, was a straight bit of flint buried in the bait. When the fish had swallowed the bit of meat, or whatever the bait was, the tightening of the line pulled the flint across its throat, and, as it stuck there, the fish could be hauled ashore without more ado. Perhaps some bright innovator of that misty past one day tried a bit of flint which had a double curve like a pair of buffalo horns and found it effective, and perhaps out of that developed the genuine double hook, which seems to have been a very early form. And perhaps the single hook came into being because it was realized that one head was as efficient as two for the most purposes.—Rod and Gun.

FROM ROD AND CHAIN TO PROUD POSITION

Lieutenant-Governor Hendrie of Ontario Started Busy Career With Surveyor's Gang

It was no surprise to those who have watched the career of the man when Lt.-Col. John Srathearn Hendrie, C.V.O., M.P.P., was elevated to the distinction of Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario. It was one of the essential steps in the crowning of a career which gave great promise ever since the youthful days when he started out upon the earning highway of life by carrying a rod and chain for an engineer's gang on railway construction.

Of the physical type which gives evidence of latent power, of the mental capacity which has enabled him to grasp great problems in the commercial world, of the mixing type which has permitted him to gain many tokens of the popular esteem of his fellow-citizens, of the political caste which has won the silent approval of his fellows, John Srathearn Hendrie is now reaping the harvest of his earlier industry.

Still In His Prime

Colonel Hendrie is still young in years for a man who has gathered about him so many of the world's good things, his fifty-seven years sitting upon him lightly. Grizzled of hair and moustache, there is still a youthfulness about his features which bespeaks many more years of usefulness.

There is Scotch blood in his veins, both parents having emigrated from Ayreshire, and he is also of Huguenot descent. His education was received at the Hamilton public and private schools and at Upper Canada College, after which he responded to the belief that there is nothing quite so effective as a personal grounding in the practical side of a life work. He became rodman and assistant engineer on the construction of railways, working both in Canada and the United States, from which position he speedily rose until he became manager of the Hamilton Bridge Works.

COL. THE HON. J. S. HENDRIE

Hamilton, being Col. Hendrie's home city, gave him all his honors, except the last. His business enterprises have been diversified, but it was not until he was chosen Mayor of Hamilton in 1901 that his merits as a citizen were recognized in tangible form.

Elected to the Legislature

The following year saw him in the Provincial Legislature as a follower of sir James Whitney. Recognition from the Ontario Government came in 1905 when he was selected a Commissioner for the Hydro-Electric, and the same year saw him admitted to the Cabinet as a Minister without portfolio.

In and about the chambers of Parliament Col. Hendrie is looked upon as a silent man, somewhat indifferent, and when upon the floor of the House no one can accuse him of verbosity. One who has watched the proceedings of Parliament for years vouches for the statement that in his last four sessions he did not make a speech in the House. One might see him sauntering into the chamber hours after the deliberations began, apparently paying little attention to the routine of Parliament, sinking back in his chair and watching with the attitude of one to whom all this was an old story. But while Col. Hendrie watched in silence, he also worked.

As a Soldier

In the military world his ardor was felt for years. His first activity came when he linked his interests with the 4th Battery of Canadian Field Artillery, in which company he had risen to the rank in 1909. It is interesting to note that Col. Hendrie has always been an advocate of compulsory military training. In private life a fondness for horses has been one of his features, and he has done much to promotethats port. He is a member of many clubs and also a past president of the Canadian Artillery Association, the decoration of C.V.O. coming during his command of the Canadian Artillery at Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897

ROUGH TACTICS WIN PENNANTS

Baseball General of Bygone Day Believes in Real Warfare on the Diamond

Patsy Tebeau, one of the gamest of old-time managers, has no use for "kid glove" baseball. When he heard that President Pan Johnson regarded Manager Birmingham's Cleveland players as "too rough" Patsy expressed the opinion that the mollycoddle days had come.

"Show me a ball club that is fighting every inch of the way and I'll show you a team that is after the pennant," he said. "This having players shaking hands every time they meet is foolish. It gives the fans the wrong impression. You've got to get the fighting spirit to win.

"We never thought of greeting our opponents. Our idea was to get out and beat them. I can see a runner sliding to first with me playing the bag and getting his head pumped with the ball. Think I'd apologize? Not Patsy Tebeau! 'Get your head out of the way and you won't get hurt,' would be more like it. About a year ago I saw a fellow steal second. He came up all dust, and what do you think happened? Why, the second baseman helped him dust his uniform. And that team finished last in the race. That isn't my brand of baseball.

"Rush the other fellows off their feet. Make them think you're tough. Scare them to death and you've got them licked. We used to sit on the bench and file our spikes. They had to be sharp to give when they cut into the ground and at the same time the other team knew we wouldn't give an inch in a pinch. One day I was sharpening my spikes when I heard a man on the other team say, 'When Tebeau slides into me you bet I'm going to get out of the way.' I had him scared, see?

"There's a difference between rowdyism and aggressiveness. The aggressive player will be on top when the parlor boy is at the bottom. Off the field, oh, well, that's different. On the field fight them to the last."

PATSY TEBEAU
Fighting manager of the old Cleveland Spiders.

BEN TINCUP IS RICH

Indian Pitcher Plays Ball Only Because He Likes It

The majority of ball players are in the game for the amount of money they can get out of it; a few play it because of their love for the pastime. Ben Tincup belongs to the latter class. Tincup is a Cherokee Indian pitcher the Phillies picked up. He hails from Texas, and is said to be the richest ball player in the world, and probably one of the wealthiest men in baseball.

When the Indian comes of age in a few months his yearly income will be over $50,000 a year. He already has $20,000 stored away in a bank, besides being the possessor of 40 acres of valuable oil lands in Oklahoma, which the Government is leasing for him. So if Tincup fails to make good in the big leagues he won't have any cause to worry.

Since he is one of the few remaining Cherokee Indians, all the Oklahoma lands are held in trust for him. As soon as he is 21 years old he will go to Washington to collect the dividends which are accumulating for him. As Tincup's allotment of land was among the oil fields he is wealthier than many of the other survivors of the Cherokee tribe.

Preparing In Time

Antwerp has already commenced to prepare for the Olympic games, to be held in that city in 1920. A committee has been formed, and the support of the most influential persons in Belgium obtained.

The town authorities are to obtain a vote of several million francs for the expenses, and everything is being done to make the event a huge success. In recent years Belgium has come to the fore in international sports.

Forget Bride For Dog

So anxious was Charles Humer, of Carlisle, Pa., a noted wing shot, to recover a black and white pointer that he had lost that he forgot that it was his wedding day. When he was told an hour before the wedding by his kennel keeper that the dog had disappeared he rushed out of the house and started hunting through the woods of his estate and the wedding party was getting nervous when he was reached by phone after finding his dog. He hurried to the bride's home to explain as best he could that he had "forgotten."

THE Little Boy is [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

"[illegible]" [illegible] the Little Boy [illegible] [illegible] the One Who [illegible] "Mother, [illegible] —about spelling.

"Now, when I spell all my words right nobody says anything to me about it. But when I spell one little word wrong Teacher writes it on the board, and everybody [illegible] at me. I think it's [illegible]. Why [illegible] she write some of my words that I spelled right on the board?"

And we all looked at the Little Boy and laughed—and then we looked at each other—and sighed. For what he said was so true that it fairly made your heart ache to hear him.

The other day a woman I know came to take me for a spin.

It was going to be a long spin—all down the peninsula. We were going to visit the cherry trees and see whether the cherries were ripe as they should be, and the plum trees, and observe as to the probabilities of the prune market, and vineyards, and see what we thought about the [illegible] crop for this year—and it was going to take us all day.

The Veil Girl.

"I need a veil," said the woman I know, "this one is all frazzled out."

"So do I," said I, "this one is such a slippy thing."

And so we went into a large shop to look for veils. We found the veils, and we found a girl behind the counter selling them.

"We are in a great hurry," said the woman I know, "and I want a blue veil, as near the color of this coat as you can make it. And my friend wants a blue veil, too—the color of her coat. We want them big, and pretty, and not too slippy, and not too dear—and we want them quick."

"Yes, madam," said the girl behind the counter.

And she found the veils—the blue one of exactly the right shade for my friend, the woman I know, and the blue one of quite a different shade for me—and neither of the veils was either too slippy or too skimpy—or too dear.

They were just exactly what we wanted—just exactly when we wanted them—and the girl came out from behind the counter and pinned them on our hats, and tied them in the most enchanting bows under our right ears. She smiled all the time and was so quick and so deft, and so intelligent, and so courteous—that every time I looked at her I wanted to gasp.

When we left the counter, I started for the door. The woman I know took my arm.

"Wait a minute," she said. "Where's the floor-walker?"

We found the floor-walker and my heart fairly stopped when the woman I know stopped the floor-walker and began:

"The girl at the veil counter," she said.

Could it be, I thought, that the girl had forgotten to say, "Madam"? Some people are so fussy about such things; was it possible that my friend—? It was not possible. The woman I know is not that sort of woman—she's this sort:

Embarrassed by Kindness.

"The girl at the veil counter," said the woman I know. "I never saw her before—but I've stopped to tell you that she is the most efficient clerk I ever saw anywhere in my life. She is quick, clever, good-humored, and extremely courteous."

The floor-walker stared—he was greatly embarrassed.

"I'm glad to hear it, madam," he said, "but—what can I do for you? Er-r—"

"Why, nothing," said the woman I know. "I just wanted to tell you about that girl. If she had been cross or indifferent or stupid I should have told you. Why not tell you the other thing?"

A great light broke upon the floor-walker. He smiled, and his eyes shone.

"Madam," said the floor-walker, "I thank you. I—"

But we were off—for we were in a hurry.

I'm glad we went in after the veils, the woman I know and I. She taught me a lesson. I'm going to remember it as long as I live, and the next time any one shows me particular courtesy or particular good humor, or particular intelligence, I'm going to make it my business to speak of it—and to speak of it where it will do the most good.

I'm sorry for the Little Boy, and the trouble he has when he "misses" one of those outrageous words in his little blue-backed spelling book.

I wish Teacher had been with me that day in the shop. Perhaps she might have learned something, too—something that is not clever enough to get into the lesson books.

Three Minute Journeys

Where the Tide Comes in Like a Wall

By TEMPLE MANNING

WHILE visiting Hangkow, China, it was my good fortune to be the guest of a high native dignitary in that interesting city. Accomplished, well educated, with a wide range of interests, his hobby soon became plain in his deep knowledge of the ocean and his study of its tides.

A Rushing Water Wall.

Right at the gates of the city, he told me, there was one of the world's most famous tidal phenomena—the Hangkow bore. It was his greatest pleasure to go down to the shore of the sea, when the tide was flowing, and watch the moving wave of water come in. During my two weeks' visit with him we made the pilgrimage several times.

From the sea wall by the narrow inlet, whose constricting sides gave the water its congesting tendency, we would watch the incoming wave in silence. Beneath us the muddy sand lay oozing and slimy with sea growths left by the waters that had ebbed with the tide. Off in the distance, forming a horizon all its own, the advance guard of the bore would rise. Then we would creep to the edge of the sea wall to watch the wave's advance.

On it would rush toward us, 25 feet high at its "face," a veritable wall of water come out of the mysterious sea to flood the lowlands of the river. Boiling and hissing, a mass of milk-white foam and swirling eddies, travelling at terrific pace it would sweep in to the mouth of the river and crash against the sea wall on which we stood. Tumbling and foaming it would race up the river, and woe betide any small boat that met it.

My friend would stand there entranced and watch the bore flood into the river. He told me that he hoped to spend his old age in its study.

BEAUTY NOT BEST STAGE ASSET

Virginia Evans

What You May Achieve with Originality

By ELEANOR AMES

IT is a mistake to think beauty counts for such a lot on the stage. It is likewise a mistake to think nearly all actresses are beautiful.

An ounce of originality is worth a pound of beauty. Hard work and a sunny disposition will take you further than a cameo face and a Venus form. It is far easier for a manager to find beauty than for him to unearth ability.

It is better to be able to succeed in spite of your face than because of it. The pay envelope will visit you longer and with more regularity.

When beauty fades your day is done. Ability keeps on growing. There is always the hope of learning something, but fading beauty can seldom be brought back.

These are some of the gems of wisdom, spiced with humor, which Virginia Evans let fall, in a delightfully melodious voice, in the course of an hour's chat the other day.

Virginia Evans is more clever than beautiful. She is a natural, unaffected and sensible young woman with a shrewd head and a happy heart. She has been original from the day she took her first step, which, instead of being the tottering, little uncertain toddle of the average infant, was a steady stride forward, followed by another, and developed into a graceful and sedate walk, much to the discomfiture of her adoring relatives, who said: "It is not natural for a child to walk right off like that."

She was talking about two young girls who had just been to ask her advice about "going on the stage."

"If there is one thing I will not do," said she, "it is to give advice to young girls regarding the stage. I will give them facts, and they must act as they feel about it. There are too many girls who decide to go on the stage because they think it must be perfectly lovely to wear fine gowns, and have nothing to do but sing and dance for a few hours each day. More than half the time they can't wear the gowns when they have the chance, let alone sing and dance acceptably. And, as for the creative sense, which is one of the most important qualifications for the woman who would succeed in any work, they don't know what it means.

"When I say 'originality' I don't mean something which has never been heard of before, but something presented with a new twist. No two persons see any object exactly the same. But what is there to prevent one from hunting out the best viewpoint and accepting it? And then what is to prevent her giving it out to the world with some little frill which adds so much that it makes it seem new?

"Even imitation may be made over into originality. I am perfectly frank in saying that I have made myself up from what seemed to me the most admirable traits of the most admirable persons I know. In that way I have been able to correct some of my faults. One of the loveliest women I know always has some good word to say of every one—or else she keeps silent. I have practised that until it is almost natural, and it has helped me so much. Another woman always twists the clouds about until she finds the silver lining. I've tried that, too.

"Let the girl who wants to be a success in any work begin by being sincere with herself, her work, her friends. Let her be original and ambitious. And then let her forget whether her nose is pure snub or pure Grecian, or whether her complexion is peaches and cream, as it is clean and wholesome, or whether her figure is 'stylish' so it has strength and symmetry.

"A thought in the head is better than paint on the cheek any time."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

DECEMBER was a month of worry for me. The extra night work I had undertaken at Foote's factory to make both ends meet took a great deal more of my time than I dreamed. Mary and and I had some painful discussions.

"I think it's perfectly horrid," said Mary. "The town's full of parties and dances and things, and I do so want to go, and whenever I make any particular plans, just that night you're later than usual, and we can't go or else we get there so late that every one stares and wonders why. And I certainly don't want people to know that you're straightening out Foote's book-keeping just to—to make extra money."

"I once knew a corking little woman," I said, "who went into a book store at Christmas and sold books to make extra money for her kiddies."

Mary flushed.

"Are you hinting," she said, "that I should help earn some Christmas money?"

"Lord, no, Mary!" I exclaimed bitterly. "I surely never would dream such a thing of you. You're long on spending, but like most bully feminine spenders, you'd be short on earning."

Mary drew herself up to her full height and sailed majestically from the room. Barely three months ago such a conversation would have reduced my wife to tears. It is proof of my mother-in-law's hardening influence that Mary, in similar stress, now grows haughty and defiant, and sometimes even insolent.

Few months back, when I frankly aired certain bitter truths and Mary cried, I used to feel like a brute, apologize and emulate the lowly worm in general. Mary's attitude now goads me to unbelievable indiscretion.

As Christmas approached Mary's spirits soared. Nights she was bubbling over with a sort of festive energy. She made presents for nearly every one she knew, fussy little gim-cracks such as women purchase at fairs and men deride. I recall a hideous pin cushion fashioned of a wire tea strainer, some flowered ribbon and heaven knows what else. I only know that it cost more than any such atrocious insult to the spirit of Christmas ought to cost. Nights when I came home blue and tired, wondering in just what condition the day after Christmas would find my purse, Mary fairly radiated the spirit of Christmas cheer.

Now, instead of cheering me, as doubtless such domestic atmosphere should, I must confess it merely served to make me irritable and resentful. What right had Mary to laugh and dimple and sing of Christmas when I was overworking chiefly through her extravagance and her mother's influence? How easy to flit about and buy Christmas gifts with money you didn't earn yourself? How easy to absorb the world's Christmas cheer when life laid its responsibilities so lightly upon your shoulders?

And there I'm pretty sure is the chief difference between Mary's attitude toward life and mine. She feels no responsibility strongly—I do. Worry with her is transient like a sharp pain that hurts and departs. Worry with me is permanent and an ache.

"Why," said I, the week before Christmas, "do you give so many gifts, Mary? Your list is a good page long."

"Christmas is the time of giving," said Mary, earnestly. "I can't forget my friends, can I?"

Why battle against a woman's singular conception of Christmas? Any individual who cements a friendship with a tea-strainer pin cushion would never understand the real spirit of giving.

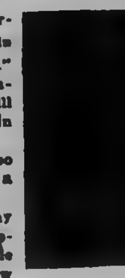
Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Very Hot Dishes Are Bad for Your Liver

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

THERE is a popular fallacy fostered by the super-[illegible] of the medical profession that "no drug in the pharmacopeia will increase the flow of bile." That is to say, the ukase has gone forth from the Agamemnons of medicine that nothing in the pharmacy will cause the bile to percolate either more rapidly or in larger quantity through the liver.

One doughty knight of the plume has even gone so far as to say that, independent of "opinions," this is a settled "scientific fact."

Yet Prof. Schmiedeberg of Germany and Prof. Cushny of England, both experimental pharmacologists of distinction, have definitely proved that bile salts, ox bile and gall from sheep will measurably augment the flow of your liver juices.

Moreover, spinach, asparagus, olives, peas, copious draughts of water, whey, buttermilk, cream, oils, grapes, berries and oranges all conspicuously turn loose the liver spigots and the effluent wells of bile.

Exercise by Laughing.

However, let your liver become active by the dint of laughter and the flow of gold rather than that the blue devils of purple bile be dammed up in a cold heart. Better a deep breath which squeezes the liver like a sponge than some hated potion or loathed medicine which might do little good or much harm.

Almost any type of gymnastics which brings the chest and abdominal muscles into play, nearly all such pleasant sports as rowing, swimming, tennis playing, bicycle riding, golf, running, nay, even a modicum of shortness of breath and rolling down hill bestirs a sluggish liver to pour out its golden bile anointment.

Cholera and melancholia were justly so termed by ancient physicians, because if there is anything more truly associated with depressed spirits than the dammed up gall sewers of the obstructed liver, physiological psychologists have yet to name them.

The European "kurs" wrongly understood as "cures," but actually meant only as "treatments" are efficient activators of the liver, less on account of any inherent virtues of the bad salts or mineral waters, than because the sojourner at the resort drinks more water, eats less solid food, and exercises more than usual.

Price of Indulgence.

Like the rainspouts and gutters in the eaves of your house, the bile channels of the liver are easily clogged up with dietetic twigs, leaves and other clinker-like rations.

The price paid for such victualary errors is a heavy one. If in addition to an excess of food refuse there are a few stray microbes left in the gall sack or bile ravines from some old spell of typhoid, erysipelas, scarlet fever, or other forgotten ailments, not only thick bile and a slow liver is the upshot, but gall stones and bile pebbles may result.

Spices, alcoholic drinks, even the much-heralded broths, soups and hot dishes have all been indicted, haled into court and found guilty as incendiary agents of liver inflammations.

Obviously all that is needed to prevent and also to cure these uncivil sundry evils is to follow the Nippon habit of muscular training. This consists of a liberal drinking of water, the maintenance of a cheerful disposition, and the sane abstinence from alcoholic and hot drinks and heavy victuals.

Answers to Health Questions

A. B. C.—Have bad feet and they have an offensive odor.

Perhaps you have flat feet. You should exercise them more frequently and bathe them three times a day in boracic acid, massage them well with a good cold cream, and then apply vinegar with a tablespoonful of peroxide to the pint. Wear soft canvas shoes and do not stand in one position very long.

D. E. N.—My skin burns and itches at all times and I have red spots. After shaving my face has an irritated look. No face creams or lotions help any.

Calamine lotion is good to use for a few days. Then massage your flesh before shaving for five minutes with glycerine-sugar soap. After the shave use rosewater, benzoin and glycerine, equal parts.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been keeping company with a young man for the last four years. He is steady, kind-hearted, and tries his best to get along, but as yet has not enough money to get married. I have been waiting for him this last two years, and he does not seem to make good.

He is very kind and thoughtful to me, and treats me better than any one I have ever met, but it is strange of late I do not seem to feel as happy in his company as when I am with some of my other friends, and when he is away for a few days I do not seem to miss him very much.

Please advise me whether you think it would be wise to wait for him any longer? I have never met any one who is so considerate and kind to me as he is, but I have met other boys whom I could like just as well. I am 22 years old. MAY.

WELL, May, do you know what I think—and I do not pretend to be any great mind reader, either?

I think you have met some one whom you do like not just as well—but a good deal better.

I wouldn't break that good, young man's heart by playing fast and loose with him any longer. Tell him you're too young to know your own mind—break your engagement—set yourself free—and him too.

It may be that he is not really in love with you, either, and is just hanging on out of habit, and because he does not know his own mind. Help him out by taking the first step. Talk it all over quietly and kindly, tell him you're both too young to know what you really like. Ask him to be your good friend and put an end to what seems to be a sort of dreary farce.

You'll know well enough when you are really in love—you won't have to ask a bit of advice as to how to tell that.

Bless your heart, I hope you'll meet the right man, and that he'll find you the right girl.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

DID you ever try to trace the genealogy of foods? It will result in illuminating data, and make the preparation of the daily meals far more interesting. I am strongly in favor of everything which lightens the humdrum part of housekeeping, and makes it more interesting.

Gradually I am becoming convinced it is the fault of ourselves, if we allow such very important work as caring for the comfort and well being of the family to become monotonous or stupid. Searching out the ancestry of foods is one way to keep up interest. There is a romantic side to some of the simplest food stuffs which is all unknown to the vast majority of those who prepare them and the others who eat them.

For example, I suppose whenever you pare potatoes, if you think about them at all, the Emerald Isle comes into your mind. As a matter of fact, potatoes are natives of South America. They came from there to North America. The Spaniards took them to Europe. Sir John Hawkins, in 1565, took them to Ireland. Sir Walter Raleigh is credited with having introduced them to England.

In 1663 the Royal Society of London recommended extensive cultivation of the potato in Ireland to safeguard against famine. It did not become popular in England until the middle of the 18th century, but was regarded as a fit food for swine and cattle. A most amusing fact is that it was brought to New England from its native Peru by the way of Ireland, and did not reach that part of the country until some time in the 18th century. It is first cousin to tobacco and belladonna, and is closely related to the egg plant, tomato and capsicum.

Onions came from Egypt and Asia. There is no doubt but Cleopatra ate onions. They were cultivated and esteemed as a table delicacy when that fascinating lady was in her prime. Perhaps she owed some of her health and beauty to the habitual use of onions in her diet, for they have always been valued for their medicinal qualities.

The cabbage came from France. It was early esteemed a delicacy in Brussels, and Brussels sprouts evolved from it.

Safer.

"I hope to make my debut [illegible] soon."

"Why don't you let them judge [illegible] voice by phonograph first?"

CETS DECORATION FOR GREAT BRAVERY

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Mrs. William Boultbee, of Walmer road, has just received a letter from her daughter, Miss Rosamud Boultbee, who is at present in London, England, on her way to Russia. The letter announces that M. Tadiles de Zboromirski, Miss Boultbee's fiance, who is an officer with the Russian army, has been decorated with the cross of St. George for conspicuous bravery in the Galician campaign. This decoration, it is said, ranks with the Victoria Cross of Great Britain.

Magistrate Dumble has given a decision that a Chinese Restaurant is not a "public place" when gambling is carried on therein.

LORD MAYORS PARADE WAS VERY PATRIOTIC

London, Nov. 9.—Shorn of its picturesque pageantry, but with its Imperial and military features unprecedented in a century, the Lord Mayor's parade made its way through the streets today in the first part of the ceremonial inaugurating Sir Charles Johnston as Lord Mayor of London in succession to Sir Thomas V. Bowater.

No English institution is more traditional than Lord Mayor's Day, but with the exception of the gaudily decorated state coaches of the Lord Mayor and other civic dignitaries, the parade today showed little color. The men were clad soberly in khaki and there was none of the brilliant display which usually distinguishes the procession.

Great London Scottish

Enormous crowds gathered early to obtain places from which to see the men who are fighting England's battles on the continent. One of the most popular organizations in the parade consisted of several battalions of the Canadian troops now waiting in England their opportunity to go to the front. Many of the London city regiments were represented by squads of men, and when a battalion of the London Scottish who recently distinguished themselves in France, swung along to the skirl of the pipes the crowd hailed them with great enthusiasm. But none of the military created more interest than did the veterans of the naval battalions who survived the fall of Antwerp.

[illegible]

Canadian troops who appeared in the procession, 300 in number, came from Salisbury Plain to London on Saturday afternoon, and were quartered for the week-end in barracks. Six men were selected from each battalion. Lots were drawn for most of the men. The Alberta band preceded the Canadians, Col. Turner, the commanding officer, was mounted. The other officers included Colonel Hill, Lieut.-Col. Villers and Major [illegible]

Dreadnoughts Still All-powerful

Naval supremacy depends upon Dreadnoughts is still the view taken by United States naval authorities, who have just ordered two of the most powerful of these vessels to be built. So is still the opinion of the British Admiralty. Such naval experts as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. George P. Graham, and the Toronto "Glabe" think otherwise. Less than two years ago they prevented Canada from having three of these great warships for the defence of the Empire.

◆

The British War Office is Supreme

Liberal papers allege that there has been delay in the organization of the second contingent, and that the Government is responsible for that delay.

The Canadian Government cannot serve the Empire by organizing army divisions at random; they would not be wanted and could not be sent. To adopt such a course would be to spend some millions of the people's money to no purpose. If that were done, the Liberal papers would be the first to protest, and they would be as right then as they are wrong now.

The troops which go from Canada to the front must be raised and equipped according to the requirements of the British War Office. That the War Office knows what it is about is amply demonstrated in the splendid record of the British expeditionary force in France. The War Office has at its head one of the greatest military geniuses of the world, Earl Kitchener, a man whose ability in planning and conducting organized warfare stands unequalled. It may be assumed with some confidence that he knows more than the Liberal newspapers of Canada about this business of getting up armies.

The "Globe" on Agreements

In its desire to prevent the people registering a verdict, the Toronto "Globe" has atsumed that one political party can force a truce, and that party the weaker and the one in danger of annihilation. The "Globe" in answer to Hon. Robt. Rogers statement of fact that no arrangement has been made between the political parties not to hold an election during the war, says that "Neither is there any agreement between the parties not to steal each other's sheep or cattle. Agreements in such things are not usually regarded as necessary."

For, judging by the Liberal party's attitude toward politi- particular restraining force. As cal agreements, are they of any the Taronto "News" points out

"There was an agreement between the parties upon redistribution for the House of Commons and an incease of Western representation in the Senate. When the constituencies for the Commons were adjusted to the satisfaction of the Liberal Opposition the portion of the contract affecting the Senate was repudiated. There was an agreement between the Canadian authorities and the British Admiralty to add three Dreadnoughts to the British navy. The Liberal Opposition forced Canada to repudiate the contract.

"There is no agreement between the Canadian parties concerning a general election. It is not likely that the Opposition will be asked to decide when Parliament shall be dissolved. It is true, however, that two years ago the Opposition undertook to dissolve Parliament, and for months attacked the naval proposals, to the desperate inconvenience of the Government, the humiliation of Canada, and the dismay of the Mother Country."

The "Globe's" assumption that a party on the run has the right to call a truce, and also to say when that truce will expire, is not the rule in political os actual warfare. If it were, majority rule in Parliament would cease, and the representatives of the majority of the people would have to acquiesce in the wishes of the minority.

Nerviline Ends Neuralgia, Brings Relief Instantly

No Remedy Like Old "Nerviline" to Cure Pain or Soreness.

That terrible ache—how you fairly reel with it—that stabbing, burning neuralgia—what misery it causes. Never mind, you don't have to suffer—use Nerviline, it's a sure cure. Not an experiment, because nearly forty years of wonderful success has made a name for Nerviline among the people of many different nations. "There is nothing speedier to end Neuralgic headache than old-time 'Nerviline,'" writes Mr. G. C. Dalgleish, from Evanston. "It is so powerful and penetrating that it seems to eat up any pain in a minute. My family couldn't get along without Nerviline. We always keep the 50c. family size bottle handy on the shelf, and use it to end chest colds, sore throat, coughs, earache, toothache, and pain in the back. My wife swears by Nerviline. For cramps its effect is astonishing and we believe it is better and speedier than any other household family remedy."

ITALY SHOWS PARTIALITY TO ALLIES

Rome, Nov. 10.—The large increase in the price of foodstuffs is causing some anxiety. In the public discussion that has followed on this condition many remedies have been suggested, specially in regard to wheat.

The surplus of this cereal in the United States and the next crop in Argentina, it is stated, have already been taken despite the fact that prices in both countries were considerably higher.

Italy, thus far, it is brought out in the discussion, has allowed wheat destined for neutral countries to pass through with the result that the importation of wheat into Italy, itself, as compared with that passing through nominally destined for Switzerland, but in reality, it is said, going to Austria and Germany, stands at two bushels to ten.

It is suggested that the Government prohibit wheat passing through Italy for all destinations until Italy has imported the quantity necessary for her own consumption. Then either all wheat sold in Italy should be at a moderate price or have no purchasers.

WHY PAINT BRUSHES CURL

Perhaps the most frequent trouble with brushes, for which the manufacturer is often blamed, is the bristles curling. In many instances this is no doubt the maker's fault, the bristles not having been cured properly. In good brushes the most common cause for curling is the manner in which the brush is wiped and the way it is put away for the night. If the brush is wiped across the points of the hair, the outside hairs are bound to straggle. A brush should be wiped just to the ends of the bristles and not so that the edge of the bucket will catch the outside bristles constantly bending them outward until they assume a contrary position from that intended. If ends of brushes curl up while painting blinds, grille or fretwork, dip the ends in hot water. This will straighten them.

AMATEUR PICTURES ENLARGED AT HOME

Good Results by Any Camera Lover With no Expense Except for the Large Size Paper

It is an easy matter to enlarge snapshots to a suitable size for framing, and it is not necessary to have a lot of fancy and costly apparatus to do it with. Almost any hand camera can be turned into an enlarging camera and fine results can be obtained.

The principal requisite is a room in which all light can be excluded and which has a window that will let in unobstructed light where you want it. A disused attic chamber or a storeroom will be fine. Even the cellar can be used if the cellar has a window that admits a lot of light. Cover the glass in the window sash with black paper and make it absolutely light tight, except for one place that is just the size of the camera box. If the window sash has four panes of glass it would be well to take out one pane fo. this purpose. Fit your camera tightly into the opening. If possible let this really be a hole in the window. You can then add to the light by equipping your camera back with are reflecting mirror.

Fit the back of your camera to the opening in the window and see that there are no leaks of light around it. The entire amount of light let into the room should come directly through the camera. Put the plate or film which you are to print in a plate holder or printing frame and attach it to the back of the camera so that the light will come through it and pass into the camera. Fix your plate or film with the image upside down.

Then place a table near to the window and put an easel or drawing board upon it so that the beam of light passing through the camera will fall on the board. Close the shutter of the camera. Pin a piece of bromide paper to the drawing board while the light is excluded from the room, and when all is fixed open the camera. The light passing through the plate and then the lens will print the image accurately on the bromide paper. The size of the enlargement depends on the distance the drawing board is from the lens. When you have your picture printed as you desire fix it in the way prescribed for bromide papers and your enlargement is finished.

Simple, isn't it? And yet it gives the finest sort of results.

BLUNDERS IN NOVELS

Women Writers Have Made Some Amusing Mistakes Writing of Sport

That popular novelists make all sorts of funny mistakes and perpetrate marvellous anachronisms when writing their tales is well known. Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Reade, and so on, even Mrs. Florence Barclay, have all fallen into the trap. But in nothing are so many laughable blunders made by novelists as in relation to sport, and this is particularly the case with women writers.

"Ouida" was probably the most astounding of all great story writers of her sex in this respect. Speaking of one of her heroes who was taking part in a famous boat-race, "Ouida" makes this astonishing statement:

"All in the boat rowed steadily, but none rowed so fast as number six."

If "Ouida" has any blunder to surpass this amusing error in a sporting content, it may be found in her description of a great horse-race, wherein her heroine is supposed to be the owner of the winner. And, this horse having won, the female novelist goes on to show the sensation made by the lady owner when "she came proudly into the paddock, leading the winner of the Waterloo Cup." The Waterloo Cup is the trophy awarded for the finest dog-race in the world.

Even Marie Corelli is not always accurate. Says she, in "The Treasure of Heaven," when her hero is speaking in that book:

"After school-hours I got an evening job, with a shilling a week, for bringing home eight Highland bull-heifers from pasture." Bull-heifers, indeed! What sort of creatures are they?

One of our living women novelists made her readers wonder, especially those of them who were swimmers or sailors. Indeed, the feat her hero achieved—according to her story—ought to be immortalized in letters of gold. The hero was supposed to have jumped headlong into a raging river to rescue the heroine and the following way is how he did it:

"With one hand he held her lovely head above the seething waters, and with the other he called loudly for help." Another feminine novelist makes her hero win the English Derby and astonish his friends by his prowess at partridge shooting two days later regardless of the fact that the Derby is run early in June and partridge shooting does not begin till September.

WESTERN PIONEERS

Men of the Eighties Who Persevered in the Face of Difficulty

There is little left of the Winnipeg of the early eighties. Each year sees a diminution of the links which bind the days when Winnipeg was the stepping-off place, to the present, in which Winnipeg acts the part of the gateway to prosperity and affluence to all who seek diligently and perseveringly. Each year, one or more of those who formed the little band of pioneers who exhibited that diligence and perseverance in the face of almost insuperable obstacles, who stuck to the town of their adoption in spite of hard times, through all the vicissitudes of the growth of Winnipeg from trading post to metropolis, steadfast in their faith in its future, pass to their long rest having seen their judgment justified, their dreams of the city that was to be come true. The city of Winnipeg, and indeed, the whole of Western Canada, joins in paying tribute to the worth of these pioneer citizens of the prairies, whose unbounded optimism it was which made possible the Winnipeg of to-day, and whose prophetic vision outlined, in spite of the struggles in which they were involved, the glorious future of the west, which to-day is just beginning to be realized. The story of their careers is an object lesson to all in display of sterling character, of business integrity, and a wealth of humankindness.—The Saturday Post.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs—all young foxes—good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company re retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:—"We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each, 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes means to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business—and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

THE EMDEN'S CAREER WAS PICTURESQUE

London, Eng., Nov. 10.—(Special Cable.)—The cruiser Emden, the German terror of the Pacific, whose sensational raids upon British shipping and even upon allied warships, have been a continual source of humiliation to the British Admiralty, is no more.

Finally forced into battle by the Australian cruiser Sydney, the Emden was sent ashore afire from stem to stern. Her grave is on Cocos Island, in the Indian Ocean, south of Sumatra, where she was driven by the Sydney after a sharp fight.

The news of the destruction of the Emden was announced by the Admiralty today. Almost at the same time came word of another British victory on the sea, when it was announced that the German protected cruiser, Koenigsberg had been driven into port in Rufigi Island off German East Africa. The British cruiser Chatham ran her down and the Admiralty claimed the German vessel had probably been driven ashore.

It is believed that the loss of life on board the Emden must have been heavy. She carried a crew of 361 men. In the destruction of this German vessel the sinking of the Russian cruiser Zemtchug and the French destroyer Mosquet, has been avenged. The Emden's career has been the most picturesque of any of the Kaiser's navy. Commanded by Captain Karl Von Muller, she has swept the Pacific capturing or sinking more than a score of merchant vessels of the allied nations, and brought her raids to a climax by boldly entering the harbour at Penang, where she sank two of the allies' warships.

Coming on the heels of the stirring war speeches of Lord Kitchener and Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the feat of the Sydney in destroying the Emden roused London to a fever of excitement today. The cry now is that the Good Hope and the Monmouth must be avenged. Weight of metal obviously told in the fight between the Emden and the Sydney, as the Australian ship carried heavier guns. Once on the trail of the German cruiser the Sydney was not to be denied. The Emden escaped when the Australian first came in contact with her. The German lost both of her storeships one being captured and the other sunk, but the Emden herself fled, refusing combat. The Sydney continued her pursuit, finally overhauled her and forced her to battle.

A fleet of at least seventy vessels has been combing the Pacific in search of the Emden. She has always eluded her pursuers just when it seemed she must give battle and go to her doom before the heavier guns. When reported in one section she would suddenly appear in another and capture or send some merchantman to the bottom. In the midst of her career of sinking and capturing vessels, the Emden appeared off Madras on September 22, and shelled a portion of that city. It is estimated that she caused a loss of ten million to the allied powers by the destruction and capture of vessels, not including the loss of trade. The nearest approach to the record of the Emden has been made by the German cruiser Karlsruhe, which is still operating in the Atlantic. The Karlruhe has sunk twelve British vessels to date.

London, Nov. 10.—The German cruiser Emden, which has been one of the terrors of British shipping in the Pacific has been destroyed by the British warship Sydney. The Admiralty announced today that the Emden has been driven ashore on Cocos Island and then burned to the water's edge.

The Sydney which finally ran down the Emden after a chase which lasted for several days, is a part of the Australian navy. It is presumed that it was the Sydney which located the Emden only a few days ago, and sank one of her storeships and captured another. The fleet German vessel escaped, however, showing a clean pair of heels to the British vessel. The Emden's most notable feat was her raid in to Penang Harbour, where she sank a Russian cruiser and a French destroyer.

The cruiser Sydney, which destroyed the Emden, called in Berlin, the "terror of the seas," is one of the protected cruisers belonging to the Australian navy. She was completed in 1913, displaces 5,600 tons, is 430 feet long, and has a speed of 25 1-2 knots. Her armament consists of eight 6-inch guns and some small quick firers, with two submerged torpedo tubes. She carried 400 officers and men. The Emden was a protected cruiser of 3,540 tons, with a maximum speed of 24 1-2 knots. Her armament consisted of ten 4.1 inch quick firing guns and two torpedo tubes. She carried 361 officers and men.

London, Nov. 10.—The Admiralty announces that Captain Karl Von Muller, commander of the Emden, was among those rescued and taken prisoners.

USES FOR RUBBER

Vast Field For the Use of the Article if Cheap Enough

Improved and cheapened methods of manufacture are likely to bring about an enormously increased demand for rubber. Such a cheapening in the art of manufacturing rubber goods will doubtless ultimately result in everybody possessing a waterproof coat and durable galoshes and it is more than probable that rubber soles will ultimately be turned out to last as long as leather ones and be equally agreeable in use. Furthermore, the rubber sponge, which can be made in every size, shape and degree of hardness, is likely to prove a successful competitor of the ordinary bath sponge, it having one great advantage over the latter, the fact that it can be thoroughly sterilized. A reduction in price is also sure to bring about a greater demand for tennis balls, golf balls and footballs, as under such circumstances, our athletes will no longer content themselves with using old balls for practice, as is now generally the case. It will probably also not be long before rubber mosaic floors will be generally used in houses, as they are now on board the latest ships; more especially is the flooring admirably adapted for the requirements of bathrooms, where it is vastly preferable to the cold cement and wood now generally in use. Furthermore, both the hoofs of our horses and our own cars would be greatly spared if the streets of our great towns were paved with rubber, and there is no reason why we should not also live to see this. The whole question is merely a matter of price and organization.

A Coin With a History

One of the largest coins ever struck, being 23½ inches by 13 inches, has come into the possession of the American Numismatic Society. The piece is copper. It was coined in Sweden in 1659 and had an intrinsic value of about five dollars. As a numismatic rarity it is said to be worth at present at least $500.

It is a rectangular ingot with five large round stamps punched in it. Each corner stamp carries the Swedish crown, with the date. Around the edge is the inscription of Carolus Gustavus X., the reigning king.

This coin was struck at Avesta, Sweden. When fresh from the mint it fell overboard in the harbor of Riga, Russia, from which a dredge brought it up ten years ago. Coins of the kind were called "plate money." Sweden turned them out almost continuously for 110 years. Once 116 bronze cannon were melted down and turned into 86,760 coins; but the main purpose in minting the pieces was to find an outlet for the Swedish copper mines without depreciating the value of the metal.

Potatoes Are Good

Eat potatoes all the year round. In the winter they prevent scurvy. They supply energy in the summer when so much meat is not eaten. Be sure to cook them right. When boiling them, leave them in their jacket. Punch holes in them and put them directly into boiling water. Never eat half-cooked potatoes.

Huge Sums For Racing

Statistics relative to prize money afforded by the various racing clubs of Australia show the great strides made in the Commonwealth of late years. For one racing season the prize money amounted to a grand total of $3,111,165, while the combined race clubs of Great Britain and Ireland disbursed $3,792,935, a record amount.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

JOHNSON'S SPEED

Walter Perry Johnson, one of the best twirlers who ever threw a baseball, pitched his first game of ball in 1905 for the Fullerton high school nine in California. The contest went fifteen innings and neither side scored a run. Thus early in his career he showed his ability to pitch shut-out ball.

He was born in Humboldt, Kan., on November 6, 1887, and was still a youngster when his parents moved to California, near Los Angeles. He stands just one inch over six feet and weighs close to 190 pounds. He is of Scottish-Irish descent.

This speed marvel depends almost entirely on his fast ball for his success. He uses a curve, but only occasionally. One of the leading hitters of the American League describes his delivery and speed by saying that the ball comes up so fast that there is no opportunity to judge either the height of it or whether it is a curve. "You see his arm move and the only thing to do is just to take a swing at that time and your bat will cross the plate about the same time the ball reaches you. If you are lucky you may hit it."

MATTY A WONDER

Champion Shut-out Pitcher of the National League

Christopher Mathewson is the champion whitewasher of the National League. The one hurler who has blanked more teams than any other twirler in the history of the old league. No pitcher has Bix Six approached in this respect in the 37 years the National has existed.

Mathewson leads all or any hurler in the old organization by seventeen games, then along come some real old-timers now almost forgotten—Jeems Galvin and Tim Keefe, these two old heroes of the diamond are tied for second place with 56 shut-out games apiece.

Mordecai Brown of present-day fame is third. John G. Clarkson and Kid Nichols are in the lists and were very handy in applying the brush in their time. But these grand old warriors of bygone days have their records dimmed and shattered by the brilliant performances of the great Mathewson and the three-fingered hurler of the Cincinnati Reds.

Here is the list, giving the shut-out games made by the expert brush wielders in the National League since its organization, all games nine innings or better:—

Mathewson	78	73
Galvin	12	56
Keefe	17	56
Brown	17	51
Clarkson	11	46
Nichols	14	46

If other major leagues are included Mathewson goes down to second place, Cy Young leading him by one game, but Young worked in 200 more games than Matty in his nine years longer of service. Eddie Plank stands third in the list, but Walter Johnson has a better record equal to Mathewson if the figures are based on the number of seasons he has been pitching. In seven years Johnson placed 40 shut-out games to his credit.

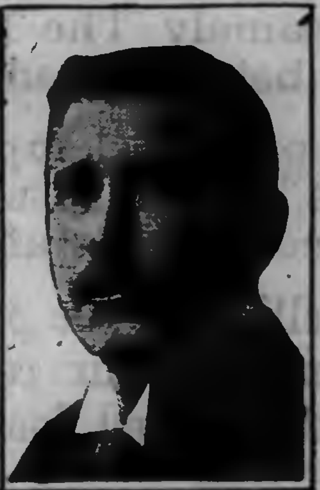
ONTARIO'S PREMIER APOSTLE OF THE NORTH

Hon. W. H. Hearst an Energetic Man Who Knows the Wilderness by First Hand Experience

From private life to the Premier's chair in six years, taking all the hurdles of office as he went, is the record of the Hon. William Howard Hearst, K.C., Premier of Ontario. His career has been a remarkable one, and it is all the more astonishing when one remembers that outside of New Ontario the name of Hon. Mr. Hearts was more or less unknown when he was called upon to form a government.

Since the North is a country which lives on work, Mr. Hearst was able to thrive and learn that lesson of economy which is taught by stern living. They say that he numbers his personal friends by thousands, and that they are among the class which breeds strong men—lumbermen, miners, settlers, loggers, and the hundred-and-one other castes which grub a living out of the North. In fact, the Hon. Mr. Hearst's liking for the North amounts to a passion. It is his dream, it is his rising star before which he is always willing to extinguish all other torches. Doubtless Mr. Hearst understands the heart of the country, for assuredly he has lived close to it. While others idled away summer vacations at fashion resorts, the Hon. Mr. Hearst time and again headed exploration parties into the unknown and undeveloped wilderness, and each time he came back with first-hand information, which in the end enabled him to fill the chair of Lands, Forests, and Mines in the Ontario Government.



Hon W H Hearst

When a railway company approached the Government with a proposition to tap the timber and clay belts, the Hon. Mr. Hearst did not take their statements as say-so, but he climbed into wilderness togs, spent some weeks scouting through the district in question, and came back prepared to talk business. Some people say that Mr. Hearst is urbane, at the least he is very approachable. Approachableness does not always mean that the visitor gets what he wants, but he does go away with the impression that the Hon. Mr. Hearst is personally interested.

Combativeness is one of the Premier's strong cards, but Irish ancestry brings that to him quite by nature. Upon the floor of the House he has always proven himself willing to take up the gage of battle. When it comes to fighting verbal battles he doesn't stoop to hitting under the belt, and he seldom wastes time on the witticisms which might be expected from one of his nationality. Straight, outspoken, and as vigorous as a battering-ram are his political speeches, stripped entirely of fancy oratory. In speaking the style is pretty much his own, and has sometimes been likened to the fire of a machine gun, both in its directness and its vigor. At the same time it is to be noted that it is a very peculiar speech of the Hon. Mr. Hearst which does not find place for some reference to New Ontario and its development.

Personally, when circumstances permit him to drop the garb of office, the Hon. Mr. Hearst is a very pleasant man. He can forget that there is such a thing as work in the world, but he quite fails to harken to the call of society, or sport, or any of the dozen and one other cries of private interest or private amusement.

Steel Railroad Ties

Steel railroad ties are being extensively used in Switzerland. At present 65 per cent. of the Federal Railways employ them. They have the form or profile of a trough into which shape they are rolled at the mills. The ends are bent down, the profile of the trough being thus closed. Holes are provided for the attachment of the rails by means of clamp plates and no tieplates are used under the rails. The weight of the trough profile is 65.47 pounds per meter and the ties complete, with holes bored, weigh 150.84 pounds each. According to the requirements of the Federal Railways an entire trough piece shall admit of being bent together on its back without showing any breaking fissures.

Canada's Great Fisheries

Canada has the most extensive and best stocked commercial fishing waters in the world, including 5,000 miles of Atlantic and 7,000 miles of Pacific coast, and 220,000 square miles of fresh water. The value of the yearly catch is about $30,000,000. Canada's fishery equipment is worth $24,000,000; and something like 90,000 persons are employed by the industry.

Only 10 per cent. of Canada's foreign trade is carried in Canadian bottoms; the rest by British and foreign ships.

Copper Jumps

"In The Land of Poco Tiempo"

Production of Copper in New Mexico Jumped from 1430 Tons in 1911 to 28,000 Tons in 1913

THE SIGNIFICANCE of this is that people are coming to realize that "The Land of Afterwhile" is full of opportunity and that now—having been asleep for 300 years—it is awakening to the fact that somebody is going to make enormous sums of money down there, right away!

How About YOU?

So long as copper was simply a by-product of a few mines—a plaything for the Indians—nobody took New Mexico Copper Mining very seriously—but

Those days are past. As a Copper State New Mexico is coming into its own on the jump!

The big, quick fortunes in the copper business are made by the men who get in first.

Here is Your Chance--

The Republic Mines Company offers you an interest — as much as you care to acquire — in its enormous tonnage of excellent Copper, Gold and Silver Ore ready to take out and sell, at a price to return you handsome profits upon your investment.

It has tried the experiments—taken the risks—acquired a magnificent estate—demonstrated its ore bodies and their great value—and now offers you

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six anchors. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

ROYAL YACHTSMEN

Apropos of King George's success as a yachtsman, it is interesting to note that yachting in bygone times owed much to English sovereigns, from Queen Elizabeth, who had a fine pleasure schooner built at Cowes, to William IV., who founded the Royal Yacht Squadron; but the keenest of all Royal yachtsmen was Charles II. In all, the Merry Monarch owned fourteen yachts, ranging from twenty-five to 166 tons, and one of them, the "Jamie," was designed by the King himself and built at Lambeth under his supervision. Charles and his brother James generally steered their yachts themselves, and Evelyn, in his diary for October 1st, 1661, describes a sailing match between the Royal brothers—the first contest of the kind in British waters of which we have any record.

FRANK CHANCE

Men who know Frank Chance, the American league's $25,000 manager, can perhaps imagine what Chance is shouting at some Highlander, in this picture. Chance does not believe in handling his players with velvet gloves. He rules them with an iron hand and doesn't hesitate to use language that rasps. It it not difficult to imagine Chance raising the skin of some player in this instance.

DUELLING DAYS

Young Bloods Practised With Long-Barrelled Pistols

By the end of the seventeenth century the pistol had come fairly into vogue as a duellist's weapon in England, and from that time forward pistol duels were frequent—more frequent than those with the sword. Gunmakers devoted their best workmanship to duelling pistols, and at duelling range, say up to twenty paces, these weapons were as near perfection as skill could make them. The latter-day pistol had a ten-inch barrel, and carried a ball of 48 to the pound. Only constant practice would make a good shot, and a very high standard of marksmanship was set for the man who aspired to be considered an expert with the pistol. When he could hit twelve wafers at fourteen yards, and do it within six minutes, loading his pistol himself between shots, he might consider himself proficient; and it will be borne in mind that the muzzle-loading pistol took several seconds to properly charge.

Proficiency, of course, was not everything. It was quite as daunting to face a pistol at twelve yards as to face the sword at close quarters, and no proficiency at wafers would atone for nervousness on the ground. One ardent practitioner schooled himself with a contrivance of his own invention. He had the life-size figure of a man with a bracketed hand in which a pistol could be held at the "present," and by means of a cord from the trigger of the pistol in the dummy's grasp to his own belt, he discharged the weapon himself as he fired his own pistol, by slightly drawing back.

Great stress was laid on the importance of aiming at a small object. "Mark well one of the gilt buttons on his coat; a person can never fire with accuracy unless he aim at some small object." Which explains why the experienced duellist "went out" dressed entirely in black, that his person might offer no such mark as the gilt button of an older day.

Being in position, the men each held his arm well in to the side and raised his pistol to the proper level, keeping the head straight, the eyes turned as much to the right as possible, and the pistol directed steadily towards the small object—that gilt button, if the adversary were so obliging to wear such. "Move only the forefinger, and that with just sufficient force to discharge the pistol," was a rule supposed to be carefully observed.

Girl Climbs Church Spire

Miss Dorothy Willink, daughter of Canon Willink, rector of St. Martin's Church, Birmingham, climbed to the top of the church spire, 200 feet high, and scratched her name on the cap to which the weathercock is fixed. She climbed as far as possible by the stage inside the church, and ended the journey on the steeplejack's ladders, the spire being at present under repair.

AN ECCENTRIC PLAYER

Recruit Catcher Had Queer Ideas and Had Trouble With Trunk

Most ball players have peculiarities of one kind or another. But it remained for a player named Evans, a former Cub catcher recruit, to have a number of them. On a spring training trip several years ago he had the boys wondering what he would do next. Evans was a confirmed pipe smoker. It was seldom out of his mouth. When the other men would be rehearsing on the ball field Evans would be sitting on the bench pulling at his pipe. One day Frank Chance becoming irritated, ordered him to get behind the plate during batting practice.

The recruit lazily donned his shinguards and chest-protector. Then, keeping his short black pipe between his teeth, he caught for nearly fifteen minutes, puffing away in a most contented manner.

At Vicksburg, Miss., one day some of the Cubs noticed Evans dig up a little dirt near the plate, place something carefully in the hole and cover it up with exceeding care. He repeated this trick at every stop. Finally they discovered it was a signet ring. He chose this method of protecting it against loss or injury.

He also carried an old trunk along on the trip, bearing a large sign. The motto was, "Handle with care." In this he had nearly five quarts of beef, iron and wine for the purpose of building up his system. He had nearly as much dope as Trainer Semmons had for the entire team. This extract he took religiously three times a day.

One trip his trunk was badly smashed by the baggagemen and several of the bottles broken. It was exceedingly annoying but Evans insisted on lugging the affair along until Secretary Charley Williams objected.

"The railroads absolutely refuse to accept that trunk," said Williams.

So Evans had to purchase another. On this he placed a new sign. It read, "Handle with care, you smashed my last one."

GOLF HAS MANY THRILLS

Making a Hole in One Stroke Enough to Make Any Player Excited

It has been said that golf is not lively or exciting; that it presents few opportunities for either individuals or outsiders to enthuse; that it is too quiet, etc. While there are those ardent devotees of driver and cleek willing to admit that their favorite diversion is not wildly exciting; that opportunities rarely occur for partisan crowds to display their feelings, it is also claimed that golf unquestionably has its thrills.

For those having once experienced the sensation of making a hole in 1 it is needless to attempt to describe the feeling of exhilaration experienced by the lucky player as he sees his ball disappear in the cup. Many holes have been made in a single stroke that have always been more or less doubtful. Players have played over rising ground to blind greens and after searching for a considerable length of time have at last found "a ball" in the hole. On such occasions there is always an element of uncertainty.

Furthermore, jokes have been played on unsuspecting golfers, probably the most cruel one being that at the expense of a fat man and woman at a match several years ago. As a passerby stood near one of the greens of the course in question he noticed two balls, one after the other, land on the green in front of him. They had evidently come from the tee, which could not be seen from the green. Scarcely had the balls come to rest ere a couple of boys dashed from behind a clump of bushes, picked up the balls, dropped them in the hole and scampered away, as quickly as they had come. In a few moments the pair unsuspectingly came to the green and began looking for the balls. Finally the man casually beckoned his companion to see what he saw.

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "We have both holed out in one. Did you ever see anything like that?" Then they proceeded to rush to the club house to tell the wonderful tale, which undoubtedly they are still relating.

A Nautical Innovation

A novel feature of the Royal Holland Lloyd liner "Gelria" is the manner in which the name of the liner is displayed, either when passing stations or other ships or when lying in crowded harbors, says "Electricity."

The boat is fitted between the two funnels with an electric sign lantern, 22 feet long by 5 feet deep, made of galvanized iron and bracing angles. The letters are fixed on both sides, and are colored red on the port side and green on the starboard, with white enamelled lettering for use in the daytime. The lettering is illuminated by lamps aggregating 2,000 candle power.

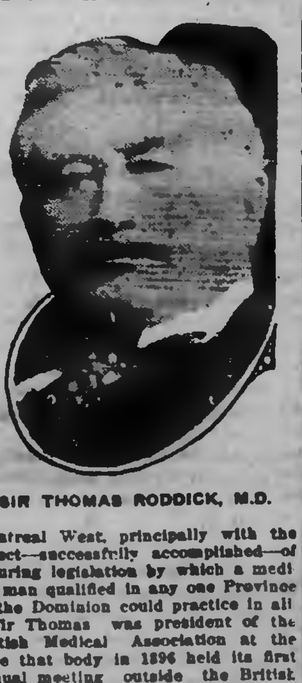
CANADIAN DOCTOR WON MANY HONORS

Sir Thomas Roddick Secured Legislation Creating Dominion-wide Standard For Medical Men

Among the medical men who have won fame and honor in Canada is Sir Thomas George Roddick of Montreal, who rendered such eminent service to his profession by initiating the law which now qualifies its members for practice in any Province of the Dominion. Sir Thomas is a native of Newfoundland, was educated in Truro, Nova Scotia, and was a distinguished graduate of McGill University, Montreal, where he rapidly became famous as a surgeon and general practitioner. He was from 1901 to 1908 Dean of the Medical Faculty of his University.

His father left Dumfriesshire to become for many years principal of the Government School at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland. During the rebellion in the Northwest in 1885 Sir Thomas organized the hospital and medical service for the expeditionary force, holding the rank of Deputy Surgeon-General. He is lieutenant-colonel (retired) of the Prince of Wales' Rifles of Montreal. He also saw active service during the Fenian raids in 1870. In 1896 he entered the Dominion House of Commons as M.P. for Montreal West, principally with the object—successfully accomplished—of securing legislation by which a medical man qualified in any one Province of the Dominion could practice in all.



SIR THOMAS RODDICK, M.D.

Sir Thomas was president of the British Medical Association at the time that body in 1896 held its first annual meeting outside the British Isles, in Montreal, and was prominent in entertaining the numerous delegates and visitors. The degrees and honors conferred upon Dr. Roddick by other universities and institutions are too numerous to mention. It is sufficient to state that he received the LL.D. of Edinburgh University in 1898 and that of Oxford in 1904, and he is F.R.C.S. of London. As consulting surgeon to the Royal Victoria Hospital, to the Victorian Order of Nurses, and other charitable organizations and institutions, he has rendered invaluable service.

Sir Thomas married, in 1880, Miss Marion McKinnon, of Pointe Claire, Quebec, who died in 1890. In 1906 he married Miss Amy Redpath, the oldest daughter of the late Mr. J. J. Redpath, of the Manor House, Chislehurst, a member of an old Montreal family.

HOPE TO FIND COAL

Fuel Supply in Canada's Northland Would be Great Boon

There is under way a prospecting expedition to Hudson Bay, the main object of which is to investigate coal deposits in that area which can be utilized in connection with the operation of the Hudson Bay Railway. A supply will also be required for the steamers. At present all the coal that is required in connection with steamer traffic to the Bay has to be conveyed there by Newfoundland sealing steamers that are used for freighting purposes in the summer months. They are the only vessels available that can withstand the wear and tear of navigation in these northern ice-laden waters.

Coal for the needs of the railway construction forces is conveyed by train from Winnipeg and Le Pas as the railroad progresses. When the line is opened to Port Nelson and terminals constructed there provision for a large storage for coal will be made. Its cost, however, in view of the lengthy transportation from Cape Breton by water and from Western Canada by rail will be a considerable item. Hence the present efforts to locate coal deposits near Port Nelson.

Protect Young Timber

Mr. Clyde Leavitt, chief fire inspector of the Railway Commission, stated, in an interview, that the railways were doing everything in their power to prevent bush fires near the railway tracks from spreading. "It seems to me," said Mr. Leavitt, "that there is too little attention paid to the fires in the cut over areas, and too much protection concentrated on the merchantable timber limits. If more effort were devoted to protecting the young timber it would give it a chance and prevent the fire from spreading to the limits where the trees are large enough for merchantable use."

You may know a woman who has a reputation for making delicious cake, biscuits, etc.,—who seems to hit it right every time.

You may also know a woman, who, no matter how painstaking, can't seem to get the knack of successful baking.

Both use the same butter, same eggs, same flour and sugar. What is the difference?

Very likely it's all in the baking powder. Undoubtedly the woman with the knack uses Royal Baking Powder, and the unsuccessful woman uses an alum baking powder thinking it cheaper.

Yet the difference in the cost of a whole large cake is less than a cent.

Ketcheeum Hunt Club

Messrs. Don Shook, manager of the Oriental Hotel, and E.F. Mason, the George Street Grocer, have returned from a motor trip they undertook on Saturday to visit mutual friends at Ketcheeum Lake. The Club has been enjoying excellent weather and having good sport. Up to the date of our report told by Mr. Shook states that the Club has killed four fine deer, Of these Dr. McPherson, M.H.O. killed a splendid buck as did Dr. Frederick.

Change in Local Clergy.

The Times extends congratulations to Rev. Father Joseph Phelan on his promotion to the responsible position of Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral. Father "Joe" as he is familiarly known among his many friends, of all denominations here, is an old Peterboro boy who, in former days was intimately connected with the local Lacrosse Club. Rev. Father McColl, who has been appointed Rector of the new East Ward Church of the Immaculate Conception is one of the best read and highly educated men in this district.

"Scoop" Taylor Heard From

Mr. Taylor, the Water street piano dealer, heard yesterday from his son Odley (better known as "Scoop") from Salisbury Plains, England. For the benefit of "Scoop's" many friends here who wish to write him, we might say that his address is "Private Odley Taylor, A. Co., 2nd Battalion, 1st Brigade, Salisbury Plains, Eng." Mr. Taylor writes that the Canadians are having a good time but have a good deal of hard work to do. They do not know yet when they will go to the front.

MOTHER! IS CHILD'S STOMACH SOUR, SICK?

If tongue is coated, or if cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs"

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, bad breath, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative" and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little ones' "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

ANTISEPTICS IN AUSTRALIAN BLUE GUM PROVE A CURE FOR BRONCHIAL CATARRH

Bad Cold In the Head, Throat Weakness and Catarrh Cured Quickly.

Medicated Air A Marvel

Catarrhozone is far superior to any internal medicine.

Its relief is almost instantaneous—just takes long enough to breathe its healing vapor into the lungs to give wonderful soothing relief.

Catarrhozone goes right to the tiniest cells in the lungs, carrying healing, soothing balsams to the places that are tainted with Catarrhal inflammation. A coming cold is cured in ten minutes—a sore throat is healed and restored in an hour or two—chronic bronchitis is soothed away and quickly disappears—catarrh of long standing is invariably cured because Catarrhozone kills the germs that cause the trouble.

As a cure for Asthma and a preventative of Grippe every doctor is delighted with Catarrhozone. One eminent throat specialist says if Catarrhozone is used two or three times each day you will never suffer from any disease of the head, throat, nose or lungs. This is good news to many of our readers who must require a safe, sure and permanent cure for their colds and winter ills. Every good druggist sells Catarrhozone, large size $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c.

LOCAL BREVITIES

The Lakefield contingent of five left for the Overseas Contingent headquarters at Kingston yesterday.

There are more houses to rent here now than in all the history of Peterborough.

The horse of a Lindsay junk dealer fell in a well and was drowned. Its bones took it below the surface.

The classic Scugog River at Lindsay had a covering of an inch of ice yesterday.

Fenelon Falls, Nov. 9.— Mr. John Denny's house, south of the river, was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon.

Yesterday a local man who served through the Boer war, was returned from Kingston. Defective teeth was the cause.

Port Hope, after considerable argument in the town council, has decided to buy a new store for the Council Chamber of that town. Repainting the Chamber is held over until finances are better.

Belleville gives its soldiers departing to fight for the Empire gold pieces. The rich men of Peterboro give local soldiers for the front pleasant smiles and cordial wishes that they may return.

The four prisoners who escaped from Central Prison on Oct. 14th, after sandbagging a guard and one of whom went there from Peterborough, have been recaptured at Gravenhurst.

Three cars of agricultural produce grown in the Township of Otonabee are by this time routed to Montreal, destined for the relief of homeless and starving Belgian refugees.

The alleged epidemic of diphtheria in the local schools is as dead as any fear that Canada may come under the German flag. This fear of diphtheria is dead now as is sympathy for the local bakers' hold up.

The members of the staff of the Port Hope High School have decided to denote 1 per cent. of their salaries for patriotic purposes during the continuance of the war. This will amount to about $100 a year.

A public meeting is called for tonight in the County Council chamber, to be presided over by Mayor Buller, to tell the nations of the world that they should disarm and provide for arbitration to settle their various disagreements.

ALL CRITICS NOW PRAISE GEN. JOFFRE

Paris, Nov. 10.—Fighting from sand dune to sand dune, hampered by thick fog banks and at times crawling on hands and knees through high grass, the advance of the allies along the Belgian seacoast continues, according to reports received here today. The advance on Monday was somewhat slower as the Germans, after two days of retreat and rest, again resumed the offensive. The allies, however, presented a stonewall defence, and the Germans were again forced to retreat.

Ypres Sees Heaviest Fighting.

The region around Ypres is the scene of the greatest activity as the Germans apparently wish to take possession of the territory between La Bassee and Nieuport, which is considered of great strategical importance.

Although the advance yesterday was only slight this should not be depreciated in the opinion of the leading military critics, but rather acclaimed at its full value, as it appears now, after many retreats, counter-marches and intermediable delay that the allies' advance has begun in reality.

Critics Now Praise Joffre.

The critics say it is impossible to pay too high a tribute to General Joffre's policy, which, unfortunately, has been hitherto criticised by those who are impatient and desirious of quicker results.

Gen. Berthaud, writing in the Petit Journal, considers the allies advance on the right bank of the Aisne, together with the occupation of Soupir Chavonne and Vailly, of prime importance. This means that the high plateau including the Chemin des Dames, has probably been occupied and will give the allies the hotly contested position on the plateau of Vregny, northeast of Soissons, which is believed to be the key to the Aisne situation.

Germans Lose in Alsace,

This plateau once taken, can easily be held as it is criss-crossed with ravines through which flow tributaries of the Aisne. The heights from this point to Craonne are believed to be held by the allies.

In Alsace the Germans have suffered a marked defeat as their attack to gain the vantage point on St. Marie Heights have been fruitless The situation here, it is stated, becomes more serious every day as the only available roads running east and to the west are in possession of the allies and unless the Germans succeed in breaking through and joining the main army, their only alternative will be a retreat.

The First Regatta

June 23 was the date of the first [illegible] regatta, held between Westminster Bridge and Ranelagh in 1775, which Dr. Johnson appears to have [illegible] Mrs. Thrale. It was suggested [illegible] Lady Montagu's description of a [illegible] she had witnessed in Venice. The only rowing contest was "a race of wager-boats," after which a procession of boats manned by red, white, and blue oarsmen rowed from Westminster to Ranelagh, where various festivities followed in a Temple of Neptune. Some of the 200,000 who attended seem, says the "Westminster Gazette," to have supped "not wisely but too well," for on the return journey "many accidents occurred," and seven persons were drowned.

ZAM-BUK

MRS. A. SAICH, of Cannington Manor, Sask., Writes:—"My brother suffered severely from eczema. The sores were very extensive, and burned like coals into his flesh. Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."

This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like this wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.

Prussian Guard Defeated by the "Insignificant" British--Three German Cruisers Sunk in the Pacific Belgians Move Forward and Threaten Foe's Flank

BELGIANS SUCCESS COMPENSATES FOR LOSS TO ALLIES OF DIXMUDE

Belgians Move Forward on Nieuport-Ostend Line and German's Flank is Threatened--If Successful May Prove Disastrous to the Foe--Paris is Not Worried Over Loss of Dixmude. British Beat Back Heavy Assaults

Paris, Nov. 12.—The battle in Flanders is as far as ever from a decision according to official communications and judged from stories told by eye witnesses arriving from the battle-front.

The Germans have given an emphatic denial of the reports that they were in retreat by carrying Dixmude, on the Yser, twelve miles north of Ypres and on the road to Dunkirk, which the Germans are striving to attain. French blue-jackets at Dixmude had held the town against them in the face of fierce attacks for the past week, but were finally compelled to give way. The allies' attempts to drive the Germans out again have thus far failed.

Revenge For Dixmude.

On the rest of the front as far as the river Lys, the situation, according to latest advices, remains practically unchanged.

As the principal action latterly has centred to a large extent around Dixmude, the Germans are entitled to claim the advantage, but the French are strongly posted in the vicinity and the possession of the village so far has availed them but little.

The set back at Dixmude, in the opinion expressed here, is somewhat compensated for by the progress made by the Belgians along the Nieuport-Ostend road. If followed up this advance apparently would threaten the German flank.

Always Have Fresh Troops.

East and south of Ypres the Germans seem to have found fresh masses of troops to hurl into the murderous fray, but the allies seem to be holding their own. The country here is undulating, well wooded and covered with a multitude of farms, which are surrounded by large elms. The villages are few and small and most of the population is centred on those farms which are distant from each other, at the most, from two to three hundred yards. These innumerable and solidly built brick houses, with their walled country yards and some times with deep ditches, make excellent bases for small detachments and play an important part in the long battle. The struggle is taking place among the farms in the direction of the border towns of Comines, Woervick and Menin

British Always Hold On.

The combats around Labassee and Arras, where the British are operating, have shown no decisive change. The ground here has been successfully and steadfastly maintained, the British repelling attack after attack.

Aviators report the movement of troops and heavy guns on a large scale in the interior of Belgium some going towards Germany, others toward Antwerp and yet others toward Courtrai. The explanation of this movement appears to be that solid troops, capable of operating in the open, are being sent to East Prussia, their places in the trenches being taken by less trained men. The guns going to Antwerp, it is believed here, are due to a desire to have a strong flank position against the allies in case they advance on Brussels.

More Bridges Blown Up.

The object of the continuous German attacks in Belgium and in the Armentieres region, according to some of the French military critics, is to achieve a real victory which will oblige the allies' left to fall back in order to re-organize and repair its losses. The Germans would then leave as small a force as they deemed safe to hold the allies and send the rest against Russia.

GERMAN OFFICER SENT TO PRISON FOR LIFE FOR ESPIONAGE IN EGYFT

London, Nov. 12.—The Chronicle today describes the feature of the offense of Lieut. Mors, a German officer, who was recently imprisoned for life for espionage at Alexandria, Egypt.

Mors was despatched to Egypt five years ago and succeeded in being appointed a lieutenant in the Egypt general army. His real mission, according to The Chronicle, was to foment a local rebellion among the various Nationalist Princes and to get them to agree to assist him. When war broke out he was recalled to Germany and was sent back to Egypt in a fortnight as medically unfit for military service, but actually to blow up a steamship in the Suez Canal so as to block the passage of reinforcements from India and Australia.

Major-General Sir John Maxwell, commander of the British forces in Egypt, heard of the plot and had Mors arrested. In his possession were splendid maps of the Suez Canal and instructions how to sink vessels there. Two dynamite bombs were found in his lodgings.

At his trial, according to the Chronicle, Mors confessed that he received 950,000 for the work entrusted to him. He gave a list of his associates and they have been arrested.

SERVIANS WIPED OUT 6000 OF FOE WHO CROSSED THE RIVER DANUBE

Nish, Servia, Nov. 12, via London. —The six battalions of Austrian infantry with quick-firing guns, which crossed the Danube near Sederevo under cover of artillery fire on November ninth have been annihilated by a Servian counter attack, according to official information given out in Nish to-day.

"All the men not killed, wounded or drowned in the Danube, fell into our hands," the Servian announcement continued. "We made two thousand prisoners and captured two quick-firing guns."

CHINA ASKS THAT JAPANESE LEAVE.

Peking, Nov. 12.—A Japanese military report received in Peking, sets forth that the casualties to the Japanese army before Tsing-Tau was something over 1,500. But according to reports from Tsing-Tau itself, received at Peking before the German wireless ceased operating, this number does not represent the correct total. The British lost twelve men killed and sixty-one men wounded.

Fighting on the Allies Left Wing Continues With Unabated Violence

British Forces Defeat the Prussian Guard. Enemy's Cannon Silenced in the Region of Craonne. Battle Front Has Not Varied Much Since November 10th --Dixmude Will be Retaken by the Allies it is Claimed

PARIS, NOV. 12.—THE FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT, GIVEN OUT IN PARIS THIS AFTERNOON SAYS:—

ON OUR LEFT WING THE FIGHTING STILL CONTINUES WITH VIOLENCE AND HAS BEEN CONDUCTED WITH ALTERNATE ADVANCES AND RETIREMENTS WITHOUT IMPORTANCE. SPEAKING BROADLY, THE BATTLE FRONT HAS NOT VARIED GREATLY SINCE THE TENTH OF NOVEMBER. IN THE EVENING OF YESTERDAY IT WAS EXTENDED ALONG THE LINE BETWEEN LOMBAERTZYDE AND NIEUPORT: THE NIEUPORT CANAL TO YPRES; THE APPROACHES OF YPRES; IN THE REGION OF ZONNEBEKE, AND TO THE EAST OF ARMENTIERES.

THERE HAS BEEN NO CHANGE IN THE POSITIONS HELD BY THE BRITISH ARMY, WHICH REPULSED THE ATTACKS OF THE ENEMY, AND PARTICULARLY A OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT UNDERTAKEN BY DETACHMENTS OF THE PRUSSIAN GUARD.

FROM THE CANAL OF LA BASSEE AS FAR AS, AND UP TO THE RIVER OISE, THERE HAVE BEEN MINOR ENGAGEMENTS.

IN THE REGION OF THE RIVER AISNE, IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF VAILLY, WE RETAINED OUR POSITION AGAINST A COUNTER ATTACK AND WE STRENGTHENED OUR POSITIONS IN THA TERRITORY PREVIOUSLY CONQUERED BY US.

IN THE REGION OF CRAONNE AND ON THE HEURTEBIS FARM, OUR ARTILLERY SUCCEEDED IN REDUCING TO SILENCE THE CANNON OF THE ENEMY. SEVERAL OF THEIR PIECES WERE EVEN DESTROYED. WE ALSO MADE SOME PROGRESS IN THE VICINITY OF BERRY-AU-BAC.

IN THE ARGONNE, IN THE WOEVRE DISTRICT, IN LORRAINE AND IN THE VOSGES, THE RESPECTIVE POSITIONS SHOW NO CHANGE.

REKINDLED ACTIVITY IN FLANDERS

London, Nov. 12.—The Russian successes in the east, which for a time were a predominant feature of the war news, must again divide space with the accounts of rekindled activity on the part of the Germans in West Flanders.

With Dixmude in their possession, the invaders were today less than fifty miles from Calais and much nearer Dunkirk, and the fight they have been putting up in the face of tremendous losses seems to bear out what has been said so often, that they will not abandon this struggle to reach the coast unless they are utterly crushed.

THE GERMANS ARE THOUGHT TO BE PREPARING NEW MOVE IN FLANDERS

Destroying Bridges Over Canals and Keeping Foreigners From Antwery. Block Roads Leading to Holland Frontier With Trees. Entrenchments Being Constructed and Barbed Wire Entanglemeaty Erected

London, Nov. 12.—A despatch from Sas Van Gent, Holland, dated yesterday, says:

German engineers today dynamited bridges across the Leopold Canal at Dalgerhoeke, Stroobridge, St. Laurent, St. Jean, and Watervliet, all places in the northwestern part of East Flanders, near the Dutch frontier. The Germans also threw a number of large trees across the roads leading to the Holland frontier. Entrenchments are being thrown up and barbed wire entanglements erected and all roads leading into Holland are blocked. In this way the flight of peasants which recommenced on November 8, is made probable impossible and the Province of West Flanders is entirely cut off from the world. Since this morning the customary roar of heavy cannon has been lacking.

"Sluis advices indicate that the Germans continue to blow up bridges and that among the structures so destroyed is the bridge near Heyst, in West Flanders. Sentries are guarding the railways from Bruges to Ghent, from Courtrai to Ostend, and so forth.

The allies continue to occupy Ypres but shells falling in town yesterday killed two children. Aeroplanes are reported to have dropped bombs, which damaged the church and town hall and set fire to several other buildings.

"The Kaiser, in journeying through Flanders, visited Courtrai and expressed his satisfaction to the municipal authorities for the manner in which the German troops are quartered.

"From the Nieuport zone only feeble gunfiring was heard on Wednesday.

"Train loads of wounded are continuously being transported from the battle line."

COURT DISMISSES $14,000,000 SUIT ON FRISCO SYSTEM

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 12.—The suit to receive $14,000,000 from directors and former directors of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad was dismissed by the Federal Court here today.

The dismissal of the suit, filed by the receivers, is part of the plan of the receivers to part of the plan of the receivers to disclaim liability of the Frisco railroad on a $26,000,000 bond issue of the New Orleans, Tex. & Mexico railroad.

The situation was outlined in the federal court today by Loomis Johnson, attorney for the receivers. He announced the dismissal of the suit would not preclude the filing of a similar suit, and that such a suit might be refiled after the liability of the Frisco on the $26,000,000 bond issue had been determined.

The receivers desire to contest the liability of the $26,000,000 bond issue, and felt that to do this effectively they should dismiss the $14,000,000 restitution suit against directors and former directors. It was felt the receivers could not consistently claim the road was not liable for the bonds if they claimed that the officers of the road had exceeded their authority in making the purchase of the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico road, which included a guarantee of the bond issue were illegal there was nothing to restore to the Frisco on the part of the directors.

WOUNDED DEER KILLS HUNTER AT BUCK LAKE

Lindsay, Nov. 12.—William Hughie, jun., of Wilberforce, lost his life yesterday while on a hunting expedition with a friend at Buck Lake, five miles south of that village. A deer which he had wounded attacked him in the lake, upsetting his canoe and pouncing upon him while in the water. Salem Cornell, who was in the woods near the lake, heard him shout for help, and hurrying to the lake made heroic efforts to save the life of his companion. Not having another boat he swam out, and finally succeeded in getting Hughie to shore alive, but he died shortly afterwards from the wounds inflicted by the deer and from exposure in the icecold water.

Last night a meeting, suggested by Mr. Ball, was held in the Council Chamber, to consider the subject of universal peace. Rev. Father McCall, Rev. Mr. Rowlins, Rev. Canon Davidson, and others spoke. The whole meeting seems to have been called under mistaken idea. Nothing definite was done.

SPY SHOT IN LONDON USED TRICK TO GET AN AMERICAN'S PASSPORT

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Charles A. Inglis, the Chicago man whose American passport was found on the person of Carl Hans Lody, executed in the tower of London as a German spy, today told how he lost the paper in Berlin. His story implicates the German Foreign office and is being investigated by the State Department at Washington.

Inglis, who returned to his home here a few days ago, after a prolonged sojourn in Europe, was caught in Berlin when the war broke out. He took his passport to the German Foreign Office to have it approved. He handed it to a clerk, expecting in due course of routine it would be returned to the American Embassy.

It failed to reappear, however. At the Foreign Office he could obtain no trace of it and after considerable delay he got a second document, which went through without a hitch and by means of which he was able to leave Germany.

Mr. Inglis declined to comment on the matter. The paper contained a description of Inglis which it is said also covered the features of the spy.

HUNDRED BOATS AT HAND WHEN GERMAN SUBMARINE SUNK GUNBOAT

Thousands of Eyewitnesses to the Scene, The Disaster Occured at Noon When Crew Were Below at Dinner--Destroyed German Cruiser Emden Left Party on Shore While She Went Out to Fight the Sydney--Battered to Pieces in an Hour

Deal, Eng., (via London), Nov. 12.—Thousands of people witnessed the sinking off Deal of the British torpedo gunboat Niger by a German submarine while lying in the Downs opposite the pierhead.

At noon a loud roar of an explosion was heard, dense columns of black smoke were seen to arise and the Niger almost immediately began to go down by the bows. Though partly hidden by clouds of smoke and steam, the stern of the Niger was seen to rise gradually in the air until the greater length of her keel was visible. Then she slid slowly and gracefully beneath the water twenty minutes after she was struck. Her boilers burst immediately before she disappeared and caused a further rush of steam.

Nearly all of the crew were below at dinner when the torpedo struck the ship and orders to close the watertight doors were shouted from the bridge. When the crew flew to obey, one of them observed the white foam following the course of the torpedo. The explosion followed and a large hole was made just before the bridge in the forward part of the ship.

Boats were immediately launched, including two life boats, and the crew, including Captain Muir and the officers, were rescued. Three of the survivors are injured and it is reported that two men are missing.

This is the first time a German submarine has penetrated the Downs where nearly a hundred ships were at anchor at the time of the disaster.

THE EMDEN INCIDENT

Sydney, N.S.W., (via London) Nov. 12.—The naval boats here have received details of the fight in which the German cruiser Emden was put out of commission. The Emden arrived at Cocos Island and sent armed launches, towing two boats, ashore. Forty men with three officers and four maxims were landed in fifteen minutes and the landing party smashed the wireless instruments and the engines of the plant.

In the meantime the Australian cruiser Sydney was sighted on the horizon and the Emden immediately put out to sea, leaving the landing party, both boats and men, behind. The Emden started the firing, her practice at first being excellent, but afterwards it fell off. She lost two funnels and took fire at the stern within an hour, while the Sydney was scarcely touched.

The Emden is now ashore north of Keeling Island and burning. The captain of the Sydney says he found only thirty men on her.

The landing party, having commandeered two months supplies, left on schooners belonging to the owner of the island. They are still at large.

It appears that the presence of the Emden was made known to the Sydney by wireless from the Eastern Cable Company's staff on Cocos Island

BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS HEARS THREE GERMAN CRUISERS ARE SUNK

HIGH NAVAL OFFICER ACQUITTED OF CHARGE.

Weymouth, Eng., Nov. 12, via London.—Rear-Admiral F. O. Trowbridge second in command of the British Mediterranean fleet, was today acquitted by a court-martial of neglect in connection with the escape of the former German cruisers Goeben and Breslau. Rear-Admiral Sir Archibald Berkley Milne, formerly in command of the Mediterranean fleet, was previously exculpated from similar charges.

While they still belonged to the German navy, the Goeben and Breslau eluded British warships sent to attack them and escaping from the Messina Straits made their way to the Dardanelles, where they were transferred to the Turkish navy.

Discovery of Rock Salt

An extensive bed of rock salt has been discovered on the Skeena River, about 45 miles from Prince Rupert. Five holes have been drilled, about a mile apart, and salt has been struck in ever case at depths varying from 50 to 250 feet. About eight tons of salt has been raised. The product is absolutely pure and of the best quality.

Clocks Without Faces

Clocks without hands or faces are now common in Switzerland. The timepiece stands in the hall, and when a button is pressed, by means of phonographic arrangements, it calls out "Half-past five," or "Five minutes to nine," as the case may be.

Indian Mortality

Notwithstanding great care in the selection of risks, companies had a mortality among the North American Indians of twenty-four per cent. in excess of the corresponding mortality among white men.

RULES FOR HUSBANDS

L. C. Dillman, a Seattle millionaire, as the result of eighteen years of marital bliss promulgated the following rules for husbands:

Keep all promises made before and at the time of marriage. Keep a joint bank account. Go to your club no oftener than one night a week. Have no dogs or pets of any kind. Call her up on the telephone at least three times a day. When away from home write or telegraph every day. Take her with you on business and pleasure trips. Be more polite to her than to any other woman you meet. Remember that she likes flowers, candy and books. Make it a business to be comfortable whenever she is happy. Do not criticise her dress. Be a gentleman to all woman, but a husband to one only. If you have only a dollar you are not wasting it by spending it on her. When she is dissatisfied get a divorce. Life is too short to waste any of it in trying to please an abnormal woman.

NON-DRINKING SHEEP

Apparently Thrive Without Water Except Dew and Plant Juice

Sheep on the Nebo national forest range, Utah, go four and a half months without water except for such moisture as they get from the dew and the juices of forage plants.

Grazing sheep on a range entirely destitute of water is a recent innovation due to the increasing demand for forage and the efforts of the forestry officers to find a place on the forest ranges for all the stock that can safely be admitted. The area on the Nebo which has proved usable by sheep is high and rocky, a portion of it being above timber line, and it has neither springs nor streams of sufficient size or accessibility to be used for stock watering purposes. The grazing season lasts from June 15 to October 31. and during this period of four and a half months the animals do not get a drink.

Under such conditions, however, the sheep do extremely well, and the lambs from this range have an average weight at the close of the season of 66 pounds on the Chicago market, which is rather above the normal weight from that vicinity.

In one area on the Targhee forest in Idaho sheep get water only twice during the four-months' summer grazing season. There is no water on the range, but the sheep are driven to a nearby stream lower down the mountain side.

SUCCESSFUL DAIRYING

Depends to Large Extent Upon Knowing Individual Worth of Cows

There are such excellent concrete examples now and again outcropping of men who prove that it pays to take up cow testing, that their records of success make stimulating reading for dairy farmers all over the Dominion.

Here is a good example of what one man at Cedar Hall, Quebec, in the Gaspe Peninsula, accomplished by carefully watching his fairly good cows and feeding them better. The first year his eight cows gave him 33,511 pounds of milk, an average of 4,186 pounds, at a feed cost of $32.50, netting a total profit of $76.82, an average of $9.60 profit per cow. Two of the best cows in the herd the first year were lost accidentally, two heifers made up the herd to eight again; a pure bred sire is kept.

The next year his eight cows gave him 41,406 pounds of milk, an average of 5,176 pounds, or 1,000 pounds of an increase per cow. The feed cost $4.12 more per cow, but the total profit was $177.29, or an increase of 130 per cent. in the profit. It pays to give additional feed if the cows kept are of the type to make use of it profitably.

The forcible realities are these: The gross income from milk increased by $133.43 from the same number of cows, the profit far more than doubled, and the owner has received every encouragement to try for still better results. That is where a trial cow testing trip generally lands the herd owner.

Shooting Oil Wells

Keen interest is being taken in the development of the Manitoulin oil fields by Senator Poirer and representatives from all the chief centres on the island assembled at Green Bay to witness the shooting of some of the wells. E. A. Stokes, of Petrolea, was on hand, and a fuse was lighted, and a sharp shock was felt and the earth trembled, from the mouth of the pipe a greyish liquid shot into the air to a height of about eighty feet and fell gracefully to the ground. This was followed immediately by a second gush of a watery liquid which ascended to a height of about a hundred feet. About fifteen quarts of nitro-glycerine were used in shooting the well.

CANADIAN LAW IS COMMENDED

American Paper Says Canada Has Least Security in World For Escaping Criminals

The New York American referring to the capture of H. K. Thaw in Canada said: "Of all countries in the world, Canada offers the least security to strangers with unpleasant chapters in their histories. The Dominion has a cold way of looking at these things, that, to a suspect, must appear exceedingly inhospitable. In the first place, the Canadian courts have absorbed from the present British tradition an appalling contempt for technicalities. Anyone who has ever watched criminal trials of the present day in England must have been impressed with the brusque attitude of judges to phrase-juggling or efforts to translate words into some meaning other than what might be called their 'horse sense.' Barristers even hesitate to chance the snub of 'his worship' by advancing a technical objection, unless it be unusually clever and subtle, in which case the court may, after a few brief, keen-witted sallies, leave it to the jury, with a shrug, as much as to say: 'You gentlemen of common sense are, of course, not going to take such mental gymnastics into consideration. This reaction from a too technical period, when a misspelled name or word by an ill-fed engrosser could almost upset an indictment, has had its effect on Canadian practise. We recall the cases of Greene and Gaynor after the Captain Carter-Savannah harbor scandal. In these the defendants, refugees drenched with unlimited money in a luxurious hotel in Quebec, fought with the aid of the most astute legal talent for months, right through all the Canadian courts to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council in London, only to be landed back ignominiously in the United States for trial and sentence.

Jack Johnson, the pugilist only escaped the clutches of this law by having in his possession a through ticket from Chicago to Havre, France, which had been actually purchased in Chicago and was convincing evidence of his bona fide intention to seek neither refuge nor residence in Canada. The criminal offence of which he had been convicted in Illinois was not an extraditable offence, the Mann White Slave Act having been passed long after the extradition treaty had been negotiated. Even at that, the Canadian immigration authorities never lost sight of him until he left the country on a steamship. Nor did he then take a chance on landing at any British port."

HENS IN THE BACKYARD

Government Advises Town and City Dwellers to be Egg Producers

Many town and city people could not only produce sufficient eggs to keep their table going but have enough eggs left over that would go a long way towards supplying the household with groceries, etc., says a circular sent out from Ottawa by Mr. F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman. There are comparatively few city lots where a small flock of poultry could not be kept and enough scraps find their way into the garbage can to provide a large proportion of the feed. No male birds should be kept as they are both a nuisance and an expense which if done away with and the house kept clean and sanitary there is absolutely nothing about such a plant that could possibly annoy the neighbors. If say one in every hundred city families would produce even enough eggs for their own table, it would reduce the number of those who only consume and add that many more to the list of producers.

Salt For Livestock

Most stockmen realize the value of plenty of salt for their stock at all times, but very often this is neglected, and horses, cattle, and sheep are salted only once or twice a week, the owner believing that this is enough. It is absolutely necessary that mares with foals have salt where it is accessible whenever they wish to take it. Salt is an aid to digestion and should be within reach of the farm animals at all times, and more particularly when feed is being changed. A little salt may keep the veterinarian's fees down to a minimum.

ON HAPPINESS

It is undeniable that the great quest of humanity is happiness.

But was the world created to be happy? How many are truly happy? I've studied people in all classes and conditions, and everywhere I have found, when you get below the surface, that it is mostly the insincere individual who says, "I am happy." Nearly everybody wants something he hasn't got, and as things are constructed, what he wants is money—more money than he has in his pocket.

But after all, money can buy only a few things. Why should anyone envy the captains of industry? Their lives are made up of those vast, incessant worries from which the average individual is happily spared. Worry, worry, that is the evil of life.

What do I consider the nearest approximation to happiness of which the present human nature is capable? Why, living on a farm which is one's own, far from the hectic, artificial conditions of the city—a farm where one gets directly from one's own soil what one needs to sustain life, with a garden in front and a healthy, normal family to contribute those small domestic joys which relieve a man from business strain.—Thomas A Edison.

Constancy

Wouldn't You Welcome the Old Plays Back?

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY says that the [illegible] play has gone out of the fashion. E. H. Sothern declares that nobody wants the sex drama any more. Good News—I hope it's true.

But before I believe it I should like to hear what Miss Mary Garden or Mr. Holbrook Blinn has to say on the subject.

I do hope it's true—what Mr. Sothern and Mr. McCarthy say—don't you? I'm so sick of the sex play that I'd rather go to the theatre and see an Irish eviction affair, red coats, absentee landlord, pretty colleen, kindly priest and Somebody the Fox—and all. Wouldn't you?

Come now, honestly, let's sit down and talk about the play we've seen that we really got the most fun out of. And by fun I don't mean laughter always, either. There's lots of fun that is as serious as a funeral.

I call it fun to curl up in the corner of a couch with a plate of apples and a box of candy and "Lorna Doone" or the "Idyls of the King"—and there isn't a real laugh in the whole of Tennyson and not many broad grins in a chapter of Blackmore.

Your First Play.

Let's see—what was the first play you ever saw? "Rip Van Winkle" was mine—teacher took us to see it, in a bunch—and the agonies we endured for a week for fear the theatre would burn down or Mr. Jefferson would hear about our coming and refuse to play just for spite, can never be told.

I can see them, every one of them, this minute, from the instant the curtain rose. Nick Vedder with his kits, Gretchen with her sleeves rolled up, little Meenie with her hair in a swirl of flax over her plump little shoulders, and, sitting on the edge of a table, clad all in hunters' brown with his drinking cup held aloft, as no other mortal on earth ever held aloft any drinking cup, Rip himself. The most alluring, enchanting, delightful rapscallion of a good-for-naught that ever laughed away a careless hour.

How we loved him—town drunkard that he was—and how we hated good Gretchen, his honest, hardworking wife, and how we cried when the lightning flashed and Rip stood in the doorway and said: "I will never darken your door again, Gretchen." It was almost intolerable to have him go—out into the rain and the storm, out upon the wild mountain. How we wished we could run after him and call him back.

What did we care whether there were any such things as goblins and dwarfs, really, or not? What was it to us that Rip Van Winkle really ought to have been sent to the poorhouse or to the county jail before the curtain rose at all—it was [illegible] we loved, fancy—the dream—and through it, swept like a thread of silver—the haunting charm of personality.

What would you give to see Rip Van Winkle again—as you saw it that first time?

How about "Fanchon, the Cricket"? They said that Maggie Mitchell was an old woman when she played it—I thought they were joking. Old, that lovely creature with her hair in the most amazing ringlets and the little locket hung from a black velvet band at the slender throat—never! Why, she was youth itself.

Joyous Francois Villon.

"If I Were King"—ah! you both know something about that, Mr. Sothern and Mr. McCarthy. Wasn't it a joy to swagger through an evening as Villon, the beggar poet—and didn't we who sat in front love every line of the sweet romance?

No, it was not the ringing melody of your beautiful lines, Mr McCarthy, nor yet the charm of your delightful personality, Mr. Sothern, that took us all a-gathering roses with Villon in old France. It was a combination of the two, a something that made romance—the wide vision—the life that is part of a great picture—how we all long for it—after all.

And then came the dissection school of plays—and we all had to go and spend an evening in the cancer ward, or in the wing for the hopelessly incurable, and pretend we liked it. And then arrived the sex drama—obstetrics to the foreground. Chloroform, ether, carbolic acid—why, you could fairly whiff them before the curtain rose!

Ugh—I'm glad they're gone, or going, the sex plays and the problem plays and the torture plays, now.

I'm going to get a new theatre frock, something blue with a bit of silver about it, and I shall wear roses again to the play, real ones, and take a comfort in their perfume. And in my little theatre gown I shall carry a nice, serviceable hanky—for, if the old-fashioned plays are coming back again, I expect to cry a few kindly, old-fashioned tears when I go to the theatre.

Not the cruel, acrid tears that spring from the ache of an embittered heart—I don't want to weep over Zaza or Magda or any of the rest of the drabs—but I wouldn't mind a bit shedding a pleasant tear or so over the sorrows of the true lovers who join hands as the curtain falls. Would you?

The Last "Head Cook"

By Ann Marie Lloyd

THE old race of English cooks, whose roast beef and puddings made English cooking famous all over the world, is fast passing away. With the death of Thomas Davey, who, for a period of 47 years, was the presiding genius of a famous London kitchen, the last of the world-known English cooks has gone.

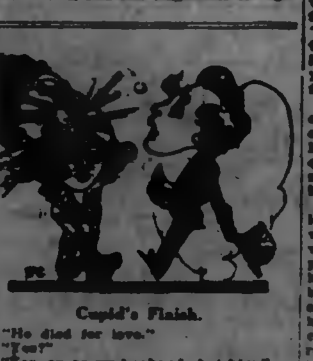
Starting life as a cook's apprentice in a tavern in Fleet street, Davey first entered the kitchen of Simpson's in 1867 as assistant "roast" cook, but his skill soon put him at the head of the kitchen, where, until his death, he was in command of a staff of 100 men. No dish was ever sent up to the dining rooms until it was critically examined by himself, and under his superintendence 100 pounds of English meat, 200 pounds of turbot, 50 pounds of Scotch salmon, 20 pounds of Dover soles, and two vegetables of vegetables were on an average daily prepared for the table.

Davey himself was British to his backbone. "Head cook," not "chef," he insisted upon calling himself, and he not only refused to have anything to do with a dinner should the menu be printed in French, but he never for a moment entertained an application for an appointment on the kitchen staff from men who did not come from some part of the British Isles.

Davey had a contempt for new-fangled methods in the kitchen, and insisted that every joint should be cooked in the true English fashion, on a spit before an open fire. It might be thought that this "king of the kitchen" was in consequence regarded as somewhat old-fashioned by other restaurants, but as a matter of fact time after time great restaurants in New York and on the continent tried to lure Davey away from Simpson's. They asked him to name "his own price," but he refused to leave the restaurant which he regarded as his home; so much so, that during his 47 years in the Strand he was only absent for six days on sick leave.

Davey had very pleasant recollections of the old days when Dickens, Thackeray, George Augustus Sala, Sir Henry Irving, and John Toole were regular frequenters of Simpson's, all of whom admired Davey's supreme skill as an English cook.

One of Davey's most interesting recollections was that of the late King Edward, who, when Prince of Wales, visited Simpson's and entertained a party of friends in private at the old house before the restaurant was rebuilt. The royal host and his guests sat at the famous round table. This mahogany, by the way, is so large that it could not be taken in or out of the room, and the new Simpson's was built around it without removal.



Cupid's Finish.

"He died for love."
"Yes?"
"Yes, an angry husband shot him."

THE MERMAID'S KISS :: By Michelson

IN summer time artists, like other persons, have dreams. This is one of those vagrant fancies to be charged up to the imaginative season. Probably the dream originated in the spectacle of a lusty diver staying under a long time. There is no way of knowing what a diver does when he is under water. If there really WERE mermaids there would be plenty of time for so very brief and so very wonderful an incident, though it is true that even a well-intentioned young man MIGHT stay too long.

Staying too long is a calamity in many places besides under the sea. Shimmery green water and vaguely veiled forms that MIGHT be mermaids are not the only things that have been known to make young men stay too long. The simple old moral applies. DON'T.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 114.

Mary's Cowardice.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

MARRIAGE has made me introspective. Every once in a while I take mental account of stock. And I'm learning much about the relative domesticity of the sexes.

I was brought up to believe that woman is essentially the more domestic of the sexes—that her every instinct is so firmly bound up with the thought of home and children that man's possessive, yet divided, interest in the domestic side of life pales beside it. I am learning that there is a fierce domestic hunger in the hearts of some men unequalled by the quiescent domesticity of the most virtuous of women.

After all, a woman's domesticity is almost always passive. She marries by instinct, loves by instinct, begets her children and mothers them by an instinct which doesn't always leap to it the fire of mind and spirit.

With the man his craving for home and children is a fierce hunger of his soul. It is an active, virile thing that, denied, makes him most unhappy.

And so with me.

I cannot help believing that some time in the life of every childless mortal the child-hunger comes with sickening intensity. One longs to feel that there is something in the world quite his own—some one who will reverently close his eyes at the end and mourn sincerely. What link to the future will the next generation hold for me? None. Man needs the stimulus of planning for young lives who will carry the divine fire on to spur him to the height of his endeavor.

Why did I marry? Because I have the primitive man's love for a home—because I was dazzled by my wife's beauty—and, yes—because I looked ahead and saw the rosy faces of children about my table.

And my wife refuses to accept the natural burden of her sex.

Most men love children. There are women who don't. All men want children. There are women who don't.

I sincerely believe that I would love my wife more if she were the mother of my children. I am learning much, too, about that insane glamour which sentimental youth weaves about the thought of love.

Loving your wife and being in love with her are two separate and very different states of mind.

I was in love with my wife when I married her. "Being in love" is a charming intoxication of the senses. It is bound to change. Then if a man and his wife are true friends—and friendship surely is the basis of a big love—that quieter, deeper love is bound to come, that love which is tranquil and strong and not quite so much a thing of the senses.

Time again may alter this. It may degenerate into a prosy, substantial affection. It may attain the flash of holiness that will make it endure. And the one thing that will contribute that divine flash of holiness is a common interest in something absolutely your own. There is nothing absolutely one's own but one's children.

Therefore, I am no longer in love with my wife. I do love her much as one loves a spoiled child. I can see where a great reverence might creep into my heart at the sight of a child's head on her shoulder. I can see where I shall glide into affectionate indifference if time does not bring me children.

My wife is a physical coward. She has an unutterable horror of bearing a child—she is absolutely afraid. And this again because my mother-in-law has filled her head with foolish stories from which any girl should be guarded.

And I think Mrs. Penfield's motive for her subtle discouragement is a reluctance to be called—a grandmother!

✤✤✤✤ How RIVERS Got Their NAMES ✤✤✤✤

The Broad river, in South Carolina, was so called by the whites. The Indian name was Eswau Huppeday, or "Dividing Line river," because it was the boundary between the Cherokees and the Catawbas.

The Big Sandy, in Kentucky, was so called on account of its sandbars. The Indian name Chatterol, has a similar meaning. One tribe called it We-pe-pe-co-ne-co-pe-we; another the Si-ke-a-co-pe, or "Salt river."

Hell Gate was so called by the Dutch, who applied the name to the whole of the present East river. The Indians called the neighborhood of the famous reef Mon-ah-ton-uk, "dangerous water"; also, Ahten, "running water."

The Gulf of California was first called Mar de Cortez, then Mar Bermejo, the former being in honor of the conqueror of Mexico, the latter on account of the bright red color of its waters. The name literally translated means "Red sea."

The Columbia river was first called the Oregano, the Spanish name for the wild sage that grows on its banks. Whitney says that the Spanish name was Orejon, "big ear," or "one that hath large ears." An allusion to the custom of the Indians in that region of stretching their ears, by boring them and crowding them with ornaments.

The Missouri has its name from the Algonquin word Mis, "great," and the Sioux word, Souri, "a muddy stream." Several different names and a great variety of spellings are noted among the early writers. It is called Wemessouret, Minnishoshe, Oumissouret, Afiskiwaki and several other names.

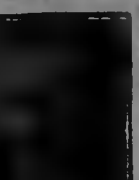
Why Even Little Hurts Require a Doctor's Care

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

IF the number of apothecary shops is an index, the dictum of the philosopher to throw physic to the dogs has never been realized.

Curious it is to see both the public and the pharmacist each co-operating, the one with the other, to do the wrong thing about illnesses.

Druggists are skilful and full of knowledge in the compounding of drugs. They know more about what will or what will not commingle with iron; what will or will not mix with iodine, and which salves, embrocations or fluids will make a nauseous mixture than all the surgeons, physicians and bacteriologists in practice.

Yet druggists know no more about the dangers of lockjaw from a grain of dust in the eye, or the obscure possibilities of a scratch or sore throat than a milkman knows about a turbine engine.

Yet the faulty logic, defective school education and penny-wise, pound-foolish economy of ninety odd persons in the hundred sends them hot-foot into the nearest pharmacy for some remedy to "cure" wounds, sores, headaches, something blown into the eye, and even for far worse maladies.

You might just as well go to a financier to discover why a mouse spins, or ask a poet the solution of the rule of least squares. Druggists know drugs, but they know not what they do in many other things.

A wise physician, skilled your wounds to heal, is more than armies to the public weal. A druggist, though, who treats an open sore, causes unheralded consequences more and more.

It is true that the dear public are apt to consider the red lamp of the pharmacy as a symbol of the ever-ready surgery. The doctor's sign next door repels, because it conjures up a dollar note. The hospital is shunned much the same as a child does the dark, to wit: from instinct and not from reason.

The first refuge, then, is the druggist. He, poor fellow, must perforce yield his benevolent co-operation, or be like his colleague of "Romeo and Juliet."

"I do remember an apothecary—
And hereabouts he dwells—whom late I noted
In tattered weeds, with overwhelming brows,
Culling of simples. Meagre were his looks,
Sharp misery had worn him to the bones."

It is time, now, that the pharmaceutist be not annoyed and inveigled into giving so-called first aid to wounded eyes, ears, nose and flesh. He who runs must read well the lesson that druggists know drugs, how to combine them, but not how, when, where, and why not to use them.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am going with a young man who belongs to the same church of which I am a member. We both attend church regularly Sunday night. Sometimes he accompanies me there, but leaves me at the church door and he sits at the back with the boys.

He once told me he would never sit with a girl in church, as he had never done so yet. He has with me, but only in strange churches. Also at any concerts which we hold he is off with the boys, but always comes along in time to see me home.

I cannot imagine why he would do this, as every one around the church knows we are going together. He has taken me to his home and to those of his relatives, dozens of times. You know the impression this naturally gives me. I know the other boys tease him dreadfully (which he cannot stand).

I have never mentioned it to him. Should I? MOTHERLESS.

I WOULDN'T waste much of my time on a man who was ashamed to show people how much he cared for me. He isn't worth it, "Motherless," not in the least worth it.

If he really loved you as he should nobody in the world could keep him away from you, either in church or out of it.

What if the boys do tease him about you—is he such a coward and such a baby that he can't stand a little teasing? If he is, he is not for you or for any sensible girl.

The girls tease you about him, don't they? I should think they would.

No, I would not let him take me home—or take me to church. I would find some one to do that who would sit with me when he got there.

Don't let this self-conscious self-centred young man make you ridiculous once again. Make him mend his manners or else forget all about him.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Women Carry Babies to Work

By TEMPLE MANNING

Carrying Rubber and Baby.

ON a hunting trip in the Great African forest, where the rubber is gathered, I heard a weird chanting coming from over the river as we approached Makala. The wild voices came across the water in a monotonous chant mixed with discordant notes blown on antelope horns. It was the natives I knew, but why they sang I did not know. The chief of my carriers told me.

It was not a special festival to the sowing of crops, nor an invocation of the natives to the Supreme Spirit. It was only a rubber caravan returning from a forest trip, happy at the thought of coming home.

Louder and louder grew the chant, and at last, from among the great trees the caravan wound into sight. We of our party stepped back to the side of the trail and watched the rubber carriers file past.

At the head walked a chief, resplendent in gala dress that was nearly all color decoration of a loin cloth, and following him came the gatherers. One by one they strode past, chanting their song as they marched, and on their backs they bore the rubber. The men were big, black fellows, strong and stalwart, and the women fit mates in brawn and muscle.

It will ever be an open question in my mind whether the women were not even stronger than the men. Many a woman, in addition to the heavy basket of rubber on her back, carried her little black baby strapped on her hip.

We followed the caravan into the town of Makala. There the rubber was being weighed and the cares of the trail forgotten in the time of payment. The women were all standing around the scales with glistening eyes, looking at the treasures they coveted spread out for their choice.

Cloth, salt, soap, beads are among the greatest treasures, but even more precious to these dusky women are the little bells that the white men give them to tie on to baby's tiny wrists and ankles. For, like all good mothers the world over, these black workers idolize their children.

At work in the forest camps, gathering rubber, or on the hard marches carrying the precious rubber to market, the African woman will not be separated from her baby. No matter how heavy her burden or work may be, her little black child is strapped to her hip and she croons to it as she works.

CAPT. CARR-HARRIS, A CANADIAN, REPORTED AS MISSING IN AFRICA

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 11.—A cable from the British War Office today to Prof. Carr-Harris announces that his second son, Capt. Edward Dale, Carr Harris, was among the missing in South Africa. Captain Carr-Harris graduated from the Royal Military College here in 1899. He was attached to the Imperial army and had served in China in 1900, when he received a medal and clasp. On the outbreak of hostilities he was removed from the staff college at Cuetta, India, to South Africa.

Has Relatives in Toronto.

Capt. Carr-Harris is a brother of Mr. R. R. Carr-Harris and Miss Marguerite Carr-Harris of Toronto. He was born in Kingston, the second son of Prof. Carr-Harris. He was well known in Toronto in social and athletic circles, more particularly the latter since he was captain of both football and hockey teams of the R. M.C., He was promoted to be battalion Sergeant-major at R.M.C., the highest honor in the gift of the college; got the sword of honor and passed out at the head of his class.

Early Saw Foreign Service

He went to England upon receiving a commission in the Royal Engineers but was soon appointed to the China service, going to Wei-Hai-Wei. Later he saw service at Singapore; in the Kohat valley (N.W. India) as district engineer; in the Kuaram valley (Afghanistan frontier) and later in the Cuetta staff college. Recently he was ordered to South Africa where he saw active service.

The Position of Italy

A despatch from Rome has announced that the Italian Parliament has been summoned to meet Decumber 2 for a session of two weeks, and that the debate on Italy's foreign policy and on the attitude of Italy toward the pending war is to be avoided. This is said to be the decision of the king and of the Cabinet Council.

If the announcement is accurate, it is additional evidence of the firm determination of the Italian government to adhere steadfastly to its August decision to remain neutral.

In the absence of any special provocation how could the Italian government afford to do otherwise? The mere entering of Turkey into the pending struggle certainly does not give Italy an excuse for declaring war against Austria, and there is no reason to believe that Austria in her present desperate condition will knowingly give Italy an excuse for declaring war. Of course the opportunity that Italy now has of recovering Trieste and the Trevino and of obtaining command of the Adriatic is very tempting; but to seize that opportunity now without special provocation would surely be a breach of good faith in the face of the long defensive alliance of the two governments at Vienna and Rome.

The Story of the Emden

Although most of the romance of the sea is deemed to have departed with the substitution of steam for sail power, the cruise of the "Emden" has provided a story of enduring and entrancing interest. For a period of three months this vessel proved to the British mercantile marine litterally a scourge of the Shina and the Indian seas. Prowling along the ocean highways and pouncing on their prey, the "Emden" destroyed no less than twenty-three merchant vessels, valued with their cargoes at a good many millions of dollars, and helping herself to their coal and provisions. It was a desperately bold career, of which the crowning audacity was the dash of the Emden into Penang harbor, where she sunk a Russian cruiser and a French destroyer. The race of this rover is run now, the star of her fortune has set. Overtaken by the Australian cruiser 'Sydney,' a craft of the same class, but a shade faster and with slightly heavier guns, the gallant German ship has been overcome and wrecked.

Rheumatism Goes Quickly Its Virus Forever Destroyed

EVERY CASE IS CURABLE.

Good-bye to Rheumatism!

Your aching joints, your stiff, sore muscles, those sleepless nights and suffering days—good-bye forever—your day is gone.

Sufferer, cheer up, and read the good news below.

"A man met me a month ago and said, 'don't stay crippled, quit complaining, limber up.' My answer was, 'I'm rheumatic, I can't do it.' He looked me over in a pitying sort of way and told me to go to the nearest drug store for Nerviline and Ferrozone. The combination had cured him. I was convinced of his sincerity and followed his instructions. I rubbed on Nerviline three times every day—rubbed it right into my aching joints. The pain quickly lessened, and I became more limber and active. To draw the virus of the disease from my blood and I took two Ferrozone Tablets with every meal. I am well to-day, not an ache, not a pain and no sign of stiffness at all."

What Nerviline can do in a case like this it can do for you too. For nearly forty years Nerviline has been recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica and Lame Back. It is the one remedy that never disappoints.

The operations of the "Emden" can be compared only with those of the Confederate ship Alabama which ranged the Atlantic for two years until sunk by the Kearsarge off Cherbourg, and nearly involved the United States in war with Great Britain, settlement of the international controversy being made through the award of $15,500,000 by the Alabama claims commission to the sufferers from the privateer's depredations. The Alabama was at large much longer than the Emden, but the circumstances were very different, and more favorable to the former.

Australians doubtless will feel great pride in the achievement of the fine vessel of the navy they have set out to create. Canada, before the last change of party government also wanted to build warships, but the policy was rejected and a money contribution to the British government substituted.

"CASCARETS" RELIEVE SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Get a 10-cent box now.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness, and sick headache mean a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated till you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing too.

PAVEMENTS OF RUBBER

Expensive as Yet But a Distinct Probability of the Future

It is not yet practicable to construct roads with surfaces of rubber except at a cost of $26 per yard, but there is little doubt that they will ultimately be adopted, says The Canadian Engineer. At the International Rubber Exhibition held in London recently, rubber paving was shown both for use on footways and on carriages. In each case the rubber constituted a surface cushion on blocks of jarrah wood, the material being held tightly in position by dovetailing, while a special joint locked the paving, preventing, when laid, the access of water to the concrete foundations. It is contended that thinner foundations are necessary owing to the reduced amount of vibration which occurs by heavy and fast-moving traffic, and further, that it never becomes slippery and that motor vehicles do not "skid" upon it under unfavorable conditions of weather. A section of rubber paving laid in the Old Kent Road, London, where the traffic is heavy, is not perceptibly worn after a year's use.

FAMOUS PHRASES AND THEIR ORIGIN

Some Everyday Expressions Have Come Down to us From the Time of the Caesars

The average person probably does not know the origin of half the common phrases used in ordinary conversation.

No less a person than Cicero first made use of the expression, "While there's life, there's hope," in a letter he wrote to Atticus. "We are in the same boat" is not modern slang, but occurs in a letter written by Clement I., Bishop of Rome, to the Church of Corinth in the first century. This letter is still in existence.

"I never put off till to-morrow what I can do to-day," was Lord Chesterfield's explanation of how he managed to do so much work. "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well," he wrote later in the famous "Letters to His Son."

Lord Eldon, Lord Chancellor of England during the first twenty-six years of the nineteenth century, continually mispronounced the name of Henry Brougham, afterward to be a successor in the Chancellor's office. Brougham objected to being called Broffam, and once, after Brougham had made a speech, Eldon, by way of apology, pronounced his name correctly and made a proverb, "New brooms sweep clean."

"No man is a hero to his valet" has been paraphrased by scores, from Madame du Cornuel, a witty Frenchwoman of the seventeenth century, to Dr. Johnson and Napoleon. The first record of it, however, is found in Plutarch, who states that when Hermodotus addressed a poem to Antigonous I., King of Sparta, hailing him as son of the sun and a god, the monarch replied, "My bodyservant sings me no such song."

The phrase "circumstances over which he has no control" was used by the Duke of Wellington in a letter concerning some affairs in which his son was mixed up, and with which he declined to interfere.

"Conspicuous by their absence" has been used on many occasions in modern oratory. It was first used by Tacitus in relating that in the funeral procession of Julia, niece of Cato, sister of Brutus, wife of Cassius, many of the images of the most famous families in Rome were seen, but "Cassius and Brutus shone pre-eminent because their images were not displayed."

"Nothing is certain but death and taxes," wrote Benjamin Franklin, stating that the Constitution of the United States was in operaion and to all appearances would last.

"Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," was said by James I. of England, when his favorite, the Duke of Buckingham, complained that a mob had broken his glass windows, which were at that time a luxury.

"Mind your P's and Q's" is said to have been taken from an old French phrase at the time of Louis XIV. A very low bow was in fashion, and the dancing master, instructing his pupils, would warn them to look out for the position of the feet and the movement of the head, lest their queue wigs be disarranged. The French word for foot is pied. "Mind your pieds and queues," soon came to be transplanted into English, and abbreviated.

FORCE OF EXPLOSION

Amazing Freak of Gelignite in British Columbia

It seems incredible that an explosion could be of such force as to cause an ordinary steel rail to wrap itself twice around the trunk of a large tree; yet there was just such a result from the discharge of gelignite at Nanaimo, British Columbia. Twelve workmen lost their lives by this explosion. The rail was lying on the ground fully thirty feet from the spot at which the explosion occurred; yet it was lifted into the air, sent in the direction of the tree, and twisted round the trunk, just as if it had been a piece of piano wire. It was so tightly wrapped about the trunk that it cut deeply into the green wood and caused great splinters to start out on all sides. The explosive responsible for this unique occurrence is one of the most powerful preparations known, composed of nitroglycerine, nitrocotton, sodium nitrate, sodium carbonate, and wood pulp.

How do Animals Know?

One of the mysteries still unsolved is that of the sense by which the lower animals become aware of the approach of earthquakes. For three or four days before the severe earthquakes at Guadalajara, Mexico, the many parrots of the city showed great and unusual restlessness, and during the period of disturbance the increased cries of the birds gave warning of the nearness of the worst shocks. Rats, also, became alarmed, fleeing from the city before the earthquakes came. Supersensitiveness to faint shocks hardly gives satisfactory explanation, for modern seismographs are very sensitive, and it is quite unlikely that tremors too slight to be reckoned would be felt so strongly as to give alarm.—"Science Siftings."

Heaviness of Platinum

Platinum is the heaviest commercial metal known. Its specific gravity is 21.5, as compared with 19.26 for pure gold and 10.53 for silver. Briefly, platinum is 21½ times as heavy as water, more than twice the weight of silver and heavier, bulk for bulk, than pure gold. It is softer than iron, but somewhat harder than copper.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs—all young foxes—good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business—and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

NO SLACKENING OF RUSSIAN WAR PRESSURE

Petrograd, Nov. 11.—The task of dealing with Turkey in the East will in no wise cause a slackening of the pressure being exerted along the German frontier, according to military authorities here today:

It is the confident belief in Petrograd that the great Russian army will crush its way through to East Prussia, Galicia, and Posen by force of its own weight of numbers. The reports from the front declare it is evident that the Kaiser is rushing reinforcements to the eastern front from Belgium. Men of commands reported a week ago to be fighting in Flanders have been taken prisoners in East Prussia, it is declared.

Russians Not Satisfied.

Telegraphing from Petrograd the Morning Post's correspondent says:

"The Russians are by no means satisfied with their recent victories. In certain quarters the opinion is expressed that the German armies ought never to have been allowed to leave Russia.

"At the war council, where the plans were laid down, distinguished councillors argued in favor of allowing the Germans to cross the Vistula even if Warsaw had to be abandoned stating that not one German would then succeed in returning.

"From a military point of view their contention was justified, but they were over-ruled by political arguments and it was decided Warsaw was not to be sacrificed.

"The surprising arrival of heavy Siberian reinforcements at Warsaw in the nick of time was part of the strategic scheme, the object being to catch the Germans unawares. Germany's finest forces were there, among them royal princes who brought gala uniforms to celebrate the capture of Warsaw at a ball to which invitations had already been issued. The Siberians had heavy artillery, outranging that of the Germans by nearly a mile which completely routed the Germans."

Tremendous Task For Russians

A Petrograd despatch to the Daily Telegraph says that at every point the lack of artillery by the Russians is compensated by the numbers of infantry. All along the Russian front bayonet tactics have been as common as artillery duels on the German-French battle-line.

"Having reached the German frontier," says the despatch, the Russians have a tremendous task before them, because the Germans on their own territory will fight in accordance with their own theories, with absolutely perfect lines of communication, on which the army will move automatically.

"The imperfect transportation conditions of the Russians will improve on the arrival of winter, which in Poland is about a month hence. This will harden the roads. During this month of waiting Russia will rush forward her reserve forces to the points of contact."

"That the Germans have abandoned hope of coming back to Poland shown by their destruction of the bridges and their even plowed up the ain roads on their retirement. During four days, from Thursday to the Russians kept up a hot pursuit Sunday, on the Thorn-Cracow front, of the retreating Austro-German army, which hastily flung strong rear guards on to the crossings of the rivers Warthe, Pilica, and Niday, with the object of checking the Russian advance and affording the main body an opportunity to pull itself together. In general the artillery played the chief part in these rear-guard actions.

"On Sunday, the Russians, keeping up the pursuit, let their cavalry loose on the flanks of the defeated army with the object of completing the enemy's disorganization.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor!

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). of a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

CURIOUS FISH

Remarkable fish have been captured in depths of from one thousand to two thousand fathoms in the Atlantic and brought to the surface. The majority of those living at great depths were jet black. Their luminous portions which light up the dark regions which they inhabit are marvellous.

These fish plough through the dark waters like flaming torches. Some have elongated snouts, with luminous tips emitting great volumes of light. Others have rows of luminous cells on top of and below their bodies, with reflectors and lenses which serve the function of projecting light in definite directions. This light serves the purpose of illuminating the surrounding water to avoid foes, to recognize their own kind or to capture prey.

The greatest depth found by sounding was until lately 5,269 fathoms, or 31,614 feet—nearly six miles. This is a point in the Pacific ocean off the coast of Guam, about 100 miles or so. But a surveying ship of the German navy has recently discovered a deeper spot in the ocean, near the Philippines, about forty sea miles off the north coast of Mindanao.

VAST RESOURCES

Some Statistical Facts About British Columbia

British Columbia has an area of about 252,000,000 acres, of which about 1,600,000 acres is composed of lakes in the interior. There are over 100,000 acres of timber land of no value for farming other than for stock purposes, and while it is estimated that 3,000,000 acres are either under cultivation or partly so, statistics show that the actual yielding acreage, other than for grazing purposes, is not more than 350,000 acres.

It is stated that with the exception of Siberia, Brazil and the Northwestern United States, British Columbia's timber wealth is unparalleled in any other country. The investigations of the forestry branch show that there are not less than 100,000,000 acres of forest land in British Columbia and that the total stand of commercial timber amounts to about 300,000,000,000. Taking the present lumber output of the province as a basis of figuring, which is about 1,250,000,000 feet per annum, and making no allowance for annual growth, it would take nearly 250 years to use up merely the mature timber now standing.

In the production of copper British Columbia stands first among the provinces, the output amounting to more than a third of that of all Canada. Fishing is one of the province's chief industries, and the vessels of all kinds which enter Vancouver total up to over ten thousand per year.

THE WESTERN SPIRIT

This Philosopher Ready to Prove There is no Blood in a Stone

The following letter to an eastern loan company from a Saskatchewan client, was published in a leading financial publication. It speaks for itself:

"Dear Sirs:—In reply to your letter, I must say that I can not pay you the interest on your mortgage this year.

"You seem to think you can make me pay this as you state in your letter that you will not allow it to remain. How shall I pay when I have not got it? You can make extension till next year or not just as you please, there are millions of acres of unoccupied land out here. And what good is it to us farmers anyway, we only get a poor living from it, and if you are not satisfied with the way I am running your property out here come and run it yourself. You threatened before to foreclose; why did not you? I am getting tired of waiting for it.

"I would advise you to wait till next year as you will get at least one more year's interest.

"Why is it that you fellows that produce nothing and do nothing useful own everthing, and we that produce everything own nothing?

"You seemed to think that my last letter was too short, perhaps this will suit you better.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties — must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

WHEAT AND BREAD AS SEEN BY SCIENCE

Temperature and Rainfall Affect Quality of the Loaf—Western Canadian Wheat Strong

To the majority of people the only differences in the quality of wheat are those apparent to the eye. Concerning the relationship of the physical appearances of the wheat to the baking quality of the resultant flour very little is known. Yet the most important qualities are those revealed by analysis and actual test, according to Mr. L. D. Jackson in an article in the The Farmers' Advocate.

The most important constituents of the wheat kernel are gluten and starch. No doubt the housewife has seen the elastic substance that remains when a lump of dough has been washed by running water for a few minutes. If the dough is squeezed in the hand under the tap for a short period of time an elastic rubber-like substance remains. This is gluten and the constituent of flour that gives shape and texture to the loaf of bread. Chemically it belongs to the same class of compounds as the white of egg and fiber of meat, the muscle-building constituent of food. Starch belongs to the group of compounds known as carbo-hydrates, which in the digestive process are the heat producers of the body.

Flour from Western Canadian wheat is famous the world over for its strength. Various interpretations are placed upon this word strength but generally speaking, strength means ability to stand strong fermentation, to stand the abuse of the machines in the modern bakeshop and to give spring and volume to the loaves. The source of this strength is the large amount of good quality gluten in the wheat.

Difference in Wheats

But all Western wheats are not alike. Some have high gluten content and some low. In some the gluten is of poor quality, regardless of the quantity. Occasionally the color is dark and yellow. Besides the variations in the quality and quantity of gluten there are other features entering into the problem. The physical condition of the wheat, too early cutting, damage by rain, tough wheat, and other conditions which make the wheat unsuitable for milling purposes.

The reader may ask what are the causes of these variations in the wheat. A few explanations will suffice

RISING COST OF LIVING

Canada Leads the World According to British Figures

A report of the inquiry instituted by the British Government into the cost of living of the working classes, in addition to dealing with conditions at home, contained some comparisons of prices in foreign countries and the Overseas Dominions.

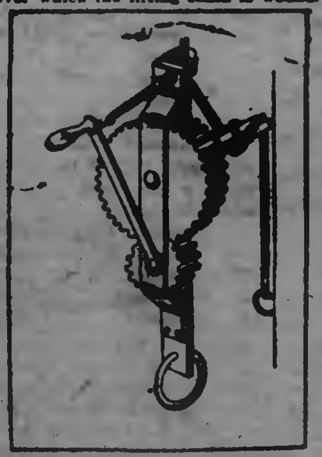
The compilers of the report admitted that they had difficulty in bringing together diverse figures and values from all parts of the Empire into a general comparison. Their conclusions, however, if not absolutely reliable, are none the less interesting.

The chief feature of the report was the evidence that the rise in prices is world wide. The rise has been greater in foreign countries, with the exception of France, than in Great Britain. The greatest rise has been in Canada, Austria-Hungary, the United States and Japan. Since 1900 the rise in Austria-Hungary has been 35 per cent.; Belgium, 32 per cent.; Germany, 30 per cent.; Italy, 20 per cent. In the same period the British and French rise has been only 15 per cent. Canada easily topped the list with a rise of 51 per cent. Australia and New Zealand showed comparatively modest rises of 16 per cent.

HOISTING APPARATUS

Multiple Gear Revolves the Shaft Which Wraps up Chain

For the hoisting of heavy weights by hand, so to speak, the mechanism pictured here seems to be effective. An iron frame has a multiple gearing set inside it, the gear operated by means of a lever. The revolution of the wheels turns a horizontal shaft over which the lifting chain is wound.



EASY TO LOCK THE WHEELS

As the shaft revolves and more and more of the chain is wound up the weight on the free end is naturally lifted. A feature of this mechanism is the locking device, which consists of a short chain that can be hooked onto the lever at any time to prevent backward revolution. This is particularly convenient in case the man or men turning the lever should want to stop a moment to rest or for any other purpose.

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel

When They Have

Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Remarkable Feat of Four Men Who Stopped Flood in Tunnel

Three electrical workers went in a punt down through a raging torrent that choked a power company's tunnel along the mighty cliff that holds up the weight of Niagara Falls. Three men with three boxes of dynamite groped their way in pitch blackness through a circular chamber swirling with water in order to blast out ten tons of rock lodged unexpectedly in the tunnel's "spout." They failed. And then what? A few days later they did what mortal men have done neither before nor since; they climbed up the face of Niagara Falls from the outside, crawled under the curtain of water that leaps out from the giant cliffs and placed a charge of dynamite in the mouth of the tunnel. That time they were successful. The channel was cleared without the loss of a life. Here is the second trip as told by one of the men:

"Although we were dressed in oilskins, oil hats and rubber boots, we were quickly drenched to the bones by gusts of spray that tumbled on our heads and backs like pails of buckshot. So great became the force of these gusts that we could stand upright no longer and crawled from bowlder to bowlder on our hands and knees. All this time we were advancing literally under Niagara Falls, for the cataract was falling over and slightly beyond us, now and then giving us an extra heavy swish of water as the winds in the gorge blew direct against the face of the fall.

"We were walking about a hundred feet up from the pool, bracing ourselves against the piles of rubbish. It was, at first, an almost impossible task to make steady progress. So we kept some distance apart for safety's sake in the event of one having a tumble, and by taking our medicine patiently at every downpour sent our way, we finally reached the ledge directly under the tunnel's mouth. It was a matter of a few minutes to place the dynamite and wires where they would hit the blockade to best advantage.

"We rested a few minutes and commenced the return journey. Bad as the approach had been, the going back was infinitely worse. The adverse winds had practically isolated us by walls of water, and indeed at one time the prospect was good for a twenty-four-hour stay on the edge of an ugly cavern.

"During a lull we were enabled to make another start. Having to drag the pair of copper wires with us made the trip much more difficult, but we held on and gained foot after foot, sometimes slipping, often bringing blood, until the sight of the Cave of the Winds peeped through the abnormal mists. Exhaustion was slowing down our steps, and a fearful hunger increased the discomfort, for the adventure had taken the best part of a day. I remember some one throwing us a rope and we snatched at it with a sudden return of energy.

"Lifted safely into the cave, the superintendent touched the copper wires. A far-off roar, that sounded even above the boom of the falls—and we turned to face a messenger who had been waiting at the telephone for instant news of the water level in the tunnel. 'It is rapidly lowering,' said he, and all of us knew that the blockade had been broken by the blast."

WILLIAM SULZER

William Sulzer who was impeached from the Governorship of New York State was born to be a politician and a leader of men. He had an uphill fight all along the way, but by either genius or good luck never has been shelved. His father, Thos. Sulzer, was a politician before him, so much so that he suffered imprisonment for a cause he believed in. The elder Sulzer was a German patriot and a comrade of General Sigel and General Schurz. He was a strong advocate of constitutional liberty, and while a student at Heidelberg University, joined the patriots in a revolution. He was captured and imprisoned, but through clever manoeuvring managed to escape to Switzerland. He came to this continent immediately and soon cast his lot with the Democratic forces. This was in 1851. The elder Sulzer married soon after he arrived here and settled in Elizabeth, N.J. His wife was from Dutch and Scotch-Irish stock. They lived in the New Jersey city for several years, and there William Sulzer was born. Soon afterward they removed to New York, and young Sulzer, who was exceedingly bright as a boy, was sent to the Public schools and was graduated, despite the fact that it cost many a hard effort and sacrifice on the part of his father and mother. Afterward he was sent to Columbia University, where he studied law. Both in the Public school and at college he was recognized as a forcible speaker. As early as 1884, when Mr. Sulzer was but twenty-one years old, he attracted attention as a masterly orator.

Market for Flax Fibre

As a considerable quantity of flax is harvested in Canada every year, the attention of firms interested may be drawn to the market in Leeds, England, for flax fibre. Spinners there have followed with close attention the development of the growth of the flax plant in Western Canada, and are desirous of receiving shipments of the fibre if it can be obtained on competitive terms with supplies from other sources. Some three years ago a few small trial shipments of unretted flax fibre were sent from Canada. Mr. J. M. Massey, Canadian trade commissioner at Leeds says consumers express their readiness to give their consideration to offers that may be received at any time from Canadian firms interested in building export markets for this fibre.

WHY A HORSE BALKS

Overloading the Primary Cause and the Animal so Treated Remembers

The explanation of a balking horse lies in the horse having a delusion that he is hitched to an immovable body or is tied. Have you ever seen a man whip a horse tied in a stall? If you did, you noticed that the horse did not try to get away. It would jump around, snort, paw, kick, possibly, but it would not try to get away. Why, you ask, does it not try to get away? For the very good reason it has good horse sense and will not try a thing that it knows it cannot do. Sometime in the past it tried to break its halter, found it impossible, and, like a good, sensible horse that it knows itself to be, will not try again. So it is with your balky horse. Sometime in the past someone overloaded the poor horse, got it stuck, then beat it for a while, and, as a last resort, unhitched and left the load; then taking the bruised, half dead with fright, so-called balky horse to the barn, unloaded the whole wagon, pried it out, and, if it were in the mud, pulled it up on solid footing, hitched the balky horse up again, and, after a lot of swinging around, finally got off.

But, you say, that should not make the horse permanently balky. Well, sometimes it does not, but one or two more overloads, one or two more beatings, and it is all over with your horse's working days. If your horse could reason from cause to effect, the same as you, then we would never have such a thing as a balky horse. But it can't. It knows only this. One time it was rigged up with a lot of straps around its neck (collar), a lot more covering its body (harness), and tied to a solid piece (wagon). Its master at that time beat it and yanked it around until it was almost dead, and it could not get away, so, with the same straps upon its body, the tugs fast, neck yoke up, every environment the same as when it tried to go upon a previous occasion and could not, why should it try again? Sometimes, by leading it, you can get it to go, but if it comes up against the collar and then flies back, it thinks itself tied and will try no more. —Edward Vaughn, in Farm and Fireside.

ICELAND MISNAMED

Very Up-to-date Young Business Man Corrects Some False Impressions

Giall J. Olafsson, manager of telegraphs and telephones in Iceland, upset all the mental pictures that hotel clerks had of Iceland, when he registered at a Montreal hotel. Instead of a man with long whiskers and wearing furs, they saw an athletic young man, who might be mistaken for a Canadian, dressed according to the latest style, and much more familiar with English than many hotel clerks.

"Iceland is misnamed," said Mr. Olafsson. "The name of our country should have been changed with that of Greenland, for it is Iceland that is really the green land. Why, none of us had ever seen an iceberg until we got near Newfoundland.

"Our country now has about 85,000 population. We do very little in the way of manufacturing. Our telecover a good deal of the ground really covar a good deal of the ground, for, notwithstanding our small population, Iceland is bigger than Ireland.

"Of course we have the same king as Denmark, but otherwise we are independent of Denmark—very much like the relations that existed between Norway and Sweden before the two countries separated. We have a Parliament of two houses, and elect our own representatives and our own governor. As for our climate, it is no severer than that of Newfoundland, and on the south side of the island it may be milder.

Waterproofing Concrete

The following mixture has long been used by army engineers in waterproofing cement: One part cement two parts sand, three-quarters of one pound of dry powder alum to each cubic foot of sand. Mix dry and add water in which three-quarters of one pound of soap has been dissolved to each gallon. This is nearly as strong as ordinary cement, and is quite impervious to water, besides preventing efflorescence. For a wash, a mixture of one pound of lye and two pounds of alum in two gallons of water is often used.

Alfalfa For Horses

Undeniably alfalfa has become a crop of great value in Western Canada and is no longer in the experimental stage. In Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba it is produced in considerable quantities. In most cases the crop is harvested for hay, but sometimes used for pasture.

COMPLAINTS FROM CHINA

Far Away Wives Want the Money Husbands Earn in Montreal

Acting upon complaints which came all the way from China, prominent Chinese merchants in Montreal appealed to Chief Campeau for his assistance in a final attempt to put a stop to the wholesale gathering of married and single laundrymen in the various joints along Lagauchetiere street in that city, where they are lured by the fan tan game to hazard their earnings of a week at one sitting around the plain wooden table, over which the keeper presides and from which he takes the bets in unceasingly.

The gambling and its baneful influence was so far-reaching that far-off China was heard from in the complaint of the nine wives of as many Chinamen, who were sending no money home on account of fan tan.

The letters sent to Montreal declared that for a long time gambling has diverted the flow of money from the wives of many Canadian Chinamen, to the pockets of the fan tan gambling houses, and tales of hardship were recounted by the women, mothers of children, whose fathers were doing nothing for their maintenance.

When Chief Campeau was appealed to he readily accepted the offer of the delegation of Chinese merchants who agreed to place him in touch with the meeting places of the Tongs, where gambling was likely to take place. Heretofore it has been a difficult job to catch Chinamen at a fan tan game, and it is declared that the number of successful raids do not come anywhere near in numbers the ones which brought no results, other than to find a meeting of Chinamen with nothing in sight to indicate that a game was in progress. Sentries are placed as far away as one hundred yards, and the semaphore signals of Boy Scouts are a poor second compared to the speed of the sentry once the police appear in sight.

Feed For Sheep

In feeding sheep in winter hay is all-important, and, although a heavy root or cabbage crop may be an inducement to give them an extra bite to save it, it is a risky proceeding. Sheep need hay, and good hay. Sweet, well-made hay, the produce of young grass, is both easily digested and nourishing, and, after, all, a daily ration costs very little in the end. Being a dry food, it is splendidly adapted for supplying to sheep on a watery root crop, which is by no means rich in nutritious matter. It sometimes happens that the turnip crop fails, and then, if cabbage or kale are grown, all will be well. But where there is no such crop to fall back upon the pasture is the only resource, with the assistance of food in the trough.

POULTRY KILLING KNIFE

Best Instrument For the Purpose Made From Old File

For killing poultry a special knife may be made, according to the following directions by a Government expert.

The knives in common use in bleeding and braining poultry are not suited to their purpose. The blades are too broad and too long, and the curve at the point should be on the back instead of on the cutting edge. The handle is so large that the killer is encouraged to use too much force in making the cut to bleed, whereas a light touch of the sharp knife, properly directed, is all that is needed to cut the blood vessels. The knives are also insanitary in that dirt collects at the junction of the blade and handle.

The knife which is to be used to bleed and brain poultry should be small, with a narrow blade; stiff, so that it does not bend; of the best steel, so that it can be kept sharp and is not nicked when used in braining; and the handle and blade should be in one piece. Such a knife, with the aid of the emery wheel or grindstone and oilstone, can be made from an 8-inch flat file.

To make this knife the handle of the file should first be ground off. Then the blade should be shaped from the small end of the file. It should be 2 inches long, one-fourth inch wide, and one-eighth inch thick at the back. The curve to make the point should slope from the back downward. A blade of this shape reaches the blood vessels to be cut more surely than does a blade on which the point curves upward. After the blade is made the ridges on the file should be ground down, leaving just enough roughness to prevent the knife slipping in the hand of the killer. The length of the knife, over all, should be 7 inches.

Origin of Old Expression

When William Rufus, second of the Norman kings, ruled in England he made a law that gave freedom to a man condemned to die, providing the convict proved he could read.

The first verse of the 51st Psalm in Latin was the test. If it was read correctly the magistrate announced that the condemned man "read like a clerk," and he was liberated. He was given the benefit of learning, or the benefit of clergy, which in that day meant learning.

Arrested For Theft.

Yesterday morning a man about 50 years of age, named William Graham of Toronto, was arrested by detectives Newhall and Meagher. Graham is charged with the theft of an overcoat from the King George Hotel, Simcoe Street. The coat has been recovered from a Jew second hand store.

A Generous Offer.

One of Peterborough's rich men has at last awakened to the fact that this City is absurdly slack in its contributions by the wealthy here. Mr. Rollie Haddell has promised $2500.00 towards the fund. Good boy Rollie! you started a movement that will, in all probabilty, wake up some of our local rich tightwads!

Killed By Open Switch.

Wilbert F. Succee, formerly of this city, and son of Mr. Joseph Succee, 169 Hunter Street East, was killed in an accident on the Grand Trunk railway near Midland on Wednesday night. Deceased lived in Lindsay but up to four years ago he resided in Peterborough, where he has a large number of friends. The trouble was caused by an open switch.

Former Rector of St. Luke's

Millbrook Reporter: Rev. Canon Allen, in connection with the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Diocese of Toronto, on Sunday morning last directed his remarks also nearer home and referred to the history of this parish and its former rectors, Rev. T. W. Allen, Rev. Mr. Armour, and Rev. Mr. Thompson. The history of the parish of Cavan should be written up and would be read and cherished by members of every communion.
